
FARM MACHINERY IS NOW RATIONED

In order to direct steel to war industries the Wartime Prices and Trade Board announces rationing of all farm machinery. Flat distribution of all types of farm machinery and equipment will be affected by the order.

Farmers claiming new equipment must state their need. File a statement showing the number of acres in crop, the number of acres in summer fallow, the number of horses, cattle, hogs and sheep on the farm, and a full description of the usable farm machinery on hand.

In the case of a trade-in the farmer must give a full description of old machinery and state whether or not it can be repaired. If it can be put to service, he must state why he is trading it in. Complete reasons must also be stated if the farmer changes over from tractor power to horses, mules or oxen to power equipment.

The order provides that no one may make more than one application for any equipment by entering an application through another dealer.

Dealers are instructed to strict orders, and will be accountable to the administrator of farm and construction machinery and municipal service equipment for all such machinery in their possession and they will be responsible for obtaining the completed application form from customers.

The order, effective on Oct. 5, supplements a recent Board decision reducing manufacture and importation of new farm machinery down to 25% of the 1941 figures, in some cases. The quota of repair parts was increased over that in effect during the past season.

SMOKERS CAUSED 28 PER CENT. OF ALL FIRES

Smokers' carelessness, defective chimneys, furnaces, boilers and smoke pipes took a heavy toll in Canada last year.

The Canadian Underwriters' Association has taken figures from official statistics in order to focus attention on fire prevention week, which shows that out of 48,000 fires in Canada last year, 13,092, or nearly 28 per cent, were caused by smokers' carelessness and, as a result, property to the value of $1,371,879 was lost

Firms, attributed to defective stoves, furnaces, boilers and smoke pipes installed 4,681 and destroyed property amounting to $2,180,530.

Last year there was an increase in household fires, the number of which was 24,282, involving a loss of $6,901,177.

CREAM QUALITY LOWER — POINTS TO REMEDIES

Points to Remember —

Alberta has built up, over a long period of years, a very enviable record for high quality butter. The single factor most responsible for this record has been the high quality of cream received from Alberta cream producers.

The cream receipts recently indicate that the quality was not as good as special than the same period in 1941. Creamery inspectors have also reported that cream quality has deteriorated; this is reflecting in the quality of Alberta butter, and the figures for June 1942 indicate that only 82% scored first grade, as compared with 88% for the whole of 1941. Alberta can ill afford to neglect the quality of cream and butter because of the exacting standards used by the consumers on the Pacific coast market, which is our natural market

There may be some patrons who feel that the present price including the Dominion Government subsidy is satisfactory even if they get a No. 1 or No. 2, and it is not worth the extra effort to market special grade cream. This is a very short-sighted policy because, if, as a result of poor quality the butter sells at a lower price, it will mean a lowering of cream prices.

To receive special grade, the cream producer must keep in mind the three fundamentals of quality cream production:

Cleanliness — From milking to market. Avoid contamination with dirt and undesirable bacteria.

Frequent Marketing — Get good cream to market quickly. Long holding raise flavor

In addition to the above there are numerous shipments lowered in grade due to strong weedy (particularly stinkweed) and metallic flavor. The weedy flavors can be lessened if not completely overcome, by providing ample pasture of good quality and of moving cows from fields infested with weeds at least three hours before milking.

Metallic flavors are caused by the action of the acid in the milk or cream on unlined iron. It has been difficult to secure new cream cans this year, because, but rusted cans should be refinished (inquire from your creamery where this can be done

Circus Pays Rail Fares in Silver

Edward Cassidy Elliott, who retires from the position of General Passenger agent, Canadian National Railways, Montreal, on Oct. 15, was a railwayman 48 years, in a recent interview he recalled a night long ago when an unhappy agent received several hundred dollars in silver from a circus treasurer in payment for transportation. It was after midnight and while the train waited on the siding, ready for the next move the agent counted out the money, coin by coin, by the light of a switchman's lantern, expecting the occasional plugged nickel. After that experience the railways made a rule that $10 would be the limit of silver coin accepted from any circus.

MOTORISTS ISSUED KEY RATION BOOKS

Motorists are giving their full cooperation in carrying out the changeover by which many Alberta car owners are placed in the new "AA" category for non-essential drivers according to information which has been received by the Alberta Motor Association

In response to the appeal of the regional oil controller, motorists are sending in their old coupon books as soon as they receive notice that they are in the new category. This enables the regional officer to send the new coupon books out immediately.

While the classification for non-essential driving came into effect on Oct. 1, the notices were not sent out at once because this would have resulted in the staff at headquarters being flooded with old coupon books.

Instead, a more orderly plan was adopted, whereby the notices were mailed out daily and the way opened for a steady stream of responses, without congestion being threatened.

Federal officials have stated that all notices to new category car owners were out by Oct. 12.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By M. O. L. Strange
Director, Research Department, Searle Grain Co., Ltd

FEED MORE WHEAT

What will happen to the great wheat surplus on the American Continent people are asking. A great deal of it without any question will be fed to livestock

Surprising large amounts of livestock products are now being shipped abroad from the United States and Canada. During the past eighteen months the United States alone has shipped abroad more than five billion pounds of foodstuffs. Calculating 20 tons to the car this would mean a train of cars over a thousand miles long. The United States shipped more pork last year to Russia than Canada shipped bacon in Britain, and the demands for livestock products next year will be even greater. All this additional livestock must be fed, but land is limited, and even new corn and other feeds are becoming scarce in the United States, so that the Government is especially recommending farmers to "feed wheat" up to 50 per cent of the animals' ration.

For war purposes the United States and Canada are one Canadian farmers also, therefore, I suggest, should begin to add much more wheat than they have been doing to their livestock ration. Almost any livestock with the possible exception of sheep, does just as well on wheat as on any other feed, grind wheat coarse—not too fine—for the best results.

Following factors have tended to decrease supply or increase demand: Russia's grain requirements are suspected to reach large proportions this year Excess fall moisture in Western Canada has thrashed and lowered the grade of much of crop — In northwest U.S winter wheat seeding delayed owing to excess fall moisture and labor shortage

Following factors have tended to decrease supply or decrease demand: the Old Dept of Agric estimates the world crop this year at 881,616,000 bushels. World production is estimated to be 200 to 250 million less greater than 1941 production. The Canadian harvest is now progressing favorably with cutting finished and threshing 50% completed

Heroes Of Dieppe

WITH DEEP FEELINGS of pride and satisfaction the people of Canada recently received word of the hundred and seventy-eight awards bestowed by His Majesty King George VI on officers and men of the Canadian army who took part in the raid on Dieppe. Before the raid had been over for many hours, stories of great gallantry and courage were made known, and it is gratifying to the people of Canada that these deeds were recognized in the large number of honors which were given out. Many officers and men of Western Canada regiments were decorated, and the Queen's Own Cameron's of Winnipeg led in the list of honours. This was the only Manitoba regiment taking part in the battle.

Victoria Cross Is Awarded

To Lt.-Col. Charles Cecil Merritt, officer commanding the South Saskatchewan Regiment, went the only Victoria Cross to be awarded on the first one to be presented to a Canadian in the present war. The story of Lt.-Col Merritt's heroism at Dieppe is now familiar to most of us here and it is one that will form a brilliant chapter in the story of Canada's part in this war. That Lt.-Col Merritt is a prisoner of war and is believed to have been wounded is deeply regretted by the people of Canada. Members of the South Saskatchewan Regiment received twenty-one awards in all. To ten of the officers and men went medals while eleven were mentioned in dispatches. Twenty-four awards were made to the Queen's Own Camerons of Winnipeg while the Calgary Tanks and the Calgary Highlanders each received three.

Men From Farms At War

In recent weeks farmers in Canada, and particularly in the Prairie Provinces have experienced difficulty in securing help to harvest the bountiful crop which was produced this year. In many districts the labor shortage has caused serious hardship and concern and it is a problem which reached into almost every farming community in the land. For many however there must have been compensation in knowing that the young men who would normally be providing the labor for this harvest are fighting in the skies and on the seas to keep our country free and that many of them are wounded, some prisoners of war, and some killed in action were among those heroes of Dieppe who were honored by the Empire in the awards bestowed upon them.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.

By Alan Maurice Irwin

Why do you read this column? Because you are interested in the Army. And the reason you are interested in the Army is because your son or your brother or your father or your sister or your mother is in the Army.

You can't find out enough to satisfy you. You want to know what he is doing, what his environment is, what his companions are like or to know whether she is amongst congenial people, what her job is or is likely to be.

In other words, and your particular contact with Army life may not realize it, you want to know every little thing that goes on. The sort of thing that is so close to the letter-writer that he or she does not think of it as being interesting. Right?

Since we understand each other on this point let's have a look at the other side.

What about the soldier male or female who awaits your letters from home?

What sort of letters do you write?

Do you tell every little thing that goes on do you realize that no soldier man or woman is so far from home that home isn't the most absorbing thing to read about when the Mail Corporal comes around with the letters? Or parcels?

Not long ago some of our statesmen made pleas for letters to soldiers that would buck up their morale. They wanted us to write brightly and cheerily so that the boys and girls would feel better about things.

Stuff, nonsense and poppy cock!

If our statesmen would think less about public morale about which they apparently know nothing—and pay more attention to the terms in which open eyes we might get on with the war.

The troops don't need artificial cheerfulness—the kind of boys and girls in need of artificial cheer haven't yet volunteered for active service—what they want is news of their real life, the life they have put behind them until they finish the job of making a continuance of that life possible.

Tell them what's happening around the barn, down by the post office, who is going with' who—or should it be whom?—how many kittens Tabby had last time, how Aunt Martha looked when she slipped on the cellar stairs and broke her ankle. Write a chapter about the new teacher who slapped the face of the fresh kid whose father is chairman of the school board.

In other words, keep them in the family circle.

And when you are doing that and be sure to do it often but not because you fear a loss of morale give a thought to the Canadian Postal Corps.

There is an unpublished unit of specialists who get nothing but criticism from their fellow soldiers because mail is one of the things we take for granted when we get it—and curse the postman for when it is late.

It is a mammoth task, the handling of letters and parcels to hundreds of thousands of addressees who have literally "no known address". When you put your letter in the mail box its destination, unknown to you of course, may be the West Indies, Newfoundland Nova Scotia Egypt, Gibraltar England, Scotland or Brockville. It may change from one of those destinations to another while the letter is en route.

But that letter is delivered and in less time than the civilian post office which works very closely with the C.P.C. could handle an ordinary piece of mail.

As an example imagine you have decided to take a trip to Vancouver Half way there you decided to run south and spend a couple of days in Chicago. Your appetite whetted by the Windy City you change your mind again and head for Los Angeles where you find your mail waiting for you!

Well it would be magic if it could be done in civilian life, but in the Army it's different. There you have an organization that has to keep its forwardment departments advised of everything that goes on so that supply and transport will be arranged.

Movements planned in advance are known to all concerned and the "magic" becomes just good business practice that results in the delivery of a letter originally destined for Sergeant Brown in Scotland to Officer Cadet Brown in Brockville, Ontario, the minute he arrives there.

This is just one of the ways in which the Individual Citizens Army looks after the sons and daughters of that larger Individual Citizens Army that pays the bills.

Let us, then, instead of being just content to pay the bills, see to it that the public servants we hire to do the work of running our government leave no stone unturned to back up and speed forces.

We tell these hired men of ours to do an all-out job. We criticize them for not doing it to our satisfaction. We must do more than that—we must give them the leadership we hired them to give us.

So far we have been rationed in a few insignificant commodities—all of which we could do without. Most of my correspondents tell me they would welcome the rationing of many other commodities.

Don't tell me. Tell the man you hired last election!

Complete melting of the big Green land and Antarctic ice caps would raise the ocean level from 100 to 160 feet.

Food In Britain

People Have Enough But Many Things Are Not Obtainable

E. M. H. Lloyd, economic advisor to the British Ministry of Food, told the American Hotel Association convention at Detroit that the biggest steak ever served in British hotels is only the size of a dollar bill. He said there are no bananas, grapefruit or lemons, no fresh eggs or fresh milk, no white bread, sausages with only 30 per cent. meat, and little or no salad cream. He added Britain's food situation "is better than anyone had reason to expect."

SUPPLIES GOING IN

One of the interesting speculations of the war is how Gen. Dusja Mikhailovich's forces in Yugoslavia are being supplied with arms and ammunition. A dispatch to the New York Times from Ankara speaks of them being "recently reinforced by nearly a hundred tons of light arms and munitions—including automatic rifles, machine-guns and tommy guns."

SPECIAL NAZI COURT

A new special court has been made its appearance in Bohemia to try persons charged with contempt of the German nation. A German who dance with a German soldier is considered an act of contempt and is punishable by a term of several weeks in prison.

HARD ON THE NATIVES

At least one United States soldier on a foreign field is dead at all right—financially. Relatives in Lexington, Ky., received a letter from Sgt. Harold Monaghan in which he said: "I have been teaching the natives to play poker. Enclosed you will find money orders for $200."

ALL-BRAN'S "BETTER WAY" HAS BEEN MY WAY FOR A LONG TIME

Read Mr. Charles Belair, Arvida, Quebec—"KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN has long been a favorite in our home. Mother used to serve it to us when we were young . . . and now my wife started making ALL-BRAN muffins three or four times a week and serving ALL-BRAN as a breakfast cereal, we have had no more use for pills or powders. ALL-BRAN helps us regular . . . naturally." Why don't you try ALL-BRAN'S "Better Way" to correct the cause if you are troubled by constipation due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in your diet? But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like laxative cathartics. It takes time. Eat it regularly and drink plenty of water. Get ALL-BRAN at your grocer's, in two convenient size packages, or ask for the individual serving package at restaurants. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

CARE OF THE TEAKETTLE

Careful Leakettle attention is sometimes lacking in the kitchen. For instance, water should never be allowed to stand in a teakettle when it is not in use. If water is left inside, lime deposits form and heating time is increased. Any lime deposits formed this way may be loosened by heating in a vinegar solution and removed by scrubbing with a fine scouring powder. From time to time the inside of the kettle should be given a good clean-up.

WILDMERE WINKS

Several folks in our district have been sick with colds, flu etc. this past week or so. Lloyd Harvard was in bed all last week. Bob Martin went home sick Saturday from threshing and many others including the writer have been sick. A very busy time to be laid up.

A couple of the Eastern harvesters called at the writer's home Monday on their way back to town. They certainly were fed up with the West already. The Government probably lost money on sending men like them to our heavy harvest as they looked like boys who had never done a hard day's work in their lives, so with the heavy work, long hours, they naturally tired out and got fed up with our country.

When Mr. Howard threshed his oats one load yielded eighty bushels which we think is a record for a load.

Mr. Abe Frizzell of Battleview had a field of oats that went 115 bushels to the acre, the biggest yield we have heard of so far.

Threshing is going ahead fast as possible under the trying lack of wood but we have handled. Lots of stooks remain to be done yet. If Mother Nature only favors us with her continued good weather a few weeks more will see most of it done.

Cliff Crothers met with a painful accident on Tuesday last, when driving something to the truck engine he got his fingers into the fan, cutting two quite badly and making a trip to the Doctor necessary.

We wish Mr. Fred Wright all the luck going for a speedy recovery from his sudden illness. He is one of our old timers who homesteaded in our district. He sold his farm to Haines Bros. when he moved to town.

Postmasters to Return Books

Postmasters in city and town offices throughout the province, having unreturned ration books on hand are requested to return them immediately to the rationing offices of the War time Prices and Trade Board in Edmonton or Calgary.

Books, books addressed to General Delivery are retained by postmasters under instructions of the Board. For we doing a thriving business left at post offices were not regarded as valid, because the record of change of address must be held at the rationing offices of the issue.

A number of these books have been returned, but others still in the hands of local postmasters should be returned at once, officials urge.

TAKE TIME

Take time to live. That is what time is for. Killing time is suicide.

Take time to work. It is the price of success.

Take time to think. It is the source of power.

Take time to play. It is the fountain of wisdom.

Take time to be friendly. It is the soul of happiness.

Take time to dream. It is hitching your wagon to a star.

Take time to look around. It is too short a day to be selfish.

Take time to laugh. It is the music of the soul.

Take time to pray with children. It is the joy of joys.

Take time to be courteous. It is the mark of a gentleman. —The Creamery Co-operator

HIGH SCHOOL ENROLLMENT

INCREASES BY 44 IN 5 YEARS

There are 144 students attending the Vermilion high school this term, the highest number ever to be enrolled in the history of the institution. The 144 represents an increase of 40 students during the past five years.

Vermilion is still purely an academic high school with the exception of typewriting, but commercial courses probably have been unanimously included in schools of this size have not yet been instituted here. No doubt this is the next move as the step has been considered for several years past but was held up by the high school fire. The introduction of commercial courses would further increase the attendance and make Vermilion the educational center which it has at ways dreamed of being.

Attendance by grades at the school this term is

Grade 1 — 30; Grade 10 — 28;
Grade 11 — 37; Grade 12 — 33.

Stagette Notes

The local Stagette club held their first meeting at the home of Miss Jessie Swanson on Tuesday, Oct. 20.

POPCORN TAG DAY

Plans were made for the Popcorn Tag Day which the girls are holding this Saturday, Oct. 24. This is sponsored by the Lloydminster Kinsmen Club proceeds of which will be used in men's kits for Britain Fund. A similar Tag Day was held in Lloydminster last Saturday and proved very successful. As the girls have been pinning tags and discussing the merits of popcorn for the last two weeks they should know something of the popcorn business after Saturday.

Every time boys a bottle of milk on while enjoying your popcorn on Saturday you are also helping to feed the British children milk.

Miss Mary Stewart gave a report on the meeting which was held in the town hall in connection with community parades for overseas. The girls voted a sum of money to this committee and have promised to appear at the Legion hall armed with pens, ink, etc. to address the parcels on Tuesday evening.

LETTER FROM CLINT GATES

The Stagettes were most enthusiastic about a letter from Clint Gates which was received by one of the club members. He had received a parcel from the local Stagette club and was very interested to know that the business girls in town had formed such a useful organization.

A letter was received from the Calgary Stagette club with more details of the Maidstone St. school in London which is a rehabilitation project of the National Stagette clubs or Canada. Enclosed were extracts from a letter to the Calgary club from Miss Sylvia Jennings, Headmistress of the

PRESENTATION TO DEPARTING MEMBER

A presentation was made to Miss Dorothy Heidebrecht who has been transferred to Saskatchewan. The girls will greatly miss Dorothy as she has been a most enthusiastic and hard working member since the club was organized last February.

The Stagettes wish to thank Mr. Mix who brought the popcorn from Lloydminster free of charge for the Popcorn Tag Day to be held Saturday. Your kind act was greatly appreciated Mr. Mix!

GAS RATIONING UNIT IS REDUCED AGAIN

Reduction of the basic rate for gasoline rationing from four to three gallons per unit took effect in Alberta and other provinces, with the institution of the maritimes, at the time of closing business, Saturday, Oct. 17.

The order has been issued by the federal munitions and supply department and affects some 90,000 motor car owners in Alberta. For those in "A" category, who would be entitled to 20 units for a six months period, they will be entitled to 90 gallons now for such period, instead of 120 gallons previously, or 15 gallons before the basic rate was reduced to four gallons per unit a few weeks ago.

Those in the new "AA" category would receive 45 gallons for a six month period, instead of 60 gallons under the previous allowance.

LOCAL VICTORY LOAN RESPONSE DISAPPOINTING

The Vermilion unit of the Victory Loan campaign has found the response to the appeal to purchase Victory Bonds disappointing; the results to date are considerably below the record established during the last loan earlier in the year.

Sharing With England

IN RECENT MONTHS Canadians have begun to experience many of the difficulties caused by the shortage of food and other items important to our way of living. Rationing so far as not been used for many commodities, but in spite of this, the standard of living in most Canadian homes has changed in the past months. These changes have caused some inconvenience, but no real hardship, and for the most part have been cheerfully accepted. We are still able to live comfortable, and even though our purchasing is curtailed we can sit down to bountiful meals and we have fuel, warm clothing and other things essential to health and comfort. Most of us believe that there is still much we could give up, should the necessity arise

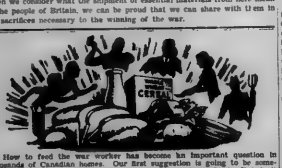
* * * * *

It would be well for us here to remember at all times that many of the shortages we encounter are due to shipment of material to England. Others are due to the fact that ships normally used to bring imported commodities to us, are now transporting materials of war. In England, the people are commencing the fourth year of the war. That they are physically fit, and able to carry on their gigantic undertakings in a great measure because of the efficiency and imagination of the Food Minister, Lord Woolton, and his staff. It is said that an uneasy stomach will soon set a man grumbling and there are few people in England who are not thankful for the way in which their national larder has been stocked and shared. In 1939 England imported over fifty per cent. of her food, some of it from countries now occupied by the Axis, yet by a tremendous re-organization of agriculture, it has been possible to keep the British people adequately fed during the war years.

* * * * *

Praise For Food Ministry

In a publication issued recently by the British Ministry of Information it was stated that this has been accomplished through the far-sighted policy and organization of the British Ministry of Food, and the generous help of the Dominions and the United States, who have made their own sacrifices to send food to Britain. It further states that because of this the people of Britain have been in the offensive "fighting fit". When we consider what the shipment of essential materials from here means to the people of Britain, we can be proud that we can share with them in the sacrifices necessary to the winning of the war.



How to feed the war worker has become an important question in thousands of Canadian homes. Our first suggestion is going to be something you may feel that you, personally, can do nothing about. But don't dismiss it on that account. You alone may feel helpless. But you and your friends and your friends' friends are public opinion; which can still do plenty.

So the first suggestion is that all war workers in a good sized plant should be sold at cost one good nutritious meal during his working period, whatever that is. Surveys conducted by "Nutrition Services" show that industrial workers meals served by a plant-operated cafeteria on a no profit basis are far better than those served by concession cafeterias. Agitation by a worker's committee might rectify the situation if it's wrong in your plant.

And another thing, for those very necessary between meal snacks, the best and most telling stimulants are milk, fruit juices, (and that includes tomato juice) or cocoa—no soft drinks. It is inconceivable that a general demand for milk or fruit juices, in place of soft drinks, would be ignored.

Now if your plant isn't one of the ideal ones—and some of them are, you lunch-time plants serve the sort of meals mother simply didn't know enough to produce; but if yours isn't one of them you'll have to fall back on the lunch box

Here are some rules that will make that lunch box meal a proper one:

1. See that it contains these three ingredients—protein, a vegetable (not potato) or fruit and milk won't give you any trouble. And neither will protein if you remember that our best sources of protein are—meat, fish, eggs, cheese and dried vegetables (like beans).

2. A thermos flask of hot soup or cocoa may just hit the spot. This is purely a matter of taste. The necessity of one hot dish has been shown in recent experiments to be just another superstition. But if your war worker likes one, it obeys rule two, which is palatability.

3. Arrange for the lunch box meat to be as fresh as possible. Don't make it up the night before. And do wrap everything carefully in wax paper to prevent drying

Another tip—be sure your sandwich fillings are moist but not wet. Avoid soggy sandwiches on the one hand and dry ones on the other. Use whole wheat bread

YUGOSLAVIA'S ARMY

Hitler, as it is reported, is determined to put a stop to the operations of Yugoslavia's guerilla armies In view of the fact that such resistance is said to be tying up no fewer than 375,000 Germans, Italians, Bulgarians and Hungarians who are badly needed elsewhere, his resolve may be easily understood. 3447

SERVICE VINTAGE

A New York newspaper recalls that 160 years ago the corvette, St. Louis, arrived at Norfolk after a voyage lasting three years and 79 days, during 75,000 geographical miles. The modern meaning of a corvette is very different, but a corvette was originally a small sailing ship without a quarter-deck. 3447

WE'D LIKE TO TELL EVERYBODY ABOUT ALL-BRAN'S "BETTER WAY"

Says Mr. C. Boyer, Valleyfield, Quebec: "For many years we've enjoyed KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, the delicious cereal that keeps us regular . . . naturally. In muffins, ALL-BRAN is delicious . . . we have them almost every day. And ALL-BRAN is a grand cereal for breakfast."

Why don't you try ALL-BRAN'S "Better Way" to correct the cause if you are troubled by constipation due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in your diet? But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like cathartics. It takes time. Eat it regularly and drink plenty of water. Get ALL-BRAN at your grocer's, in two convenient size packages, or ask for the individual serving package at restaurants. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

The Individual Citizen's Army

A Weekly Column About This And That In Our Canadian Army.

By Alan Mowbray Pratt

Where is that man who referred to me and other writers who look things in the face as "you alarmists"? I'd like to take him on a little motor trip—to the Gaspe Peninsula!

That is to say I'd like to take him for that trip but for one thing—it would be a shame to waste gasoline on him. And motor trips are out—except for the nimbus with their heads buried in the sand who still run their cars, "just for a little jaunt on Sunday."

"A little jaunt on Sundays." We are fighting a people who would shoot them for fun. Just because we are not a people who shoot amateur traitors, they blithely disregard signs that even the dullest moron can read, squander life-saving gasoline, wear out badly needed rubber and conspicuously combine to retard if not the only portion of their anatomy ever likely to be impaled upon a German or Japanese bayonet.

Some of them, on the long, strategic road that follows the St. Lawrence even drive with their headlights full on after dark.

And all this, mind you, after the news has been released that enemy submarines are very active in the Gulf of St. Lawrence!

A black-out has been ordered on the banks of the River St. Lawrence and extending for miles inward.

This has not been done for fun, it has been done because lights on shore make it easier to make his way to the point he desires to reach and equally because lights on the shore silhouette any vessel—even a little fishing boat—between the shore and an enemy raider.

So now as this has not been done for fun. It has been ordered because Canada, whether we like to admit it or not, is in the war zone. It has been ordered because lives have been lost on the broad bosom of the mighty waterway—the banks of which Lady Bessborough once described as "arms that reach out to welcome visitors to Canada." There are some officers Canada does not welcome—hence the need for a black-out.

Shortly after the black-out was ordered, indignant complaints reached the authorities that it was not complete. The answer to this was fairly simple. Many of the farmers living in the country surrounding the river do not read the newspapers, do not listen to radio and do not understand how close the war has come to Canada's shores. They understand now because the authorities quickly devised a plan for notifying every villager, every farmer, of the black-out order and of the reason for it and the necessity for its observance.

The foregoing paragraph, however, must grant an absolution to the motorists who drove along the highway with their headlights on, headlights that, everytime the road rounded a cape pointed out like twin searchlights across the black waters of the gulf. These were just careless—if not criminal a disregard for the lives of Canadians about for the protection of Canada can be called careless—motorists who thought more of their own safety and more of the silly "necessity" for speed that would not permit them to take their lights and proceed at a pace calculated not only to assist the war effort by maintaining the darkness but also to assist it by conserving tires and gasoline.

And it is not only in the black-out areas that such "careless" motorists mar the otherwise bright pages that Canada is writing in the history of these awful war years.

On the Sunday preceding Thanksgiving Day and on Thanksgiving Day itself, you saw for yourself streams of private automobiles that choked the highways surrounding the larger cities. What you thought about it I can guess. What I thought about it, no newspaper can print.

Apparently such selfishness is something that only public opinion applied privately can remedy.

This column, the forty second, that has appeared in these pages, brings to an end the series known as The Individual Citizen's Army. It came to an end because this individual citizen no longer will [illegible] the time to write a column a week As a matter of fact, under King's Regulations and Orders governing the Canadian Army, he will not have permission to write for publication, because this "old sweat" puts on the uniform again with "Canada" on his shoulders to enable a younger man, who is fit, to move on to one of the fronts on which we all are sure the Canadian Army will soon again victoriously take up the torch thrown to it by failing hands a quarter of a century ago.

* * *

Good luck, Alan! You have done a good job for Canada with your column, "The Individual Citizen's Army". You have told us what we needed to know—it has been quite a task for you and we all appreciated your writings. Sorry you can't keep it up but we're doubly proud that you'll wear the uniform again. May all good fortune go with you—you're a real citizen.—Editor.

RELIEF FOR RUSSIA

The Grand Duchess Marie, a cousin of the late Czar Nicholas II. of Russia, declares that in their present stand the Russian people "are again giving a sublime example of the same spirit of sacrifice which they displayed throughout history, when repelling foreign invaders — the Teutonic Knights, the Tartar hordes, the Turks, the Poles, the Swedes, the Grand Army of Napoleon," Russia, she says, has never surrendered and "will not surrender now."

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

A curious transplanting of the Near East is found in Canada's west, where at Edmonton stands a Moslem Mosque, raised to the greater glory of Allah and his prophet Mohammed? Here the ancient customs of Mohammedans are followed in a land free of religious restrictions. The mosque and some of the strange forms of worship are recorded in the Associated Screen "Did You Know That" movie short.

DIPLOMATIC GUNNER

George W. Spinney, in deploring the rumours that are spread to harp Canada's war effort and urging that these be promptly scotched, defines rumors as "anything being told more than somebody with big ears listening to somebody with a big mouth. Those are unflattering categories in which no intelligent or loyal person wishes to be included. The point is obvious.

How soon can WE end this War?

This is the people's war . . . it is our war. Each and everyone of us must contribute our utmost to help speed the day of Victory!

If we fail in our duty to lend to the limit, we help make this war last longer.

Let us resolve to back the new Victory Loan to the utmost of our ability. We, on the home front, must strain every fibre that our fighting men may have overwhelming superiority in arms and equipment to crush our still powerful enemies. The dollars we lend NOW will make this possible sooner.

Price Board Says More Rationing To Be Expected

Moncton, N.B.—Extension, of consumer rationing will likely follow inevitably upon curtailed production of civilian supplies to release manpower for war purposes, Donald Gordon, chairman of the prices board, declared before the annual meeting of the maritime board of trade.

Outlining the board's program of production curtailment, Mr. Gordon laid down this 10-point "preliminary statement of policy:

1. Use of human and material resources for provision of goods and services for the civilian population will be systematically reduced to the minimum required for the health, efficiency and morale of the nation.

2. Control will proceed in an orderly and progressive manner, having due regard for the speed required for the war program.

3. The prices board will proceed with curtailment by control of production, supply and distribution. Transfer of labor will be handled by the director of national selective service.

4. Advisory committees will give the board the benefit of practical experience of the various industries.

5. Final decisions will be the "elimination of obviously non-essential lines and standardization and simplification of continuing lines."

6. The board will try to act on all non-essential production on a basis that will cause the minimum loss. It will not be able to institute parallel moves in all industries at the same time.

7. In the concentration of production in individual industries, manpower requirements of each industry will play an important part, along with the need for power and other services in short supply.

8. It may be necessary for the board to effect a scheme of pooling profits among different companies within an industry, have been curtailed in different degrees in the production of the same article.

9. Maintenance of production for export "will have regard for Canada's commitments and moral obligations to the United Nations or friendly foreign countries."

10. An extension of consumer rationing is likely to be an inevitable consequence of curtailed production . . . consumer rationing is essentially a plan to ensure equitable distribution of available supply rather than any attempt to enforce arbitrary deprivations."

UNREST IN EUROPE

Uncertainty Sweeps Country From Norway To The Balkans

Berne, Switzerland.—All Serbia was reported under martial law as a tide of unrest and uncertainty continued to sweep occupied Europe from Norway to France and the Balkans.

Martial law was declared by the puppet Serbian government at Belgrade, said a Budapest despatch to the Basel Nachrichten, Swiss paper, after the Nazi military commander in Serbia, Gen. Bader, announced numerous arrests had been made because insurgents had attempted to organize a revolt against occupation authorities.

The Basel Socialist newspaper, Arbeiter Zeitung, recently reported that the Gestapo had put to death 500 to 600 Serbs who plotted a revolt.

The decree declared that even the defeat in war had not had so serious consequences for the country as had the attempt at revolt.

Swedish newspaper correspondents reported from Norway, according to the Swiss telegraph agency, that the Nazi puppet premier, Quisling, had ordered 25 more clergymen to leave their homes as a result of a pastoral letter read in Norwegian pulpits Sunday calling latest Quisling measures a new attempt against "liberty of the church."

The period to Nov. 1, private advices from Unoccupied France said, represents the extension of line-set by Berlin for fulfillment of its labor demands for 150,000 volunteer workmen

It also is the period, informed French observers said they believed, which will demonstrate whether Laval could hope to cling to his position as chief of government in the face of persistent, although thus far scattered, opposition.

LETTER FROM MERRITT

Victoria Cross Winner Writes From Nazi Prison Camp

Belleville, Ont. — Lt.-Col. Charles Cecil Merritt of Vancouver, first Canadian to win a Victoria Cross in this war, said in a letter received here by his wife, that he enjoyed the Battle of Dieppe, "even if it didn't last long."

"I have recovered from my wounds," Col. Merritt said in his first communication from a German prison camp. "Our quarters are sufficient."

The 33-year-old grenade-throwing lawyer whose name was placed at the head of 178 Canadians for gallant decorations for valor in the nine-hour assault on the French coast town last Aug. 19, stressed the need for food and clothing and advised Mrs. Merritt to get in touch with the Red Cross society for particulars.

Col. Merritt commanded the South Saskatchewan regiment during the fighting and his message confirmed published reports that he had been wounded in the attack.

RUSSIAN OPINION

Thinks Germany Cannot Be Defeated From The Air

Moscow.—A Russian aviation expert says the Allies are all wrong if they think they can defeat Germany through air bombing.

Major-General Zhuravliev says bluntly that wars are won by armies that are millions strong with both ground and air equipment.

As he put it: "Aviation without a ground force is not only incapable of achieving victory on this or that front, but even of creating such a front." He points out that Germany couldn't defeat Britain with air power.

FOR VICTORY

Co-operation Is Necessary Says New Soviet Envoy

Ottawa.—Close co-operation of all the United Nations is "the necessary condition for victory," Feodor Guzev, first minister to Canada from the Soviet Union, said in an address accompanying the presentation of his credentials to the governor-general.

He said the Soviet Union, "in co-operation with Canada and the other United Nations," is fighting a titanic struggle against the enemy of all liberty-loving people of the world."

Says Empire Has Withstood Greatest Test

London.—Field Marshal Smuts declared that the British commonwealth of nations stands "unbroken by storms and setbacks" as "the heart of the defence against the most terrible onslaught ever made on human rights and liberties."

In his address to the joint houses of parliament, the prime minister of the Union of South Africa declared that idle words about "the approaching breakup of the great world group we form," are "folly and ignorance . . . Misreading of the real signs of the times" and—in certain quarters—"what wishful thinking!"

He said: "It is true this greatest human experiment in political organization! has its present critical structure of the time; this precedent and anticipation of what one hopes may be in store for human society in years to come; this commonwealth; is being tested as never before in its history.

"But is it not standing The test? is not this free and voluntary association, is not this world-wide human co-operation today holding together more successfully than ever before under the most searching test?

"Knowing the dangers and temptations we have had to face, the stresses and strains imposed upon us, nothing has been more remarkable to me than the cohesion of this vast structure under the hardest hammer blows of fate.

"We have suffered, we are poorer, we shall be poorer still. We have had heavy setbacks and an exceptional run of bad luck. Is it a wonder then in the fourth year of this war there may sometimes coure r nents of disappointment, of failure, of accidentally even a sense of frustration?

"But still this great commonwealth remains the heart of the defence against the most terrible onslaugh ever made on human rights and liberties. It stands unshaken by storms and setbacks.

"The people of this island are the real heroes of this epic, world-wide drama, and I make my small tribute to their unbending unbreakable spirit."

Subscription Comes From Prisoner Of War In Germany

Montreal A subscription to Canada s third Victory Loan "right from the heart of Germany" was reported by Montreal loan headquarters. The subscription came from FO. B. D. Campbell of the Royal Canadian Air Force, who now is a prisoner of war in a Nazi camp.

FO Campbell, whose mother, Mrs. R. D. Campbell, lives in suburban Pointe Claire, recently wrote his mother to invest some of his savings in bonds He added that he had requested Lloyds bank in England to transfer his savings there to Canada in the fourth year of this war there may sometimes coure r nents of disappointment, of failure, of accidentally even a sense of frustration?

Fighters Of Two Wars Compare Notes

In the course of a tour of inspection of Royal Canadian Air Force units overseas, Air Marshal W. A. "Billy" Bishop, V.C., victor over 72 Huns in the last war, dropped into the pilots' room of a Canadian fighter squadron to meet a man whose victories are still very fresh in his mind. The smiling lad in front of the air marshal is Pilot Officer G. R. "Scotty" Murray of Halifax, N.S., who, about a week before, had been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for his work during the Dieppe raid.

COAL SITUATION

A Shortage in Western Canada Reported

Winnipeg.—Findings of a special committee appointed to deal with the question of a reported coal shortage in western Canada have been outlined in a letter which the council of the Winnipeg board of trade recommended be sent to federal government officials and the Canadian Chamber of Commerce at Montreal.

The board said the letter which states that "the situation in western Canada with reference to the coal requirements is likely to be desperate this winter unless immediate steps be taken to increase production," should be sent to Prime Minister King, Labor Minister Mitchell, Finance Minister Ilsley and Elliott M. Little, director of national selective service.

The board suggests that experienced miners, at present in the armed services or engaged in war work, should be temporarily released in order to help with the work in coal mines.

More Air Power Is Required To Achieve Victory

London There are, it is believed here, fewer than 200 prime targets Allied bombers need to destroy Hitler's France and Germany in order to render Hitler so vulnerable the Allies could roll their army over the map and end the war by next fall. These targets comprise Nazidom's chief war p astries, rail communications and r ding stock In short, they represent the source of much striking power and the means of moving that power into action.

In order to achieve this destruction quickly and thereby prevent great prolongation of the war, British and American bomber forces based in this country would have to be heavily increased.

Obviously, no attempt will be made to give detailed figures. But it can be said that if these two forces were trebled within the next couple of months, the Allies could achieve enough by spring so that an invasion army could go into operation.

Of course it leaves a lot to the imagination to talk about trebling the bomber forces when we don't know what the present fleets are Still authorities who do know the figures will recognize that this would be a feasible expansion

Th concentration of air force in Britain would be made in

1 Bi current production in both countries.

2 By transferring aircraft from other activities which could be spared, them for this major operation in western Europe

In this second category might fall some of the submarine scouting now being carried on by aircraft with the expenditure of a maximum amount of labor for a minimum of results The ideal place to get a submarine with bombers is at the building base and not after the U boat has started to roam the seas.

Emphasis must be placed on speed in providing bomber reinforcements Hitler should not be allowed to use the winter months to repair the grievous damage he has suffered in the Russian campaign

Humanity Laws Of Warfare May Be Repudiated

New York. — German propaganda took another ominous step along a course which, although still obscure, might lead toward Axis repudiation of the accepted laws of humanity in warfare under the pretext that the Allies first violated the codes.

The Berlin radio gave circulation to statements attributed to the semi-official German commentary, Deutschland Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondent, that Germany, Italy and Japan have proof "that on the enemy side formal orders were given for warfare contrary to humanity."

The statement added the threat: "The day will come eventually when those responsible will be called to account for their actions."

This newest outburst followed Japan's assertion that captured United States airmen would be punished for intoxicating their bomb raids on Japanese soil, and German charges that the British forces attacked a dressing station for wounded on the North African front

Reuters quoted a Vichy broadcast of despatches from Stockholm as reporting that Germany and her associates had conferred on plans to denounce the Geneva Convention agreements on Red Cross and war prisoners on the grounds that the 1864 convention had been violated by the United Nations.

The German diplomatic commentary spoke bitterly of the blockade of Germany which it purported to be "mass murdering."

The Berlin radio said the Japanese official website had published a law permitting factories to apply for prisoners of war workers.

There have been reports that some Americans captured in early stages of the Pacific war had been put to work on docks and such projects, but this was the first intimation that Japan might put them to work in factories

The Hague convention of 1929 provides that prisoners of war may be used as workers provided their tasks have nothing to do with military operations, and that they shall be paid at the same rate as troops of the country into whose hands they have fallen.

HEPBURN RESIGNS

Will Be Succeeded By Gordon Conant As Party Leader

Toronto.—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, whose colorful political career and caustic comment often brought him afoul the federal government and at times injected him into international prominence, resigned as head of the Liberal government of Ontario and leader of the party that, in office for two terms since June, 1934 was succeeded by Attorney-General Gordon Conant. Mr. Hepburn announced in a statement that he would retain the cabinet portfolio of treasury of treasurer "for a short time, after which I shall retire from public life."

Mr. Conant, sworn in as premier by Lieut.-Governor Albert Matthews, will remain as attorney-general. The new premier is 37 years old, a former crown attorney in Oshawa for Ontario county, and was first elected to the legislature in 1937.

Mr Hepburn's resignation came with the same startling suddenness that has characterized many of his political moves

Mr. Hepburn will retain his seat for Elgin in the legislature while serving as provincial treasurer. His announced intention to retire from public life would imply his ultimate resignation from the legislature.

After issuing his statement Mr. Hepburn commented that he would not contest any seat as a private member or otherwise."

He said that a year ago he asked his colleagues to select a successor but was prevailed upon to continue during the last session.

MANY BOMBING ATTACKS

London Malta has had 1,660 bombing attacks and destroyed 1,060 enemy aircraft up to Oct. 19, Air Archibald Sinclair, air secretary, told the House of Commons. He said 1,238 civilians had been killed up to Oct. 20, and 6,704 buildings destroyed or damaged.

PUTS ON WEIGHT

London One unit of the A.T.S. (British counterpart of the C.W.A.C.) has collectively put on a ton and a half of weight since joining up. But, said Gen. Sir Ronald Adam, adjutant-general, it isn't fat but good sound flesh.

Relative of persons on the assessment roll and tenants are eligible to have their names added to the voters' list but must call at the town office each week during the months of September and October to have this done. Having your name added to the voters' list gives you the right to vote for Mayor, councillors, school trustees and hospital representative in the municipal elections. There is a real election looming up in February and you will want to be able to cast your ballot. It is up to you. Call around today and have your name added — there are just two days left.

ISLAND HILL

We wish Mr. and Mrs. Fred Payne many happy years of married bliss.

Snow has put a stop to the rush to have the fields cleared. There is a week or ten days threshing to be done here yet.

Efforts are on foot to raise the new Victory loan. It is hard to realize what this huge sum means. This will give our readers an idea: If a boy of nine began counting a hundred dollars a minute, forty hours a week, he would not reach the $750 million level until the war is 19 years old

Mrs. McIntyre and children were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Evans Sunday.

This Saturday is Hallowe'en and not that day a lot of harmless fun takes place such as ducking for apples and putting nuts on a fire place to see if they burn together or otherwise. But some boys, even in rural districts, take advantage of Hallowe'en to annoy neighbors and even to destroy property. Boys, enjoy yourselves at your own homes and leave your neighbors alone to enjoy themselves too!

The school kiddies had an enjoyable afternoon Tuesday when Miss Roland gave a Hallowe'en party in their honor. All the good things beloved by children were served and all did full justice to the good things provided. Most of the kiddies took part in the singing and Bobbie Dailey finally had the school screaming when he sang a new song entitled "We'll hang old Hitler on a Jap sour tree".

Miss Roland deserves and gets the best thanks of the kiddies and the community for her thoughtfulness and generosity.

CURRENT FLASHES

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Rudmas returned to Edmonton last week after spending a week visiting old friends and neighbors in the district. Both are working and like life in the city quite well

There is still a lot of threshing to do here,though, yields from threshed crops have been quite good. We all hope that the present weather is only temporary and the threshing will yet be cleaned up.

Miss Helen Potter our former teacher at has been spending a week in the district visiting Mrs. Buster flarie and other friends

Gordon Larsen is in hospital again and a quick recovery is wished him.

More of our boys have received their calls for military training We hate to see them go but it is really necessary, among them are Harold Cleland, Bill Meadows, Cecil Kennedy and Ken Kennedy.

Mrs. R. Tory of New Westminster, B.C. has returned home after visiting her mother who is very ill in hospital

We understand that Melvin May has gone to Edmonton to receive treatment for his ankle which was injured a year ago and which has caused him quite a lot of trouble since

No new cases of measles have been reported in the district and it is hoped that the epidemic has abated

The community extends its sympathy to the Zapotuuk family on the loss of their son Pete The war is taking the cream of our young men and many homes are saddened. Let us hope that it will soon end

SUNSET DAY IN MANY YEARS ON SATURDAY

Local merchants report that Saturday of last week was the busiest day experienced in many years. In fact one merchant thought that no record since the golden days of 1928 would be equal to the Saturday business.

The large turn over was only possible because the business was of the steady variety, commencing about 10 o'clock in the morning and continuing until 9 p.m. before a slackening off would be noted.

Fully 90% of the business was cash with no complaints about goods and no requests for cut prices.

SIMPLE STYLES SAVE MATERIAL

Now simplified styles of glass containers for jams, jellies, pickles and marmalade, will save 3500 tons tons of glass and 100 tons of sheet metal annually, states the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Restriction will reduce the number of sizes from 20 to 10, and eliminate 134 different styles of containers.

The order applies to glass containers used in commercial canning, preserving and food processing industries, but not to glass products for similar use in the home.

Plain round jars, approved as to style, shape and quality, by the administrator of glass and glass products will be manufactured after the end of 1942.

Jim Says

IT CAN BE DONE

Jim finds times hard. His standard of living has dropped. There are all these new taxes.

Now there's another Victory Loan and Jim is expected to subscribe.

"Rock bottom!" was Jim's first thought. "We're on rock bottom. Just can't find the money!"

He's thought some more since. And he's decided it can be done. Jim says he doubts if Merritt lost much time wondering if it could be done when he crossed that bridge at Dieppe.

Vegreville School Division Board Issues Statement re Teacher Salary Dispute

The following is a statement released on behalf of the Vegreville school division board by the chairman Mr. F. F. Austin as to the position of the board in the matter of the present teacher salary dispute:

(The eastern boundary of the Vegreville school division reaches to the outskirts of Vermilion and the inclusion many of the schools in the immediate Vermilion district)

The salary dispute between the Board of Trustees of Vegreville school division No. 19 and their teacher employees has reached the point where the Teachers' Association has notified the Board that unless the Board meets the Salary schedule as awarded by the majority of the Board of Arbitration, the teachers will go on strike on Nov. 2nd.

At the May meeting of the Divisional Board representatives of the Teachers' Association made a demand for a $1000 minimum salary. When this demand was not met the Teachers' Association invoked the provisions of the Conciliation and Arbitration Act and it was at the request of the Alberta Teachers' Association that an Arbitration Board was set up. At no time did the Board refuse to negotiate or to accept any award of a Board of Arbitration.

The present increased salaries offered and paid by the Board will mean an increase in levy of one mill on taxes, over last year's rate. To implement the award of the majority of the Board of Arbitration would mean an increase in levy of two and one quarter mills.

The Divisional Board is unanimous in resolving that such an increase is not warranted to be on one particular section of the taxpayers of the Division. Since the inception of the Division, salaries of teachers have not increased and all increases made in teacher salaries have had to be added to the already burdensome taxation on land. The Board feels that the point has been reached where further increases will lead only to regressive features where collections will not meet expenditures and the taxation burden will lead non-collections and tax foreclosures.

The board has pursued a policy of increases that has had the effect of raising the minimum salary to $840 and an average increase in the past four years of $187. These increases have had the effect in individual cases of bringing salaries to $1100 in one-roomed schools and to $1310 for senior teachers in two-roomed schools in amounts varying from $65 to $307 over last years salaries.

The increases that have already been put into effect this year have amounted to $6000 over last year for recently teachers and this is in the face of the fact that wartime conditions have made it impossible to secure a staff with experience, qualifications and abilities that will at all times live up to the standard of the previous years.

The Alberta School Trustees association has recommended that the salary minimum of $840 is a proper basic minimum in the Province and this Division in justice to the other school districts of the Province, does not feel that it can exceed that minimum. In view of this it is felt that

TRAVELLERS STILL RIDE ROAD

"We have to rely on commercial travellers to a fair extent to assure equitable distribution of available supplies" stated R. P. Chisholm, director of the Industrial Division Wartime Prices and Trade Board, when it was reported that commercial travellers might be off the road by the end of the year. "Commercial travellers, even at this time can be of great value in a technical way to purchasers in many industries." Mr Chisholm said.

Munitions and Supply Department announces that the total value of contracts awarded and commitments made by the Department on Canadian, United Kingdom and other account has exceeded the $5,500,000,000 mark.

Stagette Notes

A letter was received from the Calgary Stagette club with more details of the Siddons St. school in Lethbridge which is a charitable project of the National Stagette clubs of Canada. Enclosed were extracts from a letter to the Calgary club from Miss Sylvia Jennings, Headmistress of the school.

"We are delighted to be adopted and feel we have a real fairy godmother now although we cannot knock at the door and be given a warm welcome to enter All articles of clothing will be most welcome, from the baby size to the 14 year old as I have a nursery class in addition to classes of children — boys and girls of all ages.

"Our neighborhood was badly bombed and we need warm clothes as windows are often missing. I do not suppose you can have any idea of what work in London now means. I have kept the Daily Flying since Easter 1940 . . . we did not close at all during the heaviest raids although the school became quite small and we had to walk to and fro in the shelters We were lucky to have a reinforced floor and electric light ... we lost two each day."

"It is over so kind of your club and their friends to collect such a wonderful assortment of garments. The big boys helped to undo the packages and carefully removed nails as the boxes are such excellent timber we are using to make the woods into toys The brown paper, too, is of such excellent quality that it is quite a godsend in these days when more often than not non-paper has to do. We are all East-enders and true Cockneys' Quite a number work in the district near where I live and have gone ... the poor ramshackle houses rattle down like packs of cards when a bomb fell It is wonderful that we lost only two of the oldest girls. Etc etc

"Now WE hold a Mortgage on Canada Ma!"

"Sure we're working harder than ever—but that never hurt anybody. We're working longer hours and putting our money away in Victory Bonds. Now we'll be paid interest instead of paying it.

"When peace comes we'll have money saved to buy new equipment for our farm—might even put up a new barn —maybe take a holiday!

"Meanwhile, we can't think of any safer or better place to invest our money than in bonds backed by our country. And we can't think of any better purpose than helping our fighting boys get the jump on the enemy. When we read about our lads bombing Germany, we can think that maybe we raised one of those bombs on our own farm.

"So that's our plan from now until peace comes. We will work to save and lend. We'll have it to spend later. And we can look forward to getting that new tractor and that fine new automobile we're saving for now."

"We'll be laying up for ourselves the best of all investments—VICTORY BONDS—backed by all the resources of the Dominion of Canada: they yield a fair rate of interest; we can borrow against them; and they are readily saleable when we need cash!

PROVINCE INVESTS 4 MILLION IN VICTORY BONDS

Broad smiles were seen in Victory Loan headquarters here this week when it became known that the Alberta Government had purchased $4,000,000 worth of the new stock. Of this sum $2,000,000 was allocated to Edmonton's quota, and the other half to the province at large. Making the purchase on behalf of the province, Hon. Solon E. Low, Prov. Treasurer, said that "The government feels that the purchase of Victory bonds is the best possible investment it can make in the future of the country. He recalled that two earlier purchases of one million dollars each had been made, bringing the total to $6,000,000 now bought.

Alberta's unique geographical position as a jumping-off place to the far north and the Orient is graphically illustrated in new color motion pictures which have recently been made along the airlanes and the highway in Alaska. Scenes depicting the epic construction job in progress, the unique rush, with prospectors deserting gold for the more precious metal, with freight and passenger planes operating easily over treacherous terrain that cost many a '98 sourdough his life — these and many others make up a thrilling story of modern progress and opportunity to come. They will be shown across the United States and Canada at an early date.

The shortage of teachers in Alberta is being reduced by the Dept. of Education, but according to Dr. G. Fred McNally, deputy minister, there were still 50 needed for rural schools this week. A recent order in council permits the department now to revive any lapsed 3rd class teaching certificate under conditions left to the discretion of the education officers. This will allow them to accept former teachers to fill vacancies.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

oo oo oo

The snow storm of the week end put an area to threshing and everyone hopes that by the time this appears in print said snow will be all gone.

Don't forget the free show in the Bowtell school on Nov. 5th at 8.30 o'clock.

Congratulations and best wishes for a long and happily married life are extended to our newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Playne.

Our friend Joe appears in the limelight again. He took his team and rack into the field one early morning and proceeded to load up. He filled the rack and started to return to the machine only to find that he lost the steel rim off one wheel. The jobs was that he had lost the rim at the machine before he started to the field.

Billy Korolnk is home with an attack of the mumps. We hope that this will be the last case in the district.

Mrs. A. Holte of Vermilion is helping her sister Mrs. Morrison while the threshers are at the latter place.

We are sorry to hear that a nephew of Mr. McGinnis' was killed recently. We hope to have a more complete news item for next week.

Mrs. Shepherd helped at the Walker home recently while the threshing crew was there.

Alex King expects to be home for a short leave next week.

Miss Stewart cooked for a threshing crew at the Shepherd home recently. The crew was on the old Taylor farm.

The writer received a nice letter from one of the girls formerly stationed at Vermilion with the C.W.A.C. She is now in B.C. but she certainly enjoyed her month's stay here.

NO EXTRA TEA FOR PARTIES

No allowance of any of the rationed commodities, sugar, tea or coffee is made for charitable organizations desiring to raise funds, for entertainments, or for social affairs, state rationing officials of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. "Although there has not been a great number of special applications for sugar, tea and coffee, for entertainments or social affairs, those which we have received have been refused. On the whole, people seem to be co-operating, and have a patriotic consciousness of the fact that saving on rationed commodities is a safeguard to lives and ships", commented R. M. Education and Religion

by

Dr. R. C. Wallace, Principal of Queen's University and the former President of University of Alberta.

Thoughtful people have become seized with the conviction that education and religion cannot safely be divorced. The one should embrace and include the other. In our anxiety for praiseworthy precautions, as protestant peoples, to divest ourselves of even a semblance of authority on the part of any church over the educational system we have fallen into the other danger of separating formal education almost completely from religious influences. Education, to be running smooth, has discovered that it is non religious.

This fact might have passed almost without a protest but for the war. In these dark days when Dunkirk had fallen and the very existence of the British people was in hourly doubt, the feeling grew into prayerful utterance that God was our only refuge. The pomp and circumstances of life fell into the background as utterly insignificant. The eternal values stood out as the only real things for which man lives. It was out of this conviction, universally experienced, that the urge has come to draw closer to the verities of religious truth and religious experience. Across the country in Canada, in the United States, and in Britain itself, the distression is going on as to the wisest way by which religious teaching can be introduced into the schools and colleges. The time is ripe for a great forward movement.

Without entering into details as to the procedure, one may postulate two considerations which should wisely be observed. The first is that all the Protestant churches and sects, with one exception, should combine in this work. If an acceptable body of material for the schools cannot be agreed upon, the leaders of the churches should be placed under the most severe restrictions as to their opinion. But I am convinced that there is wise statesmanship in the churches to achieve this end. The second is that the teachers of the schools — specially selected where necessary — should be the inspirators in this field. They have learned the art of teaching, they have the confidence of their people, and they are generally speaking, of deep religious convictions. Under these conditions there will be a notable advance in Christian Education.

Looks like old man Winter has come upon us already. It's too bad when so much grain is left standing in stooks in the fields. It will also spoil the grades as well.

Albert Howard spent a short time at his home over the week end from his training centre at Saskatoon.

In a recent note from Noel Garrett who is in the air force stationed in an eastern city he reports he is feeling well and likes his work. Noel was one of the good curlers last winter.

Pte. Carl Graham made a flying trip from Calgary to see his children on Thursday and returned again on the Saturday morning bus. He also visited his wife at the Calgary Jail and reports her looking well. He was not sure where he would be stationed on his return.

Ken Kennedy and others were out to the writer's one day duck hunting. There are not many ducks left as the lake is frozen over these days.

The road grader outfit moved in to do this two miles of road on Friday and then the ground froze so not much can be done unless it thaws out again. The men are boarding at Geo. Cumbers.

News is scarce these days but in closing we must say school will open half hour later next Monday, Nov. 2. Owing to the shorter days it's too dark and cold to send small kiddies off to school at the old time.

How A British Pilot Saved A German Who Was Hot Down

In marked contrast with the enemy's habit of machine-gunning defenceless airmen is this act of chivalry enacted by a British fighter pilot during a raid over Malta. It was mentioned in a recent dispatch from that famous island in these words: "The pilot saw a German fighter aircraft shot down and the enemy pilot bail out into the sea. He threw his rubber dinghy from the cockpit, and when it hit the water the German was able to scramble into it and was then saved by an R.A.F. launch. In making this gesture the British pilot knew that he was throwing away his own chance of survival in the event of being shot down himself.

Cat Was Crated In An Airplane Shipped To Australia

Somewhere in Britain early this year, an airplane was crated—and with it a cat.

Two months later when the crate was opened in Australia the cat was still alive, crouching in a corner terrified of the light, covered in grease and almost dead from fear. The crate was deck cargo and the rain driving through interstices collected in the footage of the plane and provided drink.

For food the cat licked the grease from various parts of the machine. Some of the duralumin parts from which the protective covering was removed attracted verdigris by corrosion.—Australian Newsletter.

PRIVILEGES CONSCRIPTED

A clergyman in Britain recently said: "We have been pleasure-loving people, dishonoring God's day. We have preferred motor travel to church going—now there is a shortage of fuel oil. We have ignored the ringing of church bells—now the bells cannot ring except to warn us of invasion. The money we would not give to the Lord's work is now taken from us in taxes and higher prices. The service we refused to give to God is now conscripted for the country."

Commercial Travellers To Spike Idle Rumors

Commercial travellers—some 40,000 of them will be enlisted immediately into a plan to spike idle rumors and silence rumor mongerers," delegates of the six commercial travellers' associations in Canada have decided.

The campaign against "loose talk," granted already the approval of Ottawa, pledges commercial travellers first, to refrain from relaying rumors and, by precept and example to discourage the spreading of them by others. Theme of the campaign is "You're never sorry for what you don't say."

WHISTLER WAS LATE

It was seldom that Oscar Wilde encountered anyone who could match his own supreme, never-failing, self-assurance. But in James McNeil Whistler, the artist, he found one man who could. When Wilde was planning his wedding she invited Whistler to attend. Came the hour for the ceremony and the artist had not arrived. Just as he was about to proceed to the altar the shaky bridegroom received a telegram reading: "Am detained. Don't wait." It was signed "Whistler."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE CHRISTIAN VIEW OF MARRIAGE

Golden text: Let marriage be had in honor among all. Hebrews 13:4

Lesson Genesis 1:27, 28; 2:18 24.

Jeremiah 29:4-6. Matthew 19:3-6. John 2:1-5

Devotional Reading: Psalm 128.

Explanations and Comments

The Companion for Man, Genesis 2:18 24. Our first lesson in July from the first chapter in Genesis gave us the first account of the creation. In day our text is from the second account. Genesis 2:4-24 Having created man and placed him in Eden, the Creator declares that it is not good for man to be alone, and resolves to provide him with "a help meet for him," that is, suitable for him Note that we have two words, a noun and an adjective here, and not our one word "helpmeet". "The Hebrew woman is literally, 'a helper as his counterpart.' This is the true idea of woman's relation to man, his counterpart, and wherever this is realized in marriage God's purpose is being fulfilled

Unlike in the first account, beasts and birds are created after man, and are designed for man's companionship. They are brought to him to name them But they are not suitable even to make his soliloquy to, therefore a woman is created from one of the man's ribs. Matthew Henry quaintly says that woman was taken out of man's side to suggest her equality with him; not out of his feet to imply inferiority, nor out of his head to suggest superiority, but out of his side, implying companionship and equality The man perceives that this new creation is a part of himself, and accordingly names her woman wife-man.

Verse 24 may be an old saying dating from remote times, when the husband went in the house (tent) of the wife and joined her clan. Still the passage may be merely the narrator's remark

"The creation of one man and one woman in the ideally perfect state of Eden implies that monogamy is the ideal of the married life Polygamy and divorce were later accommodations to man's 'hardness of heart' But from the beginning," (Dr. L. to the original purpose of the Creator) 'it was not so'" (Mt. 10:4, 6).

aboard. "It might do. I could be a guest. They would not look for me as a guest except for my clothes. Perhaps you could get me some suitable attire, Anne. I would not be long with you. Once the host and host ess had died down, I shall make my way to Mexico. There I will find friends who will help me get back home, to South America, where I can join my father and be safe. I want only to be safe, Anne——" His voice broke, recovered quickly. "I have gone through so much, suffered so much——"

A question loomed gigantically in Anne's mind. What great trouble was he in? Why was he hunted? Why was he committed some ugly crime? She could not bring herself to ask. Some day perhaps he would tell her, and he did not mean to tell her.

"I'll take you to the hotel, Erich," she said "and tell them now what is to be. You will be safe there, for as long as he thinks you should stay."

She straightened around to drive the car. The moon had seemed brighter and more hostile then ever before. She drove fast, not saving the station wagon's springs on the rough road. Erich must have found some clothes in the car, for he was, and he dropped his head on dozed off.

Nearing Halfway House on the road as soon as the lights of the hotel came into sight. She reached out and touched Erich's arm and he started violently and brought his hand to the pocket holding the gun. Then seeing only her he sheepishly grinned.

"Halfway House, just ahead," she told him "Only six employees are here. Any guests do not stay, coming until tomorrow. I imagine you will be glad to be away from it, go on ahead and see It will be best if the help does not see you with those clothes Wait here, Erich and when I appear in the doorway you may sig, leaving the car. Forget the pine tree emblem

At eleven o'clock Steve Hulya went into the dispatcher's room in the administration building to relieve the night reporter. The reports were monotonously the same, wind to rain fairly heavy, good weather for timber fires There was a fire burning in the west district, and a radio operator, Clint Bates, handled the sig, keeping the forest service pine tree emblem

Steve Hulya went into the dispatcher's room in the administration building to relieve the night reporter. The reports were monotonously the same, wind to rain fairly heavy, good weather for timber fires There was a fire burning in the west district, and a radio operator, Clint Bates, handled the sig, keeping the forest service pine tree emblem

"That is good Anne," he said. "I am grateful to you."

He opened the door and got out into the darkness. He started to close the door then held it. "You would not like to be my wife?" he asked

"There will be one more at the hotel than I have said," Anne told him. "I'm afraid not. I could not be—be his wife if I wished."

"No——His eyes, sunken and feverishly bright, appraised her. "But you would not give me up to police."

"There is not a policeman——" Anne caught herself up on that. It wasn't exactly true that there was not a policeman within miles and miles. There were the Forest Rangers at Spruce Creek. There was a——Steve Hayes

"An idea came to you," Erich said. "An idea, yes," she admitted. "I had forgotten the Forest Rangers. They watch out for strangers. You will have to be very careful Erich." He nodded perkily, said, "I will watch for the signal."

Anne put the car into gear again and drove on to Halfway House. She parked the station wagon in the drive then crossed the front verandah and entered the lobby, closing the door behind her. Her father was slouched in an armchair before the radio, which was bringing in a Hollywood show, and smoking his pipe.

"Dad, are the others gone to their rooms?" she whispered.

"Why, yes. Mrs. Bailey was last to go. She was here with me until half an hour ago." He eyed her curiously. "Hello! Something's up. What is it?"

"Prepare yourself for a shock Drew Lowry." Anne said forcing her voice gay. I have an old friend outside. You'd never guess who It a Erich Kruger

He stared disbelievingly. "Erich Kruger here? Oh no. Erich is thousands of miles from here Anne," he said A shadowy look darkened his pale thin face "I know that for certain Anne You see I kept it from you but Erich Kruger——"

Erich Kruger" said a gruffer voice from the doorway. "At last He hopes he is welcome."

Anne whirled and saw that he had silently opened the door and had listened He had followed her to the hotel not trusting her daylight was bright on his face and she saw how he had changed in the longer was the youthful and carefree alpine guide abounding beside him had hardened his face thinned out his mouth put a metallic brightness in his eyes He closed the door behind him, came slowly into the big barrel-room, a squarely built man with a not tall man in torn and soiled denim pants and jacket and heavy-duty shoes He smiled, but it was a mechanical smile.

"Or am I not welcome, my old friend?" he asked. "If that is so, I shall go my way."

"No, no" Drew Lowry exclaimed He rose and moved to Erich, holding out his hand. "I could never turn you away, Erich. What is mine, is yours." The police "We will not speak of that at once, Erich."

"Then I will say how good it is to see you again." The sight of an old friend can be as satisfying as the sight of a father—almost as pleasant as seeing a sweetheart." Erich put his arm about Drew Lowry's stooped shoulders. "Your look better than three years ago, Herr Lowry. And the Fraulein is so much prettier."

His use of the German words made Drew Lowry look anxiously about. He said, "Sit in that chair by the radio, Erich. It is away from the windows."

"Is it possible someone could see us in here?"

"Possible but not probable." Drew Lowry said. "Anne, switch off some of the lights. . . . It will be easier."

Anne obeyed, and as she moved back from the last switch she heard Erich's insistent query: "Who could be? There are neighbors?"

The older man shot Anne a meaningful glance, then reluctantly said: "Erich, there was a policeman, a forest ranger, to be exact—here today looking about. He asked questions about how many people were here at Halfway House I think it possible he knew you were somewhere in the vicinity and also knew you were hunted."

Erich nodded jerkily. "It is one, he said daily. "I have come to borrow a car after I crossed the Canadian border. I abandoned it close to the town where I met Anne. The was early this morning as they would hunt I am sorry to cause you trouble." It lifted his hands in a pitiful pleading gesture. "If you wish me now what torment I have suffered, you would understand. I——" His voice broke, he caught Herr Lowry " One hand extended to Drew Lowry, then the other to Anne "I am sorry I to imagine yourself in my place. Think of Anne. She is not Anne, she is—is——"

Unnetired, the radio program had given way to an eleven o'clock news broadcast As Erich paused, the newscaster's voice filled the room. The word had a jolting impact.

"Canadian authorities announced that the German aviator who early yesterday made a forced landing near an Alberta Province prison camp is still at large It is thought that the man has succeeded in reaching the United States. where police and R.C.M.P. agents

Drew Lowry went and switched off the radio. Silence suddenly seemed explosive. Anne saw a chalky white-ness on Erich's face. Then he had gu-essed until this moment although that morning she had heard of a broadcast relating of the escaped prisoner, that Erich Kruger was that sort of a hunted man.

Squaw Creek Ranger Station stood in a forest clearing between the mountains and the timbered hills a neat row of silver-gray buildings including the administration building, a store shop a warehouse and three houses. It was marked by a big sign, bearing the Forest Service pine tree emblem

Sheriff Hardy phoned a couple minutes ago, Steve" he said. "He wants us to keep our eyes open for strangers. He thinks that escaped German aviator is wandering about Squaw Creek territory."

Steve Hayes nodded "I've been keeping my eyes open, and if he's here we'll get him sooner or later," he said. He looked suddenly troubled. "The sooner, the better. I hate to have a desperate mug like that loose in my district—with the country dry like this. Given time, hunted men always get the same ideas in the timber—an incendiary fire to throw off pursuit. Then there's the devil to pay."

HALFWAY HOUSE

CHAPTER III

Static quiet came between them and Anne Lowry felt within herself the nerve-tautness of tension. Erich Kruger once again showed. The lonely road, the dark forest it had ejected seemed suddenly a hostile spot. The night might hide watching eyes.

"Anne, I beg you—help me," he said. "I am a stranger here, no man for the mountains and woods. If I was ever your friend——" He broke off, leaned so close his dark unshaven face was inches from hers. "I do not like to beg in favor, nor say that you are obligated to me——"

He broke off and this time was silent, letting the implication play its suggestion in the mind of Anne Lowry He was reminding her of a debt, one he perhaps had never meant to ask repaid and it was such an enormous debt that payment should be forthcoming without demand Anne had never forgotten

It had been more than three years ago when her father lay ill, dying of fever and all hope had been gone And then Erich Kruger came Anne remembered how he had brushed aside the inept doctor who could do nothing against the unknown fever.

Erich had said "There is one man who can save his life My father."

And Anne would never forget that unauthorized flight, that mercy flight to Venezuela, her hour at the flight's end Doctor Kruger had found a faint spark of life and fanned it with infinite patience and singular skill until Drew Lowry lived And Erich Kruger now recalled, reminding Anne that there was a debt——a debt that now could be paid.

Anne said, "How can I help you, Erich?" And she saw how Erich made him relax He thrust the gun into the pocket of the rough denim jacket he wore.

"You have a homes near by?" he asked.

"I live at the hotel, at Halfway House I own and I operate it you see."

"A hotel" He was thinking aloud. "It might do. I could be a guest. They would not look for me as a guest except for my clothes. Perhaps you could get me some suitable attire, Anne. I would not be long with you. Once the host and host ess had died down, I shall make my way to Mexico. There I will find friends who will help me get back home, to South America, where I can join my father and be safe. I want only to be safe, Anne——" His voice broke, recovered quickly. "I have gone through so much, suffered so much——"

A question loomed gigantically in Anne's mind. What great trouble was he in? Why was he hunted? Why was he committed some ugly crime? She could not bring herself to ask. Some day perhaps he would tell her, and he did not mean to tell her.

"I'll take you to the hotel, Erich," she said "and tell them now what is to be. You will be safe there, for as long as he thinks you should stay."

She straightened around to drive the car. The moon had seemed brighter and more hostile then ever before. She drove fast, not saving the station wagon's springs on the rough road. Erich must have found some clothes in the car, for he was, and he dropped his head on dozed off.

Nearing Halfway House on the road as soon as the lights of the hotel came into sight. She reached out and touched Erich's arm and he started violently and brought his hand to the pocket holding the gun. Then seeing only her he sheepishly grinned.

"Halfway House, just ahead," she told him "Only six employees are here. Any guests do not stay, coming until tomorrow. I imagine you will be glad to be away from it, go on ahead and see It will be best if the help does not see you with those clothes Wait here, Erich and when I appear in the doorway you may sig, leaving the car. Forget the pine tree emblem

At eleven o'clock Steve Hulya went into the dispatcher's room in the administration building to relieve the night reporter. The reports were monotonously the same, wind to rain fairly heavy, good weather for timber fires There was a fire burning in the west district, and a radio operator, Clint Bates, handled the sig, keeping the forest service pine tree emblem

Steve Hayes nodded "I've been keeping my eyes open, and if he's here we'll get him sooner or later," he said. He looked suddenly troubled. "The sooner, the better. I hate to have a desperate mug like that loose in my district—with the country dry like this. Given time, hunted men always get the same ideas in the timber—an incendiary fire to throw off pursuit. Then there's the devil to pay."

Stagette Notes

The regular meeting of the Stagette club was not held on Tuesday evening due to the girls helping to address overseas parcels in the Legion hall.

The Popcorn Tag day in aid of the Grandma's Milk for British Fund was very successful due to the generous support which the girls received from the Vermilion citizens. The Stagettes wish to thank all the girls who tagged for them, also Mrs. J.J. Knoll, Mrs. W. H. Graham and Mrs. Owen Burns who loaned their homes for supply depots. Thanks to the Oilfield Motors who loaned a corner of the garage as a headquarters booth.

CLOSING OF CONDITIONING PLANT HERE ATTRACTING WIDE ATTENTION

Vermilion Prepared to Produce 20,000 Bbl. Daily

(Western Oil Examiner, Calgary)

Closing of the oil conditioning plant of Vermilion Consolidated Oils at Vermilion came as an unpleasant shock to oil operators this week, particularly as that field is understood to have been singled out by the Federal government as one of the brighter spots in the Alberta scene and was selected for pressential treatment.

Reasons for the closing are not difficult to understand. An examination of the plant's affairs by the experienced engineer now in control apparently disclosed that a return from the C.N.R. of $1.15 a bbl. is insufficient to cover the cost of production, gathering and the treatment in the plant.

The Examiner's correspondent in the Vermilion field reports the following figures as approximately correct:

	Per bbl.
Gathering	.10
Processing	.40
Cost Price	$1.65
Selling price to C.N.R.	1.15
Loss Per Bbl.	$ .50

From this approximate outline of the finances of the deal it is not difficult to understand why the plant was bound to close sooner or later, or solve its difficult problems.

There is no doubt that the most satisfactory consequence of the shut down has been the prompt manner in which the operators of the whole refinery in the field have co-operated in an effort to reach an early settlement of the problem.

However if the case is examined it seems to be clear that the C.N.R. will have to pay more for their oil.

There are other aspects of the case however

Officials now in charge of the plant are understood to be making a thorough investigation of the methods which have been employed in treating the Vermilion crude and doubtless important improvements will be introduced. This may have a bearing on the price. Again, the gathering system has been rather primitive, according to field reports and this also will be improved.

It is the main factors to be considered are still the price to be paid by the railway and the steps to be taken to increase at the earliest possible moment the volume of oil being delivered from the field.

On another page the newly formed Vermilion Oil & Gas Assn. has set out a clear picture of the value of Vermilion production. It is interesting to note that the association sets as its objective of 30,000 bbl. a month as a war effort. In a field which requires only 10 months drilling time, this figure should be rapidly attained once an economic market is established.

The point is stressed in the announcement of the association that in addition to the bunker fuel—which is equivalent to any crushed residium now being imported from the United States—the Vermilion crude will yield about 20% of good distillate and also diesel fuel.

The Examiner correspondent points out that operators at Vermilion are also interested in this point.

The conditioning plant, they state, is practically confined to dehydration of the product. Only silt and water are removed by the process. Distillate and diesel fuel alike are allowed to go as ordinary fuel oil and it is expected that some of the gains of the present management of the Vermilion Consolidated plant will be to instal the necessary equipment in order to recover all light and more valuable fractions.

Vermilion field was producing at the rate of 7000 bbl. a month at the time of the shut down, which robbed operators of their sole means of marketing.

FORMER VERMILION MAYOR DIES IN VANCOUVER

Death of J. A. Roseborough

Word of the death in Vancouver of J. A. Roseborough, a pioneer resident and a former Mayor of Vermilion, was received here this week. Mr. Roseborough passed away on Friday, Oct. 23rd and the funeral was held in the coast city on Monday Oct. 26th. He was in his 82nd year.

Present at the final services were Mr. and Mrs. George Lage, Mrs. John Law and a brother Wellington Roseborough, all former Vermilion people.

The deceased was a real pioneer of the town, settling here in the early days when he was the Massey Harris implement dealer and also carried on a farming operations. In the years 1909 to 1911 inclusive he was a member of the town council. In 1912 he was elected Mayor of Vermilion, and his photo is among those hanging in the council chambers of the town hall. In later years he was the town's representative on the municipal hospital board. He was the first Worshipful Grand Master of Vermilion Lodge A. F. & A.M.

In 1936 he and Mrs. Roseborough retired to live in the milder climate at Vancouver. Mrs. Roseborough died last year. A son Dr. "Bud" Roseborough and a daughter survive Only a month or two ago the deceased and his brick residence which he built in the early days in the east end of the town, thus severing his last connection with the spot he had for so many years known as home.

The following tribute was paid to the deceased by Mayor Morrison:

The passing of J.A. Roseborough at Vancouver, while away from Vermilion for several years, removes one of the outstanding links connecting Vermilion of the present with that of the Vermilion of over a decade ago. He was one of the pioneer business men of the early days having established the implement business now carried on by O. C. Webb. He took a keen interest in the upbuilding of the town, serving as Mayor for a term and as member of the Council. The deceased was a man of sound calculating judgment and one whose advice and foresight contributed a great deal towards the foundation that was then being laid for the Vermilion that was to come. Very few of those pioneer men and women are now left but it must be said they began a superstructure perfect in its parts and honest-able to them as builders

GENERAL CLEAN-UP OF SALVAGE RUBBER PLANNED

Car Will Be Shipped from Vegreville, Manville, Vermilion

A clean up will be made of the rubber in Vegreville, Manville and Vermilion as negotiations are being carried on with officials of Vegreville and Manville relative to a successful conclusion. One of the difficulties in handling salvage has been the expense of shipping parts of roads in an effort to average-up the three towns are getting together and making up one car of rubber for shipment direct to the government agency at Toronto. Full cars of rubber have already been shipped from all three points and apparently the old rubber supply is exhausted.

Vegreville has an estimated 5 to 6 tons on hand, Manville 5 tons and Vermilion 8. As only one stopover is allowed on the railway the Manville rubber will be trucked here for loading.

In a definite shipping day has been arranged local men will be notified and all are asked to turn out and lend a hand with the loading This is a big job so don't leave it to George

It will probably take a week or two to complete arrangements so if you have any old rubber please rush it in to the Vermilion Salvage depot Leave it at the north east door of the riveter sheds.

VICTORY LOAN FINALE: COME ON, VERMILION!

With but two days to go in connection with the Victory Loan the Vermilion district appears to be following the lead of Lenoton Bridge — falling down — falling down — in the second Victory Loan in February last the Vermilion unit was high in the Province of Alberta list of towns with more than 175% of its quota attained at the close of the loan; the same unit is now, unhappily, below some of the districts which we always prefer to excel - let us make the last two days in the loan the best two days.

Old Age Pensioners Buy Bonds

Setting a striking example for the rest of us to follow, some of the older member of the community who depend on the old age pension for their chief means of livelihood have subscribed to the cause and bought bonds so that our fighting men may not be short of their essential requirements for victory.

Campaign Of Rumors

SINCE THE BEGINNING of the war, the Axis nations have tried by means of carefully planned rumors to sow seeds of dissension among the democratic peoples. It is now clear that the doubt and mistrust created by Nazis propagandists had much to do with the fall of France, and the same methods are being applied in England, Canada and the United States so cleverly are these rumors invented and spread, that even a public as well-informed as we are in Canada at times allows them to circulate extensively. It is now the opinion of those in informed circles that the Axis nations will intensify this part of their campaign in the next few months, and we are advised to be more watchful than ever for false rumors concerning the war

* * * * *

Nazis Spread False Rumors

In his 'Mein Kampf', Hitler advanced the theory that the bigger the lie, the more likely it was to be believed by all or a part. Working on this principle the Nazi propaganda machine has labored steadily to undermine the confidence of Germany's enemies In the United States the people have been told that Canada's war effort is negligible, that there is no rationing here and many other falsehoods are aimed at causing disunity between the two countries In both Canada and the United States, there has been an attempt to minimize England's part in the war, and to adversely criticize her leaders. All these stories we know to be false yet if even a few of our people believe them the resulting unrest and doubt may do great harm To believe any of these rumors is to help Hitler, and every Canadian should remember this at all times

Campaign Of Lies Expected

Speaking at a recent visit to Canada Robert P Patterson, United States Undersecretary of War said "Hitler's agents will spread stories in the United States and in Canada that will reflect on Britain We will be on the old yarn that the British are trying to get others to do the fighting The story is contradicted by the casualty lists but Nazi agents will concoct figures of their own." In some Canadian communities citizens will be wise themselves to trace vicious rumors to their source and publicly correct them Many newspapers have established "rumor columns" for the same purpose However we may choose to do it is the clear duty of every loyal Canadian to resolve that now, and in the coming months we will do all in our power to quell this Axis effort to spread mistrust and confusion among us

Fruits And Vegetables With A Zip!

Daily as fruits and vegetables and in price we must take stock of our needs in every family The body needs their zing and the older children as well as Mother and Dad need their Vitamin C too

Vitamin C is absolutely necessary to the body for the maintenance of strong bones and healthy teeth It is a definite preventive of infection Many people who complain of pain in the joints lack Vitamin C.

The sources of this valuable unit are not numerous. First on the list are the citrus fruits -oranges, grapefruit and lemons. Then come cold stored tomatoes and raw cabbage. Much lower down the scale we find potatoes, (baked or boiled in their skins), then come peaches, apples and pears.

To insure the good health of the family this winter include one serving of cold stored tomatoes in the diet every day, if oranges or grapefruit are beyond your means Serve also baked or boiled potatoes in their jackets and do not neglect that family friend, the cabbage Serve a salad of chopped raw cabbage and carrots at least twice a week and more often if possible

We could, of course, go back to the Indian days and make a brew of pine needles to prevent scurvy, but today with our knowledge of what constitutes a well-rounded diet, there is no necessity for this or any other disease resulting from a low fruit or vegetable diet.

Certainly eat all the apples and other native fruits you can stow away because they're good for you, but remember, they will not give you the vitamin C that cold canned tomatoes contain (½ cup of tomatoes equals three large apples or six large pears.)

For modern, real Fruits and Vegetables for Health and get that extra Zip out of life!

A post card request to Western Division of the Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road Toronto will bring you a free copy of our authoritative Vitamin Chart

Small Town And War

People Should Trade At Home And Defend Home Front

As time goes on the demands of war are going to continue to draw more heavily upon the small community such as this The service is again completed arrangements to care going to continue to call our young for several thousands of the 12,000 man power as will the defense plants Polish refugee children who arrived As the war machine gets under way recently in Persia from Russia. The more and more lines of merchandise Maharajha of Navanagar and Pare going to dwindle to fewer items, lodvig only the necessities. The struggle to maintain its institutions estates in India. The children are is going to become increasingly difficult for the small communities such orphans whose parents died after being deported to distant parts of Rus as ours sia during the Russian invasion of

In view of this fact it becomes not Poland only important but a necessity that we conserve every resource we may have that the burden may not become heavy to bear One way to aid in this is for each of us to resolve to spend his money at home with home merchants Regardless of what has been our practice in the past the time has come to make adjustments in every business being called upon to make adjustments. Let one of these adjustments be that we will trade at home and thus defend our home front

Army Training

Many Will Be Skilled Craftsmen After The War

Thousands of young men who had no special training when they entered Canada's armed forces will be skilled craftsmen of one kind or another when the war is over, thanks to the various technical courses they have taken This is one of the brighter sides of the wastage of human effort war entails and it is satisfying to see that the advantages young men have had to improve their status are being extended to women Windsor Star.

Famous Artist Discovered What Was Great Attraction in Picture

Harrison Fisher, the illustrator, strolled about an art gallery where in certain of his illustrations were being exhibited, listening to the comments of art-lovers Presently he came upon two ladies standing before one of his pictures, and was delighted to hear one of them exclaim with great fervor, "Ah, if I only knew the artist of this!" Doffing his hat Fisher stepped forward and said, "Pardon me, madam, but I am the artist." "Oh, splendid!" cried the woman. I have just been admiring that perfectly darling frock your model wore Do tell me the name of the dressmaker who made it."

Lesson In Citizenship

Greek Restaurateur Gladly Accepts Responsibilities Of War Citizenship

The incident reported here told at the banquet of the Canadian Purchasing Agents' Associations at the Royal York hotel as a personal experience in the course of an address by W. J. McCulloch, Foreign News Editor of The Hamilton Spectator as an example of what citizenship in this country means to a man who was born in a foreign country.

This is the story of Nick the Greek. Nick isn't his real name, but we shouldn't like to embarrass him by revealing his true identity. His is the type of citizenship that regards duty as a simple thing directed from self-congratulation or the praise of others.

We don't know how long Nick has been in Canada. It really doesn't matter. He always has tried to be a good Canadian.

In the community where he opened a restaurant business he went quietly about his affairs. Whenever asked to do anything for some cause, he responded willingly and generously. Fresh pies hot from the oven were his contributions to committees calling on him for co-operation.

In the early days of the war, when home guard units were being formed, Nick was one of the first to sign up, though his feet, tired by long hours of standing behind a counter, were cut out for marching. He stuck it out without complaining until less strenuous duties were delegated to him.

Lately, because of the help situation and rationing, it has been a problem for him to try to maintain the same standard of service he had been proud to give

We dropped in the other day with the usual, "How are things?"

"I guess a couple of months will see my finish here," he replied. "I can't find help and it's hard to get the variety of food you must have to keep going in this line of business."

Knowing what an investment he had in the place and how hard he had worked from early morning until past midnight for years, we murmured something about, "pretty hard to take, I guess"

He turned off the tap of the coffee urn and put the copper measure filled with hot water, on the counter.

"Sure, it's hard to take," he said, "but what has that got to do with it? If the government decides that we can win the war by making fellows like me get out of business like this and work where we can do more good, that's all right. I can work in a factory, and people who want sandwiches and tea or coffee can get it at home. There are lots of things we'll have to give up. Wiping is the only important thing I can start over again and then we can all have pie and sandwiches." — Monetary Times

CHANGE WAS NECESSARY

Donald Gordon, head of Ottawa's own price ceiling on beef, raised 9¢ 1½ cents a pound. What of it—if some good reason for the change came in the meantime? Joseph Howe once said "there was little in the world for which he had less respect than his opinions of yesterday. And a man once prayed: "Give us this day our daily opinions, and forgive us for our opinions of yesterday."—Ottawa Journal

Farm Machinery

Exposed Attention Should Be Paid To Lubrication

With farm machines now rationed and repair parts more difficult to get farmers would be well advised to pay more attention to the lubrication of farm machines and equipment, say the Agricultural Engineers of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. The expense and time invested in good lubrication pay big dividends.

In addition to maintaining a lubricating film between the bearing surfaces the oil or grease that is on farm machines performs several other functions. The bearings are cleaned. Rusting and pitting of the bearings are prevented when the machine is idle. Exposed metal surfaces during storage periods are protected.

The oil and grease used for lubricating should be kept clean so keep the containers covered to exclude dust and dirt.

Three or four different oils or greases met the lubrication requirements of nearly all farm implements. Usually not more than two lubricants are needed for proper lubrication. Machines operating the year around may require lighter oil and grease for winter than for summer. Badly worn bearings may need a heavier oil that is not thrown out so quickly. Oil of the same viscosity or stickiness as is used in the tractor motor usually is suitable. Crank case oil may contain grit and if used on bearings may be harmful.

How Former U.S. President Prepared Stenographer For Criticism

Calvin Coolidge was dictating to one of the White House stenographers. He suddenly stopped.

"You know, Miss , you're a very attractive young woman."

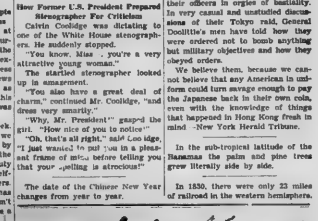
The startled stenographer looked up in amazement.

"You also have a great deal of charm," continued Mr. Coolidge, "and dress very smartly."

"Why, Mr. President!" gasped the girl. "How nice of you to notice"

"Oh, that's all right," said Coolidge, "I just wanted to put you in a pleasant frame of mind before telling you that your spelling is atrocious!"

The date of the Chinese New Year changes from year to year.



Japanese Savagery

Their War On China Is Described As Butchery

It need scarcely be pointed out that any talk of "humanity" from any Japanese in uniform is poisonous hypocrisy. For just five years, before the intervention of the small American air force turned the bombing of Chinese towns and villages from a sadist's pastime into a risky game, for which Nippons flyers have shown that they have little stomach, the presence of the Japanese air force in China was not one of warfare but of butchery.

On terra firma their soldiery have a thousand times over been led by their officers in orgies of bestiality. In very casual and unstudied discussions of their Tokyo raid, General Doolittle's men have told how they were ordered not to bomb anything but military objectives and how they obeyed orders.

We believe them, because we cannot believe that any American platform could turn savage enough to pay the Japanese back in their own coin, even with the knowledge of things that happened in Hong Kong fresh in mind -New York Herald Tribune.

In the sub-tropical latitude of the Bananas the palm and pine trees grew literally side by side.

In 1830, there were only 23 miles of railroad in the western hemisphere.

Alaska Highway Will Be Of Great Strategic Value

Washington. — Delegate Anthony Dimond of Alaska, described the territory as house of representatives as the best route to use to defeat the Japanese by destroying the enemy's power in their homeland.

"We can normally look forward to an expansion of military developments in and through Alaska, both in order to bring power to bear against the Japanese, and to materially supply Russia on the Russo-German front," Dimond stated.

The strategic importance of Alaska has been brought vividly to attention, he said, by "the obvious difficulty in supplying forces in Australia and the Solomon islands at great distances overseas — always subject to the enemy's naval forces."

Alaska, on the contrary, is on "the short line between the main body of the United States and Japan," Dimond stated.

"If we drive the Japanese out of the Aleutians, as we must do at the earliest possible moment, then we can come within 2,000 miles of Tokyo without losing our own territory," Dimond said.

Urging appointment of a commission to inspect the new Alaskan highway, Dimond suggested such a group likely would recommend extension of the road 600 additional miles to the Bering sea or even the Bering strait.

A rough survey has already been made, he said, for a highway between Fairbanks and Nome.

Dimond also urged another highway from Prince George, B.C., to Whitehorse. If approval for this road could not be obtained, Dimond suggested a road connecting the present highway from a point near Fort St. John, B.C. with Prince George.

WAR PRODUCTION

Almost Fifty Per Cent. Goes To Combined Forces Abroad

Fort Arthur.—Munitions and Supply Minister Howe, speaking at a service club dinner, tendered to his honor, said as far as production is concerned Canada has practically reached "an all-out effort." But by warned "nothing that has happened yet can be taken as a sure indication that we would lose the war."

"Only about 30 per cent. of our production is required to equip the Canadian army, navy and air forces and abroad," he said. "About 50 per cent. is being delivered to Great Britain, either in Britain herself or in combat areas abroad, including Russia, and about 20 per cent. is being shipped to the United States, Chile, Australia and Pacific theatres of war."

As to the situation at the moment, Mr. Howe said, "we have checked the losing of the war but we have not yet undertaken the winning of it."

It seemed, he said, the turning point was near at hand when the going "will be tougher for the Allies" but when their going would be more positive, but there was nothing to indicate an early end of hostilities. It would be a long one but a supreme effort would bring victory in the end.

He urged all those engaged in gold mining "to remain at the posts until directed by national selective service to go elsewhere." He believed there would be no sudden disaster to the gold mines although the Industry would necessarily suffer from loss of manpower due to its low manpower priority.

British Labor Leader Says U.S. Production Lacks Speed

Cleveland.—American war production failed to impress two British labor leaders stopping in Cleveland on a tour of some of the U.S. war plants.

"I can't say I was impressed with the speed and production generally," Jack Tanner, president of the Amalgamated Engineers Union, said in an interview

"The plants are new, well laid out, finely equipped, but there doesn't seem to be appreciation for the urgent need of turning out these munitions of war as rapidly as possible.

"They are not working as fast as they are in England."

Tanner's companion, Secretary Arthur Bryan Roberts of the National Union of Public Employees, shared these views, which the two British unionists said were based on visits to war plants in several cities.

RAID CREATES PANIC

Salvage Corps Snatch Planes From Enemy

At a Royal Air Force Base, Somewhere in the Western Desert.—The ingenuity of men serving with Air Force salvage corps in snatching disabled planes from under the very noses of the enemy is one of the reasons Allied planes have been able to pound Rommel's position with comparative small depletion in their ranks.

Often working in no man's land under heavy enemy fire, the men strip machines forced down and bring valuable parts back or return with the whole plane. Sometimes machines crash so close to enemy positions that it is impossible to salvage the whole plane. But even then, the men manage to bring back the guns, radios, and part of the engines perfectly fit for repairs to other damaged craft.

One officer of this unit has just returned after working for several days on a medium bomber that crashed some shooting distance of an enemy patrol.

He set off a few days ago in a small vehicle with a few tools and a couple of pigeons. The first message the pigeons brought back said that he had stripped the aircraft of the most valuable components and had taken them to a certain spot in the desert. He asked for another truck to could be sent out to collect them And he also asked if ... would bring a tommy gun, as he was tired of lying in a slit trench strafed by Messerschmitts without being able to return their fire

After the truck collected the parts and delivered the tommy gun, he spent a few more days in the area stripping parts from other crashes He could not go back to the bomber because the enemy had put an armored car guard over it. He returned with a full load of valuable equipment

While land battles have been raging, a corporal and a party of four aircraftmen have salvaged spare parts and scrap metal from 25 crashed planes, some of them enemy ships.

Have Records To Keep A Check On Price Control

Ottawa Mo e than 400,000 women taking notes in small blue books are considered officially to be a pillar of Canada's price control structure.

Prices board spokesmen said the specially-designed blue books in which women keep a record of the prices they pay for various commodities so they can compare the rates with those charged during the basic period from Sept. 15 to Oct. 11, 1941, are being issued only to those who ask for them.

They are being used to check movements in prices, and to maintain the control regulations designed to protect consumers against higher living costs

The blue books were made available by the prices board early this year. The blank, ruled pages have spaces to describe each article purchased, the size and brand and quality, the date of purchase the basic price or the last price paid, the name of the store where the article was bought and the increase in price, if any

Women have been encouraged to report any instance of a rising price, sending their complaints to the nearest women's regional advisory committee or office of the prices board

Officials here gave some examples of cases handled by the board's enforcement division as a result of such reports

A Winnipeg housewife reported an increase in the price of pork kidney from 12 to 15 cents a pound Investigation showed the increase had been made without knowledge of the store's head office and an immediate correction was made

A North Battleford flask farmer's wife complained of an increase in the price of a galvanized dairy pail, from 75 to 90 cents There were no records on which to establish a basic ceiling price, but the merchant decided to reduce the price of all such pails in stock to 80 cents

The most helpful books are those in which the prices paid for articles during the basic period last year were entered, but failing such a record officials here urged to mark down the price paid the first time an article is bought

Economy Move For Reduction Of Expenditures

Ottawa —Even if the pennies are saved the dollars may not look after themselves—but the Canadian government indicated it is testing the truth of ancient economy proverbs.

These three facts became known:

1. Finance Minister Ilsley, who needs $3,900,000,000 from the Canadian people during the present fiscal year ending next March 31, has written all government departments asking a supreme effort be made to cut down controllable expenditures.

2. Co' John Thompson, director of the government Civilian economizer control has instructed that the peacetime practice of acknowledging by letter correspondence by personal dictation, by form letter or by duplicated or printed form, be discontinued

3. As part of an economy move the fighting forces have agreed to eliminate 18 types of dishes, jugs and other dinnerware from their regulation mess equipment, and as a result officers and men will have identical mess equipment.

Mr. Ilsley requested that all government officials exercise particular care in preparation of estimates for next year so not a cent will be wasted on non-essential work and every dollar that is allocated for war purposes will be wisely used.

All expenditures must be essential for effective maintenance of the service concerned, he ruled.

Close checks on the use of supplies of all kinds were advocated, along with the elimination of [illegible] services and duplicated [illegible]

Part of the economy campaign is an effort by departments to [illegible] guard and use with utmost economy small items such as paper clips, desk pins and similar articles.

WINTER TRAINING

Canadian Parachute Troops Will Continue Their Work In Georgia

Ottawa Under a reciprocal agreement now nearing completion, Canadian parachute troops will continue to train in U.S. during the winter months in parachute training facilities at Shilo, Man., will be used by the U.S. army to give cold weather tests to certain articles of equipment

The announcement was made by the defence department

The nucleus of Canada's first parachute battalion was sent to the U.S. army's parachute training school at Fort Benning, Georgia, several months ago and has since returned to Canada to start organizing the battalion at Shilo where a Canadian school is being created

While the decision to form Canadian parachute units was reached, volunteers were called for from within both in Canada and overseas Those selected overseas were sent to the British school and those selected in Canada to Fort Benning, it was then that when they were brought together later they could put together the best features of British and U.S. training and organization systems in the formation of the new Canadian units

We Asked Them To Do It

"Our boys offer to give their lives. We are only asked to loan our money."

That is an excerpt from a Victory Loan speech. It was delivered recently. It is said during the Second and the First Victory Loan campaigns. It will likely be repeated in the Loan period next year. How many of us under stand that these boys offer their lives because WE ask them to do that?

Each one of us has had a share in the decision to fight the Germans, and to send our young men over to do the job.

The men at the front know it. They steeled themselves to jump out of boats onto the bullet-swept beaches because they felt WE expected them to do their best for Canada.

If all of us back here in Canada fully realized that fact, how we would hasten to increase our purchases of Victory Loan Bonds! !

Highest commendation and sincere appreciation are due to the children of Vermilion for their behaviour on Hallowe'en.

The sudden advent of winter, which is apparently here in earnest, places the district as a whole and individual farmers in particular, in a very serious predicament.

The snowfall of last week stopped the threshing with a bare 50% of the acreage cleared. It was hoped the first fall was temporary but the subsequent snows have shown that we are in for an early winter just when a long open fall was needed more than it has ever need of before.

While 50% of the crop has been threshed, this does not mean that 50 per cent of the farmers have, consequently the majority of farmers have their grain in stacks and not in banks in the fields. They probably have some livestock than ever before because the country has been demanding greater war time production, they have no place to turn them into as the crop is in the fields, there are no straw stacks for food and protection, and no grain for chopping in many instances. Again, next spring, time will not be found to thresh such a percentage of the crop.

Owing to these late adverse conditions, in many, the yield of 1942 is not going to prove such a bumper crop after all

About 3½ billion dozen eggs have been preserved in Canada during the first eight months of 1942, while the number of laying hens has increased fully 12 per cent in a total of 215 million. Under these conditions, says the Current Review of Agricultural Conditions in Canada, are that farmers will sell almost 12 per cent more chickens as meat than in 1941.

TOLLAND

The early snow storm caused a serious delay in threshing and the ladies' up storm of Monday night put many people in a serious position as it looks as if threshing was over until next spring. A good many farmers have taken to feeding a lot of live stock and now have no threshing done and consequently no fee' supplies.

Pte. Percy Rand was home for a short visit with parents.

Cpl. Harold Webber was home for a week before leaving for his new station at Mountain View. He took his family back with him and they will visit relatives in Toronto for a short time before going on to Moose Jaw View.

Edwin Johnson was a visitor in Tolland district for a few days last week.

Marjorie Harding is working at the Webber home at present as Mrs. W. Webber is a patient in the Vermilion hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Trevithick of Amherstdale were Sunday visitors at the Webber home.

The Vermilion Oil & Gas Association

WAS ORGANIZED BY THE OPERATORS AND PRODUCERS IN THE VERMILION AREA, ALBERTA, ON OCTOBER 27th, 1942

The Purposes of this Organization are:

1. To increase the production of present wells in the field.
2. To investigate Canadian markets for Bunker Fuel, Distillates, Lubricating Oil, and Asphalt.
3. To advise the United States Government that large supplies of Fuel Oil and Diesel Oil of low "pour point" and Asphalt are available CLOSE TO ITS OPERATIONS on the Alaska Highway and various Airports that the Government is establishing here in Canada.
4. To discuss the drilling practice and the production problems peculiar to the Vermilion field, at regular monthly meetings.
5. To attempt to get a FIELD PRICE STRUCTURE and FUEL OIL PRICE COMMENSURATE WITH THE VALUE OF THE OIL IN THIS STRATEGIC LOCATION.
6. To permit adequate refining and pipe-line facilities to handle the type of crude produced in Vermilion.

VERMILION FIELD

The wells of the Vermilion field ARE NOW PRODUCING IN EXCESS OF 7,000 BARRELS OF OIL PER MONTH.

1,000 PRODUCTION ACRES OF LAND ARE UNDER LEASE AND AVAILABLE FOR DRILLING.

The Vermilion field can produce for the war effort an estimated potential production of 30,000 barrels per month.

The average depth of wells in this field is only 1,550 feet and the same can be drilled in 10 days' elapsed time. These wells, because of their shallow depth, require a minimum quantity of steel and other essential material. They can be pumped on jackknife from central power plants.

Over 250 barrels produced will release one tank car now in use for the importation of oil.

The oil produced in the Vermilion area can be refined and will yield a Bunker Fuel similar to or more nearly equivalent to any cracked residium now imported from the United States. The Bunker Fuel produced from this crude has the following characteristics:

1. A very low "pour point."
2. High B.T.U. or heat content.
3. Flash point—350 degrees F.
4. Viscosity less than 125 at 210 F.
5. Gravity—19.5 A.P.I.

In addition to Bunker Fuel this crude will yield approximately 20% of good Distillate and also Diesel Fuel of 0 degrees F. "pour point."

FIELD RETARDED

FURTHER DEVELOPMENT of the field is being seriously retarded because of INADEQUATE PRICE STRUCTURE SUFFICIENT TO COMPENSATE THIS OPERATORS FOR DRILLING AND PRODUCING THE OIL AND THE REFINERIES FROM OBTAINING THE COST OF TRANSPORTING AND MARKETING AND ALLOWING A REASONABLE PROFIT.

ASSOCIATION AIMS

The members of the Vermilion Oil & Gas Association are ready and willing to co-operate to completely drill up this area and produce all for the Canadian Government, provided that the Oil Controller establishes a price schedule commensurate with existing costs of purchase and transportation of imported oil to the same point of delivery where our oil would be used

DOES CANADA NEED OIL ?

IF SO, WE HAVE IT.

It would be illuminating to know what costs at competitive points where our Vermilion crude could be used?

What is the cost of fuel oil delivered at Vancouver?

How much Canadian money goes to the United States each month for oil?

WE RESPECTFULLY REQUEST THE ANSWER TO THESE QUESTIONS BY THE

Here Is the Blue Print

The co-operative movement is democracy in business. As it depends on human agencies to conduct it, it can never be perfect, but it is a long way ahead of the capital stock company and the modern trust corporation.

Co-operation does not exist in law or in formula. It exists in the minds and hearts and purposes of the people. It is founded on mutual confidence and trust. With the development of these ideals people can make a success of co-operation.

The Alberta Wheat Pool is a creation of the farmers of this province. It has demonstrated its efficiency as a business organization and also its adherence to the co-operative principles. To make it a greater success than ever, it needs the interest and support of a greater number of the farm people of this province.

TRUSTEES ASSOCIATION ISSUE STATEMENT RE THREATENED STRIKE

Of Vegreville S. D. Teachers

(Held over from last week)

The following statement was released to the press on Monday by the Executive of the Alberta School Trustees Association in regard to the further steps taken by that body to try to avert the threatened strike of teacher employees of the Vegreville school division No. 19. This school division takes in approximately 50% of the rural schools in this area.

"An unfortunate situation has risen in the Vegreville School Division, resulting in the teachers delivering to the Divisional Board an ultimatum that they will go on strike on November 2 next, unless the Board grants increases recommended by the majority of a Board of Arbitrators held last

The Board of Trustees of Vegreville School Division and the executive of the Alberta School Trustees' Association, both realizing that a strike such as proposed would be most unfortunate and would have far-reaching consequences, have been making strenuous efforts to avert the strike.

On Thursday last, the 22nd instant, Mr. F. P. Austin, the Chairman of the Vegreville Division Board and Mr. A. K. Ottewell, the President of the Alberta School Trustees' Association and the solicitor for this Association proposed to the Government that a public inquiry should be held at the earliest possible date to inquire into the question of teachers' salaries and the financial problems of public education in Alberta. The Trustees' representatives proposed that the Vegreville strike be postponed without prejudice to the particular issues involved until this inquiry " ? been held and the findings published. The Trustees' proposals embodied the appointment of a commission of inquiry consisting of men of standing and ability, presided over by a Supreme Court Judge, who would be qualified to weigh properly the merits of the Trustees' case and to give a decision in which Vegreville is only one incident. Trustees and teachers would be given full opportunity to present facts and argument to the commission so that all angles to the dispute would be thoroughly aired and considered.

The proposals were laid before the Teachers' representatives at the end of last week. As an alternative proposal the trustees suggested that the strike be deferred until after the 11th of November, the date upon which the Trustees' Provincial convention will be opened in Edmonton, the facts being that this convention is called every several months earlier than usual and that one of the important problems for consideration is the question of teachers salaries.

A lengthy discussion has taken place between the Trustees' and Teachers' representatives. The teachers have however, refused to postpone the Vegreville strike in accordance with either of the Trustees' proposals."

In times of war, children are growing up in a very abnormal manner. Of necessity there is a great deal of adult programming by radio stations in these times. Because of this ? This program is a top-notch presentation of the cream of the world's best fairy tales that have lived for generations in every language. Harvesters May Still Get Sugar

Extension to Nov. 15 of the arrangement by which farmers feeding beet sugar may obtain extra sugar from their retailers by signing invoices is announced by the Wartime Prices and Trade, rationing division. Sugar harvesting and threshing in the west has motivated the rationing division of the Board to meet the needs of both farmer and its crew. Use of invoices is a temporary plan devised for obtaining extra sugar for harvesting, since the expiration of the voucher system on October 1.

Retailers are required to preserve copies of invoices declaring extra sales of sugar to farmers for harvest runs.

The statement must show the amount sold, the number of persons involved in each sale, for whom the sugar is supplied, the period for which the sugar is supplied with the signature and address of each purchaser. Amounts supplied must not exceed the equivalent of one ounce per man per meal, including household baking requirements.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Vermilion, Alta., Nov. 2, 1942.

The Editor, Vermilion Standard
Dear Sir:

One of the things we most often lack these days is an expression of appreciation for the acts of those in authority. If anything is more lacking it is probably bright ideas which it is possible for us to appreciate.

I feel sure that the citizens of Vermilion agree with me when I say that Mr. Pert, Mr. Bennett and the students of Vermilion seized on an excellent idea and brought about a most welcome and sensible change in the celebration of Hallowe'en.

Yours,
Appreciative.

ISLAND HILL

Friday May, which is the date set for the next dance at the hall here. Everything possible is being done — hiring music — compressing hall's splendid floor—to ensure that everyone will have a very jolly time. Now advert for particulars.

Folks residing in the neck of the woods are good supporters of the business houses in Vermilion but with very few exceptions dances held here are poorly supported by them. One good turn deserves another so the committee would be pleased to see representatives of the town items at the next dance.

Our hat off to the Monaghan's threshing outfit who instead of finishing a farm at a time move each farm or one day's threshing. Owing to the lateness of the season this gave each farmer on his rounds something to do on with. They have the real composure this writ—lite and let live — down here sir.

The boys hockey club still hold a meeting at the hall Sunday 15th. All of the lads absent will not be allowed to play during the season.

It will be close to the Christmas season by the time this Standard reaches everyone so we wish to send our best wishes to the lads serving their country with their especially fellowing—A Very Merry Christmas' John McCambridge, Hugh and Jack Jackson, Harold Hunt, Jack and Bill Birmingham, Palmer, Pat Reid, and Kevin McDaniel Dick Arnold Willie Dawson, Chris. Package Bees Should be Ordered

In the event that the supply of package bees may be limited next spring, it is suggested that beekeepers who anticipate having to place their orders as soon as possible. It greatly aids the shipper to know well in advance if he has orders ahead some months in advance of the shipping date.

There is likely to be a small supply of bees coming to the states of labor in the bee shipping industry and a greater demand for packaged bees are not ... expected this year but some ... expected. Where orders are placed alternative shipping dates should be given as it is going to be difficult for the shipper to guarantee delivery ... on any one date.

NO STAMPEDE FOR CLOTHING

No stampede in the purchase of clothing has resulted from style restrictions placed on the making of men's wearing apparel, according to a statement made by Max Ehrlich, deputy administrator of clothing for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, in a recent western interview

The Safest Way to Invest Your Money

VICTORY BONDS REPAY ... Every Dollar You Invest!

When you buy Victory Bonds you are laying up for yourself the best of all investments, for back of each one is your country's solemn promise that every dollar you invest in Victory Bonds will be repaid to you in full, plus a fair rate of interest. You can borrow against them, and they are readily saleable when you need the cash. And that solemn promise of repayment in full is backed by all the vast resources of the Dominion of Canada.

When the war is over, you will want to buy all the things we must deny ourselves now. Then, your Victory Bonds will give you the money to buy all these — and your purchases will provide new employment for our boys when they come home again.

What's your share of the savings job? Well, the average Canadian would have to lend to Canada to meet Canada's need $1 in every $5 of income left after taxes and compulsory savings have been collected. But the average may not fit your case. Your own circumstances are distinctly your own. You may be able to do better both out of your current income and out of your accumulated savings in the bank — or you may not be able to reach the average. Your share of voluntary savings is every dollar you can possibly spare.

HOW TO BUY

Give your order to the Victory Loan salesmen who calls on you. Or place it in the hands of any branch of any bank, or give it to any trust company. Or send it to your local Victory Loan Headquarters. Or you can authorize your employer to start a regular payroll savings plan for you. Bonds may be bought in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and larger. Subscriptions, bank, trust company or your local Victory Loan Headquarters will be glad to give you every assistance in making out your order form.

POST-WAR REHABILITATION

Joint caucus of provincial and federal social credit and New Democracy members meeting in Edmonton this week gave extensive consideration to a program of post-war rehabilitation, claiming that this was an urgent matter for which needs immediate preparation and organization. Resolutions adopted call for a complete overhaul of the economic, monetary, educational and health systems, with year round security for all service men and women and their families and absolute control of the monetary system by Parliament. Spokesmen reported a feeling of quiet confidence and a spirit of progress at the caucus.

More than $14,000 was realized from the sale of fineries and furnishings at Government House, conducted by the Chief Purchasing agent of the Government. George A. Cloak and J. H. Reed, Edmonton auctioneer. Bidding was brisk on virtually every lot having a sentimental or souvenir value, and officials expressed themselves as gratified with the results. United States workers were awaiting the close of the sale to move in beds and bedding for the dormitory quarters which are being established in Government House by North West Airlines.

Formation of the Alberta Credit Union league at Red Deer Sunday last brought to fruition the efforts of trade and industry officials extending over four years. About 80 delegates attended from 20 unions represented. There are at present 47 chartered credit unions in the province.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

Quite a number in this district are not yet threshed, we are sorry to say. Everyone is hoping that threshing conditions will yet prevail for finishing up the harvest.

The military concert presented in the theatre on Monday last week was enjoyed by everyone who attended from this district. George Shepherd went to school as a boy in England with the violinist in the party so a grand re-union was enjoyed by the two of them. They saw each other during the last Great War but it has been 25 years since they were last together.

The Stiddies enjoyed a Hallowe'en party Friday at the school. Due to wintry weather it was held in the afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. A. King, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sherwood and family and Frank Robinson were supper guests Monday at the Perkins' home.

Six cases of mumps have made their appearance in the district. The latest case is Leslie Sherwood. It is to be hoped that this will wind up the epidemic. Sickness interferes greatly with school work and also with Xmas concert practice.

W. F. THORN RESIGNS AS WESTERN OIL EXECUTIVE

Word received from Mexico Jaw indicates that the oil industry of western Canada has lost, at least temporarily, the services of one of the most aggressive and successful wildcatters in the resignation of Walter F. Thorn from his position as president and general manager of original Franco Oils, and the merged interests of Vermilion Consolidated.

Following reorganization of the companies, J. S. Smith, the former vice-president, and long associated with Franco, becomes president of the companies and it is understood a new managing director, with a wide experience in fields similar to Vermilion, has been appointed and will take over immediately.

While Mr. Thorn has decided to devote his attention to his many other business interests, he will continue as president of Northern Natural Gas Co., a Franco subsidiary which owns an exclusive gas franchise for the city of Saskatoon and will retain his position as a director of Franco.

Under Mr. Thorn's guidance the Franco company has played an outstanding part in the development of several fields and has to his credit the discovery well in the original Vermilion field. Franco also extended the proven area of the Lloydminster gas field and is engaged at present drilling a well in the Sandy Lake area, jointly with the Arthur Kendal group of Regina.

Franco also operates a natural gas system in the town of Vermilion and as soon as the war is over, proposes to build the necessary pipe lines and gas distribution systems in Saskatoon.

COUGHS · SORENESS · CONGESTION
Cough's deep-seated Bronchial Irritation may be relieved as many users report, when you rub on throat, chest and back the time-tested action of Vicks VapoRub. Its direct, stimulating vapors are inhaled with every breath you take, thus helping to relieve coughing spells, ease soreness, and make breathing easier. At bedtime rub Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest and back. Its poultice-vapor action works for hours to bring you added comfort while you sleep.
Put a good spoonful of Vicks VapoRub into a bowl of boiling water. Then breathe in the steamy vapors for just a few minutes. With each breath you take, the medication goes straight to inflamed bronchial tubes where it soothes irritation, quiets coughing and loosens tight phlegm and congestion.

We Asked Them To Do It

We Must Back Up The Men Who Are Risking Their Lives

"Our hope offer to give their lives. We are only asked to loan our money."

That is an excerpt from a Victory Loan speech It was uttered recently. It was said during the Second and the First Victory Loan campaigns. It will likely be repeated in the loan period next year How many of us understand that those boys offer their lives because we ask them to do that!

Each one of us has had a share in the decision to fight the Germans, and to send our young men over to do the job.

The men at Dieppe knew it They steeled themselves to jump out of boats onto the bullet-swept beaches because they felt we expected them to do their best for Canada.

If all of us back here in Canada fully realized that fact, how we would hasten to increase our purchases of Victory Loan Bonds!

SELECTED RECIPES

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

All-Bran Victory Muffins rate high in the wartime kitchen because they call for corn syrup instead of sugar. No change in flavor, however They still have that delicious nut-like taste that makes them a favorite among hot breads. Here's the recipe:

All-Bran Victory Muffins

1 tablespoon shortening
½ cup dark corn syrup
1 egg
½ cup milk
1 cup All-Bran
1 cup flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt

Blend shortening and syrup; add egg and beat until creamy. Add milk and All-Bran; let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift dry ingredients together; add to first mixture, stirring only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffins pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) about 25 minutes.

Yield: 10 muffins (2½ inches in diameter).

Note: When sour milk or buttermilk is used instead of sweet milk, reduce baking powder to 1 teaspoon and add ½ teaspoon soda.

CHRISTIAN NURTURE IN THE FAMILY

Golden text: "Train up a child in the way he should go, And even when he is old he will not depart from it. Proverbs 22:6.

Lesson: Deuteronomy 6:4-9, 20-25; II Timothy 3: 14, 15.

Devotional reading: Proverbs 4: 20-27.

Explanations and Comments

Religious Instruction of Children in the Home. Deuteronomy 6:4-9; 20-25. The first and great commandment (Mt. 22:36) follows, and then the duty of remembering these words and of teaching them to children is stressed; the words shall be upon one's heart, shall make so deep an impression upon one that they influence one's life. They must be taught to the children, made a subject of conversation everywhere and at all times, "pricked in" by repetition and emphasis.

"If your hearts are full of God, can you help talking about God to those with whom you constantly live? And to take the question the other way, if you never speak about God day after day, can your hearts be full of God?

The Home Training of Timothy in Religion, 2 Timothy 3:14, 15. In his letter Paul converts Timothy to abide in the things he had learned and had been assured of—for they had stood the test of time. He knew from whom he had learned them—from his mother and grandmother, 1:5, and from Paul himself, 3:2. Paul next reminds Timothy that he has known the sacred writings from a babe: he cannot recall the time when he has not known them. (It was the Jewish parent's duty to teach his child the Law when he is fifth year.) The sacred writings, Paul adds, are able to make him wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus, "if continued with faith in Christ Jesus."

"All Christian parents are the divinely appointed priests to their household: they are to be more careful of the spiritual of their children. If they all recognized their sacred office by prayer, example and prayer, what should hinder the whole host of the children of the church from becoming children of the Kingdom?" (Daniel Steele).

Just A Tradition

Famous People Cling To Old Idea About Red Flannel

For centuries, people thought colds, bronchitis, throat infections, pneumonia and so forth were caused by demons. It was found that flannel was good as a thread wrapper or chest-protector, and it was believed that the demons detested the color red. Luckily enough, however, the witch-doctors prescribed red flannel —red to scare off the devils and flannel to provide warmth. Mankind being addicted to more or less unthinking reverence for tradition, kept on using red flannel long after the original reason for doing so had been well-nigh forgotten

Health

LEAGUE of CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

MEDICAL SERVICE

Canadian industrial health authorities point out that the clearly defined role of medical service in industry is to maintain the health of the workers and to prevent ordinary illness as well as occupational sickness and accidents.

Employers in general have, for some time, recognized the advisability of physical examination for all workers. These examinations are the means of ascertaining the physical qualifications of prospective employees and of fitting them to jobs where they will not experience discomfort or cause injury to themselves, to others, or to property.

Physical examinations are especially significant during wartime, if manpower in industry is to be effectively conserved.

"Already," says an official of the Industrial Hygiene Division, Ontario Department of Health, "there is a shortage in certain skilled groups. This is likely to become more acute as time goes on. To date it has led to such undesirable features as overtime work for women and excessive hours worked by some men. Industrial manpower must not be wasted with output unnecessarily curtailed."

Re-examination of industrial workers at appropriate and regular intervals has been found advisable and in most cases very necessary. Periodic examination or "continuous health supervision" has been found to have a two-fold advantage:

1. Early diagnosis of disease or

2. Helping the employee to maintain regularity of work.

Where hazards of occupational disease exist, periodic examination has proved to be outstanding in showing up any ill effects. Thereby permitting the correction of conditions at the source of exposure. Health authorities feel that in a similar manner it will also have a definite value in controlling general illness among industrial workers.

CHAPTER IV.

Anne felt that her eyes had been painfully opened. The truth was that she had been mentally blind about Erich Kruger, thinking along vague lines that since he was hunted by the authorities he had committed some small crime—or was thought to have. But a two-fold advantage:

"You made a bad choice when the war started, Erich. Now you must hold to it."

Erich considered a moment, staring steadily straight before him, and Anne could almost follow the workings of his mind.

"No," he said. "No, I shall not go back. I shall take my chances, and if I am fortunate I shall go to Canada —where I have friends."

Anne shook her head. "You will get lost in the mountains, Erich. You dare not travel the roads. You will have to have food, you will have to show yourself at houses—"

He gave her a thin smile. "It seems that I can do without food, Anne. For two days now I have not had a bite to eat."

"I am a poor friend, indeed, Erich —not to have offered you something to eat. I will get you something now."

She went back the hall to the kitchen and put a pot of coffee on the oilstove. There was some cold chicken in the refrigerator and with that she returned to the room. As she was flixing a tray when the sound of a car came from the road. She froze, a spark of fear striking off her heart, but her swift intuition told her that the car carried Sheriff Hardy and his men. She heard the car stop before Halfway House, a moment later heard the heavy sound of boots as the men got out. Then a knock on the door. Panicky, she hurried from the kitchen and entered the lobby as her father admitted the saw-boned sheriff and the tall young man at his side. She grieved or troubled by not finding Erich in the room.

Sheriff Hardy was apologetic —to break in on you, Evlin, but I'm looking for a man wanted by the Canadian police. I told Miss Lowry about him in town tonight. The trail leads right into these parts, and I've a hunch he'll follow will try to get food at some remote place like Halfway House. Perhaps you folks ain't got any objections to me and my men looking about. He mightive holed up in one of the out-buildings."

"Go right ahead and look, Sheriff," Drew Lowry said. "Is this man the escaped aviator we hear about on the news?"

"That's the man," Hardy admitted. "And a hard case he is. Come into a fight with the other prisoners just before he escaped, and slugged a guard making his getaway. But we'll have a look-see."

He went out. Drew Lowry following and Anne heard gruff voices calling back and forth as the guards and the stables where the saddle horses were kept were searched. Across the lobby, behind the registry desk, the door to the little office stood open. Erich was behind the door, hiding in the dark Anne's panic soared when she thought of what might happen if the lawmen asked to search the hotel Erich was armed . . .

But Sheriff Hardy was content with a search of the out-buildings. His car drove off back the Sand Flats road after a stay of less than 10 minutes, and Drew Lowry re-entered the lobby leaning heavily on his cane the excitement of the past the ill man no good

Erich came from the office smiling thinly "They are gone, no? Ah, you are a real friend, Herr Lowry."

"I have paid a debt tonight, Erich," the older man said, his voice stern now. "I do not think you do right, but I could not decently refuse your request. You may stay here tonight In the morning I will give you clothes. I think some of my things will fit you, since I was your size before my illness. And by morning I hope you will realize the right thing to give yourself up." He turned to Anne. "Bring Erich something to eat, my dear," he told her with his wan smile. "We cannot have him starve at Halfway House."

Anne smiled back, nodding. She knew that he did not know whether he had done right or wrong. He was a sick bewildered man. Then, turning away, she had a glimpse of Erich's face. It was a look that gave her peace of mind a jolt. Erich was crookedly smiling and his eyes were bright with secret satisfaction.

Anne was up early in the morning. She had breakfast in the kitchen with Mrs. Bailey, a breakfast prepared by Paul, the pseudo-French chef, and served by Martha, the waitress. Burke, the handyman, was hobbling about on his injured ankle. There were two others on the staff, maids, and they were already about their duties. Anne cautioned Mrs. Bailey to have the staff on their toes, and then, after breakfast, drove away in the station wagon to meet the 8:30 train at Sand Plata and pick up the arriving guests

If she worried that the lodge should suffer for lack of guests, her fears were wasted. At the train there were not two couples as expected, but three. The Vinsons were a nice elderly couple, the Harrons as attractive young couple and both had been guests at Halfway House many times before. They knew Anne they had been glad to receive her advertising that about Halfway House's reopening. Anne told them she hoped they would like the new management. The third couple was Mr. and Mrs. Carter, young and charming and on their honeymoon and they had heard of the hotel from friends. Anne liked them all. Halfway House promised to be a brighter, gayer place with them there.

Passengers and luggage were loaded into the car. Anne drove from town, then down the long, graded excursions as her people saw the enchanting vista of pine forests leading toward the mountains. It was going to be a fine day. At Halfway House was ready to carry in the luggage while Drew Lowry was in the doorway to welcome them. Then he went to the desk to register and Anne, installed with the women, felt at that moment of arrival that Erich Kruger's problem had been solved, debonair in a grey tweed suit Anne had never seen on her father had worn before Illness claimed him.

It was a bad moment for Anne when Erich came into the lobby, unsmiling and smiling as Drew Lowry introduced him as "Mr. John Blake," a guest. The new arrivals greeted him as Mr. Blake, the women of people expecting to share one another's company, and Anne felt sure that they believed or troubled by not finding Erich in the room.

Sheriff Hardy was apologetic —to break in on you, Evlin, but I'm looking for a man wanted by the Canadian police. I told Miss Lowry about him in town tonight. The trail leads right into these parts, and I've a hunch he'll follow will try to get food at some remote place like Halfway House. Perhaps you folks ain't got any objections to me and my men looking about. He mightive holed up in one of the out-buildings."

"Go right ahead and look, Sheriff," Drew Lowry said. "Is this man the escaped aviator we hear about on the news?"

"That's the man," Hardy admitted. "And a hard case he is. Come into a fight with the other prisoners just before he escaped, and slugged a guard making his getaway. But we'll have a look-see."

He went out. Drew Lowry following and Anne heard gruff voices calling back and forth as the guards and the stables where the saddle horses were kept were searched. Across the lobby, behind the registry desk, the door to the little office stood open. Erich was behind the door, hiding in the dark Anne's panic soared when she thought of what might happen if the lawmen asked to search the hotel Erich was armed . . .

But Sheriff Hardy was content with a search of the out-buildings. His car drove off back the Sand Flats road after a stay of less than 10 minutes, and Drew Lowry re-entered the lobby leaning heavily on his cane the excitement of the past the ill man no good

"I have paid a debt tonight, Erich," the older man said, his voice stern now. "I do not think you do right, but I could not decently refuse your request. You may stay here tonight In the morning I will give you clothes. I think some of my things will fit you, since I was your size before my illness. And by morning I hope you will realize the right thing

Erich's presence. Or perhaps Erich added to the gaiety. Anne thought. He was his old self; charming, friendly, a polished man of the world. It was hard to go on believing that he was a hunted man, an escaped prisoner, an enemy alien.

He followed Anne out onto the verandah after dinner. He regarded her with annoying amusement while lighting a cigarette.

"You are angry, Anne," he said. "You think I do wrong."

"Oh, no. I'm sure the clever Mr. John Blake would not do so wrong. Did you think of that alias yourself or was it my father's choice?"

"I once knew an Englishman named John Blake "

"That's rather crude of you—taking an Englishman's name."

The amusement faded from his face. Stiffly, he said, "So You are angry for my being a soldier on the wrong side " He was trembling with rage

WEAR A POPPY

By Wlenifred O. Reade

Once more we offer you with reverence
Out of the past where poignant memory lingers,
The Flanders Poppy.
Ye, who pass on with careless, hurrying feet,
Behold her shining in the city street —
The scarlet Poppy.
Ye, who exempted, trod the paths of ease,
Forget not those who died to bring you peace,
And wear a Poppy
Those who endured War's no-man zone and its aftermath
Unto the end, their very selves to render —
For them — the Poppy.
Because their valour knew through out the ages,
Because, once more, the bitter cup remains theirs,
We bring you Poppies
Because brave hands, now maimed and bruised and broken,
Fashioned anew each trinket, flame ring token —
The little Poppy.
Because she breathes Remembrance, Faith and Sorrow,
Because she whispers Hope, a fair tomorrow —
The Flanders Poppy.
Accept her blossoms with a tender hand,
And, proudly, that the world may understand,
O, wear a Poppy.

BEE KEEPERS' SUPPLIES SHOULD BE ORDERED EARLY

It would appear from information now in hand, that there will be a shortage of package bees for next season.

The District Agriculturist at Vermilion, E. H. Buckingham, urges bee keepers to place their orders immediately or there will likely be disappointment through late ordering. Bee keepers supplies will also be scarce and requirements should be secured early.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE PASTIME CLUB

G. E. Long New President

The 29th annual dinner and meeting of the Vermilion Pastime club was held on Tuesday evening of last week with Vice-President G. E. Long presiding. The report of the Secretary-Treasurer, M.O. Brimacombe, showed a favorable bank balance after numerous donations to charity and war purposes. The club has considerable investments with the Dominion Government the interest upon which is donated for the duration of the war. A silent tribute was observed in respect to the memory of the late Dr. J.J. Knoll who had been a valued member from the inception of the Club and was President at the time of his death. A most hearty welcome was extended H. F. Long, also an old-time member, and who had been absent for the past two or three years on account of illness. The visitors tabled by Miss Ilost Karpoy were masterpieces of the culinary art and were greatly enjoyed and appreciated by the guests. The officers elected for the ensuing year were:

President — G. E. Long
Vice-President — A. McWilliams
Sec.-Treas. — M.O Brimacombe
Executive — A. E. Kaiser, J. W. G. Morrison, Harry Compton.

After an enjoyable evening of reminiscence and story the gathering broke up and wrote auld Lang Syne.

Special arrangements will be made for the annual dinner and meeting when the Club will celebrate its 30th anniversary.

LOCAL ELKS DONATE $200.00 TO CHARITY

"Save the Children" Fund to Benefit. Also Needy Vermilion Children

At the regular monthly meeting of the Vermilion Lodge, B.P.O.E. No. 131, held Tuesday evening of this week, the local Elks set aside the sum of $200 for charitable purposes. The secretary was instructed to remit $150 of this amount to the Canadian Headquarters of the "Save the Children Fund". The remaining $50 will be held for the relief of local children, several cases having been brought to the attention of the Lodge which required financial aid in procuring necessary services. These will be dealt with almost immediately.

The Carnival committee gave its report on the recent three-day carnival held by the local Lodge. Their report was accepted as satisfactory by the members in charge of this event were given a vote of thanks for the able way in which they carried out the enormous amount of work involved.

A request from the Rotarians for the use of the Elks hall as a lodge meeting place was favorably considered with a nominal fee set to cover light and incidentals.

Three applications for membership in Vermilion Lodge were voted upon and all three applicants were declared elected. Initiation will take place at a special meeting on Nov. 24th.

A cheque for $50 recently donated to the local Overseas Parcel Fund was written out and it was also decided to send Christmas parcels to Brothers Jim Hopkins and Vic Tillett who are overseas.

VICTORY LOAN TOPS THE TOP; $87,500.00 SOLD

The Vermilion unit of the Third Victory Loan appreciates the fact that it is possible to report an entirely successful campaign; staging a rally in the late days of the loan the enthusiastic representatives were able to place bonds which brought the final total up to the splendid amount of $87,500, this being practically 116% of the amount set for the Unit.

Some 543 subscribers bought Victory Bonds in the unit and the thanks of the Committee goes out to all who assisted.

Volunteer representatives worked extremely hard to achieve success and gave freely of their time and energy to reach the desired end; the committees at Islay, Mannville and Derwent contributed their full share and last minute purchases assured passing the total of $80,000.

Acknowledgement is made to those who so kindly entertained the members of the Military Convoy party during their stay in Vermilion, to Mr. W. F. Pithie for the free use of the theatre for the concert, to the Board of Trade for their assistance in the entertainment of the guests and to the canvassers for the loan for their unflagging interest and effort.

The good news from the increasing number of fighting fronts probably had a beneficial effect upon sale of the bonds and will now join in the hope that the dollars which have been made available to the Government of Canada for the prosecution of the war effort will do the job for which they have been accumulated; there is no doubt but that our fighting men will deeply appreciate the noticeable signs of support given through the splendid success of the loan.

Thanks, Vermilion unit for the continuation of the grand support that is always forthcoming for any work while endeavor.

ELKS 3-DAY CARNIVAL A SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

Miss Lucie English Wins Big Prize

The recent three-day Carnival of the Elks proved both a successful and enjoyable affair. It was very well attended and everyone apparently had lots of fun. Many prizes were given by the Bills in their advertising. The big job of preparing for the event was well carried out by the willing workers of the B.P.O.E. and the enlarged floor space enhanced arrangements greatly.

Miss Lorie English was the fortunate winner of the $50 War Savings Certificate, given away in the lucky ticket holder on the last night of the big Carnival.

Municipal Dist. Representatives Hold Meeting In Clandonald

Oppose Idea of Larger Municipal Units — Class Division of Districts in This Area All Wrong — Propose Alternative Districts.

Representatives of several of the Municipal Districts involved in the formation of two larger units met in convention at Clandonald on Saturday last to consider the proposal and went on record as unanimously opposing the idea of large units. In case the formation was proceeded with in spite of opposition, the representatives present drew up two alternative districts, as they were of the opinion that the division of the territory as proposed by the department was a very peculiar one and not in the best interests of the territory involved. The plan formulated at the meeting asked that the division be the range line between ranges 3 and 4, making the units in the west to consist of Ethelwyn, Vermilion Valley and Grizzly Bear M.D.s. This would run from the Battle River on the south to the Saskatchewan River on the north. The second unit would consist of Streamstown, Wellington and Morton and would also be between the Battle and Saskatchewan Rivers.

The Secretary was instructed to confer with Morton and Wellington and report their reactions. Both these Municipal councils will meet tomorrow, (Fri.) inst. The meeting for that unit takes place at Lloydminster on the 14th inst.

The Secretary was also instructed to consult Mr J.E. Brownlee the Provincial Municipal Solicitor on advice on the steps to be taken in submitting this order of the Department of Municipal Affairs.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the orders received from the Department of Municipal Affairs by which two large Municipal units were to be formed. The first was to comprise the M.Ds of Streamstown, Ethelwyn, the north three Townships of Vermilion Valley, and the south portion of the I.D. 511.

After consideration the following resolution was passed unanimously "Moved O.H. Quist, seconded, Gray; that this Assembly are not in favor of the large municipal unit in any shape or form."

This resolution is to be presented to the officers of the Department of Municipal Affairs at the meeting to be held in Marwayne on the 18th inst. by Fred Marriott, but that no other attention shall be paid to the meeting by any representative of the Councils present.

A further resolution was passed, also unanimously but which was not to be put into effect until after it should be evident that no attention would be paid to the representations of the various Councils in their protest against forming the large units. The resolution was as follows:—

Moved Kinakida, seconded Kowal, that in the event of the Department establishing the larger units, that the dividing line be the Range line between ranges 3 and 4. Making the units in the West to consist of Ethelwyn, Vermilion Valley and Grizzly Bear. This unit would run from the Battle River on the south to the Saskatchewan River on the north. The second unit would consist of Streamstown, Wellington and Morton and would also be between the Battle and Saskatchewan Rivers.

RUSSIAN MEMORIAL SERVICES HONOR WAR DEAD

On Sunday evening Vermilion and district citizens gathered in the Columbia theatre to revere the memory of those who paid the supreme sacrifice for King and Country, for home and loved ones, not only in the last Great War, but in the present conflict. It was to be regretted that the theatre was barely half filled and all the more so as a deeply thoughtful address was given by the Rt. Rev. W. F. Barfoot Bishop of Edmonton, in which he claimed that it was the law of life that things of real worth were very costly and that there were no bargain prices in things of mind, soul and spirit. The distinguished speaker is himself a Great War veteran Assisting in the service, which was sponsored by Post 11 of the Canadian Legion, were Rev. L. G. Sloher, Rev. D. T. Anderson, the Ven. W. Leversedge, President Don Taylor of Post 11 was chairman and W. B. Elford was organist.

Bell, has already commenced his training in the R.C.A.F. as a tractor operator. He is stationed at No. 2 Manning Pool, Edmonton.

Joining the army the week was Theodore Zelbovitch, formerly of Magrath, Alberta, and latterly of Vermilion district.

The third class numbering 321, to graduate at the Canadian Women's Army Corps (C.W.) from western Canada, completed its course Saturday at Vermilion. In the future there will be graduations every two weeks, and now classes will come into the training centre every two weeks, so that the number graduating each time will be only half the capacity of the training centre

Of the 321 to complete their course this week, 197 were from Alberta; 91 from British Columbia, 24 from Saskatchewan; 34 from Manitoba; 18 from Ontario and one each from Quebec, Nova Scotia and Massachusetts

Collect $10,000 in Three Hours

A whirlwind last minute campaign is reported from the Clandonald Jewelry unit where $10,000 worth of bonds was sold in three hours on Saturday afternoon to put this area over its quota of $14,000. By mid-afternoon yesterday only $4,000 of the quota had been sold and the campaign committee consisting of Nicole Mr Jones, Maurice Tom Sander chair man Fred Patrick publicity; Andre Willmot, Bootlegy, representative; Willard Currie Henry Rischkoff and Frank Robinson canvassers, went in to a huddle. The result was a whirlwind attack that sold $10,000 worth of bonds in three hours, which is a remarkable achievement in a rural or any other district

QUICK WORK AT SKATING ARENA; GOOD SHEET OF ICE

Already in Evidence

The public works committee of the town council was not slow in taking advantage of the cold weather last week to get into the skating arena. All previous summer work such as replacing boards etc. had been done early in the fall and as soon as the weather dropped to zero, employees of the town flooded the surface every evening and until now a fine sheet of ice, all ready for the finishing touches greets the eye

In an effort to prevent any more accidents on the road in front of the rink a safety rail has been erected along the edge of the sidewalk. This should have the effect of regulating the pedestrian traffic here to the regular corner crossing and will prevent careless skaters on coming out of the rink from rushing off the side walk at all spots and angles

South Lorks At Crossings

—Courtesy Canadian Pacific Railway.

Trying to beat the locomotive to the crossing, running around halted cars to crash into the sides of trains, driving too fast when visibility is poor, these are the most prevalent causes of the 319 railway crossing accidents reported by the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada during the first eight months of 1942. In these accidents, 87 paid with their lives, 265 others were injured. In 1941, for the same period, 219 crossing accidents were reported, taking a total of 85 killed and 264 injured. This year, despite gas and tire rationing which some thought might reduce the toll of crossing accidents, the ratio continues high.

Thirty-One Years Ago

Lieutenant Sampson Made First Air-plane Flight From British Warship

The first flight of an aeroplane from a warship was made in 1911 by Lieut. C. R. Sampson who flew a Short biplane from off the bows of H.M.S. Africa, lying in Sheerness harbor, England. Lieut. Sampson had constructed a runway on the ship for his flight, and Lieut. Sampson and Lieut. Malone a few days later repeated the flight, this time with a seaplane fitted with wheels from H.M.S. Hibernia when she was steaming into the wind at about ten or 12 knots. The first real aircraft carrier was H.M.S. Hermes, which was commissioned in June, 1913, and carried aircraft which flew from runways on forecastle and quarter deck.

Rubber Substitutes

Predicts U.S. Will Never Again Be Dependent Upon Malaya.

William M. Jeffers, national rubber administrator, predicted that by the middle of 1944 the United States would have an adequate supply of rubber substitutes and that never again would it be dependent upon crude rubber from Malaya.

Speaking extemporaneously before the National Association of Independent Tire Dealers, Jeffers said:

"If every auto driver will play the game, I believe we can bridge the gap between the supply of rubber we have on hand and the time that we will have synthetic in production."

A warplane is a big thing compared to millions of little things. The efficiency of the plane is the sum total of the efficient functioning of each component part.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THINGS THAT MAR FAMILY LIFE

Golden text: Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ. Galatians 6:2.

Lesson, Genesis 4.3-12; 27.1-45; Deuteronomy 24.1-5; Malachi 2.13-16; Matthew 5.31, 32; Mark 7.10-13; Luke 13.10-15; Romans 7.2-3; 1 Corinthians 7.10-16.

Intrigue in the House. Genesis 27. 1-45. Recall our lesson last quarter about Jacob at Bethel. Today our text gives the earlier account which explains why Jacob was fleeing from Esau's wrath. When Isaac was old and blind, he asked Esau, his older son, to hunt for venison, make him a good meal, and then he would give the blessing. Rachel, his wife, heard of this commission and reported it to Jacob, the younger son and her favorite, and bade him bring to her two kids which she would make into savory food that he could take to his father. This was done. Rachel put upon Jacob's hands and neck the skin of the kids to conceal from the father's groping hands the fact that he was not hairy like his brother, and sent him to his father with the food. Jacob followed instructions. Going to his father he said, "I am Esau thy first-born; I have done according as thou badst me; arise, I pray thee, sit and eat of my venison, that thy soul may bless me." Although Isaac was surprised that the venison had been brought so quickly, and hesitated because the voice was Jacob's, not Esau's, yet when he felt Jacob's hands and found them hairy his hesitation vanished and he partook of the food and then gave Jacob the other son's blessing. Our present text follows. Esau declared that after his father's death he would kill Jacob for his meanness, and Isaac was obliged to flee for his life to Haran.

Our sympathies are naturally with Esau in this transaction. What pathos in his sorrowful cry, "Bless me, even me also. O my father!" when he learns the deception Jacob has practiced. If the Bible contained only this record of the two brothers we might wonder why it was God's purpose that Jacob rather than Esau, should be the progenitor of the Chosen People. We see Jacob do a very unmean thing, and seeing this only, we would wonder that God did not utterly repudiate him. But a further study shows us that contemptible as Jacob was, he was nevertheless the fitter man of the two to succeed to the blessing.

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS OF VITAL INTEREST

ILLNESS AND PREVENTION

A major duty performed by medical departments in Canadian industry is the discovery of illness at its inception and the consequent prevention of the occurrence and spread of contagious and infectious diseases.

Medical experts declare that in the event of an employee being reported absent from work because of a communicable disease, the matter should be referred immediately to the plant physician or medical department for investigation. Employees who are taken ill on the job, they say, should be given prompt attention and precautions taken to prevent the spread of the other employees should be taken.

Individual diagnostic service, it is pointed out, has been found valuable in most factory health departments in investigation of illness. It has also proved a decided advantage in ascertaining the physical condition of employees, thereby paving the way for the administration of scientific treatment. This service has resulted, wherever it has been utilized, in a reduction in absenteeism and wage loss.

Some plants have found it advisable to provide accessory services such as clinical, laboratory and x-ray examinations. In such case tested a detailed report is made on the employee's personal physician and consultation is offered if desired. This procedure is appreciated by both the employee and his physician and in many cases results in a more prompt return to work.

Former Trans-Canada Air Lines Pilots Figure In The News

Three former Trans-Canada Air Lines pilots have figured prominently in the news during the last few days. They are Wing Commander Marlowe Donnelly, Wing Commander Bruce Middleton and Flight Lieutenant A. F. Madore. The first two were original pilots with T.C.A. and did much pioneer work in assisting to set up Canada's National Air Line.

Wing Commander Donnelly was awarded the Air Force Cross for his outstanding work in the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. Obtaining war leave from T.C.A., he joined the R.C.A.F. in 1940. He has performed many special duties including piloting the Duke and Duchess of Kent's plane across Canada in August, 1941.

Flight Lieutenant Madore was awarded the Air Force Cross for his excellent work as instructor at [illegible] flying school. His citation reads: "This officer has undoubtedly done more [illegible] the successful operation and organization of the flying elementary training schools than any other individual. His most recent achievement was the supervision of 7,047 flying hours in January, 1942, without a single accident." He has at present at Virden, Manitoba.

Wing Commander Middleton flew from Ottawa to a lonely spot in northern Quebec to find and rescue a crew lost in a disabled flying boat. He "did a wizard job of it," said O. T. Larson, Trans-Canada vice-president. "They reflect great credit on the T.C.A. and on the training they had when they were with us."

Is Kept Busy

Ninety-Year-Old Blacksmith Working At Trade Again

In his 90th year, states the Toronto Globe and Mail, Fort Erie blacksmith, David Plato, is busy at his trade again. The changing conditions of war have led to his re-lighting the fire in his forge. He says it's "business as usual," and he's almost as busy as he was 75 years ago when he first learned to shoe a horse.

This interesting story recalls the fact that within the recollection of the present generation the village blacksmith was an important person in any community. There was something about his shop that attracted people, old and young. It may have been the glowing fire of the forge, because fire has a strange fascination for mankind.

Perhaps it was because of the close association between horse and man; anyway, there was [illegible] sweeter than that spread about when the red-hot shoe was applied to a horse's hoof for the fitting.

CHAPTER V.

They were on the verge of a quarrel; Erich was showing an ugly side of his nature, and stinging words crowded Anne's lips. But all of a sudden anger was forgotten, for a car was coming along the forest road. Its headlamps gleamed through the trees, cut a wide white swathe of light as it swung into the drive of Halfway House. Anne was gripping the verandah railing, staring down at the car, and Anne's fury had given way to a sudden fear. She knew the man who left the car.

"Who is this?" Erich's voice was a harsh whisper. "You know him?"

"It is the forest ranger. Stay here. I will talk to him."

She hurried to the steps, her mind a whirl with frantic possibilities. She knew Erich had brought a gun; he might have it hidden on him now. Steve Hayes was not in uniform, was perhaps not armed; yet Steve Hayes seemed to be the sort of man who would not let lack of a uniform or a gun stop him from doing his duty —if he suspected what Erich was.

"Hello!" She forced her voice gay. "Fancy meeting you here so soon again."

"Didn't you expect me?"

"You flatter yourself."

"I have a terrible ego. I kept thinking all day, 'I'll bet she'd like to go into town for a movie, old man. Why not give her a treat?' So here I am. How about it?"

He had a nice grin, his eyes light, and his handsome, with his tallness and wide shoulders, to civilian clothes he uniform. Anne forgot her alarm and, looking at Steve Hayes, she remembered yesterday when he had kissed her. Her pulse began to race, and she was suddenly all eagerness. But feminine caution warned her; she had kissed him nearly yesterday, she must not be too eager to accept his invitation. A man wouldn't have everything his own way.

"Really," she said, "I don't see how the Forest Service will do without you tonight. Such a sought-after man—"

"You have other plans?" He sobered, his glance drifting up to the verandah where Erich stood. "Okay, I guess I did take a lot for granted. But, since I'm here, I may as well drop in and have a chat with your father."

Anne's pulse jumped at that. She couldn't have him stay, and perhaps discover who and what Erich was. She touched his arm as he started up the steps, and said, "On second thought, I would like to see a movie. Is the bill still open?"

Steve Hayes smiled again. His hand closed over hers which still rested at his arm. "It's still open, yes, but we'll check out my car for the rest of the evening."

There was a football on the steps behind Anne. She saw the eyes of Steve Hayes focus beyond her for a minute. She turned and found Erich there, smiling and at ease, his right hand in the pocket of the grey tweed jacket. Anne's lips felt parched as she heard the words to keep the danger out of this situation.

"Mr. Blake," she heard herself saying, "this is Mr. Hayes, one of the rangers in this district. Steve, Mr. Blake is one of our guests."

Steve Hayes said, "How are you, Blake?" And Erich smoothly said, "Quite well, thank you." Neither man offered his hand, was more than a shade friendly, and the warmth of danger lasted. She didn't feel wholly reassured until she was in Steve's car, driving away with him.

The evening turned out to be far more pleasant than she would have dared hope. They went to the movie at Lac Vermilion and it was nice sitting in the dark of the little theatre beside Steve Hayes, and nicer still when Steve Hayes. That the picture wasn't very good didn't matter. Only a few people were there when Anne and Steve entered, two couples listlessly dancing to the blaring music of the Juke box. Steve took Anne to a table and ordered cocktails, then he put a nickel in the juke box and they did a quick one-two that patch in dance floor. They danced well together; Anne discovered that with a start. Her eyes met his, and Steve's voice was a whisper in her ear. "I guess you know we're going on like this, darling," he was say-[illegible]—for us. I knew the first moment I saw you."

Anne opened wide her eyes. "Not that soon. Surely you weren't serious, Steve?" Yet she wanted to believe he had.

"I couldn't forget you after I rode away. The memory of you was with me all the time. Then I was ordered back to this district. I was delighted when Erich Krueger watching her from the corner of his eyes.

rited it might have been all my doing.

His arm was tighter about her, and they danced on and on, lost in the music ended. Steve held her hand as they returned to their table, but once there they did not sit down long. They didn't want the cocktails. Steve's eyes said, "Let's get out of here," and Anne's replied, "Yes, let's."

Halfway House was still brightly lighted when they drove up at midnight. The guests were playing cards in the lobby. Steve came up into the side verandah with Anne, and there in the moonlight he kissed her. It was a different kiss from the one by the lake; it was tenderer and had more meaning. While his arms were still about her, Steve whispered, "I'm in love with you, Anne the whole way."

"And I with you, Steve."

"We'll have to talk about it—later."

"Why talk about it, darling? It's something we know, something we don't have to bring out in the open. Good establish it at once."

He laughed softly. In a rather strained way that was puzzling, as he put her at arm's length. "Still we must discuss it, darling," he insisted. He held her like that, at arm's length, looking at her in the moonlight. "I can hardly believe it's true, that I've had her. Then, sobering "I'll not have a lot of time to spend here. The Service is a shoestring outfit. But that doesn't matter, you know. You understand at the station. You could ride over the trail. I'll be around by the highway. Shall I tell the boys to expect a visit from the prettiest girl ever to hit Beaver Creek?"

"Don't tell them that, Steve—you'll disappoint them." Anne laughed. "But I'll come one evening."

He made her promise to come Saturday evening—then he was gone. Anne watched his car disappear down the mountain road. She stood there a moment afterward, remembering the whole of the evening, then she heard an amused chuckle behind her. She whirled around and found Erich Krueger watching her from the [illegible]

APPRECIATION FROM CARDIFF, WALES

Mrs. Mellardy, Secretary of the Stoltzville-Ebham Sewing group has received the following letter of appreciation for a bundle of clothing sent overseas through the Frog Lake Chapter, I.O.D.E., some little time ago:

W. V. & Clothing Depot,
Ramsney, Cothaye, Sou,
Cardiff, Wales.

Dear Mrs. Mellardy,

As a checker at the above centre I copied an address to write as the articles were checked and with a heart full of gratitude I write this little note. We really appreciate all your lovely work and the kindness of heart behind it. I have a son, a pilot, attached to Ferry Command to Orval airport, Montreal, and he is full of praise for the Canadians. They are so good to him so I have every cause to feel grateful to you. We really appreciate all you do and send. I can assure you it is well looked after and sent out when required. With all best wishes to your "Sewing Group" from a grateful W.V.S. worker.

Yours sincerely,
(Mrs.) A. Villis.

The "Bundles for Britain" contained a large collection of clothing, quilts and other articles of wear for children and was sent through the war services section of the Frog Lake Chapter, I.O.D.E., of which Mrs. J.W. G. Morrison is convenor. Donations for the "Bundles for Britain" service will be gladly received by the convenor as the need and the wave appears to be most urgent and will carry cheer and comfort to the boys and girls in the bombed out areas of England.

ISLAY

Come to the Auction Variety sale in the Hall Thursday 13th in the afternoon. Even if you don't buy you will have entertainment; Why? Because the auctioneer is a comedian on the scene. There will be doughnuts, nice fresh cake doughnuts—Who likes to "dunk" doughnuts in coffee? If you do, it is quite O.K. with us!

Wednesday was observed as Remembrance Day by the schools here. The Jr. school War Savings Bank has quite a temperature as their thermometer shows. They have now a press correspondent, Richard Wingo. Richard has only recently come to our town.

Mrs. Harry Elliott spent the week end here visiting her brother Mr. J. Purser who is in the hospital. Just now his daughter Mrs. Nell Fraser from Elk Point is with him.

December 3rd at 8 p.m. the Annual Banner of the W.A. United church will be held in the church. There will be gifts suitable for Xmas present. There is to be a fish pond and many other items of interest and fun. Come one is going to get a fruit cake.

Last week on Monday night a very enjoyable time was spent in the church in honor of Mr. and Mrs. O. Goldhawk who left on Tuesday to Edmonton. More than sixty guests were present. Rev. A. T. Bell was M.C., very ably assisted by Miss Redmond. Yvonne Mitchell played for the community singing which was tastily joined in by the crowd. The tea contest was as good as any you hear on the radio and the prizes were good ones. After an evening of pleasing fun, lunch was served, and then with some very suitable remarks from Rev. Mr. Bell Mr. and Mrs. Gallagher were presented with a very pretty reading lamp. They will be missed greatly here as Mrs. Gallagher assisted in so many community affairs.

Mr. Jo Laquis has built a chicken house and run stable on the lot at one time Bob Durrah's tennis court. Mr Laquis recently bought three lots. Mr Ford has a new barn and chicken house at the back of his store.

The teachers and senior scholars of the Islay Sunday school are holding a tea on Saturday, Nov. 21st. The Sunday school is a little behind financially and the support of our effort will be appreciated.

The following news item was contributed by one of the primary school pupils, and is reproduced without alteration:

The Islay school has started a War Savings bank. We bring our pennies and nickels. When we have a quarter we get a war savings stamp. We made a thermometer at the school to see how much money the boys and the girls make. Right now the girls have 35.51 and the boys have $3 41 All together it is 69 92. The Thermometer is hung on the wall and Charles Easton records it. We have been saving money for three weeks.

BOARD OF TRADE STARTS INQUIRY INTO PRICE OF FUEL OIL IN LOCAL FIELD

The Board of Trade has directed the attention of the Oil Controller to the present state of affairs in the Vermilion oil field and also to the low price paid for the fuel oil previously obtained here. The executive of the board met with officials of France Oils Ltd., and went over the details of the matter very carefully before action was started. A brief was also sent to the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce and that body has already taken the matter up with various officials. The action of the executive was endorsed by the members at large at the meeting on Monday.

There was considerable discussion at the meeting regarding the proposed boundaries of the new enlarged municipalities and a motion was passed stating that the meeting go on record as opposing the boundaries as were suggested by the department of municipal affairs.

A more natural division of the territory was thought to be that of the three western municipalities, Ethelwyn, Vermilion and Grizzly Bear in one new unit and the eastern M.Ds of Beaverdam, Marion and Wellington in the other. The Civic committee was given the task of reporting on this question at the next meeting.

President Gerald Stoppler was in the chair and there were 21 members present.

The Board of Trade meets again on Monday next, Nov. 16th. Be sure and be there.

WILDMERE WINKS

Ted Riley of the air force spent a short leave at his home in Wildmere last week. Ted looks every bit the airman in his uniform of blue.

Orland opened this week at 10 o'clock. This makes it better for all concerned.

When J.Wallington was in Edmonton he was unable to get a bed, so anyone going there has something to think about. Walking the streets is not very pleasant in below zero temperatures, Jimmie found that out.

Billie Smith threshed a few oats for J. Wilson, Chas. Wilson and Mrs. Riley this week, but lots of snow and ice went into the bins of grain as well. The bad the weather did not keep good until everyone had threshed — with mice and birds a lot less grain will be in the stooks next spring.

Bridge Graham spent the week end with her school chum Berna Scuffett coming home Monday evening from Edmonton.

We wish Mrs. Mable Webber of Tofield a speedy recovery to health and home again after her recent illness. Cpl. L. Graham saw Harold Webber in Toronto a short time ago. Lawrence is now in that city too.

Let a friend letter from Mrs. Sam York (nee Marion Gibson) of Goose Lake, Alta., she says she is back teaching her home school, owing to the teacher shortage.

Everyone will be pleased to hear that Mr. and Mrs. Ed Schroeder (nee Clara Gibson) of Prince Rupert, B.C. are the proud parents of a son, (Kenneth Wendell).

Our B.W.I. club held a meeting last week at Mrs. Walters, Battleview, so far we have not had any reports on the meeting as the writer was unable to attend.

The war news looks a lot brighter these days and we hope it keeps that way until Hitler is licked completely and Germany will rise as a trouble maker nation no more, with the Japs included.

TWO YOUNG MEN
with faith in themselves

BEFORE the war, two young graduates in chemistry faced the future with no assets but technical training and unbounded faith in themselves. They planned to capitalize on their years in college by manufacturing a certain chemical product. "But we'll need some money to get started," they said. "Let's put it up to the bank."

Their banker decided that their faith was well founded in character, ability, energy. "We'll finance you to start in a small way," he said. "Make a test on the local market first."

Presently the product was being sold all over Canada and exported to the United States and overseas. Now it fills a wartime demand. The enterprise employs a large number of people.

This actual example illustrates how this country's Chartered Banks help credit-worthy people to benefit themselves, their fellows and their country under the democratic system of free enterprise.

Banks, like any other business, exist because they provide services which a community needs and is willing to pay for at a rate which will yield a reasonable profit. Chartered Banks profits average less than one-half of one per cent a year on total assets. Few, if any, other businesses operate on so small a margin.

Can Be Placed on Leave Until May 1st

CALGARY.—Officials of No. 2 Recruiting Centre, Royal Canadian Air Force, Calgary, Alberta, recently announced that enlistments for Air Crew would be accepted and those desiring to enlist would be placed on leave without pay until any time they wished to report up to May 1st, 1943. Those enlisting for aircrew and going on leave are not subject to army call as they are made members of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Recruits are also needed in the Air Force for Standard Guards. Men in good physical condition 35 to 40 years old will be accepted for this work. The system of guarding on air force stations is done from towers which are heated and have telephone communication. This system greatly reduces the work of the guards and eliminates marching around in inclement weather.

General Duties men for the Works and Buildings department are needed. Men who are handy with tools and have had experience on construction work are preferred.

MORRISON

The social events for the coming season were opened, after the busy harvesting time, by a meeting of the Morrison War Service Group at the teachers-age on Wednesday afternoon, October 28th. Much business was discussed and plans laid for filling the Red shield Vermilion, with ditty bags and the White Elephant sale were made. Plans for financing the Xmas treats for the children were also discussed. A whist drive for Friday 6 was planned, to which everyone is cordially invited. The meeting closed with the usual welcome lunch.

A very entertaining Hallowe'en party was held at the school on Friday evening Oct. 30th by the Junior Red Cross. A large crowd attended and many were masked to avoid a fine, the receipts of which were used for the Junior Red Cross fund and an encouraging amount was received. The prizes for costumes were awarded to Miriam Gould, lady's first for beest dressed as a witch, and Betty Gillie, senior girl, dressed as a fat man. The costumes afforded much amusement to all. Games were played during the evening in which everyone joined with great satisfaction. Winners of the games were: Miriam Gould, turtle race, Doris Gillie and Douglas Minard, musical arms, and Florence Anderson, Going to Jerusalem. Popcorn balls were served during the course of the evening followed by an appetizing lunch supplied by the ladies of the district. Folk dancing was enjoyed after lunch with such numbers as Capt. Jinks and third night ladies. Miss Lila Bowser proposed a vote of thanks to Miss Owens and the pupils for the enjoyable affair. The school was attractively decorated for the occasion by the pupils.

Both the League and the Junior Red Cross are planning bazaars in the near future in order that their work also a raffle is planned. Look out for more news of these in the Standard at a later date.

NEW RADIO PROGRAM

The Alberta Farm and Home Forum is the name of a new radio broadcast being sponsored jointly by the Department of Agriculture and the University of Alberta. This program replaces the University Farm Forum which has been conducted by the University for several years.

The new program will be broadcast from 9 to 9.15 each Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening over the Alberta winter months. It will consist of a two-minute talk on some agricultural subject which will be followed by a five-minute period of Agricultural news. The latter will be prepared and presented by the Department of Agriculture, while the talks will be given by members of the staff of the University, officers of the Department of Agriculture and other authorities.

This program is another of the services being rendered by the Dept. of Agriculture and the University for the benefit of rural people. As time goes on, it is hoped that the Alberta Farm and Home Forum will become a recognized Agricultural Program in which the farmers and the agricultural people will be heavily interested.

There will be no curtailment of snowplow work on Alberta's highway system this winter, it will be reported this week by Hon. W. A. Fallow. The minister made a statement after it was reported that Saskatchewan's program will be curtailed. A Veteran at 20!

Back from scores of bombing raids over a dozen countries, this young airman has found adventure in the skies! Just out of his 'teens, an eager youth in years, he's a veteran in experience. He's a first-line fighting man, trained in the science of war at 3-miles-a-minute!

He and his buddies in R.C.A.F. air crew are tens-makers. Gunner, Wireless Operator, Bomber, Pilot, Navigator—all work together as a smooth swift "attack team" in a giant bomber. Their targets accurately surveyed in advance by daring reconnaissance pilots—their flight protected by the blazing guns of fighter planes—the bombers wing their relentless way to smash Nazi nerve-centres.

The expanded Air Training Plan has room for more men who want to be with these fighting comrades of the skies. Right now applications are being accepted for air crew duty, at R.C.A.F. Recruiting Centres throughout Canada.

If you are physically fit, mentally alert, over 17½ and not yet 33, you are eligible. If you are over 33, but have exceptional qualifications, you may still be considered. Load of formal education is no longer a bar to enlistment.

On the other hand, questionnaires have confirmed this psychological fact in relation to the choice of the Christian Life. Very few were up years of age; more at twelve, more at fourteen. The apex of the triangle was at the sixteen year mark, and after that on an ever increasing ratio, with very few after twenty-one years of age.

Today in this great hour, youth faces the dividing trails. Choose ye this day whom ye shall serve,—truth or false-hood, righteousness, service or gree; love or hate, good or evil, God or the devil. Today you have the power of choice. Once you are free to make the choice, you are responsible for that choice.

Choose well your ruts, you will have to travel in them on the long long trail

Truck Rodeo Order Delayed

Postponement of the date after which trucks and private commercial vehicles must confine operations to 25 miles from the registered address, has been effected by the Administrator of Services, Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

The extension will permit heavy movements of goods which normally takes place before the onset of winter to proceed without interruption. It will give private operators an additional four weeks in which to re-arrange their operations so that they can more easily comply with the provisions of the order forbidding travel beyond the 25 mile limit, on and after the last day of November.

PECULIAR EXPERIENCE OF FORMER VERMILION MAN

Food Disagrees—Breaks Back

Capt. E. R. Gibson, M.C., former resident of Winterburn and present alumist, is making "good recovery" at Petawawa military camp from a broken back he suffered in Africa in July.

Capt. Gibson, a veteran mountain climber, was a Canadian member of an American military mission experimenting in foods for mountain warfare when he was injured. When climbing at 16,000 feet the food he had eaten brought on violent sickness and he suffered the severe back injuries during his convulsions.

He was brought back to Canada soon after and later went to Petawawa military camp. He still is wearing a plaster cast. Capt. Gibson won his decoration in the First Great War.

—Edmonton Journal.

Capt. Gibson spent a year or two in Vermilion while attending the agricultural college several years ago. He was a great ski enthusiast and aroused quite a lot of enthusiasm here for that sport.

Penny candy, cereals, soft drinks and potatoes were commodities involved in 14 cases of infractions of price regulations. There were 27 persons prosecuted for violations of rentals, four cases of infringements on the rationing act, and eight cases reported for not observing regulations of the Oil Controller and Controller of Supplies.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By H. G. L. Strange
Director, Research Department, Searle Grain Co. Ltd.

FARMERS ANXIOUS TO PRODUCE

Because of the wheat surplus many suggestions and indeed requests are being made to prairie farmers to change from wheat to products more urgently needed by the national emergency.

It is the business of farmers to produce what is needed, and they want to do it, but farmers are not lacking in patriotism if they require clear answers to certain plain questions before they make changes, for by bitter experience farmers know something about the many things that can happen their efforts, and about the cost of making changes. Here are the questions:

Can I sell what I produce? How much will be paid for it? When will I be paid for what I raise? Can I be sure of storage space to keep the product until I can market it? Will there be enough labor available to help me with the new crop?

There is not a single business house or industry in Canada that would not ask similar questions and require proper answers if the Government or anyone else were to request them to change their plant over to something new. While, therefore, it is patriotic for farmers to grow what the war needs, it certainly does not denote any lack of patriotism if farmers try to avoid losing money.

Following factors have tended to increase supply and increase demand: (1)official estimates place Australian wheat production for 1942 at 185,000,- 000 bushels compared with 170,000,- 000 bushels production last year.— Drought has reduced Turkey's wheat production for this year well below the pre-war average—Winter weather in the Balkans is being delayed by the dry condition of the soil.

Following factors have tended to increase supply and decrease demand: The exportable surplus of wheat in the Argentine is estimated at 171,- 192,000 bushels, compared with 181,- 632,000 bushels last year—The record wheat crop in the U.K. has been confirmed — On new lands in Siberia wheat yields have been as high as 30 bushels to the acre.

$2000 cash has been raised to date for the erection of a curling rink for the town. The building is now under construction and is 200 by 60 feet. There will be two curling sheets in the centre with skating all around. (Editor's note — this is the present curling rink building.

Messrs. Darling and Armstrong have purchased the old rink property and are converting the buildings into a feed and livery barn. This makes the third large barn in Vermilion.

Sam Ferrell has just completed a costly and handsome residence on his farm just north of Vermilion. It is a two-storey frame building 26 by 36 on a stone foundation with cement basement.

The fine farm home of Tommy Elliott, 5 miles south-east of Islay was completely gutted by fire on Oct. 21. Wm. Seal of Elsbethyn brought a load of grain into the elevator on Wednesday.

Did you hear the church bells ring last Sunday? Yes, you did, and for a purpose! Instead of ringing out the final summons which precedes the solemn services and sermons, the bells rang out to call to worship! Now we have another Christian institution and from time, principles should guide our way of living. If you are out of the habit of attending church regularly — or not you late to start or to start again. The United Christian Education leaders asks you to set an example for your children and neighbors. Start to join in the worship and service of your church this coming Sunday. Go to church this Sunday and every Sunday. Take your own children to Sunday school. There is no better place to meet them at church!

The Trans-Canada Highway

OF WIDE INTEREST through out Canada is the recent announcement that the Trans-Canada Highway, almost completed. With the exception of two miles near the town of Hearst, in northern Ontario, there are now open to motor traffic from coast to coast, a distance of 4,000 miles. This road represents a vital stage in the development of transportation in Canada. It was rigorously expected that the highways would be used extensively for transit traffic but it has now been rushed to completion as a military necessity. Many parts of the road have been finished for some time and the greater part of it now is a well-kept hard-surfaced highway. In some places it is a dirt road with the most modern types of culverts and bridges. In a number of cases it is a well gravelled road cutting through mountains and forests making lush settlements to reach other and to the cities to the East and West. If there

* * * *

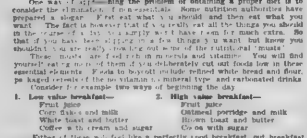
East and West Will Be Linked

Across the prairies the highway has been in use for some years, and over it have passed thousands of cars and trucks, moving between points in the Western province and the rest of Canada. With the early completion of the road Eastern and Western Canada will have means of direct communication by car and truck. In the past it has been necessary for Canadians to pass through the United States in some cases when travelling between the East and the West as the direct route was over 1,000 miles longer between a point near Fort William and Saulte Ste Marie, Ontario. The present restrictions on the use of rubber and gasoline make impossible for the public at a while to enjoy the road for pleasure travel until after the war but to important for military purposes can be clearly seen and we can anticipate its many uses for pleasure and business in the years after the war.

* * * *

Roads Have Great Importance

Another great highway that is of interest to all Canadians and especially to those in the West is the Alaska Highway which has recently been opened to traffic. Like the road mentioned above, after the war it may be the means of opening up vast new territory in the North. Like many parts of the Trans-Canada Highway the road was built through mountains and forests swamps and muskeg but after the war it may be used by engineers and workmen have overcome great difficulties both physical and mechanical. Both of these roads will be important in the future development of our country Transportation and communication are the primary factors in the exchange of ideas and in business, and are essential to railroad unity These two great highways will rank with the railways and airplanes in bringing the widespread parts of our Dominion together and in promoting the interchange of goods and a better understanding



One way of approaching the problem of obtaining a proper diet is to consider the eliminating of non-essentials. Some nutrition authorities have prepared a slogan: First eat what you should and then eat what you want. The fact is however that if you really eat all the things you should in the course of a day you will have room for much extra. So that if you have been subject to a few things you want but know you shouldn't, you are really running out one of the nutritional musts.

These musts are foods rich in minerals and vitamins. You will find yourself eating more of them if you deliberately cut out foods low in these essential nutrients. Foods to avoid include refined white bread and flour, pastries kaged cereals of the no vitamin, mineral type and carbonated drinks

Consider for example two ways of beginning the day

1. Low value breakfast—	2. High value breakfast—
Fruit juice	Fruit juice
Corn flakes and milk	Oatmeal porridge and milk
White toast and butter	Brown toast and butter
Coffee with cream and sugar	Cocoa with sugar

Either of these will feel like a perfectly good breakfast, but breakfast number 2 gives you twice as much in minerals and vitamins as the break fast number 1. And besides if you have corn flakes first, you're not going to have oatmeal porridge later

The same thing is true of the soft drink menace. A child whose school lunch is accompanied by a carbonated drink is being deprived of part of his vitamin requirements for the day. If, instead he drank an equal quantity of milk he would be getting valuable amounts of calcium. Vitamin A and riboflavin. And if he doesn't like milk on its own, he could take it in the form of cocoa or chocolate milk. The latter can be bought in ½ pint bottles at many dairies and could be sold in any school cafeteria.

For accurate information about vitamin rich foods write to the Western Division Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto for a free copy of the booklet "Do You Know Your Vitamins"

Crossing Accidents

Gasoline Rationing Has No Reduction In Foolish Driving

In the first eight months of 1942—from January 1st to August 31st, 57 people died and 235 were injured in 219 accidents at railway crossings reported to the Board of Transport Commissioners for Canada.

Experts who predicted that 1942, because of gasoline and rubber rationing and their restrictions on the use of motor vehicles, would see a reduction in the number of railway crossing accidents, have been proved wrong by statistics of the Board which show that crossing accidents in Canada for the first eight months of 1942 were exactly equal in those for the corresponding period of 1941. Crossing accidents for both periods totalled 219 in the 1942 period, however if or more people were killed 47 against 43 but there were 235 injured in the 1941 against as against the 235 injured in the 1942 accidents for the eight-month period Human folly, the inexplicable urge, unfortunately too common, to try to beat the locomotive to the crossing, still rules as the most prevalent cause of railway crossing accidents. Carelessness is further reflected in the ever-increasing number of such accidents where motorists actually have passed other cars halted at crossings to pile into the sides of moving trains

It happens most often, in fact, that motorists hit but trains rather than that trains hit autos, and in some court cases railway companies have been acquitted on the contributory negligence of motorists who damaged rail way property by heedlessly driving into trains.

Failure to observe or heed signals which are invariably displayed at rail crossings ranks as the principal cause of accidents reported to the board. Trains, operating on fixed tracks are in no position to swerve or dodge as the motorist hurtles his car into the path of the oncoming train. The engineer is usually helpless against the driver who disregards signals and barriers as well as the safety of himself and his passenger, if any, drives his vehicle into the side of the locomotive or the train itself.

NEW SLIP COVER REVIVES OLD SOFA

Spring Style Made Pin-On Way

Lake a humble bud bursting into bloom—your plain sofa in its flowery slip cover!

It's easy to make, because you just pin on the goods without cutting a pattern. And it's thrilling to see dated lines, such as curlicue legs, disappear under a crisply modern flounce!

The pin-on way of making slip covers is explained in our booklet. You first remove all cushions, then work section by section.

* * *

The fabric chints and cretonnes are practical and lovely—a top-buck of one section of sofa now pin down inside-back and seat and out 1½ inches around pins. Allow 4 inch turn-in at back of seat.

In the same way, pin fabric to border sofa sections and to arms, sides, back and cushions.

Finally pin, then baste, ALL the pieces together. When cutting flounce add five inches on each side for the pleats and another inch on each side for seams

Our 32-page booklet explains and diagrams every step of making a slip cover from estimating material to finishing. Shows how to cover chairs, too, and auto seats. Illustrates making different kinds of seams, flounces

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "How To Make Slip Covers" to Home Service Dept. Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave E., Winnipeg, Man Be sure to write plainly your name address and the name of booklet

NEWS of your Army

From Directorate of Public Relations Army

Corporal W. W. Reeve, Camp correspondent at the Canadian Machine Gun Training Centre, A-17, Three Rivers, Quebec, has some interesting comments on life in this camp:

The Army "at" Test has the men on their toes. Men with university education are good-naturedly competing with men who rely upon their experiences in pre-war life and travel to bring high ratings to their respective units. The men at this centre score well in the test.

Sleepy Time Pal

Corporal "Hickey" Johnston, Orderly N.C.O. No. 3 Company, says that only lucks his men in at night but he tells them bedtime stories. With many difference he relates real-stirring tales of his gold-panning days in the Yukon, missing no details as to how many encounters with bears and mountain lions. After he gets through with a story his audience usually off to sleep, satisfied that an Army with guns is a safe place

Battle Drill Is Popular

Since the return of three staff men from a Battle Drill School camp life has taken on a new aspect. Acting on the latest theories of battle training, the physical conditioning and the highly-specialized attainments of the graduates of the course to the trio has created a somewhat anxious position particularly since each of the three obtained high grades.

N.C.O.'s Now Mess

The Junior N.C.O's are looking forward to the opening of the new corporals' mess. Anticipated for more than two years the project is now nearing reality in the former Sergeants' mess. Complete with a second-in-command, is personally taking an interest in the arrangements.

Tickets Issued

A demonstration of how the "beaten zone" varies at different ranges when subjected to the withering fire of Vickers Machine Guns was demonstrated recently on the banks of the St Maurice River. Balloons set over the water served as targets.

Comradeship

When one of the well liked sergeants received a wire to the effect that his mother-in-law was taken seriously ill he was in need of financial assistance to send his wife to her mother's side His associates in the Sergeant's Mess learning of the problem collected the required amount for the trip.

The Last Post

The death of C.Q.M.S. Robert Elliott was a distinct loss to this centre, as he was a well-known member of the camp and particularly with his unit, the Headquarters Company. Interment was in Mount Royal Cemetery with full military honors, eight warrant officers and staff sergeants serving as pallbearers, a firing party, a guard party and the centre's pipe band sustaining in the service.

Knitted For Sailors

Men Grateful For Articles Made By The Duke Of Kent

It is not generally known that the late Duke of Kent devoted some of his time on official journeys to knitting for members of the Royal Navy. This has just been revealed by Lady Myrtle Balfour, a daughter of Admiral Lord Jellicoe. The Duke invariably knitted chest and kidney protectors for which the men who were them were most grateful. The workmanship was very good. Lady Myrtle Balfour thinks if the Duke found time for such work during his manifold activities many other men might do the same. It would be interesting to know how far knitting is now a masculine accomplishment.

Final Rout Of Axis Forces In East Expected

London.—Egyptian battle details were discussed everywhere in Mayfland to the virtual exclusion of every other subject.

Most newspapers ran lengthy leading editorials which ranged in enthusiasm from the London Star's "We have a victory—we may cheer at the tops of our voices," to the Standard's "The British people are too wise in the ways of modern war to acclaim complete victory yet."

"Already," said the Standard editorial, "the Germans have disproved the invincibility of the Nazi attack. Now the British have developed another blow at this legend . . . Our hearts are warm with hope."

"We must not forget," said the London Evening News, "that though Rommel is hard hit he is not yet knocked out—that the road to Tripoli, which is the ultimate goal, is long and that he will not yield easily." The Star declared the Egyptian success "finds us taking a long stride toward final victory."

The Cardiff Western Mail said: "Rommel will not be allowed to play another game of cat-and-mouse this time," while the Manchester Guardian said, "It must be remembered that in the last encounter with Rommel it was his superiority in tanks and anti-tank guns and the better use he made of them which brought him overthrow." The Guardian added: "This fact, which will encourage us for the moment, will be added renown for our present commanders if they out by crushing Rommel."

WOMEN SUPERVISORS

Training Of Personnel Prod Aircraft Plants In Western Canada

Classes for supervisory personnel in personnel supervisors from aircraft plants in Winnipeg, Edmonton, Moose Jaw and Vancouver are now being organized. This is one of the latest innovations of the aircraft industry which has culminated in the training supervisor for every two hundred women in the country's aviation plants. Mrs. Mabel Colwell, Toronto, was appointed to organize the courses, with the approval of large factories. She toured the big American plants to determine what was being done there to meet the natural adjustments caused by many women entering the industry and on her return held her first class in Toronto, where 16 women from Ontario plants, some of them originally from the west, were given an intensive one week's course. Now Mrs Colwell is in Western Canada expanding her work. The classes are being held in Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Women selected for the courses are of mature age. Besides interpreting to their fellow employees the policies of their company, they teach them to adapt themselves to the tempo of factory life. They hear talks by representatives of various service officers; they learn about nutrition, first aid, safety measures general welfare problems and practical points such as the best garb for factory wear

Mrs Colwell is well qualified for her job of instructing aviation "house mothers". She has been in personnel work for years. In her private business life she is head of her own firm, Canadian Facts, engaged in collecting research and industrial public opinion surveys. Her work has taken her to every city and town of consequence in Western Canada, as indeed in all the country.

THE KING'S MESSAGE

Congratulates Eastern Command On Magnificent Success

London.—The King sent the following message to Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, British Middle East commander:

The 8th army, magnificently supported by the R.A.F. and units of the Royal Navy, has dealt the Axis a blow of which the importance cannot be exaggerated.

For the last fortnight we have all been following with anxious interest the progress of the hard-fought battle and I can assure you that I am embracing as they do many representatives of the British Commonwealth and Empire, of the admiration and pride of the whole empire in their brilliant victory.

In the name of your fellow countrymen all the world over, I express to you, to Air Marshal Tedder, to General Montgomery, to Air Vice Marshal Coningham and to the commanders and all ranks of the three services my thanks for the far reaching victory which by your untiring cooperation you have so decisively achieved.

Twelve officers received the Croix Militaire Belge and a warrant officer and a non-commissioned officer each received the decoration Militaire Belge.

Our Airmen Play Important Part In Desert War

London. — Canadians flying in fighters, fighter-bombers and torpedo-carrying planes are playing a prominent part in the Middle East operations which have beaten Axis airpower in the desert to a standstill and forced Rommel's army into "full retreat."

An R.C.A.F. press release from Cairo said that in addition to the Canadian fighter squadron which went to Egypt last June, there are a number of Canadians fighting with the R.A.F. and a few with the United States Army Air Forces in the desert.

"The Canadians have taken a prominent part in terrific troop strafing of the enemy's lines, have harried his supply columns further bac and bombed his dumps and strong points and have battered his shipping in the R.C.A.F. release said.

"In unprecedented bleating from the air to which Rommel's lines were subjected before the latest British advance began, Canadians took a particularly prominent role. The individual exploits of Canadian fliers already are being recorded in large numbers on the Egyptian front and daily are being augmented."

The R.C.A.F. named P/O. R. V. Manning of Vancouver, who wrecked an Axis tanker with a torpedo hit and Sgt. E. R. Taylor of Preeceville, Sask., who fought three Italian planes with a spare machine gun stuck out of his cockpit hatch after the rear gun of his machine were knocked out of action. P/O. L. H. Curphey of Ottawa, who was credited for destroying an Italian fighter while escorting Allied bombers on a raid

Veterans of both air and ground crews shared the work and credit during the tremendous and intensive bombardment of the enemy's positions at El Alamein, and during the ceaseless night and day attacks on the enemy's vital supply columns and landing ground," the release said.

"Tireless ground crews working in close harmony with their flying colleagues have established new records of aircraft in a high degree of serviceability under harassing conditions of desert warfare."

The release concluded that all men wearing the "Canada" badges on their shoulders — including cooks, wireless operators, clerks, telephonists and others whose jobs are not spectacular — are helping the "big drive" after weeks of painstaking preparation.

HARVEST LABOR

Sending Of Students To The West Was A Success From National Viewpoint

Ottawa. - The labor department made public a statement from the Saskatchewan War Services Labor committee saying that from a national viewpoint, the sending of 4,000 students and farmers from Ontario and Quebec to the harvest fields of Saskatchewan and Alberta was a success

In a letter to the department this officer said: "Certainly millions of acres of crop were threshed only because of the fact that this help was available. The cost to the government concerned is small indeed when the value of the crop saved is considered."

SHARP DECREASE

Shown In Butter Stocks Compared With A Month Ago

Ottawa.—Canadian stocks of butter showed a sharp decrease on Nov 1 as compared with a month ago, according to figures released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

J. Gordon Taggart, foods administrator of the prices board, told the Canadian Press the figures would be carefully studied and it was too early to say whether they foreshadowed butter rationing. The figures did not change his previously announced opinion that rationing would not become necessary

While the figures for nine cities do not cover the entire storage of butter in Canada they are a fair indication of the trend. On Nov 1 there were stored in these cities 28,622,112 pounds as compared with 33,151,232 pounds on Oct. 1 and 43,784,956 on Nov 1, 1941.

An order recently issued by the prices board forbids any firm to hold more butter in at cage on Nov 30 than 75 per cent of the amount it held on Nov 30 a year ago This gives still a month to adjust hold ings

ECONOMY MOVE

Issue Of Canada Year Book May Cover Two Years

Ottawa As a step in the government economy campaign in respect to publications the next issue of the Canada Year Book may cover both 1943 and 1944, with no issue next year.

This would follow the procedure of depression years. Only one issue of the year book was made for 1934-35 and the ame combination was applied in some earlier years.

Dominion bureau of statistics officials said the question of combining the publication for the next two years is under consideration and that an early decision is likely.

The annual cost runs about $25 000 but sales of the publication reduce this outlay by several thousand dollars

Price Board Studies Curbing Of Industries

Montreal Studies on concentration of industry through which the prices board toward the British system of profit pooling, whereby the continuing plants in an industry are able to assist the curtailed plants R. F Chisholm, director of the board's industrial division said.

In an address prepared for delivery to the Advertising and Sales Executive Club Mr. Chisholm said there is no "secret list" of non-essential industries to be closed under the curtailment plans. Every civilian industry now on the list, he stated, every one contained some element of non-essentiality

"The non-essential element in one industry will receive exactly the same treatment as the non-essential element in another," he said

Curtailment was being handled through the existing organization of industry Chisholm said, which was consulted with his advisory committee and other representatives of industry.

A few cases had been made toward overall curtailment pooling of production and distribution. Where drastic plans were under discussion these would not be implemented until there had been discussed with the industry concerned and until a clear procedure had been worked out for the handling of what ever men might be required for other jobs.

The question of advertising and selling had to be dealt with in each individual industry.

In opinion it is sheer nonsense to say that all advertising and all selling can be eliminated, he said

I do not know of any country rather democratic or totalitarian which has banned newspapers of advertising

H. B. E. RICHARDS TIES PALMER—RICHEK KNOT

In a candle-light ceremony read by Elder H.M.S. Richards of the Voice of Prophecy, Miss Norreve Lucille Palmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.N. Palmer of Glendale, Calif., and Nicholas Richek of College Place, Wn., son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Richek of Vermilion, Alberta, exchanged nuptial vows at the Eagle Rock Seventh-day Adventist church at 8:00 p.m. September 24 in College Place, Washington.

The bride wore a white satin gown with tulle skirt, a finger-tip veil, and carried white gardenias with an orchid center. Rena Palmer, the bride's sister, was maid of honor, and Mrs. Joe Hansen and Dr. Jean Marie Perrin, were bridesmaids. Best man was Joe Hansen. Groomsmen were Robert Schultz and George Metabanbo. Marlene Schaffner was usher. Musicians were Mrs. June Culhane-Casebeer, violinist, and Reuben Matiko, tenor.

Mr. and Mrs. Richek are students at College Place this year.

Stagette Notes

The regular meeting of the local Stagette club was held on Tuesday evening with Miss Marjory Stewart as hostess.

The main part of the evening was spent in packing a Christmas parcel to the Maidstone St. school in London. The girls are well in practice now for the festive season by the amount of tissue paper and ribbons that were in use.

Several donations of print scraps have been given to the club so that it shouldn't be long until all the members have prickly fingers.

Clandonald A.T.P.A. Re-Opens

The re-organization meeting of the St. Mary's A.T.P.A. was held on Wednesday evening at the Vicarage when the following were elected:

Hon. President — The Rev. The Vicar of Clandonald
President—Allan G. Mackenzie
Vice-Pres.—Rue Dorey
Sec.-Treasurer—Joan Harrington.

Conveners will be elected later and a full program drawn up for the year. The branch will meet fortnightly as last year. As an economy measure during the war members have decided not to have lunches at ordinary meetings.

At the request of the vicar the branch has agreed to work for the rewiring of the church's electric lighting system.

Death of Well Known Missionary

Churchpeople in the Vermilion district will be shocked and distressed to learn of the death of the Reverend Victor C. Spencer, B.A., B.D., for many years an Anglican missionary serving in the Holy Catholic Church of Japan, as a member of the Anglican communion.

Mr. Spencer was a graduate of Trinity College of Toronto, and was ordained deacon in 1911, and priest in 1912. His missionary work began at Gifu in 1914. In 1925 he became examining chaplain in the Diocese of Mid-Japan, and in 1928 Diocesan Treasurer.

Members of congregations in the Rural Deanery of Vermilion will doubtless remember the extra-ordinarily interesting addresses given by Mr. Spencer in the course of his visit last July.

CUMMINGS FLASHES

The Red Cross Auxiliary met at the home of Mrs. Rose Marie for a quilting bee. All members were present and a busy time was put in until dark. A nice lunch was served. This was the final meeting of the season.

Quite a number of farmers didn't get threshed so will have a busy time when spring comes. Help was so scarce everyone was short-handed. If all the boys in the forces had been home as they wanted to be during the harvest, much more would have been accomplished.

We are sorry to hear that Red Archer of the R.C.A.F. is sick with pneumonia and in hospital. We all hope that he will soon be well again. And the same wish goes for Melvin Arthur, who is in the Vermilion hospital.

Miss Marjory McCrea, a former teacher here and now of Mannville, paid a short visit to the Wilson home last week. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McGlanee of Vermilion were also visitors at the Wilson home after attending Mrs. Meadors funeral last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Samuelson and Elmer expect to leave this week for Vancouver where the former has secured work for the winter and the family may stay for next summer.

The old saying that it pays to advertise, still holds good, especially when the advertisement is in the Vermilion Standard. Last week the Wilsons advertised for some calves that had strayed and got word the day after the paper came out where they were. Now they are all back home again. Many miles were travelled looking for them so next time just a little ad costing so will save time and labor.

BI'Y WAR SAVINGS STAMPS!

BIGGEST NOVEMBER BLIZZARD ON RECORD SWEEPS DISTRICT

On Wednesday Vermilion and district were just beginning to emerge from the heaviest November snowfall and biggest drifts within the memory of old timers. The snow, borne by a high wind started on Sunday and reached its zenith Sunday night and early Monday morning. Snow and wind continued in almost iorm during Monday and finally ceased Monday night, leaving 11 inches of snow on the level with drifts up to 4 and 5 feet. Only one winter's storm of recent years can compare with this and that was experienced at the end of March 1937, the snowfall being definitely greater on that occasion. Two inches or snow have fallen since Monday.

Town schools had only half the children there during Monday and Tuesday but attendance has returned to normal after the two town snowplows had been pressed into long hours of service. Mail men on the rural routes were experiencing great difficulty in, making their rounds. Local deliveries of all kinds were greatly retarded.

The Blizzard obliterated the last lingering hope that the previous snow might disappear and that we still might enjoy a month or so of open weather.

The rain on half the acreage in the district is still standing in stooks in the fields and is now submerged in snow, winning an already serious problem still graver for all the unthreshed farmers.

Coaching of the teams is being done by Mrs. Nora-an Sole and Miss M. Nugent of the public school teaching staff.

8,472 BARRELS CRUDE OIL PRODUCED IN VERMILION FIELD IN SEPTEMBER

The Vermilion field produced 8,472 barrels of crude oil during the month of September, according to figures just issued by the provincial Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board.

The field has improved steadily during the year from 2961 barrels in January by monthly stages to 8,472 barrels in September. There were prospects of a continued increase but if not so we for the closing down of the Conditioning plant

The situation is very interesting here now but it apparently boils down to the simple act that the oil control ler will have to adjust matters so that the companies concerned can be assured of a reasonable profit If not the field will slip back and lose much of the advance it has made, just at a time when fuel oil is needed most

Fourteen wells were on production during the month, while another producer, Fitchell, was not pumped during September. Individual wells produced as follows:

VIGOROUS PROTEST FILED ON CLOSING OF VERMILION OIL PLANT

Disruption of Supply Said "National Disgrace" by C. C. F. Meeting

Vigorous protest against the lack of government action which has permitted an important Alberta oil field to be closed down for more than two weeks because of a dispute about the price at which processed oil is sold, was expressed in a resolution passed by the Executive of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation party at a meeting held during the week end.

The situation, stated a spokesman of the party, clearly calls for government action and because the national resources of the province are under control of the provincial government the C.C.F. believes that the provincial government should act in this matter.

No Need For Apology

MR. HERBERT MORRISON, British Home Secretary and Minister of National Security, told the British people recently that they had no need to apologize to anyone for their three-year part in the war. His speech was in reply to "critical shafts directed at Britain from various points of the compass," but not, he emphasized, from representatives of the conquered people of Europe, who live in Britain and know what is being done there. In his speech, Mr. Morrison drew attention to certain facts which it would be well for everyone to review occasionally. One of these facts is that Britain did not wait until she was attacked to enter the war in the cause of freedom. Neither did she falter when France fell, and she remained the only barrier between Hitler and the conquest of the greater part of the globe. When she entered the war, and through the many critical periods that followed, Britain faced an enemy which was far superior in numbers and equipment. This situation existed, in fact, through every campaign in which British forces took part, until the most recent drive in Egypt. Yet they restored Abyssinia, inflicted heavy damage to the enemy in North Africa and by joining in the defence of Greece, gave the United Nations valuable time to prepare for other attacks. In the fighting in 1940 and 1941, over seventy per cent of the casualties suffered by troops of the British Empire, were among those from the United Kingdom.

* * * * *

Production Of War Material

In the production of war materials, Britain's output is greater than that of any other country in proportion to the population. Twenty-two million British men and women do full time work in vital war industries while there are another two million, voluntary and part-time workers. Although it has been said that Britain has reached the peak of production both in respect to labor and raw materials, Mr. Morrison reported that in September the output of war materials rose fourteen per cent., and the weight of aircraft increased by eighteen per cent. Since the major part of the raw materials are imported, the importance of the navy in this connection is great. The navy regularly patrols over 60 000 miles of trade routes and guards nearly 3,000 British and Allied merchant ships. It has escorted 130,000 convoys, and has brought 199 out of every 200 of the ships in these convoys safely to port. This has been done in addition to the many other duties carried out by the navy. Mr. Morrison also drew attention to the fact that eighty per cent. of the war materials manufactured in England have been shipped overseas to the various fighting fronts. Here again, the navy has played an important part.

* * * * *

Have Reason To Be Proud

In the air, too, the British have every reason to be proud of their record. In the Battle of Britain, the legend of the invincibility of the Luftwaffe was forever destroyed. The R.A.F. gained a third then, and has since been gradually extending that control deeper and deeper into the skies over Europe. The Royal Air Force, together with Dominion and Allied squadrons destroyed over 10,000 Axis planes between September 1940 and July 1942. In another respect, Mr. Morrison also defended Britain's part in the war. This was in reply to critics who have said that Britain is in the war only to preserve the Empire. Here Mr Morrison pointed out that the British had driven the enemy out of Ethiopia, and had restored that country to its rightful rulers and its own people. Because there have been some defeats and some admitted errors in judgment, Britain's part in the war has been loudly criticized by some quarters. However, it would be well for us all to remember the many odds which she has overcome, and the many months during which she stood alone and held firm to preserve the whole democratic way of life. Mr Morrison did well to remind the people of Britain as well as her critics and admirers in other lands, of the magnificent part she has played so far in this war

The Thousand Days

Picture Shows What Canada Has Accomplished In Present Struggle

A short time ago in Toronto I sat in on the pre-view of a film produced by Associated Screen News that you must see when it reaches your local theatres.

For the first time is shown a complete picture of what the first Thousand Days of this War meant to every Canadian—and what has been accomplished by our nation in that time is graphically portrayed. Gordon Sparling, the director, has told together in an extraordinarily interesting 20 minutes, a picture that should give you much pride in your country—your neighbours and yourself—if you have done your duty.

As the picture rams its end you see Winston Churchill speaking to the Canadian Parliament—you have a flashing series of war work activities—the Canadian Parliament's victory in the world (Canadian), the no. 2 largest tank factory on earth (in Canada), and didn't remember of the Minister say tanks couldn't be built here now?—factories producing a thousand and one things—even the auto plants producing army vehicles, etc.

You will be proud that this Canada of ours, despite late starts and many stumbles, is doing so well. It is only possible through the united efforts of an aroused country who only need inspired leadership to go still further ahead.

This film is being rushed to all Canadian theatres, because it carries a heartening message that we need now.

Its not fiction—its facts. There's no love story—no smuggling—no hero—but all Canadians will be proud still of the Dominion when they see what all parts of it are contributing to the war effort. It's "the new 20 minutes—it seemed to be five minutes long because it was so interesting and vital.

Ask your local theatre when they'll show "The Thousand Days" and don't miss it Fruit Kuhn

Officers of the Canadian Army will henceforth have new regulation pattern dress jackets which will further economize on clothing materials. Box pleats are omitted from breast pockets, bottom pockets will be of the slit type, similar to those worn in civilian jackets and plain sleeves without built-on cuffs, except in the case of the Scottish pattern jacket which will retain the gauntlet pattern cuff.

Every day of the week mail censors are called upon to strike out information contained in letters sent to prisoners of war in enemy occupied countries. Canadians with next-of-kin held prisoners of war should procure a copy of "Regulations Governing Communication With Prisoners Of War Interned Abroad" from Mr. [illegible] Stanton, Examination Unit, Press Department, National War Services, Ottawa, before writing to friends or relatives interned overseas.

"The great majority of the wounds suffered by the Canadians at Dieppe who were taken aboard a floating hospital ship, half and half, of course, were slight, according to Capt. R. B. Murray of Markdale and Kingston, Ont., who served on that vessel as Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps. Most of them came aboard the ship carrying over their bad luck at being put out of action. Those who could help but who could not return to the raid were kept busy helping to care for [illegible] wounded.

The men and women of Canada's Armed Forces may now see the latest talking pictures in their own barracks. The days of the "third run" pictures are over for the service, as now the motion picture industry will provide "first run" movies on 16 millimeter film for canteen use.

The scope of training in the Canadian Women's Army Corps will be widened, and a new basic training centre at Kitchener, Ontario, will have a cooks' course from which it is expected thirty girls a month will graduate. Forty drivers will be graduated from there each month in addition to clerks, etc. MacDonald College at St. Anne de Bellevue, P.Q., will be an Advanced Training Centre as well as a school for the graduation of approximately 50 officers a month Plans are under way to train 100 girls a month at the basic training centre at Vermilion, Alberta.

If you cannot get Crown Brand Syrup from your favourite grocer now and then, here is the reason. Because "Crown Brand" in addition to its other uses is being very generally used to help supplement the supply of sugar in Canadian Homes, the demand has increased tremendously.

Though there has been a much greater amount of Crown Brand syrup produced this year, even this increased supply cannot cope with the shortage of millions of pounds of sugar.

Don't hoard—buy normally—we are making every effort to supply the increased demand, and your grocer will do his best to fill your needs.

Sir Stafford Cripps is credited with saying in an interview that the key to the whole crisis in India is found in Gandhi's adherence to a policy of non-violence. An Indian government that was pledged to pacifism, and might even make peace with the Axis, could not be countenanced by Britain while she is waging a life-and-death struggle.

Children and grown-ups alike look forward to dinner as the important meal of the day. That meal can be made up of foods which crowd out the necessary units essential to good health, or it can, just easily, be one with an abundance of vitamins and minerals. An example of each type of dinner as follows.

DINNER

High Vitamin and Mineral Content	Low Vitamin and Mineral Content
Vegetable soup	Clear broth or consomme
Pot roast, carrots onions	Pot roast (no vegetables)
Baked potatoes	Boiled potatoes
Cabbage salad	White bread and butter
Brown bread and butter (whole wheat)	Jam pie (or tart)
Apple Betty	Tea
Milk

Mothers unfortunately, often cater to the likes and dislikes of their children and omit the most necessary green or yellow vegetables. The habit of serving children nothing but potatoes with their meals, merely because of their fancied distaste for other types of vegetables is a grave mistake. Only by the regular eating of vegetables rich in vitamins and minerals can Johnny or Mary hope to build firm bones and teeth, and wealthy blood.

Children are usually very fond of pie, especially the sticky variety that is crammed with calories and little else. Instead, why not plan a fruit pudding or simply serve plain fruit for dessert. The minerals contained in most fruits are valuable in replacing the child's body from disease. Besides, it is a saving on your sugar ration.

Many institutions today have made milk the dinner beverage. This is an excellent idea as the calcium requirements of the human body, and particularly children, are great, and too few of us drink as much milk as we should. Together with vegetables and fruit rich in vitamins and minerals, it makes a combination hard to beat

Nazis Meet With Frigid Reception Entering France

London.—The Daily Express in a despatch datelined "on the French frontier," reported that the French people in many places were "stupefied" when they learned Hitler had ordered Nazi troops to march through the unoccupied zone of their country.

The Germans, commandeering hotels wherever they went, were met with a frigid reception, the despatch said. As far as possible, it added, the invaders were ignored. Frenchmen would not speak to the Germans unless they had to and then they gave only the barest answers.

"There is a general move to hide valuables and in the country livestock," the despatch continued. "In towns and villages refugees have entered as the invaders drove through. Vichy police barricaded and patrolled the main streets today, but the French people mostly stayed indoors. Only habitual street-corner groups stared at the Germans."

Hitler's terms for immediate peace with Vichy, restoring to France all her 1939 continental territory except Alsace and Lorraine, were offered to Vichy by arch-collaborationist Pierre Laval from his Munich meeting with Hitler, it was reported in reliable continental circles with close Vichy connections.

The report was not confirmed.

The reported provisions, especially that involving the loss to the French of the last remaining strategic areas, prove decidedly distasteful and unacceptable to the whole French nation.

The cardinal terms of the proposed peace as reported by these informed sources, which could not be further identified, were:

1. France would regain all her continental area except the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine.

2. Alsace and Lorraine would become autonomous. (They have been incorporated into the Reich.)

3. France would keep her empire (virtually all of which now is controlled or allied with the United Nations).

4. The French fleet would co-operate with the Germans to regain the empire.

5. Italy would renounce territorial claims on France.

The Italians in the past have yelled loudly for Nice, Tunisia and Corsica, but an Italian spokesman in Rome said Italy's share in the occupation was not intended in the interests of territory.

Most reliable Vichy circles reported that Laval, who has consistently favored the Germans, had nevertheless rejected a military alliance with Germany.

Informants from the former unoccupied area represented Petain as not yet decided on his course, but the Vichy radio (now obviously under the domination of the Germans) broadcast that both Petain and Laval have indicated their intention to remain in office and continue policy they followed before the Germans extended their hold.

WERE AMBUSHED

Nazis In French Morocco Receive A Jolt

London.—The Daily Express reported from Tangier that 12 members of the German armistice commission in French Morocco had been "ambushed by French patriots and killed by machine-gun fire—the first shots in the French African campaign."

The despatch said the Germans prior to the ambush had been attending an emergency meeting called by Hans Auer, Nazi consul-general at Casablanca, because Auer had received information the Americans would land within a few hours along the Moroccan coast.

The Germans had fled into the Plaza hotel in Casablanca under the eyes of a Frenchman who immediately "called his collaborators to take up positions covering all exits from the hotel."

"The meeting did not break up till early morning," the despatch continued. "The commission members, some still smoking Auer's cigars, paused for a moment at the hotel main door.

"Suddenly shots came from across the street and from men hiding behind a parked car. The Germans dropped dead where they stood."

BROWN BAG INCREASE

Ottawa.—Income tax collections during October amounted to $150,051,-606 compared with $30,548,915 in October, 1941—a total increase of $99,-502,781—it was shown in figures released by Revenue Minister Gibson.

Attack Across The Channel Is In The Offing

London.—A second front in Europe was promised by Prime Minister Winston Churchill in the House of Commons as the Germans overran all of France.

"An attack will be made in due course across the channel or the North Sea," he declared.

"Today news reaches us that Hitler has decided to overrun all of France, thus breaking the armistice to which the Vichy government had kept such pitiful and perverted fidelity at the horrible cost even of sacrificing their ships and sailors in firing on American rescue ships.

"They have been struck down by their German task masters. . . .

"Here is the moment when all Frenchmen should sink personal views and rivalries and think, as Gen. de Gaulle is thinking, only of the liberation of their native land."

Mr. Churchill periodically gave reports of the progress of the war in North Africa—he told commons the news of Casablanca's capitulation had come just as he entered the chamber —and made predictions.

"We house may be sure that many things are going to happen in the next few days and I should be merely presuming if I attempted to give a digested opinion on the situation which will develop in North Africa, in France or in Italy, except that we shall shortly have far greater facilities for bombing Italy."

The prime minister's report contained many highlights, among them:

His assurance that the Russians have borne the disappointment of no second front "and now they have reached the winter successfully."

His prediction that Italy will come to a much fuller and bitter realization of the realities of her share in the war.

His disclosure that Nazi Field Marshal Rommel's army has suffered a "mortal blow" in Egypt with the loss of at least 59,000 of its men, 500 of its tanks and 1,000 of its guns of all types.

Of an invasion of Northern Europe, he said:

"Such an attack requires an immense degree of preparation, vast numbers of special landing craft and a great army trained division by division in amphibious warfare.

"All this is preceding, but it takes time."

However, and the prime minister, "should the enemy become demoralized at any moment, the same eternal generations would not be needed." Pacific Railway yards at Moose Jaw, Sask. Major-General H. F. G. Letson, M.C., E.D., of Vancouver, B.C., adjutant-general, was honored by the Belgian government at a brief ceremony in the Belgian legation at Ottawa, when he was awarded the Croix Militaire Belge, in appreciation of aid given the Belgian forces in this war.

HUGE BOMBS

Nazis Using Explosives Of Greater Power

London.—The Germans are using bombs of greater power than ever before in their attacks on Britain, it was revealed by Home Secretary Herbert Morrison.

"Recently they have been using bombs of greater power than ever before," he told the House of Commons. "Some of these bombs have been of the largest size yet used in this war."

Morrison said that the Germans had dropped 1,000 bombs on Britain in the last week, and that 1,000 persons had been killed and 1,000 seriously injured.

AIRBORNE INVASION

Americans Parachutists Stage A Long Flight

Allied Headquarters in French North Africa.—American parachutists staged the longest airborne invasion in history when they flew in transport planes 1,500 miles non-stop from England to participate in the assault on Oran.

It was disclosed that the parachute troops, led by Col. Ed Raff of New York, 34, and wearing camouflaged battle suits, boarded planes and flew continuously for eight hours across Europe and the Mediterranean to land at dawn near Oran.

None of the parachutists except Raff knew when they started where they were going.

Maj.-Gen. Mark Clark, in discussing the feat, said: "I called in Raff and told him what he planned and asked him if he thought it possible. He replied: 'We can do it. But first I want my own battalion to do the job and I want personally to lead them.'"

Both requests were granted.

Despite the long night trip the troops arrived fighting fit

Hitler Has Now Been Thrown On The Defensive

Hitler has been thrown on the defensive in Europe because the American campaign in North Africa was fully four days old

His move into Unoccupied France is one of desperation. Gone is the mockery of "collaboration" with the puppet Vichy government Hitler has taken over, and for offensive purposes but to defend the vulnerable southern French coast from invasion

The despatch of fighter planes, operating from air-horne troops in Tunisia in North Africa is an equally desperate move Italians such previous Hitler forces operations as the invasion of Crete, it was not carefully planned in advance but done on the spur of the moment, born of necessity

The co-incident "italian occupation of French Corsica apparently is designed to protect Italy's northwestern flank from invasion rather than a move toward Africa, since the Axis already is established in Italian Sardinia to the south.

Hitler's problem is manifest. He no longer is in the position of being able to call the play and force the Allies on the defensive at the spot he chooses

Hitler was forced to march into southern France and it have to improvise coastal defences. He has little chance of matching the powerful fortifications of the northwestern French and Belgian coast before the Allies are ready to attack, if they do select France for the next phase of the second front

Hitler's problem does not end there however. The Allies have freedom of choice and can launch attack through France, Sicily and Italy. In within inviting range of Sicily and other Mediterranean ports. Then there is the Balkan peninsula through Greece and Yugoslavia.

If all possible points for an Allied invasion of southern Europe are to be protected it means wide dispersal of the Axis forces and consequent lessening of the power to resist

If Italy is to be defended Hitler will be obliged to come to the aid of Italy and reinforce Italian troops

That would require the diversion of back forces for guard duty in the Italian east from the plains of Lombardy to the southern shores of Sicily. It could be done without the [illegible] dangerously thinning other fronts notably Russia

AXIS TROOPS MOVING

The Pressure On Russia Will Be Relieved

Ankara.—Hitler was reported to be wheeling part of his great war machine westward from the Russian front to face the Anglo-American offensive moving toward his southern flank from the Atlantic end of the Mediterranean

One report from a usually well-informed source said that preparations were being made hastily for billeting in Yugoslavia and Hungary 400 more German divisions withdrawn from Russia. This would constitute approximately a quarter of the entire Nazi forces now fighting the Soviets.

From Istanbul came a report from an experienced Balkan source that railroads through Rumania and Hungary were loaded heavily with German troops moving in the general direction of Greece and Italy. Another report which could not be confirmed said two new German divisions had entered Bulgaria

OUTPUT OF SHIPS

Canada Has Exceeded Production Attained During Last War

Ottawa.—The munitions department said in a statement that Canada's steel cargo shipbuilding program exceeds that of the last war by a wide margin, both in the number of deadweight tonnage of ships delivered and in the speed of construction

During this year Canada has delivered more than 80 steel cargo ships totalling 634,000 tons deadweight, compared with 62 ships totalling 350,160 deadweight tons under the program started during the last war and completed in 1920, the department said

One of the 10 000-ton ships built this year was delivered 88 days after the keel was laid. The fastest recorded time in the last war was 91 days. A total of 4,500-ton ships. Both records were made by Pacific coast shipyards

BOARD MAKES RULES STICK

Prosecutions under the Wartime Prices and Trade Board climbed to 75 during the week Nov. 2 to Nov. 7 inclusive. Of these 57 cases were for allowed contravention of Board orders, and 21 for infractions of the regulations of the Oil Controller of Supplies.

There were 21 cases reported for violations of price regulations. The highest fine of $800 was paid by a wholesale firm which sold groceries above ceiling. A retail firm breaking consumer credit regulations was fined $250 on nine charges of failure to secure lawful downpayment, and 8 other relative offences.

Under rental regulations there were 22 prosecutions, seven under rationing and hoarding, nine under tire rationing and 12 for breaking the regulations of the Oil Controller.

TRIBUTE TO FARMERS

Hon. J. L. Ilsley, minister of finance, paid strong tribute to Canadian farmers when addressing a joint meeting of service clubs in the city of Toronto recently.

From a pre-war able-bodied farm manpower supply of 1¼ millions, no less than ¼ million have gone into the service or the factories, Mr. Ilsley said. The rest have worked harder and longer, with the help of their sons, women and children, and have accomplished wonders in production.

They have doubled Canada's hog production, increased beef production by 20 per cent, and cheese production by 60 per cent. They have learned to grow relatively new crops like flax and soybeans to meet special shortages created by the war. They have grown far more feed grains to make possible the greater livestock production.

Although economizing on the acreage devoted to wheat, they have by aid of good weather this year grown the largest wheat crop in history.

Canadian farmers alone are well able to supply Britain with all the wheat she needs and with a volume of bacon and ham nearly equal to the total she obtained from all countries before the war.

Much natural pride is taken in the speed with which Canada has built up an army, a navy and a huge air force, and in the magnitude and excellence of her production of munitions and war equipment, said Mr. Ilsley. Those are more spectacular — more warlike — but they are no more surprising than the quiet but prodigious achievements of Canadian agriculture.

Fifty percent of the airmen who are members of the United Nations' forces on action fronts have trained in Canada, according to a statement recently by Hon. C. G. Power, Canadian Minister for Air.

ISLAY

Winter snows landed on us Sunday little are where they never were before. Some houses are very nearly banked.

Last Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Fine Sukstorf entertained at dinner the Rev. and Mrs. Bell, Miss Nellie Redmond, Mrs. Edmund McFadyen, Miss Gladys and Miss Muriel Stone. It was the usual Sukstorf hospitality that so many old timers and others know.

Our second annual Thanksgiving tea, held on Friday, Nov. 13, was a very pleasing success. The management wishes to express their appreciation for the very splendid co-operation of our people. A very fine lot of gifts were made to the sale and altogether a very pleasant afternoon was spent "Hurrah, the Auctioneer."

The school Wat Savings Bank thermometer registers this week; girls $5.67, boys $4.72. The total is $10.39 an increase of $1.47 over last week.

Corporal Jack Purser of Brockville Ont. arrived Sunday a.m. to visit his father, who is in hospital. Mr. Purser had taken a turn for the worse but is now much improved. Corp. Purser returns to duty Thursday a.m.

Mrs. Jack Wells spent a week visiting her brother Bob Canton at Jasper, returning home last Friday.

Saturday and Monday Nov. 21 and 23 the Woodland poultry buyer will be at Harry Young's. We believe that prices will be much better than two weeks ago. His grading was good — come in early, on either day.

It is reckoned by an authoritative source that only 30% threshing was accomplished in Islay area.

We hear the children saying only 28 more days 'till Christmas' Concert must be on its way.

IMPORTANT NEWS FOR ALL Farmers!

CAN YOU AFFORD TO LOSE $1.35 PER HOG?
NO! THEN READ:

Hog prices were dropped 90c per cwt. by Packers (who get a guaranteed price) immediately before a price rise of $1.80 per cwt. This ends the fattening Tic of the price rise and the Packers getting $1c

This should convince the most skeptical that for self-protection the FARMERS MUST ORGANIZE by joining their local shipping association and GET THE HIGHEST PRICE.

Now, Farmers, join a strong local group and fight alongside 2s other Co-operatives to protect your interests. If you have any stock to sell, REF—

CLAYSMORE CLIPPINGS

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Lynch are spending a few days in Edmonton. Mrs. Lynn is caring for their little son while they are away.

Miss Margaret Winters who has been away in B.C. for some time has returned and is visiting at the home of her brother and sister-in-law Mr. and Mrs. J. Winters.

Rode. McMillan Jr. is working at the Howe and Spencer garage in Vermilion again after being out for some weeks helping with harvesting and threshing operations.

There is some building going on around the neighborhood. T. C. Bennett is making quite a large pig house and hopes to have it finished before the cool cold weather sets in; W. D. Williams has a fine modern chicken house almost completed.

A large crowd attended the wedding lunch at the school for Cpl. and Mrs. H. Seymour Wednesday evening. Mr. V. Voss, T. Hodgins and C. Hutchens furnished the music. All enjoyed a very good time and the dance broke up around 3 a.m. when the bridal party left for the train enroute to Edmonton where the happy couple expect to spend a few days.

The Claysmore school has been closed since Tuesday owing to the teachers' strike. This is quite serious for the children who are in the higher grades. It is hoped something can be done soon which will result in our schools re-opening or the pupils will be away behind in their work. A very good suggestion has been made to the effect that all the retired school teachers in the Vermilion Division volunteer to keep the schools open until the Divisional Board can make other arrangements.

PRICE CEILING POLICY SUCCEEDS

"Let the record speak", stated Donald Gordon, chairman of the W. P. and T. Board, in a recent address to the Maritime Board of Trade in Moncton, N.B., incorporating a statistical review of the effectiveness of the price ceiling policy in his address. Mr. Gordon indicated how the cost of living index increased 7.4% in the ten months period prior to Nov. 1, 1941, and was down to 3.8% in the ten months following imposition of the ceiling policy. Increase in the cost of living in the same period for the last war was 18.8%.

Giving specific instances Mr. Gordon stated that the food index since the price ceiling went into operation shows an increase of 2.1%, compared to a rise of 34.3% during the corresponding period of the last war. The price of sirloin steak, up 9.4% since last November increased 19.4% in the same period of the last war. Comparative prices in similar periods show milk prices held at less than 1.8 percent increase, as compared with 9.9%, bread prices, now no increase, then jumped to 30.3%, bacon, 1% increase, compared with 22.1% in 1918 to 1917.

Clothing, fuel and rent indexes showing practically no change since last November are compared with a rise of 10.1% in fuel, 7.4% in rentals, and 12.6% in clothing. Included in the latter price rise are such increases as 56% for men's socks, 23.8% for work shoes, and 19.1% for womens top coats.

"Before the peak of the inflationary rise had been reached after World War 1, the cost of living had climbed to 199% of its pre-war level, foods had increased 225%, clothing to 251% and fuel to 194%. Sugar prices had risen to over 400%, butter to 250% and milk to 185%", Mr. Gordon pointed out.

"Our preliminary success is encouraging" he commented, but added a warning note. "Do not delude yourselves that the battle against inflation has been won."

Apart from the Christmas season, the present demand for poultry in Canada is the heaviest on record.

The Week in Legislative Circles . . . In Edmonton

More than 4,000 young Albertans now with the armed forces want to continue their university education after the war. This fact was disclosed by Premier Aberhart when he addressed the annual convention of school trustees in Edmonton this week. "Today the maximum attendance at the university is 2,000. How will we accommodate them?" he asked. The youth now serving will have to be provided, he stressed, and added "How will that be under the present system?" He declared that the problem of money will have to be solved and that the Alberta budget, now at $5 million will be done to provide for the increase in better wages in industry as well as for the payment of pensions and increasing the purchasing power of the province.

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By M. O. L. Strange
Director, Research Department, Searle Grain Co. Ltd

The "Crop Testing Plan" has just finished its analysis of its summer's work in which 12,000 samples each representing a farmer's field of wheat, were tested for trueness to variety. A very considerable improvement in the trueness to variety of prairie wheat crops is shown, and in subsequent articles further details will be given. This present report deals with "Milture" disease.

In 1931, the first year of the "Crop Testing Plan", no less than 24% of all wheat crops tested consisted of bad "Milltures" of old fashioned discarded varieties which yielded poorly, and were of low milling and baking value. By 1936 these crops consisting of "Milltures" had dropped to 12.5% and this last year they have fallen to 11.3 %. This is a fine improvement and definitely shows that the Canadian wheat crop, in general, is now made up of a higher percentage of good milling and baking varieties than it ever has been in the past. The 11.3 percent of crops consisting of "Milltures" still remaining, however, can and should be eliminated altogether. Next week the "Crop Testing Plan" will publish a map which will show the distribution of these bad "Milltures". This will indicate the districts where particular work needs to

Scrap Metal Needed To Produce Best Armour Plate

Scrap metal is essential for the continued production of armour plate for Canadian fighting equipment and can not be supplanted by the production, which may be used in relation to the of steel from pig iron, A. W. Brown scrap in producing the best plate, executive assistant to the Steel Controller, told a House of Commons Committee studying wartime salvage.

The scrap is mixed with pig iron in making armour plate and there is a limitation on the amount of pig iron to be supplanted by the production, which may be used in relation to the of steel from pig iron, A. W. Brown scrap in producing the best plate.

"Iron Horse" Groomed by Women Wipers

THEIR hours are they do better work than the young housewives formerly assigned to the job, and the girl engine wipers, and car cleaners answer with "Why not." So that angle of the man power shortage is being well looked after on the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, as is evidenced by this picture taken on Vancouver Island.

Women car cleaners, yard checkers, shop laborers, and messengers are employed at several other points on the eastern and western lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway, where many of the men have gone to serve in the active service units.

Pictured here, with locomotive foreman H. Hanbury, safety precautions in the engine cab, and E. S. Cottle, veteran engineer, are busy women engine wipers, Mrs. S. Stonemill, Mrs. Agnes Walton, Mrs. Ruth Hamilton and another, Mrs. A. McNeely, whose motto is: "If cleanliness will keep the engines running we certainly will keep them clean."

The veteran engine on which the women are working, like all well made Canadian machines, is out of date, but full part in help to deliver the goods to the fighting fronts.

USE OF RAILWAY PASSES SUSPENDED FOR HOLIDAYS

MONTREAL.—Wartime conditions have made it necessary for the Canadian railways to suspend the use of all passes during the Christmas and New Year holiday period, it was announced at headquarters of the Canadian National Railways here.

"In view of the increasingly heavy demands that will be made on the resources of the Canadian railways in the handling of armed forces on furlough and the public generally," the announcement states, "the management of the two railways find it necessary to suspend the use of all free and half-rate transportation from Monday, Dec. 21, 1942, to Tuesday, Jan. 5, 1943, both dates inclusive. This suspension is equally applicable over all lines and on all trains of both companies and their subsidiaries. This action is the result of wartime necessity and we feel confident that it will be accepted in that spirit by all concerned."

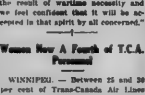
Women Now A Fourth of T.C.A. Personnel

WINNIPEG. — Between 25 and 30 per cent of Trans-Canada Air Lines employees are women. These include not only stewardesses and stenographers but passenger agents and shop and hangar workers, taking the places of men on active war service.



PROPERLY TO CHURCH

It is with mixed feelings that we part company with Dr. E. W. Hardy, Pelkgrill until the war is over. It is very gratifying to us that the Assistant Director of this Department, Dr. Hardy, has been given a position of such importance and responsibility; but some phases of our own work will necessarily be curtailed.

Mr. Pelkgrill's work in connection with National Selective Service as it affects agriculture, particularly in the line of grain growing, the production of beef, pork and dairy products, require more manpower per acre than does grain production, and we are already faced with a serious shortage of farm labour. It will be difficult to maintain present production, let alone increase it, without increasing the supply of farm labour or distributing it more efficiently.

We are being asked for still more butter, cheese, eggs, bacon and beef. The armed forces are daily calling for more men. Many readers will be surprised to learn that the average age of farm owners and operators in Sarke, Town is 52 years. The reason, of course, that many are over 60 and some over 70. They cannot release their sons and daughters and hired help to the armed forces, and then carry on the farm livestock.

Never before have we had such an abundance of feed. Nothing stands in the way of tremendous increases in livestock except labour. It is with the problem that Mr. Pelkgrill will be expected to cope. He many farmer friends will meet him at the class B barn and elsewhere, and will look forward to his return.

PROPER PROCEDURE IN SALUTING, FOR SOLDIERS AND CIVILIANS

In these days when everyone is taking great interest in military affairs, it quite often happens after a military ceremony that there is a discussion as to whom should have, or should not have saluted, and many controversies have taken place, not only among officers and soldiers, but also among civilians, as to the proper procedure.

Regulations with regard to saluting are either laid down in King's Regulations and Orders, or are accepted become of well established army procedure, according to Col. H. C. Greer, A.A. & Q.M.G. M.D. No. 13.

Some confusion was noted at recent military parades due to an apparent misunderstanding regarding the action to be taken when the National Anthem was played as a hymn or instrumental.

"When the National Anthem is played as a hymn," Col. Greer explained, "at a military church service or on other occasions when all present sing, all ranks will stand to attention, and no officer or soldier will salute."

However, he explained, "When the National Anthem is played at the conclusion of a public gathering, such as a sports event, all ranks including private soldiers, will salute."

The action to be taken in connection with the Royal Salute is clearly defined in King's Regulations and Rules for the Canadian Militia, 1939, which read as follows:

"When the National Anthem is played for the Royal Salute all ranks in military uniform not under the orders of the officer commanding the parade, will stand at attention, officers, warrant officers and non-commissioned officers saluting.

"Col. Greer explained that on the occasion of the Royal Salute, when the King or his representative, such as, in Canada, the Governor General or the Lieutenant Governors of the provinces, or other representatives, as the case may be, is present, then only His Majesty or his representative will take the salute.

ISLAND HILL

Friday the 6th at the school here a large number of the community met to pay a deserving tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Hugh B Evans, who for nearly forty years have resided in this district. They have now decided to retire from farming and move to another location. The first portion of the program was a prize drive, the winners of which were Mrs. Ali Searle and Mrs. Geo. Richardson, Mr. L. Payne and Mr. H. Evans. A dainty lunch was then served by Mrs. Norman Armstrong and Mrs. McDaniel. Mr. Norman Armstrong, who was the chairman, said they had come to the most important part of the night's program and in a very appropriate speech presented Mr. and Mrs. Evans, on behalf of the community, a well-filled purse. He also wished Miss Eleanor Evans a very successful career with the C.W.A.C. Mr. Evans suitably replied and was almost overcome in thanking his many friends. All the company then joined hands in a circle and sang "For They are Jolly Good Fellows". By the way, who was the old codger who tried to break in to the circle between a recently married couple? And who was the elderly gent who assisted in sweeping the school Friday afternoon?

Friday 20th is the date of the next dance and it will be one of the most enjoyable held at the school. See advert for particulars.

Strange to relate, some of the lads who have joined the Canadian army never heard of Hitler. Lucky boys! Which recalls to our memory a story of the three bachelors, Jim, Bob and Ned — who resided together on an island some mile or two from the mainland — Dan? he money, never mind where the island is situated—just listen to the story. One day Jim and Bob took their boat to the mainland to bring their clergyman out on a visit to the isle. On the return journey from the island his Reverence asked Jim how many Gods were there and he replied six. Bob was then asked the same question and thinking Jim did not say enough said seven. On their return home Jim and Bob related what had transpired during the voyage. Ned then said without hesitation, "You're both wrong, there are ten Gods!"

ACCIDENTS CUT BY SAFETY IN DRIVING

Safety measures when driving on dry fall and winter conditions are a first essential, according to officials of the Alberta Motor Association.

Though the maximum speed limit for cars is 40 miles per hour, as provided for by order of the general authorities, there is need to observe every care to avert accidents.

The fog condition of pavements or highway curtains make it advisable to drive slowly and carefully. When drivers are approaching highway crossings, they should slow down and make certain that the way is clear, with an element of risk to persons or property.

Careful driving also aids in preservation of rubber, which is necessary in these times. When the present tires wear out, it will be difficult, even impossible, to obtain replacements until after the war.

Drivers should take steps now to ensure that they observe all the principles of safe driving and the avoidance of accidents. Careful check-ups of cars to reveal any defects will be of great assistance in giving further protection against accidents this winter.

Make certain that the brakes are in proper shape, that all safety devices are functioning, lights and ignition in proper order and everything operating properly to fortify the motorist against even minor mishaps on the highways.

Optimism was the keynote of stirring addresses at the initial banquet of the board of trade. The city of Vermilion, in years hence, with its 12,000 population, as pictured by the speakers, was a reasonable and mild forecast. Speakers were President W. J. Reed, Mayor H.N. Stephens, R. G. Dunsmore, J. A. Rosebrough, M.A. Brimacombe, James McGeorge, president Edmonton Board of Trade, Jeb Mace, J.W.G. Morrison, C. V. Cosser, inspector H. R. Parker, Dr. Ryan, W. C. Craig, A .F. TURN IN COUPON BOOK WHEN CAR IS SOLD

Importance of motorists, upon selling their car, of the ration coupon book back to the oil controller's office has been stressed, according to the Ration Board of Trade.

It appears that instances have been discovered where the book was turned over to the new owner of the car, which is strictly in violation of regulations.

The license regulation says: "If title to the said motor vehicle changes or if by reason of a change in the use of the said motor vehicle or for any other reason, the person who obtained this license and ration book becomes disentitled to this license or to the use of the attached ration book, then such person shall forthwith give notice in writing and send this license and ration coupon book to the nearest office of the oil controller for the province in which such person resides."

When this is done, the oil controller's office will immediately issue the ration coupon book for the category to which the new car owner belongs. It is pointed out that failure to comply with this regulation may result in drastic action for violators. Not only may the new owner be using coupons for a category to which he does not belong, but he may be soliciting spurts at fuel conservation. On the other hand, he might be entitled to a higher category and more fuel, if he follows the course laid down in the regulations and obtains a new coupon book in the regular way.

TAKE CARE OF BAGS

Farmers are urged to take special care to every kind of bag and to keep them moving back into the trade as they are urgently needed as containers for essential products. It is illegal to mutilate or destroy any kind of jute or cotton bag.

Care should be taken with filled bags to see that they are not stacked high enough to break the bags on the bottom. Hooks should not be used, and every precaution should be taken to prevent damage by rats and mice. Bags should be shaken out and hung over a wire in a high, dry place.

C. G. I. T. NOTES

It seems a bit unreasonable to talk about Camping while wallowing in perpetual feet of snow, but we want to tell those who haven't heard of it that a very successful C.G.I.T. Camp was held in July at a site on the Battle River near Tamilee Valley. Of course it rained but even that didn't dampen the spirit of the 28 campers and their leaders. Seven Vermilion girls attended, and all agreed as to both profit and pleasure. We wish to thank again all who shared in the difficult task of transportation.

We commenced our fall term with a "Hail and a Farewell". The farewell was to Miss Carscadden who has been our Girls' Work Secretary for the past six years. She is now doing social Service work in B. C. and her place has been taken by Miss Jean Harston of Saskatchewan. In her greeting to the C.G.I.T. of Alberta, Miss Harston writes: "Hello, all Alberta girls! We have big job ahead of us but if I may judge all Alberta C.G.I.T.'s by the few I have met that is the kind of job we like! Incidentally C.G.I.T. must make its influence felt in local communities. It must share in the problems of the nations and the world. It must build into the lives of girls those things which are sure and eternal."

There was more to the letter, but that is enough to show us that our new Secretary will try to uphold the high standard of C.G.I.T. which has made our Alberta groups rank with any in the Dominion.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

The British government proposed to give Malta, bomb-scarred Mediterranean island, £10,000,000 ($44,500,000) for post-war rebuilding.

The U.S. agriculture department reported in its preliminary crop production estimates that this year's corn crop totals 3,183,141,000 bushels.

The admiralty announced that the British submarine Proteus returned to England after sinking 80 thousand tons of enemy shipping in the Mediterranean.

The bicycle is back for the duration, anyway and the Incorporated Institute of Cycle Traders and Repairers in London have prescribed examinations to test the competency of all repairers.

Canada now is producing war materials at the rate of $2,000,000,000 a year, Munitions Minister Howe said in a statement on the war production being carried out for his department.

The Norwegian telegraph agency reported that the Canadian government has informed the Norwegian government in London that Canada will accredit a representative of King Haakon.

The United of Alberta Municipalities has presented to the provincial government copies of resolutions passed at its annual meeting, one of which urges that ex soldiers be provided with employment rather than relief.

Where Death Is A Hitch-Hiker

More often in railway crossing accidents it is the automobile which strikes the train, rather than the train which strikes the car, according to reports of crossing accidents in Canada, thus indicating that human carelessness is still the ruling factor. Too many of the 319 crossing accidents reported to the Board in the first eight months of 1942 were due to wanton carelessness. In many cases, car drivers totally ignored the signs and signals placed at crossings for their safety, and drove into the sides of engines and trains.

Learn Tune

German Prisoners Can Whistle "There'll Always Be An England"

Chances are small that you'll ever get close to an interned prisoner of war. But if you do, don't be surprised if he suddenly begins to hum or whistle "There'll Always be An England."

But if you want to keep him singing the popular tune—don't tell him the words.

The reason is this

There is an internment camp located near a well travelled waterway, and pleasure boats that used to ply the river invariably outfitted their band to break into "There'll Always Be An England" when they passed the camp.

The prisoners weren't long in catching on to the tune—but they never did learn the words. Guards at the camp, amused at the situation, have kept the joke and refused to divulge the name of the song. In fact they kept it rolling and made it more popular by their refusal to reveal the name of it.

Says one of the guards—a veteran of the last war: we've been enjoying the joke too well for anyone to give the show away.

World's first postage stamp was issued by Great Britain on May 6, 1840. Known as the "Penny Black" to collectors, the issue is not as rare as others brought out years later.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MOTIVES THAT STRENGTHEN FAMILY LIFE

Golden text:—Love never faileth. I Corinthians 13:8.

Lesson: Exodus 2:1-4; 20:12; Joshua 24:14, 15; Proverbs 31:10-31; Luke 2: 41-51; Ephesians 5:22-33; 6:1-4; Colossians 3:18-21.

Devotional reading: Job 1:1-5.

Love Never Faileth, Exodus 2:1-4. Back in the days before the Exodus, a man named Amram (Ex. 6:20) married a woman named Jochebed (Ex. 6:20) who belonged to the tribe of Zli as did he. When a boy, a goodly child, strong and healthy, was born to them, the mother hid him for three months, but then it became no longer possible to conceal him from those who were seeking all the male Hebrew babes to throw them into the river where they would be devoured by crocodiles, as Pharaoh had commanded. But love made her resourceful. She made an ark, or boat of bulrushes, carefully daubed it with bitumen mixed with pitch to make it watertight, put the babe in it and left it among the reeds by the river with an older daughter near by to watch.

Pharaoh's daughter came with her attendants to the river, discovered the little boat, and had it brought to her and opened. The crying of the babe so touched her heart that when the eager sister came and asked if she should not call one of the Hebrew women to nurse the babe for her, the princess had her do this. It is easy to picture the mother's joy when Miriam, the sister, told her she could care for the babe. The babe was Moses, who became the great emancipator of the Hebrew race.

The Same Wind Takes a Stand for God. Joshua 24 14, 15. Joshua had led the children of Israel from the wilderness into the promised country. By the time that they rested from their conquests began to enjoy the advantages of a settled, agricultural life, Joshua was old and knew that he must "go the way of all the earth." The last two chapters of Joshua's record his two admonitions to the people. Our text is taken from his farewell speech made at Shechem. He reminded them of what God had done for them, and challenged them to put away the false gods and serve Jehovah in sincerity and truth. Then Joshua said, in Billy Sunday's picturesque language, "It is up to you." If they were determined not to serve Jehovah, they could choose whether they would serve the gods their fathers had served or had come over, up, or the gods of the people in the land where they had settled. Then he spoke in irony, showing them what alternatives they had if they would not be loyal to Jehovah. "But," continued Joshua, "as for me and my house, we will serve Jehovah."

CHAPTER VI.

Anne's eyes narrowed, seeing Erich Kruger, and a flash of anger showed there as she remembered that they two had some unfinished business. She ignored his annoyance over her romantic parting with Steve, not wanting to lose her feared activities. She couldn't afford to lose trade of the major issue.

"So we're back where we left off," she said sharply. "That's fine. I want to talk to you, Erich—really talk to you."

"Not Erich" he cautioned her "John Blake."

"Very well—John Blake. The name doesn't matter. What does matter is the dangerous position you've put dad and me in.

"I am here," he said, his voice rough-edged. "Your father has permitted me to stay, and with or without his permission I intend to stay. I find Halfway House much to my liking." His hand shot out and closed tightly on her wrist. "Perhaps there would be consequences for leaving me. I think it best that you and I assume there would be. You not like your sliing to father to go to prison, I think."

"You not only impose upon us," Anne said "you threaten."

"Yes. A man in my unhappy position must do ugly things. I threaten you to make you be sensible."

He released her arm, nodded curtly, then turned and walked back into the lobby. Anne shivered under a chill fear. She could imagine what the consequences would be arrest, disgraceful publicity, a trial—and perhaps prison. A terrible blow to the ill Drew Lowry. The only way to avoid such consequences was to do as Erich ordered. Incredible though it was, he had the upper hand—and held the whip.

More guests arrived at Halfway House on Thursday and Friday. Reservations came by wire, and soon the hotel would be filled to its limited capacity. Anne was grateful for the success, with its financial stabilization for her and her father, but she was also relieved that a crowd was arriving which would be less noticeable in a bustling hotel. And, too, the influx of guests kept her busy and being busy was an excuse not to see Steve Hayes—which Erich bad

She had promised to visit the ranger station Saturday night. Anne awoke Saturday morning torn between a desire to defy Erich and a fear that it would be disaster to defy him. She would not, as he feared, deliberately betray him to Steve Hayes, but there was a danger that she might give him away through a careless word She was in love with Steve, and she couldn't have secrets from the man she loved. No, she mustn't risk seeing Steve. So, early in the morning, she told herself she would not visit the rangers station.

She had arranged a saddle trip for some of the guests for Saturday morning and at 10 o'clock she led a little cavalcade of a dozen riders down into the pine-studded valley and along the shore of Indian Lake. Burke, the lodge's handyman, came along to prepare a picnic lunch at high noon and Erich came along without invitation.

Once they rode a little ahead of the others, and he took the opportunity to say, "I see you have decided to be sensible, Anne. The ranger has not again come to Halfway House."

Anne gave him an annoyed look. "That is not because you wished it," she said. "You are not to be interested in you as I thought."

"He's as interested in me as he could be But he has his job and can't spend every day with me."

"I feel sorry for him, in that case," Erich joked at him, wondering if he were mocking her, and was surprised to find him looking at her with a sober intentness. He swung his mount near and their knees brushed. He caught her hand and held it in his.

"I also envy him his good luck," he said "You are in love with him, I think. I wish your way would be unsteady when you spoke of me, and your eyes would light up for me as they did for him the night he came to the hotel Anne, I think for a long time I have been in love with you without knowing it. Perhaps it was love that always made me anxious to visit your house three years ago. I should have known then, perhaps, before you met this ranger fellow."

His voice thickened with emotion and his words were spoken with a guttural mumbling that gave Anne twist for a man whose natural tongue was German. Anne stared at him in surprise, with a sense of disgust, and she could see that he actually was carried away by emotion. She had thought him stolid and she had misjudged him.

"Erich" her voice too was unsteady. She knew this had to be stopped, now "Erich, I'm in love with him with Steve Hayes"

"Ah, yes," Erich murmured kissed his hand, and rode on slowly.

When the ride was over Erich watched the cavalcade ambled on a crossing on the lake and ate the picnic lunch. Erich walked along the shore the stood of sailing with the others, and after he had been gone for half an hour Anne went in search of him. She walked through the trees and, underbrush for perhaps half a mile without seeing him. A sudden worry came Erich might have decided, after his talk with her, to leave Halfway House. Thinking of him wandering through the mountains, trying to find a way across the country to Mexico, scared her. She called his name in sudden panic. There was no answer; but as she stood there with the silence of the forest pressing down she sensed that unseen eyes watched her. The feeling persisted, was disturbing; she peered into the gloom beneath the pines and finally glimpsed an unmistakable figure some 50 yards away. It was no more than a glimpse, for the figure disappeared instantly, but it was enough to recognize the scare-crow figure of the man named Jud. Anne watched the vicinity and a moment later she saw the yellow dog Wolf. Evidently for some strange reason, man and dog had been spying on her and were now trying to slip away without being seen.

The gloom and intense silence among the trees suddenly pulled against her nerves. She hastily turned back toward the clearing, pursuing over Jud's queer behavior, but forgetting him on reaching the cleared place by the lake. Erich was there, calmly eating his lunch, and she felt an odd relief.

Two guests were departing that evening, just one person arrived while Anne was away from Halfway House. There was a small yellow sport coupe parked in the drive when she returned in mid-afternoon, and two new names were on the register. The names were Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Leland and Miss Rhea Marshall, and the two women were chatting when Anne's father looked pleased with the two new guests.

"They wanted a whole suite of rooms," he told her. "The older woman, Mrs. Leland, said she simply couldn't be roped up in one room. She was very much annoyed when I told her there wasn't a suite to be had at Halfway House for love nor money. She actually sniffed her disdain I gathered it was her niece's idea, coming here. The niece, by the way, is the daughter of the president of Marshall Motors and very beautiful."

"Perhaps" Anne said unconvincingly, "the lady is trying to get away from it for a while."

She went up to her room to change from her riding clothes. But her father had said she would acutly regret taking the girl, Rhea Marshall, so held the whip.

Rhea Marshall was, as Dyer Lowry said, beautiful. Anne admitted that to herself, meeting the girl at dinner. Rhea Marshall was regally tall in spite of figure, and she had dark hair, and features that were flawless. Her features and skin were flawless, and her red lips had a slow attractive curve of perfection, gleaming white teeth when she smiled. She had charm, beautiful poise. In Anne reasoned, it might be hard to like her.

Meeting Anne, the dark girl said,

CHILDREN'S COLDS

"You have a charming place here, Miss Lowry. Your father tells me you are the managing hand behind it. It's so clever of you."

"I'd think you'd find it rather dull," Anne said. "I mean, I can't imagine a girl as attractive as you liking a place hidden away like Half way House."

"On the contrary," said Rhea Marshall, and let it go at that. She was smiling with some private thought that made her dark eyes light up.

The Marsons were leaving that evening, and Anne was driving them into town to the train. Shortly after dark, Anne had Burke carry their luggage out to the station wagon. Burke returned to tell her that there was a man outside who wanted to talk with her. Anne went out and found the shabby Jud lounging against the fender of the car, his dog Wolf lying at his feet. Jud smiled ingratiatingly, but with the hang tobacco made in his one cheek it was more leer than smile.

He muttered, "Howdy, ma'am. Sure is kind of you to talk to me. I was just passing by, and it looked so bright and cheerful here I felt like stopping in."

"Would you like something to eat, you and your dog?"

"Well, that would be mighty kind of you." He rubbed a dirty hand over an unshaven chin. "But I was hoping you might make me a loan. Sick, see? Family."

"Fifty dollars! Well, really—is that the reason why you would loan you money? After all, I'm not rich and I don't know you well."

"It's the truth, ma'am," he said, low-voiced now, "I could do you a favor in return. I could keep my mouth shut like I been doing since I saw that fellow ride up in your car the other night at Sand Flat. That fellow was riding with your party this afternoon The dressed-up dude Only he wasn't dressed up when I saw him the other night. He was wearing clothes like prisoners sometimes wear."

That hit Anne like a physical blow. Her face must have showed on her face, for Jud's leering smile was back in place. She tried to keep control.

"I don't think you saw anything, Jud. But what if you did? It might be able to make you a small loan. I'll give you $20."

She opened her handbag, and just as she was giving him the money she glanced up toward the verandah and saw Rhea Marshall standing there—a witness to that blackmail.

Wear Battledress

Civilian Suits In Britain To Be Made Of Same Cloth

The day may come when the civilian men of Britain, like their soldier brothers, will be wearing battledress

Tailoring trade there has set old stocks of fine cloth become exhausted and labor for specialized tailoring is scarce. Every suit must give place to battledress if stuff is to be saved.

Only big stocks of fancy cloth are getting low and cannot be replaced," the manager of a large London firm said. "The factories are turned over to battle-dress and our production is colossal We cannot get the tail-red cloth for our customers in less than seven weeks."

A BETTER WAY...

GOOD FOOD IS GOOD SENSE. Never before has it been more important for you to buy wisely and eat well. Today, good health is an essential duty. And good food is essential to good health.

Include KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN in your "must" list. Remember, ALL-BRAN is more than a delicious, nourishing cereal. It's also a grand, laxative food that provides a "better way" to avoid constipation caused by the lack of the proper amount of "bulk" in the diet. But remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like harsh cathartics. It takes time.

Eat ALL-BRAN in tasty breakfast muffins or as a crunchy cereal every day . . . drink plenty of water . . . and see if you don't agree that ALL-BRAN is a better way to a brighter day!

Buy ALL-BRAN at your grocer's in either of the two conveniently sized packages. Order it in the individual serving package at restaurants Made by Kellogg's at London, Canada.

TRY THESE TEMPTING ALL-BRAN CORN SYRUP MUFFINS TODAY!

ALL-BRAN CORN SYRUP MUFFINS

2 tablespoons shortening
½ cup corn syrup
1 egg
1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
1 cup sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk

Cream shortening and corn syrup thoroughly; add egg and beat well. Add All-Bran, sifted flour, baking powder and salt, mixed and sifted together, and milk; mix well. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400°) about 30 minutes. Yield: 1 dozen muffins (2½ inches in diameter).

Variation: 1 cup honey may be substituted for corn syrup.

12 muffin pans (2½ inches in diameter) may be substituted for 2 loaf pans (8½ x 4½ x 2½ inches).

When your corn syrup or buttermilk is used instead of sweet milk, reduce baking powder to one teaspoon and add 1 teaspoon soda.

DID YOU KNOW THAT:

In this opera house one half the audience are Canadians, one half are Americans, yet each one remains in his own country throughout the performance. The underfended Canada-U.S. boundary line runs through the middle of the auditorium! This is one of the odd facts revealed in an Associated Screen "Did You Know That" movie short.

BRIDE-ELECT FETED AT RUSTYLIA THURSDAY LAST

In compliment to Miss Marion MacDonald, Rustylia, bride-elect of this month, a number of friends were entertained informally at a charmingly appointed "Shower Tea" given by Mesdames Ramsley and Crosby at the home of the latter on Thursday, Nov. 12th. Yellow and white formed a dainty scheme. A musical entertainment, in the form of contests and solos by Mrs. L. Gosbe, was much enjoyed, while an amusing feature of the afternoon was a contest for which Miss Mildred Trotter obtained; the bride, Miss Isabella Trotter entered to the strains of "Jingle Bells". Miss Johanne MacDonald was the new voice groom. At the close of the ceremony a tastefully decorated "Wishing Well", loaded with gifts, was pushed in by Russell Crosby. Dainty refreshments were then served to bring the afternoon to a pleasant close.

Stagette Notes

Miss Hazel Laurence was hostess to the Stagette club Tuesday evening, Nov. 17.

An enjoyable quiz was presented by the educational committee. It was decided to hold more of these to hold up rep.

Miss Margaret Richardson was welcomed into the club as a new member.

Many thanks to the ladies who are so generously donated quilt pieces to the girls.

Next — The Stagettes are in desperate need of a fish social. Any suggestions would be greatly appreciated by the secretary, Miss Norah Nelson.

CLAYMORE WEDDING OF WIDE INTEREST

Seymour — Williamson

The United church, Vermilion, was the scene of a quiet but very pretty wedding, Wednesday, November 11th, at 2 p.m., when Mary Eileen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Williamson of Claymore, was united in marriage to Harley Garfield, son of Mr. J. G. Seymour of the Birchhill district. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L.G. Bleber.

The bride, entering the church on the arm of her father by whom she was given in marriage, was sweet and a picture of girlish loveliness in her ten-length gown of white sheer, styled with long full sleeves, bodice shirred on each side, fitted waist and bouffant skirt. Her veil of white silk net, caught to her head in halo-style with a wreath of lilies of the valley and orange blossoms, fell gracefully in the back of her skirt. She wore silver kid pumps and carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations and fern. Her only ornament was a gold wrist watch, a gift of the groom.

Miss Ida Seymour, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid. She was attractively attired in a dress of Queen's blue sheer crepe, accented with gold beading, the same shade and accessories to match.

The groom was attended by Mr. Joseph Farkash.

Mrs. Bleber presided at the organ and played very beautifully the wedding marches.

Following the ceremony the bridal party motored to the bride's home where a reception to immediate families was held. Centring the bride's table which was laid with a cut lace cloth, was a three-tiered wedding cake, artistically decorating on the top was a tiny bridal couple. Candles in twin crystal holders at either end of the table completed the decoration.

A toast to the bride and groom was proposed by Mr. Ray Hutchison and was very fittingly responded to by both the groom and the bride.

Assisting with the dining-room arrangements were Miss Lena Miller, Miss Leona Kaiser and Mrs. Farkash.

Later the happy couple left for a short wedding trip to Edmonton. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm north of Claymore.

They were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts. Shortly after the ceremony a telegram of congratulations and best wishes was received from the bride's brother Lorne and his wife who reside at White-Fish Falls, Ontario.

Both are well known. Harvey having been born in the district and Mary having moved here with her parents about five years ago. They are great favorites and have many friends in young people's activities. To them the people of Claymore and district extend good wishes for health, prosperity and happiness in their future years.

WEDDING BELLS

BLEAKLEY—COLEMAN

In a quiet ceremony Thursday, November 5th, at the First Presbyterian church in Edmonton, J. Meldrum Miller officiated at the marriage of Dorothy Evelyn, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Coleman of Vane-at, to Mr. Charles William Bleakley, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Bleakley of Paradise Valley.

An afternoon dress of midnight blue crepe with a softly draped bodice and other length sleeves with a full scored skirt was worn by the bride. She wore black accessories and a corsage of American Beauty roses.

Miss Edna Coleman, bridesmaid, wore an afternoon frock in gold silk crepe with accessories in black.

Mr. Robert Coleman of Vancouver was best man.

The bride and groom, after a honeymoon in Edmonton, returned to the home of the bride where a reception was held.

The young couple will reside at Paradise Valley

OFF-THE-RECORD DISCUSSION AT THE BOARD TRADE MEETING

The regular meeting of the board of trade was held on Monday but discussion thereon was rendered off the record by consensus of opinion until results of activities started were more clearly defined. There was a fair attendance and plenty of debate on the matters discussed. No doubt there will be further angles talked of at the next meeting which will be held on Monday Nov. 23 at 12.10 noon.

NEW COMMANDANT

Congratulations are in order to Lieut. Helen Graham, who has taken over the duties of Commandant of the Vermilion Training Centre.

CAPTAIN HAWEIS TRANSFERRED

In concluding Tales from the Training Centre for this week it is with a tone of regret that we bid farewell to one of our beloved officers in the personage of our former Commandant, Captain Renee Haweis. We can only say "We shall miss you Mam, but we are proud to have had the opportunity of serving with you, and we wish you God's speed and His blessing in your new undertakings."

SKIPS ELECTED BY THE CURLING CLUB

Good headway is being made at the curling rink and the game is scheduled to get off in a roaring start sometime next week.

The following skips have been selected: Messrs. Wes Waldenberger, Ed Corley, E. M. Stewart, C. E. Lavity, Lloyd McFadden, Harry MacFleet, Geo. Welsh, Carl Hackbert, Reg Spencer, Fred Firth, Leigh Tyner, Lloyd Finch, J.T.H. McLean, Bill English, H. R. Parker, L.E. Dawson, Jack Desford, Albert West, Bill Barr.

Any person who wishes to curl and is not yet placed on a rink should see the secretary H. R. Parker.

Of course, one is not compelled to brave the elements. Members of the C.W.A.C. are well taken care of right in their own "home". The lounge of the Y.W.C.A. give freely of their time in the Training Centre canteen where the girls may purchase soft drinks, cookies, ice-cream and doughnuts, as well as button cleaners, darning wool, note books, pencils and goodness knows what not! On Wednesday and Sunday evenings they are guests at the free movies presented by the Auxiliary Services. The films are not the latest screen hits but they are mighty good, and favorite screen stars are featured in some of their most enjoyable roles.

For the sport lovers there is basketball and badminton. Of the former it may interest the residents of Vermilion to know that the Public school girls defeated the Women in Khaki in their initial match, but there's great enthusiasm in the Barracks as the C.W.A.C. representative team prepare to strengthen their lines. On Monday evening, Nov. 25th they locked forces with the High school girls' team, in the Training Centre gymnasium where the public were invited to cheer for their favorite quintette.

No doubt many of the townspeople have been interested to their surprise of a Sabbath morning by the tramp of marching feet. The platoon has attended the Roman Catholic church who have attended their own religious services conducted weekly by Father O'Sullivan. On Sunday, 22nd November, the girls were spared the route march when Father O'Sullivan visited the Training Centre, and held his customary service. This was the first Roman Catholic worship to be enacted at the Barracks. Recently Captain Archibald of Leversedge held his weekly morning service for the remaining personnel at the Barracks after practice.

Mass to the Training Centre during the past few days were Major J. Davis, District Records Officer and Major R. L. Barkley, District Supply and Transport Officer.

On Tuesday evening 24th November, the Servants stepped out and provided one of their regular army functions. Although they fully realize that food is placed before them three times daily they could not help but be excited at the opportunity to dine with civilians in civilian surroundings. At 7 p.m. their party of 18 and 3 male Banks rallied to the invitation extended them by the ladies and gentlemen of Vermilion Lodge No. 24 A.F. and A.M. and members of the Order of the Eastern Star in the Lodge Rooms. A splendid dinner was enjoyed by all and C.S.M. Buchanan and Sgt. Martin threw responsibility to the toasts. Entertainment was provided by C.S.M. Buchanan, Sgt. Major Ward L. Cpl. Ray Meade and Isobel Maxwell, and Private Bee Hosman. Dancing was generously participated in by many to music provided by C.S.M. Gartrideh and Sgt. Erkman not on command to the Training Centre from Calgary, Alberta.

Tales from the Training Centre

By Sgt. Sue Ward

It is well known that many new hats been caught in a draft, but in Vermilion, Canada's Women soldiers were caught in a draft. The telephone wires were hot with frantic pleas for extended leaves from personnel who had taken advantage of week-end passes. Snow bound! A thing unheard of except in thriller novels in many of the young women now in training at the Centre. It is quite a common sight to see girls from the Pacific Coast gazing at the snow-covered trees and haystacks in sheer bewilderment.

Even route marches are looked forward to when one can emerge in over stockings and "glamour boots" with her trusty headdress adjusted with ear-flaps.

One platoon sergeant, on asking what her girls would enjoy as a treat before leaving the Training Centre received the unanimous reply "a sleigh ride". And needless to say, their wishes were fulfilled.

As you may well imagine, the small trunk is the most popular article at the Centre, and as the snow drifts deeper and deeper anxious minds concentrated on the question of transportation. The problem was solved when Lieut. Edwards broke the news that she had hired a team of horses and a sleigh. Personnel which included Capt. Renee Haweis, who had been week-ending in Edmonton, were mighty grateful, though highly amused as they were bundled together into transport to the Barracks in the wee small hours, to the music of sleighbells.

Of course, one is not compelled to brave the elements. Members of the C.W.A.C. are well taken care of right in their own "home". The lounge of the Y.W.C.A. give freely of their time in the Training Centre canteen where the girls may purchase soft drinks, cookies, ice-cream and doughnuts, as well as button cleaners, darning wool, note books, pencils and goodness knows what not! NAVY LEAGUE OF CANADA ASKS AID

Help Now Means Christmas Gift To a Sailor

Forty eight thousand Canadian Navy, and other thousands of the Merchant Marine, through toil and fair weather, through the terrible dangers of the sea and bitter cold, keep the life lines of the United Nations open, and carry the munitions of war to the armies that will bring victory for democracy.

These men give unselfishly of their services to the Nation so that the way of life that we have enjoyed that way of life which our forefathers have bequeathed to us, is maintained. They suffer tremendous hardships, face perils that would daunt the hardiest spirit, and yet at the call of duty they go down to the sea in ships, many of them never to return.

This week is Navy Week, and we are celebrating the deeds arcum plished by the Canadian Navy. We are paying tribute to the sacrifice they have made and continue daily to make so that freedom may reign throughout the earth.

And you are asked to help the men of Canada's Navy. The men who go daily on the great waters in the RCN uncomfortable ships, during ships that have faced high hazard and have met desperate odds and have done their job with a courage and devotion of which even Nelson would be proud.

Week by week little ships, destroyers and corvettes and mine sweepers are slipping down the ways that lead to battle on great waters. As ever there have been men waiting to man these ships in the depths of the men of the Canadian Navy at the end break of the war there are now its 100,000 men in the Navy.

These men of the sea are the ships that are the greatest weapon against Hitler's submarine menace. In the many victories of convoy escort vessels and other craft has Hitler's submarine been defeated. Only by the most perfect co-operation between the Navy and the Merchant Marine is it possible to keep the vital supply lines open.

An objective of $100,000 daily has been set by the Navy League. These bags will contain woolen clothing, tasty articles, candies, razor blades, and many other articles that are indispensable to the comfort of these heroes of the sea.

You can help by sending a donation to the secretary of the League at Edmonton, or by making your donation through the chartered bank in your district

TWO NEW WELLS ARE SPUDDED THIS WEEK

Midfield 5 and Atlas-Sherman

Two new wells have been spudded in this week in the Vermilion oil field. The first of these is the Midfield No. 5 on lsd 12 of Sec. 20-50-5W4. This well was spudded in Monday by the C.H. Withers Drilling Contractors Ltd. The location is in the heart of the proven area of the oil field just a quarter of a mile south-east of the Old Discovery well. Good headway was reported from the well on Wednesday.

The second new well is the Atlas-Sherman No. 1 on lsd 1 of Sec. 21-50-4W4. This is being drilled by Lloyd Cliadi. The location is just a quarter mile west of Princeville No. 2, a steady producer. While not yet actually drilling everything was in place and ready to start on Wednesday.

C.N.R. Plans 50 Wells In Vermilion Oil Field

Will Spend $500,000.00

Reports current during the past week were to the effect that the Canadian National Railways will undertake the drilling of 50 wells in the Vermilion oil field. An outlay of some $500,000 would be involved. The Railway Company was said to have obtained drilling rights on approximately 600 acres in the field.

With the C.N.R. entering the field on such a large scale, it is pointed out that there would be no alternative to reopening the present conditioning plant or erecting another, as it will be necessary for the oil to be conditioned for fuel purposes

The new negotiations involved the Oil Controller's office in Toronto the C.N.R. and the Alberta Government.

Accidents Help The Axis

—Courtesy Canadian Pacific Railway.

Despite educational campaigns by the railways and the Government, Canada, in the fourth year of the war, continues to pay too high a price for human folly and carelessness. Accidents at railway crossings in Canada for the first eight months of 1942 numbered 219, took a toll of 87 killed and 255 injured. Death, in the above drawing, watches the crossing for fruitful hunting ground, to snatch up the innocent babe who has paid the price of folly. Statistics show that these accidents can be prevented by observing elementary rules of safety

Famous Artist's Performance Described By New Kind Of Critic

William Faversham was playing in "The Squaw Man" in St. Louis. The dramatic critic on a certain morning newspaper described in considerable detail how Mr. Faversham wore his hair and the way his neck was shaved. His acting was scarcely mentioned. Later in the week a cub reporter on the same journal interviewed the actor and among other things inquired, "What did you think of the criticism of your play in our paper?"

Well," replied Faversham, "I have played 'The Squaw Man' in every important city in the United States, but this is the first time a barber was ever sent to criticize the play."

Guerrillas Well Armed And Trained Are Surprise On Warfare

In the last two years, says the Sault Daily Star, a fifth of the 7,000,000 people of Greece have perished. But still fighting bitterly are the 30,000 Greek guerrillas, along with some 3,000 British and Anzacs who weren't evacuated. According to an Italian Black Shirt High Command document which has reached London, they are well armed and trained in guerrilla warfare. It added: "They are composed of men who will not stop at anything. They do not go only against the lonely sentry and the small picket, but also against the military garrison of superior strength."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

INTERNATIONAL

THE MISSION OF THE CHURCH

Golden text: As the Father hath sent me, even so send I you. John 20.21.

Lesson: Matthew 18.15-17; Acts 2.8; 2.42; 8.1-4; 11.27-30; 13.1-3; 1 John 1.3.

Devotional Reading: Galatians 6. 1-10.

Explanations and Comments

Church Government, Matthew 18. 15-17. These instructions describe three ways of a church in dealing with a member who sins. One who is guilty of a moral offense and thus of bringing dishonor upon the church and upon his Master should first be expostulated with privately by the one who knows about the offense or who has suffered because of it. "He owes the trespassing brother the unutterable deed of a fraternal remonstrance." If the guilty one pays heed to the reproof he who thus brings home to him his fault will have gained a friend.

It is no light task to rebuke an erring fellow member in the right spirit and in a helpful way, and many there are who should never attempt it. It requires the greatest tact and is unprofitable without the fullest knowledge of what has been the wrong committed. In Luke's Gospel Jesus says, "If thy brother sin, rebuke him," but in the next sentence he counsels forgiveness no fewer than seven times.

If the erring brother will not listen to the admonition, then let the group method be tried, let two or more join in reasoning with him. They cannot think that Jesus would have counsel a man to tell other church members of a "sin against himself". "He that goeth about as a tale-bearer revealeth secrets; but he that is of a faithful spirit concealeth a matter." We are old in Proverbs. A sin, however, that must eventually become known to the church if the sinner does not reform, should next be dealt with by three or more church members.

Should the second method, too, fail, then the matter must be brought to the church. The church is the final court of appeal. If the sinner is still unmoved, unrepentant, then let him be as the Gentile and the publican, that is, let the church have nothing further to do with him, let him be excommunicated.

The Source of Power and the Great Commission of the Church, Acts 1.8. Jesus promised his disciples that power from the Spirit would and did they were to continue his work, bear witness for him in Jerusalem and all Judea, in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.

Steve Hayes came from the administration building when the station wagon drove into the Squaw Creek Ranger Station. Anne arrived later than he had expected, but during the hour or so of waiting for her he hadn't for one moment doubted but that she would come. He opened the door as the car stopped, leaned in and kissed her without warnings. He was sure that her response was half-hearted, and a moment later when she got out he noticed a look of worry in her eyes.

"Something wrong, honey?" he asked.

"Oh, no—nothing," Anne replied. She managed a smile. "Maybe I'm a little tired. We've rushed at Halfway House, and I'm working like a slave. I can only stay a little while, Steve."

"Just so you've come," he said. "We're having a party for you over at Clint Bates' place. Come along or they'll think you're standing them up."

He took her arm, linked it with his, and led her across the meadow to Clint Bates' house, which was one of three frame and grey-painted little houses. Steve felt immeasurably content, inordinately proud that he was about to show off the girl he loved to the people who meant most to him. He knew he was grinning foolishly, entering the house and introducing Anne to his fellow rangers and to the two women who were rangers' wives. Clara Bates, the district patcher's wife smiled approval; so did Ranger Mathews' wife Louise. Bill McRae, who always has an eye for a pretty girl, winked broadly and nudged Steve, saying low-voiced, "A pity, Steve baby. I couldn't have done better myself."

"I know how to pick 'em."

Bill gave him a wink, said, "You always did, pal," and moved away to intercept Clara Bates coming in with a tray of cocktails. By chance, unlucky chance, Anne overheard his sly crack. She came and said, "Just when did you always know how to pick 'em, pal?"

She was laughing; the greeting his friends had given her had rubbed that worried or tired look from her eyes. Steve tried to grin back.

"Bill McRae talks a lot and never says anything," he told her.

Bill had taken the tray from their hostess. He came up with it now, offering a cocktail to Anne. "What is Steve trying to tell you about me? I'll make him smile when he says it."

"He says that isn't true, about his always knowing how to pick nifty girls."

"Remember, Anne," Bill said. "I've got no necessity to lie to you. "If I tell you Steve has been a guy dog in his time, you can depend on it."

He moved off then. The damage done and Anne looked Steve's way with a faintly amused smile. He felt suddenly warm and embarrassed. Somebody had put a record on the radio-phonograph. Steve said, to cover up, "Shall we dance, honey?"

It was fad dancing with Anne Steve liked her in his arms. He told himself that nothing was going to take her away from him. Nothing . . .

Stop looking so guilty, darling." Anne said. "You'll really make me think you were the Bluebeard Bill Mc Rae says."

He forced a grin. "Someday there'll be a skeleton in my Bluebeard's closet," he told her. "And it will be Bill McRae's."

It was almost midnight when Jim Hanlon, the junior forester on duty that night, came over from the administration building. His arrival had an immediate dampening effect on the party, all except Anne knowing he wouldn't have come unless something had happened.

Hanlon said, like Purdy radioed it. He sighted a light that looks like a flare over by Indian Lake. There's a lot of lightning shooting about, so it may be only that, but I'd like to have a strike but he didn't see it from his lookout tower. I thought you'd better know Steve."

Steve nodded. "Okay, Jim—get back to the radio. Keep Purdy tuned in. He looked around, and his party was gone. His eyes were bright and hard, like the eyes of a man who is job to do. "All right, boys," he said. "Let's pile out The Indian Lake watershed is dry as tinder.

The rangers went out at once, and he justly was over. Steve turned to Anne. Sorry darling, but this is the way it works.

HALFWAY HOUSE

MICHAEL TRENT

CHAPTER VII.

Anne worriedly wondered if the dark-haired Rhea Marshall had witnessed more than the transfer of money from her handbag to Jud's greedy hand. It didn't seem possible that the girl could have heard the conversation; 40 feet of space separated the spot where Jud and Anne stood from the verandah where Rhea Marshall was, and they had kept their voices low—like the conspirators they were.

The Harmons came from Halfway House for the trip into town. Anne said to Jud, "Go around to the back if you want something to eat. Tell the cook I sent you."

Jud muttered, "Yes'm," and roused himself from leaning against the station wagon's fender. He said, "Come along, Wolf." And the yellow dog followed him.

After saw the Harmons into the car, then got in behind the wheel. Driving along the lonely road to Sand Flat she replied to the Harmons' conversation in monosyllables. Her mind grappled with the problem that was Erwin. She was wondering if Jud would keep silent. She wished she knew how much Rhea Marshall had overheard from the verandah . . .

Rea Marshall had heard enough to make her curious. She had wandered out onto the verandah to smoke a cigarette and to indulge her private thoughts and to formulate some plans that were meant to change the whole course of her life. She had heard the shabby looking fellow she took him for a tramp—ask for a loan which seemed like blackmail. She had heard him mention that one of the guests at Halfway House had hidden himself in the Lowry girl's car. the guest dressed in prisoner's clothing, but she had not heard him mention which guest.

The tramp had gone around to the rear of the lodge, and she walked in his same direction. She found the shabby man at the rear door talking to a stout man in chef's hat and apron. Light from the doorway gave her a clear picture of the tramp's face. It was as unattractive a face as Rhea Marshall had ever seen.

The cook growled, "All right, I'll give you something—if Miss Lowry said so. Wait here, and I'll hand it out to you." And he disappeared within. The tramp's ugly dog was first aware of Rhea; the creature came to her whimpering. She said, "Nice dog," and forced herself to pat its head. She was judge enough of men to guess that one way into the tramp's confidence was through a show of friendliness to his dog. She was right. The man chuckled.

"Wolf always likes pretty women," he said. "But there ain't many pretty women that like him. Lemme you're different from Miss Lowry's ma'am. She can't stand Wolf near her."

"But he's such a nice dog," said Rhea hesitantly.

"He's the best friend I got," came the reply. "I might call him my only friend. Yep, Wolf is sure a good dog."

The cook returned and handed out a plate of food, looking surprised at seeing a guest there, but after a moment he returned to his work.

Alone with the tramp and his dog, Rhea said, "Do you live here in the summer? Do you just travel through?"

"I live over near Sand Flats, ma'am. I got a little cabin in the timber.

"I guess you know most everyone here in this part of the country, then."

"Everybody who belongs here?"

"Nope. She just came here a couple of weeks ago to open Halfway House. I'm not here more'n a couple of times."

Rhea lowered her voice, moved a step closer to where the man sat on the doorway steps. "Did you happen to see her when the man in prisoner's clothes hid himself in her car?" she asked.

The man shot her a look. He deliberately selected a morsel from the plate and tossed it to the dog. He chewed on his own mouthful, and followed visibly. Even the darkness didn't hide the look of cunning creeping into his shifty eyes.

He said, "What man?"

"Oh, I know about him. Miss Lowry told me. He's a guest here now." She paused a moment, watching him intently, then said, "I'm as much as she is not to know—only one know he's here. You're sure you won't tell anyone?"

"Is Lowry paid me to keep mum."

"Yes, but did she pay you enough?"

There was a moment's silence during which Jud's mind seemed to laboriously crumble. Then he put the plate down for Wolf to finish; he rose and faced the girl. He rubbed the back of his hand across his mouth, and when it came away he was crookedly grinning.

"You making me an offer, ma'am?" Rhea Marshall gasped. She had merely meant to satisfy foolish curiosity, but she didn't know whether she wanted to pay for that satisfaction.

The man saw her waning interest. He said shrewdly, "I guess that ranger fellow would get a chuckle out of that prisoner being here, him going at it with Miss Lowry in the same time."

The girl gave a start, though not because of the threat his words carried. She said, her voice suddenly rugged, "What ranger-fellow?"

"Why, Steve Hayes. The forest ranger from over at Squaw Creek."

"He and Miss Lowry are one another?"

"Sure didn't you know?"

Rhea Marshall didn't answer. She was silent a long time, and a sullen fury was in her eyes. Then she said, "How would you like to make $50?"

Jud rubbed his hands together slyly grinning.

She said, "I'll get the money. Meet me around by the verandah steps. I'll be there in five minutes."

She turned away, and there was a tightness about her normally full and smiling lips. Her dark eyes were bright with a cold glitter

WOODVALE

There has not been very much to report lately, and anyway, we had hoped to be able to tell about threshing being resumed at full speed, but the blizzard settled that. The main road east of Woodvale is open and in good condition, but all the others are full of drifts and crooked sleigh trails. Most of the farmers in Woodvale are threshed or almost threshed except for the backsets, which are by no reason or purpose, apparently at the end of the list.

Allan Potter has left after a month leave and started his training in the R.C.A.F. at Edmonton.

Gladys Young, who has been visiting her sister Georgette near Allinace will not be home for awhile as she was unfortunate enough to break a leg in two places while walking with her skates on to the skating rink.

Several people have gone on short trips and holidays awaiting better weather Hazel and Ruth Rasmin each spent a week with friends north of town. Theresa Van Wassenigen is having a bath at the Grande Prairie district Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Portsmith and wee baby daughter Judith left for Mrs Portsmith's parents near Bonnyville before the storm broke. Bert is doing their chores and was wondering how long they will be marooned over there. Cheer up Bert, after all there are highways open, and people get around pretty fast nowadays Mrs. F King visited her daughter Joy and friends in Edmonton.

There was a dance in Woodvale on the 6th and a good crowd was in attendance Our informant said that several had a real good time dancing but there were an awful lot of Basic wallflowers and stretch looking girls.

There also was a dance at Thorncliff for Harold Gliddon who was on extended leave and the crowd sent him off with the very best wishes to his future destination.

Another dance will be held at Gadsen school on Nov. 27th; profits to go to the Red Cross funds. Mr. Lyvan and Jimmy, with Jack Schaumloffel will furnish the music for a very nominal fee, so everyone come down and help to make the evening a success.

Sylvia Turner is going to Union school now. Louise Davis Kay Van Wassenigen with her friend Margaret Berry were home for the week end from Kitscoty

General Information Given By Red Shield W. A. on What Goes On Overseas

In regard to the many inquiries concerning the distribution of the used clothing and quilts sent through the local Red Shield Women's Auxiliary, the following official letter from our head office in Toronto has been received and is being printed as general information of wide interest:

Mrs. Valerie Spencer,
Vermilion Alta.
Dear Mrs. Spencer,

I have your letter dated November 6th with regard to the quilts and garments which came forward. You are quite safe in telling the comrades and friends there that all their quilts go Overseas and the clothing which is perfectly clean and in good condition also goes Overseas. We very occasionally take out a couple of quilts for the families of soldiers who are Overseas but these are usually taken out of quilts which are not suitable for Overseas, and in six months would not amount to any more than two quilts When you remember that we average about 2,000 quilts a month you will realize that the percentage for local use is very small. You can assure the ladies that the tied quilts also go Overseas.

Thanking you for your enquiry and if we can be of any further assistance to you, please do not hesitate to write us.

Yours very truly,
Jane Peacock (Mrs. Colonel)

We are sorry to report that Mrs. Wm. Hendsbee is quite ill in the hospital She has been very active all her life and everyone hopes that after a rest she will be as well as ever again.

Little Betty Barlow had her tonsils out while the school is closed. Hope is held that schools will soon re-open again and the teachers' strike be all settled. A good many kiddies will be disappointed in not having any Xmas entertainment this year as they look forward so much to that happy time.

Mr. Sieber spoke a few comforting and sincere words which were very much appreciated.

The Vermilion Board of Trade, the Town Council and the Lloydminster Board of Trade have all sent representations to the Department of Municipal Affairs in Edmonton asking that the proposed boundaries of the new enlarged municipal districts be reconsidered. These representations, coupled with those of the officials in the six municipalities concerned, should result in the natural division of having Etheleva, Vermilion Valley and Grizzly Bear form one large unit with Mersten, Streamstown and Wolf Lairon the other.

"We'll hold your place"

IN EVERY city, town and village throughout Canada today there are gaps where once were young men. They heard a call and put on navy blue, khaki, horizon blue, and they have gone, answering a call

They are missed—missed not only in their homes but also in the business places which once they filled.

They have gone from every institution in Canada; but from none more than from the chartered banks. There is hardly a branch office from coast to coast which is not today the poorer—and the prouder —for those who then laid down their pens.

But every branch manager, as he shook parting hands, had this consolation: he could say, "We'll hold your place. It will be waiting for you when you come back. That is a pledge."

So it is the part of those who remain to serve their country in such a way that the promise may be kept: "We'll hold your place."

C.W.A.C. Recruit in Vermilion Was Sought in Japan As A Spy

CALGARY, Nov. 21.—Many of the girls in the Canadian Women's Army Corps have interesting backgrounds, but none have had more adventure and color in their pre-army lives than Gloria Kimber, who even now is but 21. Who's Gloria Kimber? Anyone at Vermilion Basic Training Centre since Sept. 1 can tell you about "Kim" . . . the girl who looks like a bandaged boy, who has cropped fair hair, blue-grey eyes, ready laugh, and clear, English-accented voice. Enlisting in August, she took her basic training in September and was the only girl in the class kept on as an instructor. She got her lance-corporal stripe last month and in November started her work as first-aid instructor.

That story is familiar to those who have been with her these past three months, but her personality is such that the rest of the tale will not seem out of character at all.

She was born in Hankow, China, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Kimber — Mr. Kimber was with the Chinese maritime customs for 35 years. Gloria spent 1926 to 1933 in England getting her education, then returned to her parents. Later she spent several months teaching Chinese students of English grammar and literature. She speaks Amoyese fluently and can understand the northern dialect.

After the war with Japan started, she was first-aid assistant in Shanghai for a time, and in the spring of 1938 she entered Kutsanga hospital, Amoy, South China, as a hospital aide, in which capacity she did exactly work in bombed areas. During the three years she served there she did a great deal of propaganda work against the Japanese, set activities finally drawing the unfavorable attention of the authorities. In 1940 she was sought for four months as a spy and later was called up for questioning by the Japanese admiralty, an ordeal from which she managed to talk her way free.

She also encountered difficulties when the Japanese were in control of the area in which she was working and both Chinese and white residents were ordered to bow when passing Japanese on the street. The English do not bow easily, and Miss Kimber was no exception. She refused quite flatly That was when she learned to stand up straight, however. "I used to stand rather slouchily," she said, "until a Jap with a bayonet stood behind me and ordered me to bow. I stood straighter and straighter to get away from the pressure. When I could get no further, I sensed the pistol cutting through my clothing; when I felt it touch my skin — I bowed."

In April, 1941, the Kimbers came to Vancouver on furlough, which came up just in time to stop Miss Kimber going to Chungking to join the Chinese Red Cross. The situation in the Pacific made it impossible for them to return to China, so they remained in Vancouver. Mr. Kimber died there in August, and Mrs. Kimber is still in residence, while her daughter's field of activity is now in the women's army.

MORRISON

The news of the district was missed out last week due to the heavy storm —all transportation facilities of the district were tied up.

The Nov. 18th meeting of the Morrison War Service League was held at the home of Mrs. Hartley White and was in the form of a towel shower for Mrs. Fred Payne. Little David and Lorraine White made the presentation with a short speech of good wishes. Mrs. Payne gave a vote to every donor of a gift before it was opened. The rush also presented Mrs. Payne with a pyrex tea pot. A delicious lunch was served. Final plans were made for the whist drive. Hints were also given for the Service Auxiliary tea and promotion of War Savings certificates was suggested.

The whist drive and dance held on Nov. 6 in the Morrison school in aid of the Christmas fund was well attended. Everyone enjoyed the cards and the prizes. Tickets went to Mrs. Lila Bonser and Bob Minard while the consolations were won by Miss Jean Gould and Douglas Minard. After a wartime luncheon the Victory orchestra supplied music to the enthusiastic crowd. A fair sum of money was realized.

Great credit is due to Mr and Mrs. James Miller for the excellent job of papering the bunkhouse on Armville farm.

On Nov. 11 the League met at the home of Mrs. L. Fleming to make plans for the Red Shield's White Elephant sale were exhibited. Final arrangements for the sale were made and everyone had a chance to see the beautiful wedding gifts of Mrs. Fred Payne. A very delicious lunch ended the meeting.

Mr and Mrs. George Romaeh, entertained the Easton family and the Mr. Monaghan family on Nov. 11 when Mr Easton was home for his two weeks leave.

Mr. Gibbon was busy canvassing the district for donations for the Thanksgiving sale held in the United church today, in which event he ably acted as auctioneer.

The November meeting of the Red Cross was held on the 19th inst. and considerable work were distributed to the ladies. The motion to spend money which would be used for Xmas gifts for War Services affiliations was defeated. However, plans for having parties for the men made and good response has been shown.

The whist drive on Nov 20th was greatly attended. Those who were lucky had a good time. First prize went to Mrs Lila Gibbs who was the draw once Miss Vivian Reid and Mr. James Miller. Consolations went to Miss Betty Gilles and Mr Bill Gilles after a bountiful lunch was served the dancing to music supplied by Mrs. Art Rosenlun assisted by Mr Gilles and Miss Walters. Mr Gilles also instructed the group some folk dances

Lloyd Gould left for Edmonton to join the Youth Training Plan and the air force. Lawrence Gould was home on leave from Red Deer for the week end The district extends to these boys best wishes and success in their work

By careful selection farm animals have been developed into highly specialized creatures for the consumption of feed into such products as meat eggs milk and wool Consequently it is necessary that the animals' rations should contain the essential food requirements in proper balance and in palatable form.

The Australian wheat crop will soon be ready for harvest and the outlook is for a fairly good outturn.

WHAT IS THE CHURCH?

Being the first of a series of sermons entitled "The Twelve Fold Church" being preached in Clandonald Parish church by the Rev. F.A. Peake, L. Th., vicar.

On one occasion Our Blessed Lord said, "I am the true vine ye are the branches; he that abideth in me and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without me ye can do nothing." Our Lord himself quite evidently believed that it was necessary to bind all his followers together in a fellowship—a divine society—with himself at the head. St. Paul, coming after him developed the teaching of Our Lord and compared that company of faithful followers which we call the Church, to a human body, the body of Christ himself. Within that body there are several different members and each has a function peculiar to itself. Even though those functions are different, they are all necessary.

"If the ear were to say, 'Because I am not the eye, I do not belong to the body,' that does not make it no part of the body. If the body were all eye, where would the hearing be? If the body were all ear where would the smell be? As it is, God has set the members in the body, each as it pleased him."

(1 Cor. 12.16-8 Moffatt's Trans.)

So it is with the Christian Church: "... he gave some apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; For the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ."

Each member of the Church has his own particular job to do and, under God, his own way of doing it. The church then is a Divine Society founded by God himself, and that is how our own branch of the Church defines it:

"The visible Church of Christ is a congregation of faithful men in the which the pure word of God is preached, and the Sacraments duly ministered according to Christ's ordinance in all those things that of necessity are requisite to the same."

Article XIX

Not only does the Catholic (and the proof Catholic merely means 'universal') Church include (with certain reservations) all baptized persons upon earth but within its fellowship are those who have lived their life and have passed beyond the veil of death. Sometimes, as in the Apostles' Creed the whole Christian fellowship is referred to as the "Communion of Saints."

The word "saint" in the New Testament only means any follower of Christ who has been baptized into His name. Communion means fellowship, comradeship. Therefore, the communion of saints simply means the fellowship between Christians, in new Church language it has come to mean the fellowship between Christians at this side and at the other side, of death. The 'communion of saints' then, is the knowledge, fellowship, comradeship and love between the Church MILITANT on earth, the Church EXPECTANT in Paradise, as they both look forward to the day of the Church TRIUMPHANT in Heaven, and meanwhile co-operate one with the other to bring the whole world in the Kingdom of Christ.

To belong to such a fellowship is a great privilege bearing with it heavy

"GREAT SERVICE" SAYS AIRWOMAN

Recruits Wanted for R. C. A. F. (W. D.)

"We think it's the grandest service of them all."

That's what members of the Royal Canadian Air Force (Women's Division) will tell you after having spent some time at Air Force Headquarters in Ottawa or at an Air Force Station.

Two things appeal to these Airwomen, in the first place, they like serving in the same outfit as Canada's world renowned Airmen, and also, they like the fact that so many interesting trades are opened to the Air Force.

"It's too bad the people of Alberta, particularly in the northern parts, can't see more of these Airwomen," was the remark passed by an Airwoman who spent her leave in Edmonton. And it is a fact that, so far, comparatively few Airwomen have been posted to this area. In other parts of Canada and at Air Force bases they are a familiar sight as they go about their duties which include everything from cooking to the job of Wireless Operator Grunnel.

Women between 18 and 41 who are interested in the Air Force can find out details of how to join and the trades that are available by either visiting the Air Force Mobile Unit when it is in their territory or by writing the Royal Canadian Air Force (Women's Division) at the Provincial Building Edmonton.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

The first card party of the season was held on Friday night There was a large attendance and the sum of $11.50 was collected which goes to aid of the Xmas tree. A very good time was enjoyed. Following the card games dancing was indulged in until 2 a.m. Music was supplied by Mrs. Morrison and Mrs. Morgan. The prizes at cards were won by Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Walsh, Mr. Kunnas and Mrs. Gannon.

There will be another party in the school on Friday evening Dec. 4th. Don't forget your visit— Fred, next time

Due to the roads being deep in snow nearly everyone is back to horses, cutters and sleighs just like the old days

Mrs. Shepherd has received word from Cliff who is now in Scotland visiting his uncles and aunts.

Sewing will be resumed again and meetings will be held at the homes of Mrs. Repp and Mrs. Morrison, these being located well in the centre of the district

The school children will soon be selling tickets and said tickets will give you a chance on a turkey donated by Mrs. Perkins, a duck donated by Joe Payne, a chicken donated by Mrs. McGinnis.

Alex Morrison left on Sunday night of last week to spend a few months at the coast. He has not been enjoying the best of health.

Frank Robinson has been suffering from an attack of the mumps.

Miss Smith and the school children are now busy practising for the Xmas concert.

Christmas will soon be here again so let us not spend foolishly. Think of our boys overseas and the many thousands in Europe who are in dire need of food.

Successful Victory Loan

BY OVER SUBSCRIBING the recent Victory Loan, Canadians showed that a thrift habit does not wholly behind the scenes on the armed services, and the war effort at home. This was the third time that the people of Canada have been asked to sacrifice their savings for war purposes and the drive came at a time when taxes are heavier and are affecting a greater part of the population than ever before in our history. Yet more people subscribed to this Loan than to any previous one and it is said that many of those who bought this time were induced to do so by savings for the first time. This subscription was over two hundred million dollars the Loan, which period with an objective of $1,000,000,000 was described to those in charge of the campaign as the most successful one ever held in the history of the country. Sunday, the beginning of the campaign, coincided with the beginning of the great Allied offensive in Egypt, in North Africa and its reaffirmed the faith of the Canadian people in the cause for which we are fighting, and their determination a new victory for the United Nations.

Voluntary Work Is Appreciated

Officials in charge of the loan have drawn attention to the many voluntary services given by people in all walks of life to the promotion of the loan campaigns, and to the actual work of selling the bonds. All are entitled to the gratitude of the country at this time, but them should be given a share of the credit for the success of the drive. Canadian citizens have placed their money as much by outstanding generosity as by the efficiency of the organization which was built up for the special purpose. It is to be hoped that the interest aroused will be kept alive after the Loan has closed, and that Canadians will continue to regard the purchase of war bonds as a patriotic duty. Even more than the financial objectives set for the campaigns, the educational value of the drive is important. Many Canadians who have never invested their savings in any way have been induced to do so by the campaigns, and the purchase of war bonds will be a valuable asset in the years to come. Many of them will have made their first investment in war bonds and will be encouraged to continue to do so. Many others will have increased their holdings of war bonds and will be encouraged to continue to do so. Many others will have increased their holdings of war bonds and will be encouraged to continue to do so. Many others will have increased their holdings of war bonds and will be encouraged to continue to do so.

Bonds Regarded As A Trust

From many a source has come a plea for the purchasers of war bonds to regard them as a wartime trust and to retain them except in circumstances in which investors have found it hard to maintain the standard of self-denial they set for themselves when purchasing the bonds, and they have subsequently withdrawn them from their holdings. It is to be hoped that the ready transfer into cash which makes them especially desirable investments will not be abused. Investors are asked to remember at all times the purpose of the loan and to refrain from cashing in the bonds at least until the war ceases. Not only is it important to the war effort that the money be left with the government, but it is also to the interest of the investors to leave it there. While every effort is being made to plan for economic stability in the post war era, there will be a period of readjustment for many workers, and a reserve of war savings may prove to be of practical as well as patriotic value. "Nothing Matters Now But Victory was the slogan of the drive and Canadians showed that they were solidly behind this sentiment when they so enthusiastically over subscribed the large objective set for them.

Vitamins Are Temperamental!

Many mothers believe that because they and their families consume the vegetables and fruit each day that their vitamin requirements are accordingly obtaining the base proportion of essential vitamins. Actually they may be failing far short of their needs. Vitamins are temperamental and can be wholly or partially destroyed by wrong cooking methods. Simplicity is the basic principle to be observed in cooking anything Fancy foods that go through several cooking processes before they reach the table seem as common a procedure as boiling potatoes and then frying them. How some of these vitamins in each operation. Many vitamins, too, are carried off in steam from over boiled foods.
Here are a few simple rules for preserving vitamins in cooked foods:
(1) Use a minimum amount of cooking water.
(2) Cook in covered vessels for as short a time as possible.
(3) Avoid stirring.
(4) Never add baking soda.
(5) Start vegetables in hot water.
(6) Serve the cooking liquids in soups.
(7) Handle fruits and vegetables as little as possible.
(8) Use a brush to clean vegetables rather than a knife to scrape them.
(9) Cooking in their natural state (i.e. potatoes in jackets) as far as practicable.
Shredding, cutting and dicing of fruits and vegetables can result in severe losses of Vitamin C. This should only be done shortly before serving. Fruits and vegetables should be stored in the refrigerator until required. Both B and C vitamins are soluble in water and you can get the most out of them by serving the juices they're roasted in. Vitamin B1 and also Vitamin C are allergic to alkali. Baking soda added to cooking will cause them to disintegrate.
By observing these few rules housewives will be sure that the valuable vitamins that are needed by the members of her family are not being needlessly lost.
Send a post card request to Western Division Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road Toronto (ontario) for our free up-to-date Vitamin Chart

The Canadian Army is making a tremendous contribution, through tire maintenance, to overcome the critical rubber situation. An extensive programme has been formulated which controls the operation of every motor transport vehicle, tank, gun carriage and motorcycle. As soon as wear or injury is pointed the tire is immediately removed and repaired. Recapping has been adopted as a general policy This must not be confused with retreading which is now an obsolete method. Tires are often recapped three times and records prove that the original mileage of motorcycle tires in many cases has been trebled

FOUR CENTURIES AGO

If you think blood transfusions are modern, you will be interested to be informed that back in 1492 when Pope Innocent VIII was dying, he was given transfusions from three youthful volunteers. They were unsuccessful, however, quite possibly because the young blood wasn't typed or the method of infusion was too crude. But the ancient Roman physician still had the right idea.

Sprays of Chinese evergreen and philodendron grow in a low waterfilled bowl, make a lovely centrepiece for your table Just rinse bowl and add fresh water once a week.

Dracaena, tall with variegated foliage, does well even where there's little direct sunlight. Set in a fireplace or on a stairway landing. So does sansevieria, which grows for months without drainage.

Flowering plants, of course, require more attention, but are not too exacting. Jerusalem cherry, so colorful with its gay red fruit, asks only sunlight and protection from drafts and gas.

It's easy to brighten your home with plants! Our 32-page booklet describes simple care of many lovely foliage and flowering house plants, including azalea, flowering maple, cyclamen. Tells how to grow vines, ferns, bulbs.

Marshal Petain Has Taken Stand Against Allies

London.—On orders of their commanding officer, Gen. Barre, French troops in Tunisia opposed a British attack on German and Italian occupying forces in support of Allied advance columns sweeping into the protectorate from the west, the Moroccan radio reported.

Even as the rush of French forces to the Allied side promised to become a flood, aged Marshal Petain over the German-controlled Vichy radio was reiterating his order to them to resist "Anglo-Saxon aggression" and to disregard the orders of their "unworthy chief," Admiral Darlan, and other French leaders.

From Oran, French troops who only a week ago were fighting bravely against Allied landing forces were en route east to join their new French and British allies in the co-ordinated drive to smash the last remaining Axis armies in North Africa. In full battle gear, the Oran division entrained after a parade down an honor aisle formed by United States infantrymen.

Gen. Barre, the report said, was handed an ultimatum by the German commander, Gen. Nehring, ordering the French either to defend Bizerte Tunisia or join the Axis in the fast-gathering battle against Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson's British 1st army.

Spurning the latter demand, that he would be attacked if he failed to comply, the report said, Gen. Barre ordered his troops to defend the attack first. The French troops wherever possible joined the British and American forces in their initial preliminary skirmishes with Axis forces defending Tunis, the capital city, and Bizerte the great French-built naval stronghold.

Gen. Barre notified the German commander that he would defend himself in accordance with orders received from Admiral Jean Darlan and Gen. Henri Giraud, French leaders co-operating with British and American occupation forces. The German radio intimated that the French division commander had joined the Allies.

Marshal Philippe Petain called on all Frenchmen in North Africa to resist the Anglo-Saxon aggression, and Fighting French sources here saw this as further evidence of Dictator Pierre Laval's calculated efforts to steel his country into outright military alliance with Germany.

The 86-year-old marshal, who gave Laval full political powers and designated him as his heir presumptive, said in a broadcast from Axis-occupied Vichy:

"Frenchmen General officers in the service of a foreign power refused to obey my orders. General officers, non-commissioned officers, soldiers of the French army, refused to obey these unworthy leaders."

The marshal was referring to Admiral Jean Darlan, ousted successor to Petain and Laval's political enemy, who has gone over to the Allies in North Africa, and other French leaders such as Gen Henri Giraud who escaped from a Nazi prison and then from Vichy to fight again.

"I reiterate now the order to resist the Anglo-Saxon aggression," continued the aged marshal whose 'prestige' ordered many from fighting the Germans at Verdun in the First Great War

"We live tragic hours. Disorder reigns in minds. You hear news, which has no other aim but to injure and to weaken you.

"The truth, however, is simple. It is necessary that you submit to the discipline that I exact from each of you or you endanger your country. You have but one government; that to which I have given the power to govern. You have but one country which I incarnate: France."

Oran Harbor Is Being Cleared Of Scuttled Ships

Oran, Algeria.—The French loot right cruisers, four destroyers and seven submarines in the Oran area.

Six ships were scuttled in the bottleneck of the harbor just before Oran capitulated, 200 yards inside the boom. Fourteen more ships, a 600-foot drydock and two smaller drydocks were sunk farther inside the long, narrow harbor.

One destroyer burned after being beached between Oran and Arzew. The German sank a submarine.

British and American salvage experts are rapidly clearing a path through the mass of scuttled vessels, permitting the landing of sizable American reinforcements in Oran harbor. Other reinforcements have been landed near Oran.

The harbor is jammed with American troops, supplies pouring. Supply ships are unloading.

The signing of an agreement under which the Oran department of the French army will join the Allies was believed imminent.

British United Press correspondent C. R. Cunningham has since reported from Allied North African headquarters that a French unit in Oran has joined the U.S. garrison staff.)

Negotiations for a final agreement to replace the armistice have been going on for days

"Everything has been working out exactly as we had hoped," a prominent French officer said.

The agreement was expected to lead to a crack-down on pro-Fascist French elements. Two such villages were raided by French police searching for arms. They found none, but signs were in Oran harbor.

It was understood that any action against guerilla activities that may break out will come from the French, supported by Americans.

FACIFIC OPERATIONS

Gen. Blamey Conducting Campaign Against Japanese

Melbourne.—Prime Minister John Curtin disclosed that General Sir Thomas Blamey has been personally conducting operations against the Japanese in New Guinea since the transfer of his headquarters there Sept. 23.

He said Sir Thomas and his United States-Australian staff officers had personally reconnoitered terrain selected for operations, flying and landing in areas the greater portions of which then were in enemy hands.

Curtin said United States and Australian land, sea and air forces shared credit for victorious thrusts against the Japanese.

BOMBING RAIDS

Italian Production Centres Likely To Receive Attention

Washington.—Members of the Pacific war council said there was a possibility that Italian bombing raids would be directed at production centres in northern Italy.

Walter Nash, New Zealand's minister to the United States, spoke of the North African campaign as opening the way for Italy to receive some of the devastating raids on key industries, comparable to those the R.A.F. has directed on German war plants, with what he termed "amazing" effectiveness.

Gathering at the White House, the representatives of the nations actively engaged in the war in the Pacific said it was perhaps their most significant meeting

Leighton McCarthy, the Canadian minister, suggested that probably the raids would originate in England, but Nash said any available jumping-off points might be used.

The New Zealander added they had devoted considerable time to what he termed the "ninth front", which he said was the air front. They also considered, he said, other fronts leading up to the ninth.

He listed the fronts as the Solomon islands, New Guinea, the Middle East North Africa, Burma, China the Aleutian islands, the Atlantic and the bombing front. In addition, he said, the Russians alone are fighting on six fronts.

SEED GRAIN

Temporary Suspension Of Shipments From Head To East

Ottawa - Temporary suspension of rail shipments of seed grain from western country stations to eastern Canada has been ordered by the Canadian wheat board it was learned here.

Ottawa sources said the order had been imposed because some cars shipped directly from prairie country points had contained a large amount of dockage, ranging from one to 20 per cent, in various cars.

Only limited quantities had been shipped direct from country points as most of the seed grain went through the terminal elevators at the Lakehead and was cleaned there

Another factor in imposing the order was the need of railway car space for the movement of feed grain to eastern Canada

Allied Losses In African Convoys Reported Small

London An authoritative source said that losses in the Allied convoys used for the expedition in French North Africa were remarkably small, despite the enemy's known concentration of 50 submarines against that operation alone.

His statement was made in predicting further important naval operations in the Mediterranean.

Except for one ship all vessels in the Allied convoys had landed troops and all arrived before they were damaged, the informant said

Prime Minister Churchill announced that 13 enemy submarines had been sunk off North Africa Others have been reported damaged

The informant who cannot be named, said it was indicated that at least 30 Axis submarines were between Gibraltar and Bizerte during the passage of the Allied convoys and this number later was increased to 50 It has been indicated authoritatively that 65 surface vessels warships and merchantmen took part in the vast African expedition

Brit ain submarines, he continued, are giving the same attention to Axis efforts to reinforce the contingents in Tunisia as they did to Marshal Rommel's earlier efforts to get supplies across the Mediterranean to his forces in Egypt He predicted it would be difficult from a supply standpoint for the Axis to maintain a foothold in Africa Bengasi he said has been "demolished as a supply port and that Tripoli, the chief Axis base in Libya "no doubt will be dealt with pretty thoroughly by our strong air force which are daily acquiring bases closer and closer to that point"

Ask For Release Of Miners In Military Training Camps

Edmonton Fifth action of Alberta miners now in military training camps to work in mines to relieve Alberta's acute coal shortage has been requested to federal authorities, it was announced by Walter S Campbell, regional administrator for the wartime prices board here

He said he had learned there were many such miners now in military camps. He believed their temporary release to work in the mines would do much to relieve the coal situation Meanwhile, Edmonton coal dealers said that only through the absence of sub-zero weather during the next several days can a serious situation be avoided as the city's coal dealers are as much as three weeks behind with deliveries and are flooded with orders from householders and business blocks running dangerously short of coal

Young Czech Sportsmen

Climb Roofs And Cut Swastika Out Of Nazi Flags

The Czechs are known as excellent gymnasts and sportsmen but the latest fad of the young Czech sports-men is causing the Nazis a great trouble According to a report published by Nazi Novisy in London and reprinted in Stockholm given by a lady who succeeded in escaping from the "Protectorate" to a neutral country, Czech boys take great pleasure in climbing the roofs of public buildings where Nazi flags are unfurled in order to cut out the swastika and leave a round hole as the symbol of Nazism Special guards were assigned to guard the Nazi flags, but so far no culprit has been detected.

Mr. C. L. Whitby responded nobly to the S.O.S. which was in the 8th gette inter last week. This kind benefactor has offered the girls the use of an empty room in the basement of the bank. C. G. I. T. NOTES

We often take it for granted that everyone should know the meaning of the four letters C.G.I.T. Perhaps we should tell you something about them.

The C. is for Christian, and it is a very important letter, for there are 40,000 of them in Canada. They are of every nationality and come from almost every kind of Church. The last two letters tell us that these girls are "in Training".

"In training for what?" you may ask. The answer is, "For Christian Citizenship".

And how do you carry on such training?

"Through worship, working and playing together in our groups, cooperating with other workers in our Church and Community, learning more about people of other lands. By doing these things we try to grow toward our Purpose: To Cherish Health, Seek Truth, Know God, Serve Others. It is a high Purpose, isn't it and not easy to attain. Well, that is why we have Canadian Girls in Training.

WEDDING BELLS

VAN DEN OOLDER—ENGLAND

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the Stalwille Anglican church on Saturday, November 14th, at 3 o'clock, when Ida Marie, eldest daughter of Mrs. Hoskon England, and the late Mr. England of the Eltham district, was united in marriage to Albert Henry Van Den Oolder, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van Den Oolder of Islay.

Rev. Mr. Bell of Manaville officiated. The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Ralph England, looked lovely in a floor-length gown of white sheer, styled with a daintily shirred bodice, long bishop sleeves, and full flowing skirt. Her full length veil of white net was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms. Dainty silver sandals completed her ensemble, and she carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations and fern. A gold locket belonging to the bride's mother was her only jewelry.

Mrs. Edward Emsland, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a tea-length gown of silk percy with a flowered skirt, fitted bodice and full bishop sleeves. Her slippers were silver and in her hair she wore flowers to match her gown. Her bouquet was of coral and white baby Chrysanthemums.

Mr. Edward Emsland was the best man, and Mr. Chris Emsland, young brother of the bride, acted as usher.

The Wedding March was played by Mr. Roland Jellidge.

After the service a wedding supper was held at the home of the bride's mother to 21 guests. The room was decorated with pink and white streamers for the occasion, and the bridal table was day with flowers and pink and white candles. In the centre was a three-tiered wedding cake with a lady model "Bride and Groom." on the top.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Ralph England, to which the groom suitably responded.

The brides' mother chose a black lace floor-length crepe dress, with hat to match and wore a shoulder corsage of red roses.

Mrs. Van Den Oolder, mother of the groom, wore a smartly tailored blue suit, with a white sheer blouse, and accessories to match. Her corsage was also of red roses.

For going away the bride wore a wine coat trimmed in grey opossum fur and matching accessories.

The groom's gift to the best man was a gold cigarette case, and to the matron-of-honor, and the bride's mother, pretty corsage sets.

The happy couple will make their home on the groom's farm in the Islay district, and the best wishes of a host of neighbors and friends go with them.

ESKOW—HILDEBRAND

A quiet wedding was solemnized in the Vermilion United church, on October 31st, when Dorothea Hildebrand, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hildebrand of Vermilion, was united in marriage to Pte. Harry Johnson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ole Johnson of Manaville. Rev. L. G. Fisher officiated.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride was given in marriage in white triple sheer, and a veil of embroidered net. She carried a shower bouquet of talisman roses and fern. Her only ornament was an Air Force locket from her brother over seas.

The bridesmaid, Miss Ivy Johnson, sister of the groom, wore a sky blue sheer ton-length gown, a blue picture hat and carried a bouquet of tea roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Laura Vesey, also wore a floor length gown of bength gown of white rayon net over taffeta, a white picture hat and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Roland Vesey, brother-in-law of the bride. Mr. Jim Miller, uncle of the bride acted as usher.

During the signing of the register Mrs. Bisbee played organ selections.

After the ceremony a reception for thirty-six guests was held at the home of the bride. Tea was poured by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Jim Miller. Mrs. Lester Miller and Mrs. Lottie Stone.

Following the reception the happy couple left for Edmonton where they spent a short honeymoon.

Water for hens is a vital necessity. A hen drinks about twice as much water per unit of body weight and will die more quickly from want of water than any other farm animal. A hen producing 120 to 150 eggs per year will consume nearly 20 gallons of water.

EMPLOYERS MUST PAY COST OF LIVING BONUS

The Alberta Regional War Labor Board issued a statement this week reminding all employers who are under the regulations of the Board that cost-of-living bonus must be paid to employees as from August 15 last. It was said that the Board had learned that some employers were not paying the bonus and had thereby rendered themselves liable to fines of $100 to $5,000. Under Ottawa regulations, adult workers are eligible for a bonus based on the rise and fall of the cost-of-living index on the basis of 3% cents per point for adult male workers and one per cent of the weekly pay for Junior male and female workers who receive less than $25 a week.

Company Formed To Handle C.N.R. Program Vermilion Oil

Tenders Already Asked for Actual Drilling

J. M. Penny Heads Company — 50 Wells Only A Starter

J. M. Penny has been appointed president of a new company, Canaar Oils Ltd., which will have full charge of the activities of the refined company in the Vermilion oil field, according to reports from Calgary this week. Preliminary work is being directed from Calgary and the plans already made assures wide developm at of the field.

J.M. Penny has become a familiar figure in the oil industry during recent months, while obtaining information regarding it. He has spent considerable time in Vermilion recently.

Actual negotiations are under way for the drilling of the first fifty wells as a number of Alberta drilling contractors, including those already active in this field, have been asked to submit tenders for the drilling. The actual drilling, it can be assumed, will be undertaken without delay owing to the real need for fuel all for railroad use.

It was also stressed in Calgary that the fifty wells referred to, are only the first group and that plans include further groups from time to time, depending on the rate of drilling maintained and the supply of oil which results. The first group of wells will probably cost the company in the neighborhood of $450,000.

Main difficulty which some oil men saw in the plan was the difficulty in obtaining casing for such a large number of wells. It is now understood that this trouble has been overcome and that supplies of pipe are secured from an Eastern Canadian company.

It is not yet clear whether the rapid and extensive development of the oil field will cause the re-opening of the Conditioning Plant. Suggestions have been made in Calgary that a new process of treatment may be used which will clear the oil of water and silt at the well head. On the other hand, the C.N.R. may come to some agreement with the Vermilion Consolidated Oils Ltd. to take over the plant and provide additional equipment designed to handle the greatly increased output expected from the field.

From the number of drilling companies approached it is apparent that the railway company plans on drilling a number of wells at the same time and completions will follow each other in rapid succession once the central station plan is put into action.

FLOBELL COMPANY PLAN FOUR OIL WELLS IN VERMILION FIELD

The Flobell Company have applied for a permit to drill their Tempo No. 1 well in lsd 4 of Sec. 29 50-5W5. This is just south of Flobell No. 1 which has been on production for the past ten days and appears to be slightly better than the average well in the field.

Arrangements are being made to drill three more Tempo wells in this area.

Tales from the Training Centre

By Sgt. Bee Ward

As much as we hate to harp on a certain subject, we find that Old Man Winter must again hold forth as the news highlight of the week. It's a case of the more cold—the more heat, and the more heat—the more fire pinquets. Time was, when to appear in "Part Pa" as "fire pinquet" merely meant that the six victims lined up at the hour of retreat, to be inspected by the Orderly Officer of the day, and then received instructions as to what to do if the "fire alarm" was to ring within the next 24 hours. But since time marches on—and slowly indeed, when six pairs of sleepy girls prowl along corridors and out in the cold, cold snow each for a period of two hours in the black of night (of course even in fire pinquets we find the original type of one-certain morning, the whole centre was aroused in turn at 12-am as the "watch" opened each bed room door, "Just to make sure none of the sleepers were burning up (several times) souls arose and tumbled for slippers and coat! Not yet clear, and not until they looked at their watches did they realize what had happened. Needless to say there were no fires but many hot heads.

so as so

Life in the Women's Army has many ups and downs, and at the Training Centre in Vermilion, so has our parade square. It is quite a common thing for our drill instructors to become cut off from their platoons entirely, as the recruits plod in and out of the furrows. It all happened when certain snow plow experiments were attempted, and the result was a series of furrows banked on either side by 2 foot snow walls. We must admit it adds flavor to the old routine when squads could be manoeuvered so! We are most grateful to [illegible] every where and anywhere, and it helps our instructors on their toes in more ways than one.

so so so

While on the subject of out-door activity, may we mention how very much members of Canadian Women's Army Corps are enjoying the Vermilion skating rink. It's a real thrill for many, while to others, it betrays a feeling of winter at last!

The Outlook For Agriculture

WESTERN CANADA has just produced one of the largest crops in the history of this great wheat growing area. Of the 350,000,000 bushels said to have been harvested, the government has contracted to buy about 280,000,000 bushels. Because of the curtailment of world markets due to the war, much of this crop will not be moved for the present, and so far it has provided the farmers with many problems in the matters of securing help for the large scale harvesting operations, and in finding storage space for this large quantity of wheat. So far, this year's crop has not proved to be of great advantage to the farmer but in a recent report on the agricultural situation in Canada, issued by the Bank of Nova Scotia, there are some interesting observations concerning the economic situation of the farmers now, and the outlook for agriculture in the next few months

* * * * *

Cash Income Shows Increase

For Western Canada, the report predicts an increase in the farmer's cash income over that of the past year. This will be due partly to the increase in the price of wheat, and partly to expansion in the production of dairy and livestock products. For the whole of Canada, an increase of 15% over 1941 is expected in the farmer's cash income. This represents about $130,000,000 and would bring the farmers' cash income to over a billion dollars for the first time since 1928. Higher cost of farm labor and a higher price level for feed, offsets some of the advantage of this increased income. The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports an advance of more than 30% in the wage of day labor since 1941, and an advance of 20% in monthly wages in the same period. The total output for the farmer was not as great as the figures might indicate, however since much less time per unit was required. Labor conditions are considered to be at present unfavorable to the farmers. Figures recently issued by the Bank of Canada show that the supply of farm labor has decreased 30% since the census was taken, and by 6% in the past year. This added loss has been relieved somewhat by the recruiting of harvest help from the cities and by women assuming a greater amount of farm work. There has been a 15% increase in the amount of farm machinery purchased in recent years. Of this $1,000,000 was for the replacement

* * * * *

A Shortage Of Skilled Labor

In spite of all this there is a serious shortage of skilled farm labor and it is hoped that possibly this situation will be rectified through the operations of Selective Service. In summing up the report states that with the present adjustment of beef and bacon prices and the higher price for wheat, a price structure which has been established for dairy products, the present adjustment of farm products may now be over and the new prices may prove incentives for greater production. The fact seems to be that the report of a healthy agriculture is playing the war effort and the way in which production is being carried on despite the labor shortage. The demands of the home market have increased greatly in the past few months yet acute shortages of farm products have been averted. At the same time contracts of unprecedented size are being fulfilled for Britain and for the armed forces here and abroad. In making adjustments to meet this scale the agricultural industry is indeed playing a major role in the waging of the war.

Non-Essential Foods In The Diet

The luncheon or supper meal can be a very attractive one, full of the necessary food elements if the proper care is exercised in preparation and planning beforehand. Too many people serve the usual slab of cold meat and potato salad without any attempt whatsoever to make this meal appealing, wholesome and well-balanced.

Children coming boisterously in after school is out, there appetites fairly shouting for plenty of good wholesome food, should be served a meal which will restore the energies they have expended and build firm, healthy bones and tissue. Sausages and fried potatoes followed by doughnuts and jam for a filler may sound rather nice to the average child, but though expensive foods they do not contain nearly enough vitamins and minerals necessary to the growing body. So much fried food, too, is difficult to digest.

Following are two types of lunches A comparison will show at once what is meant:

HIGH VALUE LUNCH	LOW VALUE LUNCH
Baked Lima Beans	Fried Sausage and Potatoes
Toasted Whole Wheat Cheese Sandwich	Stewed Tomatoes
Carrot and Celery Salad	White Bread and Butter
Apples or Applesauce and Cream	Doughnuts and Jam
Milk	Tea

The high value lunch shows imagination in planning, is nicely balanced, with the proportionate amount of any one type of food as in the low value lunch, and consists of food containing the essential vitamins and minerals. The children, too, will enjoy this kind of meal much more.

Gloomy Forecast

Doctor Says That Tooth Decay Is Inherited

Dr T. A. Hardgrove, Pond du Lac, Wis. dentist, made a gloomy forecast for babies in the October issue of the Journal of the American Dental Associates

If their parents have toothaches they probably will, too, Hardgrove said.

"Tendencies to tooth decay may be inherited along with the type of glandular mechanism of the parents," he said

He studies have shown that all the phenomena of tooth decay are "endocrine manifestations and that "we inherit our tendencies to dental decay because we inherit the endocrine mechanism to a large extent."

"In families we frequently find decay in the same areas of the same teeth," he said. 2492

Automobile Care

To Keep Your Car Running Avoid Battery Abuse

As time goes on the care of present automobiles assumes first line importance As tires wear out and gasoline ration coupons are used up the car must be given attention, Consumer Information Service points out

If car owners in town and country will exercise common sense the life of the car's battery which is a very important consideration will be extended Useless starting should be avoided Some people have the bad habit of not looking for the cause of starting trouble until the battery has been exhausted

Periodic battery inspection and filling should be done by a reputable service station It is advisable to have the battery checked once a week at the same time as air is put into the tires and other check-ups are being made

Car owners should make certain that nothing is added to the battery solution but approved water unless it has been thoroughly established that some electrolyte has been lost

It is a good idea to glance at the ammeter on the car's dashboard occasionally, and if it shows "discharge" during the daytime or is not operating at all, an immediate call at the service station is suggested

NEWS of your Army

From Directorate of Public Relations, Army

Private Mary Smith enlisted in the C.W.A.C. early in October. She had been a linotype operator, and while anxious to do her part, was puzzled as to what place she could have in the Army. She was tested and during the course of the interview it was discovered that she had had high school education and that her job in civilian life had required a high degree of speed and accuracy. These factors, together with Pte Smith's quiet, pleasant manner suggested to the Army Examiner that she would be best suited to a job requiring manual dexterity and tact in dealing with people. Now Pte. Smith is happily training to be a dental chair assistant.

Jean Brown is another newcomer to the ranks of the Canadian Women's Army Corps When she enlisted, she thought her place might be as a cook The Personnel Selection officer who interviewed her found out by careful questioning that she had worked in the Wrens in England during the last war and had had a great deal of experience in handling rations as well as in actual cooking She has now been placed in a large centre as senior cook and assistant to the messing officer, where her practical experience is being put to good use

Keystone Of Army

This all important matter of fitting the type of work for which a recruit is best suited, could not be taken at the recruiting office and it has been found that recruits are more apt to discuss in a friendly, sympathetic atmosphere, matters regarding their previous occupations, trades and qualifications which they might overlook in the bustle of the recruiting office.

Many Millions Saved Through Price Control

Ottawa.—Canada's price control regulations have been credited with saving residents of the Dominion over eight million dollars during the past year.

The eight million dollars represented economies in the nation's war costs and savings to the Canadian housewife.

Summing up the results of the price control regulations at the end of the first 10 months of the current year, a British United Press report pointed out that the cost of living in the Dominion has only risen two points during the present war as compared with 16 points for a comparable period during the 1914-1918 struggle.

The price control plan is a year old on Dec. 1 and observers through the world are agreed that, in the main, it has been a highly successful phase of the Canadian war effort.

During the 1914-1918 war the cost of living in Canada doubled, but it is expected that under the price ceilings now in effect, the rise in costs during the present conflict will be held down to a fraction of the gain in the great war.

Reliable sources said that regulations under the scheme have already forced nearly 600 business firms to close down. In all cases that this factor has itself contributed to the war effort by releasing more men for war industries and the armed services

Wheat Problem In The West And Future Policy

Calgary.—Canada's production of wheat since the outbreak of war has amounted to almost two billion bushels, George McIvor, chairman of the wheat board, told delegates to the 20th annual meeting of the Alberta wheat pool.

He reviewed the entire wheat and coarse grain handling problem as it affected quota establishment and possible future policy.

Of the two billion bushels produced, he continued, because of a market restricted to the United Kingdom, only about 900,000,000 bushels had been exported and the balance had either been consumed locally or was now in storage

No voices, he said, had been raised so far, protesting the fact that inevitably, very large stocks of wheat would have to be carried in Canada as long as the war remained in the present phase and equally, it had been generally accepted that under the circumstances, producers should receive a substantial measure of protection

A problem which he said had given the board some difficulty, he continued, because of a market [illegible] had been in each case based on [illegible] This equation of average production to the quota.

"Our experience to date indicates that coarse grain marketing will be relatively light in Alberta and for this reason the board is increasing wheat delivery quotas as rapidly as possible"

Every endeavor, he stated, was being made day by day, and week by week to ease the storage situation at the delivery points with the low est delivery quotas, and it was important for producers to know that where a quota was raised up to ten bushels per acre it did not hurt the position of the place with the low quota as more cars were immediately routed to the latter point

Rather than risk the loss of any orders or markets, he warned, grain would be moved from points with the high quotas if the supply was to fill demand even at the risk of temporary congestion

Relating to the marketing of oats and barley, he said that after other demands were met there had still been a place for malting barley and so the board had permitted over deliveries of this grain

More than 6 000 bushels of flax he informed the delegates had now been shipped from the country elevators and was moving satisfactorily to mills both in Canada and the United States.

"A fall in carryful thought will go into the preparation of the 1943-44 policy and there is a great need of patience and tolerance while awaiting the announcement of the program." Mr McIvor concluded 2492

ALASKA HIGHWAY

Interest In The Future Settlement Possibilities In North

Edmonton.—Unfolding of new frontiers in the far north through opening of the Alaska highway is creating wide interest in United States over the future settlement possibilities of northern Alberta and the vast region lying north of the province. Dan E. C. Campbell, director of publicity for the provincial government, said here.

A big trek to Edmonton and northward is indicated by the growing volume of inquiries received by the publicity department.

Since June, between 500 and 1,000 inquiries have been received. Many of these were applications for information material including maps, folders and general data in regard to farming, and available lands, particularly in the Peace River district.

He said he also has no fear that many of the inquiries were from potential settlers in the country covered by the new Alaska highway while a smaller number came from possible tourists.

Italy Dominated By Germany And Must Keep On Fighting

Norfolk, Va.—Lord Halifax asserted he had no doubt that Italy "would like to get out of the war, but Germany won't let her do that."

There is no love lost between Italy and Germany, the British ambassador told a press conference, and the effect of this feeling "will place added strain on Hitler's war machine."

Italy is "not a free country and you will not become more and more a German-occupied country," he said

War Equipment Produced Here Used In Libya

Winnipeg Munitions Minister Howe said here that the Allied forces in the Battle of Libya and Egypt fought almost entirely on Canadian mechanized equipment. Munitions output in the next year is expected to be stepped up by $1,000,000,000 he said

A gun is produced in Canada every minute of the day, the minister said, adding that Canada is making eight types of art llery guns field guns 14 types of small arms, aircraft guns and rifles In every minute of the week sixteen finished rounds of ammunition are being produced," he said

Canada now is going into production of bigger planes, he said, adding that plans are underway for production of three Mosquito planes a day and "we hope to be in substantial production of Lancaster bombers next spring." The "Hell-diver," which Mr. Howe described as the latest of dive bombers, also will be in production early in the new year, he said.

In addition to corvettes, minesweepers and other naval craft, Mr. Howe said "we hope to deliver a finished destroyer soon, of 100 per cent Canadian manufacture" He said 87 10,000-ton merchant ships had been constructed in Canadian shipyards in addition to several 8,000-ton ships.

Production of motorized vehicles has increased 10 times since the start of the war and during 1942 it will have built 2,400 motorized vehicles

Speaking of tank output, Mr. Howe said the Valentine tank production is three a day and war plants have already moved more than 1,000 Ram tanks

The minister described research work that led to establishment of an anti-tank gun and ammunition which he said now is producing telescopes, periscopes, gun-sights, bombsights and secret radio equipment.

More than $40,000,000 is being spent to produce artificial rubber, Mr Howe said.

Canada Doubles Lumber Exports To United States

Ottawa. Timber Controller Alan H. Williams announced that shipments of Canadian lumber to the United States this year will approximate 1,000,000,000 board feet more than double the corresponding exports to that country in any year from 1932 to 1940, inclusive.

In answer to queries made to the United States senate committee investigating the war program Mr. Williams said that despite all the shortages and accompanying difficulties of transportation, the United States this year will probably be greater by some 50 per cent than that sent in 1941

The controller does not anticipate any substantial reduction in the export of British Columbia Douglas fir logs would adversely affect the Canadian war effort

"Actually," he said, "the exports of such logs normally have represented less than one per cent of the log production in Oregon and Washington They are thus seen to be so small in relation to the total production of the American west" program

"The Canadian timber controller has been working closely with the war production board to insure adequate supplies of lumber for British war effort even at the cost of denying ourselves lumber we badly needed said Mr. Williamson

The joint policy of the WPB and the controller has been to see that logs are not unduly exported and that the lumber is processed into the war effort as much as possible Mr. Williamson said that the United States lumber requirements of both nations

The control of the exports of logs and lumber to the United States are subject to permit

The policy governing this permit system, we are assisting the WPB in making sure that lumber does not get into the hands of non-essential users. The export permit system thus supplements our own control which prevents non-essential users in Canada from purchasing lumber needed in the joint program

"That our Canadian control is proving effective is shown in the fact that, despite a colder climate, the per capital consumption in this country is only two-thirds of what it is in the United States"

Mr Williamson said that if any report permits have been refused it is only because the lumber we desired is needed for the Canadian war effort

FEW ARE GRANTED

Although Many Apply For Exit Permits To Work Elsewhere

Ottawa National selective service officials said there are approximately 15 per cent of the 800 applications for exit permits submitted since the new regulations were announced on Nov. 1 which have been granted. Some applications have been withdrawn.

Among the 85 per cent refused permits were a number of skilled workers who were considered essential for war work in Canada. They included doctors nurses and other professional and technical men and women

The 15 per cent who were granted permits included a few men and women who wanted to join their families outside Canada a new key man and workers coming to Canada to fill war materials orders outside the country girls about to be married and others going to join relatives outside Canada

The 800 figure of applications received to date is given by officials as representing considerably more than one per cent of the total number of industrial workers and those who wanted to work in the New Era to whom during the winter lull selective registration at home

Selective service officials said, however, that a special arrangement is being discussed whereby Canada may have certain skilled workers released at its border because they had failed to obtain labor exit permits

OBITUARY

CHARLES GRABY

The funeral of the late Charles Graby who passed away at the Vermilion Municipal hospital on Nov. 21, was held from the Holy Name church on Wednesday Nov. 25 at 10 o'clock in the morning. Interment took place in the Roman Catholic cemetery with the Rev. Father O'Sullivan conducting the services.

Mr. Graby died after an illness of some two and a half months. He was 62 years of age and had farmed in the Campbell Lake district for the past 16 years, at which time he came to Canada from Voremark in North-ern Ireland.

Left to mourn his loss are his sor-rowing widow one daughter Mrs. Mc-Allesh of Cooper Mountain, B.C., and five sons, all in this district, Frank, Paddy, Willie, Phillip and John.

J. Warine had charge of funeral ar-rangements.

Beautiful floral tributes were re-ceived from: The Sorrowing Family; The Grandchildren, Friends and Neighbors; Mr. and Mrs. Swanson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Irvine; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reed and family; Miss Mahaffy; Mr. and Mrs. Reeves and family; Mr. and Mrs. McCam-bridge and family; Mr. and Mrs. Kin-ney and family; Mr. and Mrs. Mills-pire and family; Mr. and Mrs. Del-man; Mr. and Mrs. R. Mead and fam-ily; Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf; Mr. and Mrs. Dougan; Mr. and Mrs. G. Strome; Mr. Walter Styles; Mrs. Richardson; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Mead and family.

ISLAY

The Islay branch of the Red Cross is holding a Bingo party on Dec. 11, Friday in the hall. Remember the date as we had such a "WELL DONE" and help us repeat it. Some groceries would come amiss.

According to the press correspond-ent of the Junior school, Mr. Farmer, bank, the pennies are still flowing in, 311 in War Savings stamps and al-most $3 in the bank.

On Monday Nov. 31, the Women's Curling club members held a meeting at the home of Mrs. Annie Young. The president, Mrs. Young resigned, leaving a vacancy and the secretary Miss Muriel Stone resigned in favor of Miss Dessie Ingalls. We are not yet sure of the number or rinks.

On Friday night Mr. and Mrs. Frank Young entertained Miss Redmond, Mr. and Mrs. Harold White and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Young. A very pleasant time was enjoyed. Next day Harry had a bad spell as he had to shovel his car out of a snowbank. We think he should wear high overshoes.

The salary question of teachers at the Vermilion school division has been settled, and amicably, and very much to the satisfaction of the teachers, whether it will be to the rate-payers. But thanks to the Board. The teaching profession has been low in salary for a long time.

Miss Jean Wells was brought to the Islay hospital from Vermilion, where she was attending high school. Last reports are that she was much improved.

Mrs. McEachern and Mary, who was home on leave from Victoria, spent last Thursday Nov. 26 in Vermilion. They visited Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mc-Padden and Mrs. Gilchrist and en-joyed an American Thanksgiving day dinner. Mary has returned to Victo-ria after visiting Catherine at West lock. Mary thinks she has the laugh on us for she goes back to summer weather while we are buried in snow and partly frozen as well.

The Useless "Good Citizen"

There is a certain type of man in every community to pose as a good citizen. He breaks no law, lives morally, pays his honest debts and is never inspired by in the law in any manner. But he lives to himself, by himself, and for himself exclusively. When the call is issued for volunteers to put across a community movement and give a boost, he never answers.

When calamity has befallen people in certain localities and charity flies to their rescue, he is never one of their numbers.

When money is needed for public enterprise his name is never on the list. When he sees some neighbor down in the mud he detours to avoid him. When his services are needed for the public welfare he is never able to give them. In fact, if he stood on the shore and saw the ship of state sinking, he would never offer to throw in a line. And if all mankind was composed from this same kind of chap, what would happen?

There would be no progress in municipal affairs, no development in the community, no churches, no insti-tutions for the unfortunate, and no improvement in our mode of living.

SALVAGE RUBBER

A. E. Redmond of Dewberry brought in a truck load of salvage rubber com-prised of tires, tubes, boots, etc., and unloaded them at the Salvage depot on Wednesday. The local Salvage Corps is just awaiting for a car to ar-rive from Vegreville which will be filled up with rubber from here and clipped east. Two big truckloads were brought here from Mannville and the building is now well filled with rubber, having large donations as well from Derwent, Chauvauld and Islay.

WILDMERE WINKS

Jimmie Wall of California, but formerly of this district, who was born and lived until he went with his parents to the States, has enlisted in the Canadian Air Force and is sta-tioned in Edmonton. Maybe in the near future he will pay a visit to his aunt and uncle Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Rendell of Triangle, and we will see him again.

We are pleased to say that Mrs. Bob Gray is doing well after an op-e-ration on the way to recovery. We are sorry to hear that Mr. Arthur Red-man, Mrs. Peter Jensen and Mrs. F. mer lobey are all patients in the hos-pital. We extend all good wishes and pray for a speedy recovery to all our sick friends.

Adam Smith Jr. spent last week in town where he could go and stay with his mother every afternoon until she was feeling better.

The writer and husband had a nice letter from Noel Garnett last week from an eastern city. Noel is getting along just fine and was asking if the folks were curling out here this win-ter. Noel was a great one for curl-ing. He reported seeing some splen-did hockey games in the Maple Leaf gardens. He gets the Standard through the kindness of Mr. George Holmes.

Lloyd Howard has enlisted in the Air Force but does not report for duty until March.

Many Wawanesa insurance holders throughout our part will remember Mr. Justice Ruttle, district agent. He passed away last week in Edmonton from heart failure.

Our winter still stays right with us and it's pretty cool too, three below now, but maybe a break will be com-ing our way one of these days

NEW INSTRUCTIONS FOR THE MAKING OF SERVICE SOCKS

For the purpose of the further sav-ing of wool, it has become necessary to shorten the length of Service Socks". At present in knitting book No. 1 our instructions read "14 to 16 inches from top of cuff to under the heel". These instructions should now read "11 inches from top of cuff to under the heel". The reduction should be in the leg and NOT the cuff. Socks already made up should not be al-tered. This change does not affect Seamen's 18 inch socks, or Seamen's long stockings, 26 inches.

$60,000 SET ASIDE FOR XMAS CHEER

Canadian Red Cross has announced that a sum by $60,000 has been set aside to provide Xmas cheer and com-forts for the Canadian forces over-seas on the same basis and in the same extent as has...ast. This sum, it was stated, has been set at an out-side figure so as to be sure no one ac-rival of Canadian forces in Britain would be overlooked, as it is the objective of the Society that every member of our Canadian forces in the United Kingdom will have some cheerful remembrance from the people at home, to brighten the day.

Last year's Xmas arrangements, which will be generally followed a-gain this season, consisted as follows: Cheques were sent to some 150 indi-vidual units with an accompanying letter to the Commanding officers reading: "The Canadian Red Cross Society has appropriated a sum of money for Xmas Cheer for the Cana-dian forces in all arms in the United Kingdom. The apportionment and al-location to the respective units and detachments have been effected by the Canadian Auxiliary Services. En-closed is cheque for your proportion of this fund, which it is hoped will be of some measure of assistance to you-self in augmenting your Xmas dinner and other arrangements."

In addition, over 4,000 individual Xmas stockings, enclosing a pair of socks, eatables and other good things, were made up and sent to all Cana-dian patients in Canadian and British hospitals throughout the British Isles. To this was added a ration of canned corn to augment the Xmas fare. Xmas crackers and cards and red paper for decorating were also sup-plied. Overseas personnel made a tour on Xmas day of all Canadian hos-pitals and Casualty Clearing stations to give a word of welcome on behalf of the Canadian Red Cross. Many letters were received from all services expressing much appreciation.

There is much work to be done now, won't you one and all make an effort to do your share in this noble work.

C.W.A.C. BASKETEERS TRIM HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS 22-14

As briefly reported in last week's Standard, the C.W.A.C. basketball team defeated the high school by a 22-14 score in the barracks gymnasi-um last Wednesday evening.

The game started out by Sgt Elma-ley netting the first basket but Norma Williams evened the count. Cpl. Finch put the army ahead with Cathy Grine Forbes coming right back to tie it up at two all. Cpl. Quinlan was then penalized and Jean Robson re-ceived on the try to put the students in the lead, then Kay Dwyer scored on a smart play). The Army came back however and evened the count on baskets by Cpl. Finch, the period ending 6 all

The high school line up for the period was Helen Kirk, Catherine Forbes, Norma Williams, Jean Rob-son, Irene Heidebrecht.

C.W.A.C. line up for the whole game was Sgt. Elmaley, Cpl Finch, Cpl. Quinlan, Pte Foulker, Sgt. Dun-ley.

In the second period the high school used Peggy Pilate, Connie Bushell, Mary Wright Kershaw Atkinson, Irene Heidebrecht

Foulker started the scoring for the Army quickly followed by Finch and the same team who tallied three times in a wonderful display. Mean-while over at the end of the second period 12-6 for the C.W.A.C.

In the third period Jean Robson of the students started the scoring and Norma Williams scored on a two-try shot and shortly after Norma tallied again. Wallsmith scored with Ka-Dwyer netting another, but the Army came back into the picture when Wallsmith was penalized and Sgt Elmaley realized on the free throw. The scoring was rolled for the game by Jean Robson leaving the final count 22-14 in favor of the C.W.A.C.

Kay Dwyer and Jean Robson starred for the high school while Sgt Elmaley and Cpl Finch put a lot of punch into the army girls team. All players on both quintets turned in bang-up performances and unanimously a very

A STATEMENT about BUTER

In spite of the fact that in some Canadian cities butter supplies recently have not been sufficient to meet the greatly increased demands, the situation does not constitute an emergency; nor is it as serious as some people seem to think. There are two main causes for these temporary and local shortages:

For the past year we have been consistently using 10% to 15% more butter than in normal times—with consequent disturbance to the distribution of our butter supplies.

Many people have been buying more butter than they currently need.

The limited nature of the present shortage is shown by the fact that if every home would reduce its consumption of butter by only one ounce per person per week (for the average home this means a quarter of a pound a week)—or if we reduced our national consumption to the preceding rate—the shortage would soon disappear.

There is no Reason for Panic Buying

It is unpatriotic and unnecessary for housewives to run out to beat their neighbours to the nearest grocery store. Butter will not be rationed to meet the present situation. Butter production is actually above normal for this time of year. The Board itself is taking special action which it is believed will speedily restore normal supplies in retail stores.

These supplies will however be adequate for normal consumption, if housewives in all parts of Canada co-operate.

You can help in these ways:

Scrupulously avoid waste and extravagance. Waste is wrong at all times. In time of war it is sabotage.

Reduce present consumption of butter by at least one ounce per person per week—(for the average home this means a quarter of a pound a week.)

Do not buy more than is needed for immediate use.

HOW TO SAVE BUTTER

AT MEAL-TIME

1 Use butter only for spreading on bread
2 Never use butter just out of the refrigerator. Wait until it is soft enough to spread easily.
3 Add a small amount of milk when creaming butter for sandwiches.

IN COOKING

1 Do not use butter in baking and cooking, also lard, shortening or meat dripping can be used
2 Use local arrangements of buying . . . farmers sell cream to dairies
3 When adding cheese to a cream or white sauce, use only half amount of butter stated in recipe
4 Use paper wrappings from butter to grease baking dishes
5 Do not use butter for re-warming vegetables.
6 Serve meat gravy to avoid the use of extra butter on potatoes
7 When adding butter to vegetable dishes, add it sparingly. Do not melt it and then pour on

ANNUAL MEETINGS OF LIVESTOCK ASSOCIATIONS

To Be Held Next Week in Edmonton

The annual meetings of the Alberta Provincial Livestock Associations will be held in the Civic Building in Edmonton on Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 9 and 10. Horse breeders will meet the first morning followed by cattle breeders in the afternoon. The forenoon of the second day will be devoted to the sheep, while the final afternoon is set aside to discuss matters related to swine production.

Recognized authorities on the various classes of livestock have been secured as speakers, and the discussions this year will hinge around problems related to wartime production. One of the most important features of this two-day get-together will be a mass meeting of farmers to be held in the evening of December 9th to discuss the acute labor problem as it affects the producer of livestock and livestock products. It is hoped that the Hon. Mr. Mitchell, the Dominion Minister of Labor, or a responsible representative of his Department will be in attendance, which will afford an opportunity for a direct presentation of the present farm labor problem to the proper authorities.

All sessions of the livestock meetings are open to those who are concerned with current problems of agricultural production, and it is hoped that a large and representative group will attend.

Financially and socially, the night was a great success. Every family of the district was represented as well as folks from Campbell Lake, Clay Lake and Allandale. The whist winners were Mrs. Geo. Dettman, Mrs. McCambridge, Miss Mc Lennan, Alf Searle, D. Seddon, H. Pratt.

Two draws took place during the evening, one for a large box of chocolates and another for a rooster, kindly donated by John Williamson. In each case Miss P. Jenkins drew the winning number. A dainty lunch was served by Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. McDaniel Mr. N. Armstrong was M.C.

A diminution of ten supplies to North America has called attention to the South American evergreen tree, Mate, which has been used for centuries in that continent as a beverage. Like tea it has a somewhat bitter taste, a liking for which has to be acquired.

The Sunday school in North Abercrombie has been for over one hundred years a vital force in preserving our way of life But note this disturbing fact The Public school attendance has decreased some but the Sunday school attendance has decreased 11 per cent in the last ten years. If we neglect to provide the means of Christian education for all our children and young people they will be less prepared to meet the responsibilities of Christian citizenship in the near future Difficult days are ahead. We need the weight of Christian belief to help us make our world more Christian If only half our boys and girls get Christian teaching and train ing for life when the show down comes between the Christian War and the pagan way of life you can conjecture the result

Help bring this Christian teaching to all children youth and adults by helping in your own church Go to church this Sunday and every Sunday

John D. Rockefeller Was Steady Customer in New York Shop

A gray-haired, modestly dressed figure slipped into a tiny book shop in one of New Yorks quiet side streets, browsed briefly, made a purchase and walked out.

"Isn't that John D. Rockefeller?" asked a pop-eyed customer.

"It is," said the proprietor, "but I've never pretended to recognize him in all the years he has bought books here. Mr. Rockefeller prefers it that way."

"And what does he buy—biography, history?" queried the customer

"Neither. Mr. Rockefeller usually asks for a good detective story."

Explanations and Comments

Now Life in Christ, Colossians 3. 1-4. These verses are paraphrased by the One Volume Commentary thus: Seeing then that at your conversion you showed not Christ's death only but his resurrection, go on to participate in his heavenly life. In that heaven where he is, and where he still at God's right hand. Let always be remain hidden for us Christ's second coming it will be revealed for Christ is our very life, so that his manifestation involves ours.

When one has given himself to Christ as his follower, his conduct is lifted to a higher level. "It is lived for and by eternal, not temporal values. Yet this does not mean a vague 'spirituality,' indifferent to the practical issues of daily life on earth as Paul sufficiently shows in the following ethical section. For the eternal values are defined for us by Christ, as the unseen world is for us the world where Christ is supreme. If we are in Christ, then our real life is in that world. It is a 'hidden life,' its meaning half frustrate at present by the intractability of our material environment; but it is real, and one day, when all that is material has passed away, it will be revealed in the coming of the Christ. In such a new nature there can be no distinction of race, religion, or position, for Christ is all and in all the relations of life.

Death warps a beckoning finger at the motorist who tries to beat the train at a level railway crossing, and the engineer, whose train can't swerve or dodge, is helpless to avert the impending tragedy. Trying to beat the train to the crossing is still one of the most prevalent causes of crossing accidents, of which 218 occurred during the first eight months of 1942, exactly the same figure as for the corresponding period of 1941. Human folly is still responsible for nearly all of these accidents.

A Word For England

Troops Headed By A British General Turns The Tables

It has become quite the fashion in this country to laud General Rommel as the outstanding military leader of the war, yet the quiet and undramatic General Montgomery has achieved a victory such as Field Marshal Rommel never did. He has dislodged a powerful and elite force from a strongly defended position and hurled back that force in complete rout.

England it was that in the dark days after Dunkirk held the fort against Hitler until America could get ready and Russia could get into the war. England it was that out-fought the Germans in the air when the invasion of the British Isles seemed imminent.

Now that the turning point seems to have come in the war, it is England's troops, headed by a British general, who have turned the table."

This is indeed England's day.—Watertown, N.Y., Times.

HALFWAY HOUSE

— BY —

MICHAEL TREAT

CHAPTER VIII

Anne returned to Halfway House shortly after noon and found the guests gathered on the side verandah to watch Erich and Rhea Marshall at the far end of the lake, five miles away, put their boat in motion. They could see a wall of flame, crackling roar of sound carried to them on a steady breeze, and the acrid smell of smoke was in the air they breathed. There was an awareness of danger, noticeably, the blaze was working southward toward the hotel.

Anne tried to reassure the others, telling them that the blaze had been discovered in time and that it was already being fought. She wanted them to believe they were in no danger at Halfway House

"How relieving to know we're safe! I suppose your ranger friends are fighting the fire, Anne?" asked Rhea Marshall sais!

"I wouldn't say they are doing it for us. I assume they are mostly concerned to keep the fire under. They know we can leave if necessary."

"I'd rather think they were being heroes for us," said the dark girl. Her eyes had a sultry look. "Wouldn't you, Miss Lowry?"

Anne smiled, saying nothing. She was unable to understand the girl's veiled animosity or her intimate reference to the rangers. It was Rhea's aunt, Mrs. Leland, who answered.

"Draw in those claws, Rhea," she said sharply. "You're too good at being catty. You have Miss Lowry for a disadvantage."

Rhea said "Sorry" with a narrowing look at Anne. She moved languidly to the doorway. She made a picture; she was in a white evening dress artfully revealing her tan skin and there touch of red and wore her beauty with a casualness. In the doorway she paused and looked back about. Her voice still had that velvet-covered ring.

"By the way" she said "where is Mr Blake? I haven't seen him about since dinner."

Her manner made it appear that she spoke to the gathering, but her glance rested on Anne. Then without awaiting an answer, she turned and went inside Anne watched her cross the lobby and mount the stairs, knowing now that the girl had heard that conversation between Jud and her. More, Rhea seemed to know what that conversation had meant, and wanted Anne to know she knew Erich's secret was a secret any longer. Anne was frightened She went inside to find her father Drew Lowry was moving in the office off the lobby.

"Erich?" he said, in reply to her question. "I really don't know, where he is I haven't seen him about all evening." His pale, tired face showed concern. "You don't think he has left?"

And Anne said, "I almost hope he has. Yes, I do hope he has!"

She turned on Mrs Cun vergeel upon the Indian Lake watershed from lumber camp and town from mountain cabin and ranch. It was 3 o'clock when Erich Kruger showed up. Anne was watching off the lobby lights when he entered

His face and hands were smoke blackened his clothes were soiled and torn, and somewhere he had lost coat and tie His eyes were red-rimmed, and he looked physically all in as he sank into a chair Anne saw him smile she did not return it

"Erich where have you been?"

"To the fire Anne I have been working like a mule."

"You were there helping"

"Yes I took active participation."

Anne wasn't surprised She knew if her face showed anything it was alarm. "I wouldn't have thought there she said "Not among all those men The rangers"

Erich made a weary gesture "They were too busy to notice me. They had other things to do."

"Erich, there are people who know about you," she said.

"Ah, your Steve Hayes has found out. You went to him lastnight against my wishes, and you told him about me."

"That isn't true, Erich. But there is a man who saw you hide in the station wagon that night in Sand Flat. A disreputable man named Joe. He came here today and I had to pay him to not go to the sheriff."

Erich no longer slumped in the chair. He sat erect, his hands gripping the chair arms, and his pallid face had a stiff look.

"He will not tell so long as you pay him," he said. "But he will want to be paid over and over, and I cannot have you paying blackmail for me. I shall go away, Anne. If I leave tonight, the fire will have come my going. All the man in the countryside are at the fire—"

"Erich, they'll catch you. . . . You'll not get far."

He rose and faced her, his reddened eyes looking at her in a wistful way. "You worry for me?" he asked. Then, at once "It is useless to say it, but I would like you to know, Anne, that I would be honored to have you say write. If your love for this Steve Hayes should—"

"Don't, please, Erich," she interrupted him.

He smiled thinly "I shall make for Venezuela after Mexico," he said. "You will find me at Caracas, if you search for me." He moved slowly across the darkened lobby, at the door . . . he paused, "I am dead on my feet," he said, "I think I must sleep a few hours before I start." And he went heavily up the stairs.

They talked it over in the morning, the three of them—Erich and Anne and her father Erich's alibi born mind was made up; he would try to reach friends in Mexico and no amount of argument would deter him.

Her father put his hand on Erich's shoulder. Erich, haven't you thought of all I've said? You are that in a way it isn't playing the game fair to attempt to escape if you believed in what you fought for or pe might be a part of the battle. Can you?

Erich shook off the older man's hand. "I am not a believer in playing the game fair," he said curtly. "That is a stupid belief of you English friends. I mean to play my way and pay for myself!"

"You refuse my advice, then?"

"Absolutely. Herr Lowry. If you will excuse me, I shall pack my things."

"Erich, Erich!" Anne said. 'Don't talk like that, after we've tried to be your friends We cannot help if we do not see matters as you do"

But his sudden anger was beyond all reason control. His face was flushed, seemingly more square-cut than ever, and his eyes were coldly blazing. Stiffly, he said, "I appreciate your friendliness But I cannot accept your advice. I mean to leave at once"

"Erich, for your own sake I think it would be best if we sent for the police," she said. And she saw him make but replace—the anger in his eyes "Oh, Erich, think it over, at least you must wait until tonight Please Erich"

Slowly the stiffness went out of him Very well, Anne I will ask I cannot refuse But tonight I go."

Smoke still wafted skyward in black puffs from the burned timber, but the fire was out and the afternoon brought rain in a steady downpour, which ended all danger of the blaze breaking out again

The rain kept the people at Halfway House indoors on Sunday; all but Rhea Marshall, who ventured out in her smart yellow car during the afternoon Something had worked a change in the girl; she seemed to have a sudden case of nerves

Anne was aware of three guests that evening who appeared restless and on edge. The bored and dissatisfied-looking Margaret Jewell played bridge, but she also kept watching her sister in a close and frowning way Rhea Marshall Anne saw, sat curled up on a settee by a window staring out through the rain-spattered panes That it was now dark for her to see outside appeared not at all. Rhea was merely staring moodily into space The third person taking no part in the card-playing or conversation was Erich Kruger He sat slumped in an armchair, smoking cigarette after cigarette, chain-fashion, and his broad square face was grim

Steve Hayes arrived shortly before 10 o'clock Anne went in admit him when she heard his car drive up. Steve took off raincoat and campaign hat, tossed them into a chair, then turned and took her in his arms. They were alone in the lobby. He kissed her.

He said, "I'm late, honey, but it couldn't be helped. We turned up something at the fire last night. It was incendiary—deliberately set. We found evidence that can't be doubted."

Anne said, "But who would set fire——?" And she instantly thought she knew. Erich's true belief was an accident it had an impact that took her breath away. She felt cold with fright. Erich, her father had told her and Rhea Marshall had hinted, had been away from Halfway House all last evening. She could remember Erich saying, when he returned, that the fire could cover his escape. Her face must have shown horror, for Steve put his arm about her.

"It's as bad as that," he said. "I've been working on it all day, and I'm pleed. Do you think you could give me a drink?"

"Certainly, Steve. Come into the lounge.

They went to the little bar, and she mixed him a cocktail. From the corner of her eyes she saw Erich across the room, watching Steve with a dark intentness. She also saw Rhea Marshall come up to the bar.

Rhea said, "Could I have a martini Miss Lowry—A dry one?" Her voice was soft, but husky as with some strange emotion. She had approached from behind Steve, but her voice brought him swinging about. Anne could not see Steve's face then, his broad back being toward her, but she did see that Rhea Marshall looked at him with a bright look in her eyes and a slow smile lurked on her lips. And she didn't like that. There was a moment's quiet that was static. Anne felt that she had to say something

She said, "Miss Marshall, this is Mr. Hayes—"

And the dark-haired girl softly said, "An introduction really isn't necessary. Miss Lowry. Mr. Hayes and I know each other very well. You see, I happen to be Mrs. Steve Hayes."

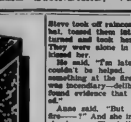
Bring Sue To Children Via Vitamin D



When "Old Sol" shines brightly overhead in the summertime, and lightly clad children spend hours out of doors nature's marvellous chemistry allows them to manufacture their own supply of the sunshine Vitamin D

Vitamin D is essential for babies and children, for without it they cannot develop strong bones. Children who do not get enough Vitamin D develop bow legs and other symptoms of rickets

Nutrition Services points out that in cities, where the air is filled with smoke and dust, the ability of the sun's rays to provide Vitamin D cannot be relied upon, as the health giving rays cannot penetrate the smoke screen

Adults too, probably need Vitamin D; expectant and nursing mothers certainly need it, for it helps to develop strong bones and teeth in the unborn baby and safeguards the mother's health.

Vitamin D, unfortunately, cannot be supplied in sufficient amounts from foods, but luckily fish liver oils supply it in abundance. That is why doctors prescribe cod, or some other form of fish liver oil for babies from the time they are a few weeks old, and should be continued through childhood and adolescence It may be omitted during the summer months.

ADVOCATES INCREASED GOVERNMENT GRANTS FOR EDUCATION

Suggested as Solution for Strike Settlement

Vermilion, Alberta, Dec. 1, 1942.
The Editor, Vermilion Standard,
Vermilion, Alberta

Dear Sir:

The salary dispute between the teachers of the Vegreville School Division and the Divisional Board still at the moment of writing is not settled. The Board's main objection to higher salaries seems to be that it would be a hardship on taxpayers to increase taxes at this time. They point out that the tax rate in most divisions is already high enough and that the greater expenditures due to recent conditions have been met entirely by increased taxes. It seems entirely reasonable that increased expenditure on the part of Divisional Boards should be met by increases in Government grants to the boards as well as by increased taxes.

Government grants have never been substantially increased since the "depression years, conditions now are different, therefore increases are warranted. Another reason for increased grants is this: The recent reorganization of the school system in Alberta has resulted in greater centralization of authority—greater participation by the Provincial Government in the operation of schools. Let the Provincial Government, then, bear more of the financial responsibility for increases in grants. This policy would tend also to spread the tax burden for education more evenly among the citizens of the province.

We offer this solution as the most reasonable way of settling this salary situation to the satisfaction of all concerned. The idea that the Government grant to school divisions be increased is quite frequently talked of by taxpayer and teacher, and we take this opportunity to ask you to put it in print.

Yours truly,
Vermilion Sub-Local,
Alberta Teachers' Assoc.

WEDDING BELLS

ANTRIM—MacDONALD

An interesting wedding was solemnized at the United Church manse, Vermilion, at 4.30 o'clock on Saturday, November 28, when Flora Margaret MacDonald of Vancouver, became the bride of Mr. Walter Orville Antrim of Vermilion. The Rev. L. Bieber officiated.

Sgt. Major Dolly Legace of the C. W.A.C. was bridesmaid and Mr. Vern Voss attended the groom.

The happy couple are now at home at Claymore where Mr. Antrim is the Alberta Pool agent, while the bride is the popular operator of the Claymore school.

THOMPSON—HINTER

A quiet but pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents at Minburn on Monday last when Marjorie, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hinter, was united in holy wedlock to Mr. Victor Thompson of Vermilion.

The bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Elliott, and the Rev. W. T. Cromb performed the ceremony.

A dainty lunch was served to the guests and the lovely two-tiered wedding cake was cut by the bride.

The young couple are well and favorably known in Kitscoty, Vermilion and Minburn. The bride is a graduate of the Kitscoty high and also spent most of her school years in Minburn. At the latter place a shower was given for her home Friday, Nov. 27th at which every family in the town was represented and a unique and generous variety of wedding gifts was on display.

The groom is a native of London, England. He has been employed for years by the Vermilion Pool.

The best wishes of their many friends go with the newly wedded couple to their new home in Vermilion.

Stagette Notes

Tuesday evening, the Stagettes appeared at the bank door armed with buckets, brooms, soap and cloths in order to clean the new clubroom. They were dressed in somewhat between the garb of a hindu and a cow boy and depth was a determined look on her face. All, from the president to the newest member were soon whistling merrily and wielding their mops; from an atmosphere of thick coal dust amongst which, could only be seen dim figures emerging and retiring, the room emerged into cleanliness. What miracles soap and water wrought!

At the conclusion of the clean-up job the bank staff members served a dainty lunch.

Many thanks to the ladies who have so generously offered to furnish furniture to the clubroom. It is greatly appreciated by each Stagette.

C. G. I. T. NOTES

Sometimes C.G.I.T. leaders wonder, as I suppose all leaders wonder, just how much the girls in their groups are really learning. Here is a part of the report from a discussion group, prepared by the girls themselves. The leaders of these girls must feel well fed that they had succeeded in "getting across" the real spirit of C.G.I.T.

"We expect each C.G.I.T. girl to be happy and popular, but respected at the same time. We expect her to share her interest in the group, to feel responsibility in making the group what it should be, and to co-operate to the very fullest extent. We want the C.G.I.T. group to co-operate with other groups in the church and to learn more about them.

A good C.G.I.T. group will be good sports at school, friendly to all, and study hard. They will not speak un kind gossip, or cheat. They can grow in understanding people by being tactful and unselfish, and learning to see the other person's point of view. C.G.I.T. can help in the life of the world today, for what the world needs most is Christian love and unselfishness and the unfailing support of the Church."

Be sure to listen in to a special C.G.I.T. broadcast over CFCN, Calgary, on Friday, Dec. 4, from 5.45 to 6 p.m.; over CJCA Edmonton, Monday Dec. 7, 10.30 to 11 p.m. Special speaker Miss Muriel Jacobson, National Girls' Work Secretary.

MEETING CALLED TO CONSIDER BOUNDARIES OF NEW MUN. DISTRICTS

To Be Held in Memorial Hall on Wednesday Next, 2 p.m.

The department of municipal affairs of the province has called a meeting of the reeves, councillors and secretary-treasurers of the six municipalities concerned, to discuss the new boundaries for the proposed enlarged municipal districts. The meeting will be held in the Canadian Legion hall on Wednesday afternoon next Dec. 16 commencing at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Officials of the Department will be on hand to explain the law set-up.

Following the announcement that the six M.D.'s of Etbelwyn, Vermilion Valley, Grizzly Bear, Streamstown, Wellington and Merton would be merged into two of the large municipalities, the various councils and boards of trade protested vigorously against the move and also against the proposed division which would create a north and a south unit. An alternative proposal was submitted with the dividing line between ranges three and four making an east municipality of Streamstown, Merton and Wellington, and a compact west unit of Etbelwyn, Vermilion Valley and Grizzly Bear. The department considered this latter suggestion favorably and officials will discuss the whole move here on Wednesday next.

Following the meeting at municipal affairs, attending are invited to a banquet in the Elks hall at 6.30 where they will be guests of the Vermilion board of trade.

S. C. HECKBERT GUEST SPEAKER

S. C. Heckbert, president of the Alberta Command of the Canadian Legion B.E.S.L., will be the luncheon speaker at the Convention of the Alberta board of trade and agriculture in the Macdonald hotel on Monday next. Mr. Heckbert's topic will be the Rehabilitation program and the part which boards of trade will assume in it.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING WEDNESDAY OF NEXT WEEK

The regular Monday meeting of the Board of Trade for next week has been cancelled, in its place a special dinner meeting will be held at 6.30 on Wednesday evening in the Elks hall, to which officials of the Department of Municipal Affairs, the reeves, councillors and secretaries of Vermilion Valley, Grizzly Bear, Etbelwyn, Streamstown, Merton and Wellington municipalities have been invited to be present. It is hoped to have the Hon. W. A. Fallow as the guest of the board on that occasion also.

Local members are asked to attend in force at this special function. Remember — no meeting on Monday; special dinner gathering at 6.30 p.m. in the Elks hall on Wednesday, Dec. 16.

SCHOOLS TO CLOSE ON TUESDAY, DEC. 22nd FOR CHRISTMAS VACATION

Curfew Discussed—Principal Recommends Additional High School Teacher

The regular monthly meeting of the trustees of Vermilion Centre S. D. No. 2 was held in the Council Chamber in the Town hall on Thursday, Dec. 3rd at 8.15 with Chairman Donald Taylor, Trustees Andrew, Tyner and Bruce present.

Messrs. Bussard and Part, Principals of the high and public schools attended and gave their reports for the month of November.

Mr. Part spoke of the late hours kept by some of the pupils from Public school and said that he had written to the Town council, suggesting that a curfew would improve this condition.

Mr. Bussard again brought up the question of the large classes at the High school and thought that another teacher would enable them to divide the classes in such a way that much better work could be accomplished.

The Chairman reported on the preliminary meeting with the Board of Vermilion School Division. Various suggestions were made and further meetings will be held to arrive at a solution of the difficulties.

Trustee Tyner: That responsible parties be billed for Tuition fees for High school students, as laid down in October last. Cd.

Tr. Andrew: That this Board request the Town council to take suitable action to prevent juveniles from frequenting the streets at unreasonable hours at night. Cd.

Tr. Bruce: That the High and Public schools close on Dec. 22 for the Xmas holidays. Cd.

Tr. Andrew: That accounts as submitted be ordered paid, the same having been verified.

Meeting adjourned.

REVERED VERMILION LADY PASSES AWAY IN EDMONTON

Death of Mrs. Charles C. Smith

Tpmaspeople were genuinely grieved to learn of the death of Mrs. Charles C. Smith, who passed away at the University hospital in Edmonton on Tuesday night, December 8th, following a lengthy illness. The funeral service will be held in the First United church, Vermilion, on Sunday Dec. 13 at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon. The body will be taken to Nevis, Minn., for interment in the family plot there.

Mrs. Smith was in her 66th year and had lived in Vermilion since the summer of 1920. Since that time she had proved an ardent worker in the church and women's organizations and her passing is a real loss to the town. The sympathy of a wide circle of friends is extended to her husband in his sad bereavement.

Vermilion Boy Wins Wings

Sgt. Pilot J. Stuart Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Duncan who live south of Vermilion, graduated as a pilot and was awarded his "Wings" at Calgary on Dec. 3. He is now home on two weeks' leave after completing the strenuous 13 months of training. Stuart is just 20 years old and it will be remembered that his father is a veteran of the First world war.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY RE-ELECTS McCLELLAN

Annual Meeting on Saturday Last

The Vermilion Agricultural society met on Saturday last to review the work of the year and to discuss plans for the year 1943; reports indicated financial improvement and it was a matter of gratification that an annual payment on the old building loan had been found possible as a result of the 1942 operations.

It was unanimously agreed to forward to the Red Cross a substantial donation to assist in their great work for suffering humanity.

1943 EXHIBITION

After considerable discussion it was agreed that if the entire Western Canada Circuit of Fairs continued in the new year that Vermilion would again hold a fair provided that it met with the approval of the Government of Canada; strong representations have been made to the circuit to discontinue the midway on such exhibition seals as has been the case in recent years.

TO RE-INTRODUCE BOYS' CAMP

It was decided to re-introduce the Boys' Camp at the 1943 fair as this feature has been greatly missed by the young people of the district. A committee composed of Messrs. D.A. Andrew, Chairman, Homer Campbell, E.H. Buckingham, Gordon Gasson and W. E. Cornish was named to take up the matter of the Boys' Camp and to increase the facilities for Junior activities.

Wiebe-Coached Bombers Show Class In Work-Outs

Hope To Arrange Home Game Each Week

Art Wiebe, defence star on the Chicago Blackhawks for the past seven seasons and who is spending at least until the New Year here, has taken over the job of coaching the former Juvenile Bombers who were whipped into fine shape last season by Stan Waldenberger. Wiebe has a lot of holes to plug as one entire forward line and two defence men of last year's line up are missing. Dunc and Ken Easton are in Saskatoon, George Knoll and Ted Reid are at Varsity and Rob Reid is in the R.C.A.F. However there are plenty of aspirants for the team and from twelve to fifteen boys have been turning out to strut their wares before the National hockey league defenceman.

Chap Cooper will be guarding the nets again while Cliff Kennedy, Vern Davis and Stan Manjuk of last year's front guard are going better than ever. It also looks as if the Les Williams, Ray Spencer duo have found a real running mate in young Keith Douglas. The youngster is a real prospect and no mistake, and just as keen as mus-

Vegreville Lodge Attends Meeting in Force

At the regular meeting of the Vermilion Lodge No. 131, B.P.O.E. held on Tuesday evening of this week, all 1942 officers were unanimously elected for the ensuing year as follows:

Exalted Ruler — Bro. Vernon H. Cooper

Past Exalted Ruler—Bro. J. Wener

Loyal Knight—Bro. W.H. Graham
Lecturing Knight—Bro. Don Lorsen
Inner Guard - Bro. R. J. Bell
Tyler—Bro. M. Simonsen
Rec.-Treas.—Bro. Jos. Ayr

Installation will take place at the regular January meeting.

A pleasing feature of Tuesday's gathering was the attendance of 13 members of the Vegreville Lodge No. 75 headed by D.D.G.E.R. Bros. Chas. Bilston and Exalted Ruler Bro Leish man. The Vegreville Elks made the visit lodge visit in force on Tuesday with the Travelling Gavel for District No. 10

A very enjoyable evening was brought to a close with the serving of a substantial midnight lunch by the local lodge.

It was decided to hold the regular Elks Annual ice carnival in the arena rink sometime in January.

TENNIS AFFAIRS ARE WOUND UP FOR SEASON

Secretary Ashley Cooper wound up the affairs at the tennis club for the year 1942 and was pleased to note that affairs at the club were in a healthy state. The bank balance stands at $142.23, with no outstanding accounts. This is an increase of $41 over the 1941 balance.

While showing not a jump in membership over the 1941 and for the first time in a number of seasons the members of the club outnumbered the ponies. The latter are given a special low rate. Another pleasing feature was the enthusiasm of the majority of club members who were just as keen to play to the end as up to the time the courts were closed on account of the cold spell on May 1. Expenses were $49.25, or a little over 1941.

It is interesting to note that since the tennis club opened the present courts in 1924 they have expended $2825 in Vermilion. This does not take into consideration the amounts the individual members spent on balls, racquets and any other equipment. In only the last few seasons have expenses been lower than $100 for the season; the peak was in 1933 when $567 was reached, having shade on the courts. The courts have long been acknowledged the equal to any in the west.

As manufacturer of tennis balls was stopped early this year, tennis for the 1943 season remains a big question mark.

Just to show how the population of the town changes of the 48 members belonging to the club in 1942 14 have moved left to live in other parts

No Permit Needed to Kill Poultry

Although the new permit policy for slaughtering livestock, of the Prices Administration W. P. T. B. requires farmers to have a permit to slaughter cattle, calves, hogs, sheep, lambs, if the meat is for sale, no permit is needed to slaughter livestock if the meat is to be used in the farmer's household, officials of the Board have stated. No permit is needed for the slaughter of poultry, whether for home consumption or for sale it is emphasized. Lord Cranborne Speaks Plainly On British Policy

London. — Replying authoritatively to critics of imperial policy, Lord Cranborne declared that "the British colonial empire is not coming to an end."

"The work we have to do is only beginning," the house of lords was told by Lord Cranborne, retiring colonial secretary who replaced Sir Stafford Cripps as lord privy seal in the recent cabinet shakeup.

"We citizens of the British empire have a mission to perform . . . essential to the welfare of the world . . . to ensure the survival of the way of life for which the United Nations are fighting and in harmony with the principles of the Atlantic Charter," he said.

"In that great mission we must not and will not fail."

Lord Cranborne, who has been promoted a minister of state, made his maiden speech since he succeeded the Marquess of Linlithgow as viceroy of India, presented a detailed report on the colonial empire in answer to Lord Listowel's motion for a statement on colonial policy.

Observers said they presumed Lord Cranborne's remarks were aimed at critics, who have directly or indirectly criticized Britain's fighting to preserve the imperial status quo and demanded clarification of her post war intentions.

Most of the criticism directed against the administration of the colonial empire ever since the fall of Malaya was "mainly voiced by those who, however well-intentioned, have little or no personal knowledge of the colonies," Lord Cranborne said.

"Let us not forget," he said, "that what stood between Hitler and absolute victory in 1940 after the fall of France was not Britain, an isolated island standing alone, but the whole of the British empire, that common wealth of free people and dependencies which only chang closer as the danger grew."

"We say, and truly, that the ultimate objective of our policy is to promote self government in the colonies," he said.

He added, however, that although democracy works well in the United States, Scandinavia, Belgium and Holland it is "the most difficult of all political systems" which in some other countries, even of Europe, has not proved strikingly successful.

"Therefore is it not surprising if many of the peoples of the British colonial empire are not yet ready for self-government," Lord Cranborne said.

But he forecast that the colonial empire would follow the lead of the old colonies in Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, which have grown into self-governing nations on an equality with Britain

"The British empire is not a checkboard composed of a number of squares of equal size and form, differing only by the fact that some are white others black," he said. "It is a congl-meration of territories of an infinite variety of races, religions history and traditions, and each has to be treated separately."

Some colonies he recounted were acquired in peace treaties, others occupied in the campaign against the slave trade, grew from trading posts or "were taken under the British crown by agreement with their rulers of their peoples". Most pioneers he said were not the armed forces but traders and missionaries.

"This essential fact should be borne in mind by those who in newspapers and elsewhere demand standardized colonial policy applicable equally to all territories of the British colonial empire. Anyone who has studied the colonial question will know how such simple course is open to us."

Lord Cranborne said Britain is pressing colonial progress in three main fields, education, health and social security.

TIME DRAWS NEAR

When Canadian Army Will Strike Out Against The Axis

Winnipeg.—Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian army overseas, in a message read over a Winnipeg radio station, said the time was drawing near when the Dominion army would strike out against the Axis.

His cabled message, read by Brig. R. A. MacFarlane, officer commanding Military District No. 10, during the program "Army Night in Manitoba," said that "the proper time to strike now draws close and when it comes you can be sure that they (the Canadian soldiers) will give a full account against the enemy."

Following is the text of General McNaughton's message:

On behalf of the Canadian army overseas, I extend congratulations to the people resident in Military District No. 10 on the magnificent contribution which they have made to the force of Canada's overseas.

Measured on a per capita basis this is now the highest in all Canada, which is a very proud achievement.

Overseas in many parts of the world from Hong Kong on the coast of China to Dieppe across the channel, your men and units have served with glorious distinction and their gallantry has been an inspiration to all here in England. Many thousands of your fellow citizens stand ready to do likewise. They have worked and trained without respite, they are hard and fit and thoroughly full of worthy in all respects.

The proper time to strike now draws close and when it comes you can be sure that they will give a full account against the enemy in the crusade which brought us here.

The end of the war is not in sight. We are counting on your continued support to maintain your units at full strength.

SERVICE CONTROL

Elementary Flying Training Schools To Be Taken Over By Air Force

Ottawa. — Reorganization of all elementary flying training schools to be taken over entirely under service control was announced by R.C.A.F. headquarters.

Under their inception these schools are been under civilian ownership and management, most of them being operated by private companies performed in conjunction with civilian flying clubs.

In future these schools will be staffed by members of the air force. A spokesman for the air force ascribed the change to a lack of qualified civilian instructors.

Beveridge Plan Is Expected To Meet Opposition

London.—Sir William Beveridge prepared to carry the defence of his "freedom-from-want" social security plan into the stronghold of his severest opposition—the Conservative 1922 committee in the House of Commons.

Champions of the insurance companies, which feel the plan threatens their existence, and government whips were expected to attend the session at which searching inquiries were to be put to the head of the commission that drafted the 300,000-word report, given to commons after being 17 months in the making.

Prime Minister Churchill was reported ready to set up a special committee of senior ministers to scan its details. The parliamentary labor party set up a number of sub-committees to study the report and other political parties shaped their attitudes in anticipation of commons debate expected early in 1943

Even before the report was published the Conservative 1922 committee—so-called because it was formed at the time of the break-up of the Lloyd George coalition government after the First Great War—began to organize opposition, chiefly to the greatly-increased government expenditures which would be necessary were the plan carried out.

The extent to which opposition might develop to the Beveridge report was not clear.

Parliamentary opposition is unlikely to develop until after Parliament at least for the report. In two volumes runs about 300,000 words and covers an invest ...on extending over 17 months. It will be some time before the parliamentarians have digested it, well enough to debate it.

The Liberal party, Britain's third largest, issued a statement giving "immediate and unqualified approval of the three guiding principles of the Beveridge plan."

Canberra, Australia Plans are being made to turn Australia into one of the greatest food centres of the Allied cause, it was learned here Feeding of thousands of troops throughout the entire Pacific zone is visualized.

It is understood this expansion plan is linked with a statement by John Beasley, minister of shipping and supply that economical aid is on its way a possible indication that once the North African position is stabilized and the outline of the European war more clearly shown, the Allies intend to concentrate on driving back the Japanese.

It is understood United States authorities have informed the commonwealth that owing to the shipping position, all outward traffic from America must be concentrated on delivery of munitions and war supplies

Three Members Are Chosen For New Coal Board

Ottawa Finance Minister Ilsley announced appointment of a three-man emergency coal production board to meet "a grave emergency in the field of coal production"

The committee has wide powers to stimulate and organize increased coal production in Canada, including the opening of new mines It is empowered to close small inefficient mines where the labor can be transferred to more efficient operations

"The prospective Canadian balance sheet for coal for 1943 indicates a shortage of about 6,000,000 tons," Mr. Ilsley's statement said. "This deficit will have to be met in part by increased production and in part by conservation in use"

J. McG. Stewart, K.C. of Halifax, coal administrator under the prices board, will be chairman of the new board. The other members will be Charles Payne, secretary of Local 2665, United Mine Workers of America at Mountain Park, Alta., and Graham P. Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada

"The board will have power, after consultation with the provinces and with labor, to suspend for the duration of the war any rules or regulations respecting employment in coal mines which may be found to be serious impediments to maximum production," the announcement said

"It will have power to direct the production policy of mines and, where necessary to provide financial assistance to mines which find themselves financially unable to continue in maximum production"

Canadian coal production which had increased substantially since the outbreak of war, has dropped again in recent months Mr Ilsley said Prior to the war, Canadian production averaged 15,000,000 tons a year and consumption 27,000,000 tons

While the over all coal supply position throughout Canada is sufficient for the current season, more serious local shortages have developed in several parts of western Canada and one of the immediate tasks of the new emergency board will be to deal with production problems in these areas he said

Mr Ilsley said that in many areas where acute local shortages now exist consumers had failed to act upon the emphatic and repeated warnings of the coal administrator that they take delivery of the coal during the summer months and the special arrangements for the financing such purchases through banks

Ship Losses Off Africa Were Less Than Expected

London.—British naval losses in the gigantic Allied landing operations in Northwest Africa were the small aircraft carrier Avenger, an anti-aircraft escort ship, two destroyers, a corvette, two cutters, a sloop, a depot ship and a minesweeper, A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, told the House of Commons.

The Netherlands navy lost one destroyer

The Avenger was a converted former U.S. motor freighter, the 17,500-ton Flo Hudson. She was turned over to Britain by U.S. after her conversion from a merchant ship

Our naval losses were considerably less than had been expected and with regard to the scale of the operations are considered light," Alexander said "They are far less than the enemy claimed"

An account of attacks on enemy submarines are not yet complete, Alexander said but he commented: "It is already known that more than 30 attacks caused destruction of or damage to U-boats"

The committee had for the first time a torpedo plane had torpedoed a submarine

The British destroyers lost were the Martin and the Broke The corvette was the Gardenia and the sloop was the Ibis. The depot ship was the Hecla The aircraft escort ship was the Tynwald and the Netherlands destroyer was the Isaac Sweers

He went on to explain that the Allied North African force sailed in three units

One sailed from U.S. for Casablanca, on the Atlantic coast Two sailed from Britain for Algeria and Oran

"The convoys contained not only British and Allied Arcan merchtmen but Belgian, Danish, Dutch, Norwegian and Polish boats," Alexander said

British navy escorts were assisted by Canadian corvettes and Polish, Dutch and Norwegian warships, he revealed.

"Naval planes gave protection to the landings and secured such dominance over air fields that the R A F and U S air force were able to land convoys of planes soon after beds had been reached by troops," Alexander said

Alexander said submarine attacks in the North African zone had slackened a little but, he added, the Allies had to keep their forces supplied by sea and losses must be expected

He refused to give merchant ship losses

I prefer that the enemy should continue to rely on false reports," he said

Eighty-two of the 220 crew members of the Netherlands destroyer Isaac Sweers, sunk in the North African landing operations, were saved Aneta news agency announced.

CHASING SUBS

Canadian Navy And Aircraft Get Credit

Ottawa R.C.A.F. planes have attached many enemy submarines in Canadian coastal waters since August 1941, and a large number of the attacks are presumed to have been successful, in varying degree," Air Minister Howe announced

Some of the U-boats are "presumed to have been damaged at least to an extent where crews are badly shaken up," said an air force statement issued on behalf of Air Marshal Power

And some of the damaged submarines it is presumed, were "severely damaged so as to be doubtful if they were able to return to their bases

Mr. Power did not specifically claim a 'kill' by air force planes attacking submarines but he did say that the R.C.A.F. estimate of damage done to U-boats was "of anything a minimum appraisal of our success"

The statement was one of the occasional guarded utterances of submarine warfare which the Canadian naval and air authorities permit. It came about a week after disclosure by the navy of two U-boat sinkings — one by the destroyer Skeena and corvette Weyakwin, the other by the destroyer St Croix

Here we are again friends with more notes and news of interest to radio listeners.

The government has decorations and awards for the men who check in dangerous feats of valor on the dangerous fronts of the Big Job, and the nation contributes its admiration and respect along with the awards. But what about the women throughout the country who are quietly, and without thought of reward, meeting new and difficult conditions and doing it in a way that turns their lives into outstanding examples of gallantry in daily living. The "Canadian Housewife" program believes that these heroines who make such a contribution in just living the way they do, should not go wholly unsung. An award of Honor, in the form of a bouquet of red and white carnations, for outstanding gallantry in daily living, is daily red by special messenger while the program is going on, to some Canadian or American woman who is setting an example for the rest of us to profit by. Listen to this outstanding debate at 8.15 a.m on Tuesday and Thursday over CJCA.

Your old friends the Happy Gang are on hand every week day with their usual ration of fun and nonsense. Eddie Allan's rendition of the popular ballads of this war is something you won't want to miss, and the rest of the Gang are right in there pitching for Canada. One of the special undertakings of this group is to look after the Merchant Navy. As you know the Merchant ships are not allowed to have radios on board and the Happy Gang have supplied record players and quantities of recordings to help the crews pass their free hours happily. Listen to the Happy Gang each week-day at 11.15 a.m. over CJCA.

THE CHURCH'S SACRAMENTS

Being the second of the Advent sermons entitled "The Catholic Church" being preached in Clandonald Parish church by the Rev. F.A. Peake, L. Th., vicar.

We have defined the Christian Church as the fellowship of Christ's faithful followers banded together in a Divine Society founded by our Blessed Lord and headed by Him. In any society it is necessary to have some means of identification. To this end we have the sacraments. I need not remind you that the simple definition of a sacrament is 'the outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grace.' Art. XXV has this to say about them:

"Sacraments ordained of Christ be not only badges or tokens of Christian men's profession, but rather they be certain sure witnesses, and effectual signs of grace, and God's good will towards us, by the which he doth invisibly work in us, and doth not only quicken, but also strengthen and confirm our faith in him."

First of all then, the sacraments are badges or tokens of our profession; signs displayed before the whole world proclaiming that we are committed to the Cause of Christ. Originally the word 'sacramentum' meant the military oath of allegiance but in the early days of the Christian Church a North African writer describes the Christian as 'enlisted in the service of Christ,' and his baptismal vow corresponding to the oath by which the Roman soldier bound himself to obedience.

To the oath of allegiance there was also an outward sign, the soldier was stamped or branded. So, in the Sacrament of Baptism we have the outward and visible sign. In Holy Baptism, the water and invocation of the Trinity, in Holy Communion, the elements of bread and wine; in Holy Matrimony, the ring; and so on.

Thus mortally and visibly
We seal thee for his own;
And may the brow that wears his crown
Hereafter share his crown.

If the sacraments stopped short there; if they meant no more than a badge or label they would have no more value than a rubber stamp or membership card. Sometimes, you will remember, they have been regarded as little more than tests of orthodoxy. But the sacraments go beyond that; they have another purpose. They are, the article reminds us "sure witnesses and effectual means of grace." Their real purpose is to draw us near to God and to make God real to us. As we receive the Sacraments we receive also grace and strength and support to live our lives as God would have us live them. By them we receive knowledge and inspiration. In the Sacraments the emphasis is not upon what we do but upon what God does. If we waited until we were worthy then we should never receive them, but God is merciful, as St. Matthew reminds us, "he maketh his sun to shine upon the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain upon the just and upon the unjust," and he offers his sacraments alike to the wicked and the virtuous, knowing very well that they shall be sincerely sorry for their sins.

Concerning the number of the Sacraments, the Church teaches that there are two "Sacraments of the Gospel" and five other rites "commonly called sacraments". Each in every case in its there is provided a means of grace. As we stand upon the threshold of manhood or womanhood there is Confirmation with its gifts of the Holy Spirit's strength to face the problems of the world; or as one

(Too late for last week)

The cold weather still holds away. Miss Walters' car is still in the large snow drift in front of the school and Christmas still comes closer every day.

On Tuesday evening of the 24th of November, Mr. and Mrs. Gillies had an dinner guests Mr. and Mrs. L. Bowser, Miss B Walters, Mr. H Dunn and Ronnie, Miss L. Bowser and Miss Hilda Anderson. The occasion being Miss Betty Gillies' birthday.

Miss Lila Bowser left for Edmonton and the coast for the winter months stopping with relatives and friends.

We are sorry to hear of Jean Wells' illness and they are beautiful. Be sure to get tickets if you haven't them now. There are to be ten draws ranging from cushion covers to what have you.

Mrs. George Ronachan is in charge of the donations for the Red Shield White Elephant sale. Be sure to get your donations in before Jan. 25th. A community letter to be sent to the boys in the Armed Forces was read by the Secretary. As soon as they are investigated and the addresses are known they will be spending on their way to give cheer to the boys.

The War Services League met at the home of Mrs George Ronachan. Five prizes for the raffle were handed out.

Mrs. Wells was taken by Dr. Weather to the Islay hospital and hopes to come home on Wednesday of this week. Best wishes for a speedy recovery come from all the community.

The children are very busy practicing for the concert. By the sounds of the laughs every now and then it promises to be very good. The children are sorry that the poor roads have made it impossible for Rev Bell of Islay to come every Thursday afternoon for Sunday school. These periods were looked forward to by the children and much benefit was received by all.

Overseas Farmers Form Problems

Questioned by certain Canadian producers whether or not the Wartime Prices and Trade Board includes any agriculturist familiar with farm problems, an officer of the Board points out that Hon. J. G. Taggart, Foods Administrator, is an outstanding authority on farming. He attended Agricultural colleges by the Maritimes and Ontario, taught Agriculture in Alberta, founded an experimental farm in Saskatchewan where he was Minister of Agriculture, as well as being a successful farmer in his own right.

Deputy Foods Administrator is Mr. F. S. Grisdale of Olds, who graduated in Agriculture from McGill in 1911, was assistant superintendent of an experimental farm at Lethbridge and associate editor of the Nor-West Farmer. He was a former minister of Agriculture for Alberta

Red Cross Notes

Excerpts from an article sent to us by our National office, were released through the Toronto Star Syndicate on Oct. 22nd:

London, Ont. — Canadian soldiers captured at Dieppe and now languishing in German prison camps, manacled and in chains, are going to have a happier Christmas than was at first thought. A special steamer chugged from a British port this morning on its Santa Claus trips laden with as many comforts and goodies as any reindeered sled slithering out the front doors of any Canadian store. It is the second stage in a whirlwind drive started last week end which won't end until thousands of miles of sea and land have been traversed, bringing Canadian gifts to camps where Canadian sons face a Christmas in chains.

1,000 boxes, each weighing 11 lbs., containing 23 different items were shipped. Every box contained three pairs of socks, turtle neck sweater, scarf, balaclava helmet, underwear, pyjamas, shirts, towlies, shaving kit, toothbrush and comb, three handkerchiefs, chewing gum and a comfort bag containing 14 items such as soap, tooth brush and other toiletries. Every item impregnated with love and longing from those at home which had been stitched into the garments and woven into the wool knitted by hundreds or kind hands in Red Cross groups throughout the Dominion.

In addition to the box of comforts, the Canadian Red Cross are providing 1,500 manacled men with cigarettes and foodstuffs. To give the Dieppe heroes alone that Xmas cheer has set back the Canadian Red Cross more than $25,000, but said Col. Scott, the Overseas Commissioner, "What does money count when the happiness of those grand boys is at stake."

As the Red Cross workers packed those 40,000 articles during the week end the Bishop of Southampton, from whose diocese a historic expedition set out for Dieppe, was conducting in that famous church, St. Martin's in the Fields, under the shadow of Nelson's column, a service of remembrance for prisoners of war. As the church, full of two thousand prisoners' relatives, knelt in tearful prayer, 20 Red Cross workers were coupling faith and work. And as the Bishop prayed—"God be with those in enemy prison camps especially those in chains."—the first carload of cases left Canadian Red Cross headquarters for the docks.

WAR SAVINGS STAMPS AND CERTIFICATES FOR GIFTS

Mailed in Special Christmas Cards

OTTAWA. — Thousands of Canadians will find it easier to give War Savings Stamps and Certificates as Xmas gifts this month, as the result of plans now completed by the National War Finance Committee.

Through the co-operation of the Canadian Greeting Card industry, a whole series of 1942 War Savings Stamps Christmas cards has been produced in striking designs. All cards are printed in five colors, and the inside pages are finished in color, with a place for affixing War Savings Stamps, which may be purchased at the stores carrying the cards. To aid them, the National War Finance Committee has produced Xmas greeting cards in two attractive styles for War Savings Certificates. These, with envelopes to fit, are to be obtained free of charge at Post Offices and banks throughout Canada. War Savings Stamps and Certificates, to be placed inside the cards, may be purchased over the counter at the same time, and mailed immediately.

This undertaking is being carried out by the National Committee in the belief that the exchange of Xmas greeting cards is more necessary to public morale in wartime than in time of peace.

SUGGESTED MAILING DATES —

Dec. 18—British Columbia

Equipment Cut, Repairs Increased

According to farm equipment administrator H.H. Bloom, W.P.T.B. the 1943 output of new farm machinery in Canada will be 25 per cent of the tonnage distributed in 1940. But provision is being made for manufacture of 105 per cent of the repair replacement parts distributed in 1940. A good reader claims that the handiest fire wasn't the one recorded in the Standard last week wherein a car caught fire right behind the telephone office within a few feet of the firehall, but actually took place right in the fire hall last year, when Chief Robinson's own easy chair was found ablaze. The fire was recorded in the Standard at the time but had slipped the reporter's memory when writing up the new "handiest blaze"

Did you ever hear someone say the reason he didn't go to church was that there were so many different denominations, so many different ways, so many different churches? Well all the great denominations in Canada and the United States have gone hands in a mighty Christian Cause. There has been as a result an increase in the effectiveness of Christian teaching. Have you felt it? Many have who are settlers in their own churches. It is making for stronger faith and more glorious fellowship everywhere in the family. When the bells at the church ring out in your community, don't allow sweet their invitation to go to church. Go to church, that day and every Sunday.

The Canadian Navy

"NAVY WEEK" sponsored by the Navy League of Canada, in co-operation with the Department of Naval Services, was observed in Canada a short time ago. The purpose of this was, in the words of the president, D. H. Gibson, "to bring before all Canadians the vital importance to the British Empire of the maintenance of naval supremacy, upon which depends its trade Empire and national existence, and of proclaiming the tremendous contribution which the personnel of the Canadian Navy and the merchant ships are now making in this Titanic conflict of right over might." At this time, many interesting facts concerning Canada's sea power were brought before the public by the Navy League. At no time since the outbreak of war has there been any doubt as to the importance of the navy in the conflict. The movement of troops and supplies to the many fighting fronts has been successfully accomplished in spite of tremendous enemy opposition, and it is known to us, and to the enemy, that there will be no Axis victory as long as the ships of the Allied nations freely ride the seas.

* * * * *

Figures Are Of Interest

Figures published by the Navy League show that great expansion has taken place in the Canadian navy since the beginning of the war. At that time Canada had only eleven fighting ships and less than eighteen hundred men. Now it consists of more than three hundred ships and over forty thousand men. In addition, our merchant navy has expanded greatly and is playing a most important part in carrying supplies to Britain and to the fighting fronts, and in bringing essential supplies back to Canada. This great increase in the numbers of both our fighting and merchant ships has involved much expansion in the Canadian shipbuilding industry. It is estimated that there are now more than forty thousand workers employed in building and that this is the largest single industry operating in Canada at the present time. While it is estimated that our navy is now twenty times as strong as it was when the war began, still greater expansion is planned, and as long as the war lasts it will continue to grow in size and power.

* * * * *

Lengthy Routes Are Protected

Something of the tremendous tasks undertaken by the navy are emphasized by reviewing the length of the routes our ships travel and protect. The coasts of Canada on the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans, total some twelve thousand miles. The convoy is in both these oceans and constant vigilance by the navy in all these coastal waters is essential. In addition our navy has taken its place with the other free nations in protecting the long routes to the fighting fronts. From Halifax to Liverpool, the distance is three thousand miles; from Halifax to Alexandria, in Egypt, it is four thousand five hundred miles; from Halifax to the port of Murmansk, in Russia, it is over four thousand miles; and from Vancouver to Melbourne, Australia, it is over seven thousand, three hundred miles. Canadian ships operate in all these waters and have added many chapters to the already glorious history of our navy. The sailors who man these ships are from all parts of Canada; many of them are from the Prairies. To all of them we owe gratitude and admiration for helping to make our navy an important part of the great plan for victory for the United Nations.

The King Understands

That Mothers Attending Investitures Sometimes Have To Bring Children

In the dignified quiet of the Grand Hall at Buckingham Palace a piercing cry occasionally shrills above the soft background music of the Guards' string band as the King decorates men and women at an Investiture.

It is the protest of some hero's baby, thoroughly bored with its first Royal ceremonial. Mother and child have to be escorted out to an anteroom by officials of the Lord Chamberlain while the infant is comforted.

Because such incidents jolt the smooth ritual of Court ceremonial responsible officials suggested to the King a rule forbidding babies in arms and young children.

But the King, knowing the difficulties of not-well-off mothers, who perhaps have nowhere to leave their children refused his sanction to the complete ban, sagely offered instead "suggestion" that babies are not "encouraged" at Investitures, leaving it possible for mothers to bring their children when necessary though reducing the probable number of future squawks.—British News-Review

Ants As Miners

Garnets Taken From The Soil Of New Mexico

Ants have mined garnets and peridots in New Mexico for centuries, according to Prof. Stuart A. Northrop of the University of New Mexico.

Northrop, head of the university's department of geology, said the ants, which work down through the volcanic soil of the region, sometimes bring up stones worth from $50 to $100 as gems.

Some of the finest garnets in the world have been collected from ant hills near Fort Defiance on the Navajo Indian reservation, the professor said. Fine gem peridots also have come from this region, Northrop said.

According to the Pathfinder, Premier Vidkun Quisling has forbidden Norwegian congregations to sing the Lutheran hymn, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," according to Norwegian sources in London. Reason: It contains the line "and were the world with devils filled all watching to devour us." Norwegians, Quisling and his masters feel, have some particular persons in mind when they sing this line

NEWS of your Army

From Directorate of Public Relations Army

To meet the increasing demand for junior officers for Canada's expanding Active Army two temporary officers' training centres have been established, National Defence Headquarters has announced. Both have started, one at Three Rivers, Quebec and the other at Camp Borden, Ontario. While the training will be identical with that given at Brockville, Ont., and Gordon Head, B.C., the new centres will only serve as temporary facilities pending completion of projected expansion of accommodations at the two regular centres. Infantry candidates will train at Three Rivers under a staff headed by Lieut.-Col. W. W. Mathers, while the Camp Borden school will specialize in instruction for Canadian Armored Corps officers. Chief instructor will be Major W. E. Dunbar Leather clad officers' canes were presented by Lieut.-General Kenneth Stuart, Chief of the General Staff at the Manic Training Centre at St. Jerome, General Stuart urged the embryo officers to study the characters and traits of their troops thoroughly as it was a great privilege to lead men.

Arrangements are being made for uniformed and for elementary military training stressing citizenship, civilian protection, health education, physical training, map reading, radio and other valuable subjects. Junior cadets will be from 12 to 14 years of age and seniors must be 15 years of age as of Sept. 1 of the current school year.

The age limit on recruits has been raised from 50 to 55 years and only those who served in the services from 1914 to 1918 will be accepted, providing they are medically fit.

Hurt To Their Pride

When Japanese Suffer Defeat It Is Hard To Take

The Japanese are a naively proud people, who consider themselves invincible. They have never been defeated, they tell themselves; hence, they cannot be defeated. Defeat is inadmissible. For them, there can be no such thing. Thus, the Coral Sea and Midway are where were hard for them to take. It was not only the ships they lost there, but the hurt to their pride. Pride, "face," as it is called in Eastern Asia, is the same, to them, as honor. It must be maintained at any cost. So the Rokomons have to be retaken. The despised Yankee must be driven out of Guadalcanal, or a shame will rankle in every Japanese heart.—Chicago Daily News.

WANTED — A CAPABLE HOUSEkeeper for farm home. No children nor outside work. Duties to commence Dec. 15, 1942. Apply Mrs. MACHELL, Tolland. 52-4

STATEMENT RE FARMERS' INCOME TAX

OTTAWA. — Interviewed by representatives of the Federation of Agriculture and the Farm Press, the Hon. Colin Gibson, Minister of National Revenue stated that while farm businesses, like all other businesses were required by law to make the first payment on their 1942 Income Tax on Oct. 15th, his Department was fully aware of the special difficulties farmers would face, and had been instructed to give them some leeway and all possible assistance.

Mr. Gibson explained that the levying of the Income Tax base to 7160 for single men and $1200 for married men, Stewart, K.C., of Halifax and Charles Payne, Mountain Park miners' union official, hopes are entertained that an end will be made in the current crisis in coal deliveries. Hon. N. E. Tanner minister of lands and mines in his mining ministrations as he has his department can best co-operate with the board. Meanwhile, the mines branch is issuing certificates to new miners so that production at the coal face can be speeded up

* * *

An important factor in the current coal crisis is the fact that Edmonton district coal mines are operating this year on an average of 25 per cent shorter than last. This was announced by A.A. Miller, chief mines inspector for the province. Labor shortage is prevalent in every mining area but one, he said. One year ago there were 9,076 miners above and below ground. This year there are 7,000. A total of 81 provisional mine certificates had been issued up to this week as a means to ease the situation.

Among the usual casualties of to the factors, who collectively shows a decline in lawful living during periods of national stress in Alberta, however, reports Charles H. Hill, chief of the welfare and protective division, on the decrease. His law enforcement predominating in Canada and Edmonton. For the year to the 30th of June this year there were 837 cases compared with 1,111 cases in the same period of last year. Major Hill also shows a definite decline of numbers

By M. G. L. Strange
Director, Head-office Department
Searle Grain Co. Ltd

WHAT ABOUT NEXT YEAR'S CROP?

Many farmers are worrying about the agricultural policy for next year on AAE. I think there will be left over large quantities of wheat and coarse grains on farms and in elevators. Some suggest that an acreage on the prairies should be seeded, and that all farming families should be maintained for a year by the State. For my part I think this is wrong. The Axis countries suffer from a lack of food but Problems has given us an abundance. We should accept it with thankfulness and not try deliberately to decrease Nature's bounty. So I for one suggest that we should sow this next spring the same acreage that was seeded last spring. Far better to have too much food in war time, even though it creates some problems, than to run the risk of a scarcity which we might have if only two drought years occur again on this continent.

Nobody knows how much additional grain will be exported to Spain, Portugal, Russia, Turkey and perhaps to Italy, Albania, Yugo Slavia and Greece. The United States certainly will require from us quantities of course grains this coming year for their extended livestock program. All in all, then, I for one say: Sow All the Acreage We Can in Wartime Let Us Run No Risks.

Following factors have tended to decrease supply and increase demand. Peru will have to import an estimated 7,500,000 to 8,500,000 bushels of wheat this year.—Production of bread grain in the occupied countries of Europe has been further decreased.—Mexico's wheat crop is estimated to [illegible] compared with [illegible] Argentine's [illegible] year Britain's record crop [illegible] harvested and farmers have been organized to increase [illegible]

CASH SURPLUS REPORTED

Hon. Solon E. Low, the provincial treasurer, reported an overall cash surplus of $2,650,237 for the six months ending Sept. 30, compared with a $2,367,154 surplus for the corresponding period of 1941. Increases to Old Age Pensioners increased payments on this account by $264,940 and savings certificates valued at $335,271 were redeemed. Cash in the bank totalled $3,708,936, an increase of $467,832 over the previous year's figures for the same period. Mr. Low reported also a net decrease of $2,778,151 in the net funded and unfunded debt of Alberta.

In another broadcast address delivered in Calgary and Edmonton, Premier Aberhart discusses full pay and subsistence allowances for service men and their dependents for three years after the war or until they are established properly in civil life. He said further that such men should, in addition, receive a monthly income from the state, "irrespective of any income they may earn". Replying to those who would ask "Where is the money to come from?" the premier said, "Have we not already paid full pay and allowances for more than 3 years? — and at the same time produced billions of dollars worth of war materials to hurl at the Nazis. Why should anyone doubt that we could continue to pay our fighting forces, when our industries will be changed from war time to peace time produce and we are supplied by law to make the first payment on their 1942 Income Tax on Oct. 15th, his Department was fully aware of the special difficulties farmers would face, and had been instructed to give them some leeway and all possible assistance.

TO RE-ORGANIZE MUNICIPAL AREAS

Re-organization of the Alberta municipal areas will be carried out according to the mandate given the government, it was stated by Hon. Lucien Maynard, the minister of municipal affairs, when he addressed delegates to the Alberta Association of Municipal District in Calgary last week. Plans are being worked out to create three more larger units, he said but added it was doubtful that this would be accomplished before the New Year. In his address last month later dealt specifically with objections to the program and pointed to the advantages gained by those now resident in reorganized districts

* * *

In a broadcast address this week Premier Aberhart spoke on the need for adequate health insurance, health preservation and a state medical scheme non contributory to citizens hampered as little as possible by red tape and bureaucracy. Later, while the Beveridge contributory measures proposals were published, the Premier commented on them. While agreeing with the objectives he claimed that the taxation basis of the whole scheme, which presupposed that "all will exist among the people, would in no more than redistribute poverty. He said reports showed that benefits would be paid on an actuarial basis, "in other words, on the basis of the amount of money collected and on hand rather than on the basis of the specific needs and requirements of the people". This meant, the Premier said, that benefits would be paid only while the money lasted. "However, we should be glad at least that the Beveridge scheme has had the result of focussing attention on this vitally important issue. I am wholly convinced that it will have the effect of stimulating us all in this country to give more thought to this question and to take action in the matter — doing so with vision, courage and wholesome respect for realities and for the freedoms for which we are fighting."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

DECEMBER 13

THE VALUE OF THE CHURCH TO THE MORAL ORDER

Golden text: Ye are the salt of the earth, Ye are the light of the world Matthew 5 13, 14.

Lesson Matthew 5 13-16, Mark 12. 13-17; Luke 8 27-38; Acts 8 4-8; Romans 13 1-10, I Peter 2 13-17

Devotional Reading Philippians 4, 6-9.

Explanations and Comments

Responsibilities of Christians, Matthew 5.13-16. "Ye are the salt of the earth." Jesus declared Salt was used in sacrifice by Jews, Greeks and Romans, and was an emblem of purity and of the influence of a holy life upon others. Salt preserves from corruption. By his statement Jesus was reminding his disciples that it was their duty to keep others from moral corruption. "But," continued Jesus, "if the salt have lost its savor, wherewith shall it be salted?" His disciples must beware lest they lose their Christian character and become as useless as the kingdom as salt, that has become good for nothing and is cast out upon the ground and trodden under foot of men.

By yet another figure Jesus stressed the service that his disciples should render: "Ye are the light of the world." They were conspicuous witnesses for him, comparable to a city that could not be hid, for it was built upon a rock. It has often been suggested that from the Horns of Hattin, where the Sermon on the Mount has been located, Jesus may have pointed as he spoke to Safed, a conspicuous hill-top city

Ye are the light of the world, but Christ is the great Light from whom you receive your light; and, as Phillips Brooks reminds us, the soul must stand in the sunlight to bear witness to the sun.

Jesus emphasized his thought by referring to utensils common to every house, the lamp and the bushel. The bushel served various purposes besides that of a measure. It was the little measure which the family gathered, and on top of it, not under it, the lamp was placed. "Neither do men light a lamp and put it under the bushel, but on the stand, and it shineth unto all that are in the house" was Jesus' lesson.

About 10,000 People in Britain Trying To Master Language

It's estimated that about 10,000 people, young and old, in Britain today are studying the Russian language. Another example of the British's ability to stand punishment. That's why all nazi bombs fail unlikely, for finding 31 letters instead of 26 in the alphabet; that half the substantives are feminine; that which one is acquainted, and that some of the others do not carry the sound which one has always attributed to them, is discouraging; but the attempt is evidence of the determination of the British people to learn so they can to prevent future misunderstandings between the two countries.—News, Toronto.

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

EXERCISE FOR HEALTH

"Balance exercise with rest for good health," says Dr. Stanley Bryson in the current issue of Health, published by the Health League of Canada. His article entitled "Exercise for Health" declares that physical activity in the form of games and sports, gymnastics, swimming, dancing and in a milder form, in walking and hiking, is a most valuable way of enabling a person to keep healthy or to regain his health.

Dr. Ryerson goes on to say that at rest, with a heart rate of 70 a minute, the total blood in the body flows through the heart arteries, capillaries, veins and back to the heart, in about 100 seconds. During vigorous exercise, the blood completes this cycle in about 20 seconds, with the result that the cells of all the organs and tissues of the body have blood brought to them in their capillaries five times as often during exercise as during rest. In consequence of which, the quality of the cell's structure is made better and the efficiency of their function is improved.

"The practice of some people," he says, "of never walking upstairs or hurrying or participating in any form of physical exercise with the object of conserving the heart, is not a justifiable one, for the lack of any increase in the blood flow to its muscular wall is more apt to lead to its weakness and possible disaster than the habit of making these efforts periodically as a means of maintaining the quality of the heart muscle in good condition."

He points out that the increase in the demand of the active muscles for more oxygen in the blood coming to them makes a person breathe more rapidly and more deeply thereby inducing more air into the lungs and using more lung alveoli and at the same time causing a greater flow through the capillaries in their walls. This increased expansion of the lung tissue and increased functional activity of the substances in them result in improvement in the quality of the lung structure.

Combined with adequate rest, physical exercise, emphasizes Dr Ryerson, benefits every part of the human body. It also stimulates the brain, keeping the body and mind as a total unity. Its purpose is physical all first, but, subsequently the harmonizing, controlling and cultivating the body; it can awaken and discipline the human mind and spirit.

Facts about Britain

Chicago Paper Reminds Its Readers Of What Britain Has Done

A very large British army, with American air co-operation, is engaged in an attack in the Libyan desert that may lead to the turning point in the war

The British Navy maintains the blockade of Europe and, like our own, is on duty around the globe

Britain must be prepared to stand off a vast new German air blitz, which, if successful, could be followed by an invasion that would defeat Britain and us. Thus she has to keep an army at home.

Though American civilian sacrifices are mounting, we are still "unbloodied in war" as compared with the British civilians. The reduction in our standard of living is paltry, and our taxes are light, in comparison with theirs.

We shall all do well to remember those facts and remember the long months during which Britain held off the Nazis alone when next a rumor-mongers or a Britain hating newspaper tells us that the English are holding back to let the Americans do it Chicago Sun

The Dome Of St. Paul's

Architect Wanted Open Space in Which Multitudes Could Worship

Canon S. A. Alexander, in the second of a series of lectures on "St. Paul's and its Builder," said it required a mind of somewhat daring and adventurous outlook to plant the dome on what has been described as a hill of sand. Probably no modern architect would have had the courage to do it. Yet, in spite of everything, the dome, preserved by a great and strenuous effort, stood, in the judgment of the experts, even stronger today than it was when it was originally built. Wren's decision to make a dome the central and dominant fact in this cathedral was undoubtedly religious. He wanted a vast open space in which multitudes could join in great acts of worship. Only a dome would make possible the services of the church on the scale which reflected his religious thought —a dome which could be—not only the centre of London but the central and dominant fact of the church itself.

THE WISHING WELL

Some people are so mean they'd even cheat a wishing well. For the loss of a penny you could wish for a fortune, in the wishing well set up by the 124th Infantry at Camp Benning in Georgia, U.S.A. So far, 800 pennies have been taken from the well—and 35 slugs.

PRIVATE POTATO PROVIDES PUNCH IN DAILY EATING

Private Potato feels that he's a very important member of the army, as he charges over the top; he's also important on the home front.

Nutrition Services in Canada's Official Food Rules, says that every one needs at least one serving of potatoes daily

Potatoes provide Iron, the B Vitamines, and are one of the cheapest and most reliable sources of Vitamin C, besides being a good source of energy.

When potatoes are peeled before cooking much of their mineral and vitamin content may be lost. Therefore it is sound commonsense to cook them in the skins whenever possible

The British people have learned this lesson, as the following little verse, which has become very popular there in recent months, shows.

Those who have the will to win
Eat potatoes in the skin.
For they know the night of peelings

Early Christmas Mailing

Postal Service faces a supreme testing in Canada this Christmas. As the "peak" season draws nigh the mail volume, which is rapidly rising in every Post Office will reach flood proportions. This year the Post Office is preparing for the most hectic rush season in its entire history. It is laying its plans to prevent the flood of mail getting beyond control and the Postal Service being overwhelmed by letters, cards, papers and heavy magazine pouring in at the last minute for local delivery.

This year the Post Office is making a big piece of ginger cake out of the pantry." Johnny blushed guiltily, and fidgetted around.

Today Canada's Postmaster General, Hon. William P. Mulock, K.C., M.P., appealed to the public for their utmost co-operation in "Early Mailing", which he stated is an absolute necessity if delivery is to be made in time for Christmas. He urged every citizen to pay full heed to Post Office's admonition that all mail for local delivery should be posted before Dec. 24—the earlier the better—and that proportionate allowance should be made for mail addressed to out-of-town destinations.

"Mail Early" this Christmas is more than a slogan. It is an absolute necessity. The impact of war conditions upon Postal Service has been terrific. The volume of mail which last year reached all-time proportions, still continues to increase and will surpass all previous records this Xmas. An indication of what can be expected when the local rush begins was given during the recent despatch overseas of the Christmas mail to the Armed Services — when over four times greater volume was handled than during the same period in 1941.

A huge quantity of Christmas domestic mail must be handled in a very limited pre-Christmas period and to complicate the task of the Post Office is the fact that this year there will be, before, at many places there is a shortage of skilled staff, due to enlistments. Manpower in some cases will High school students will be employed to help during the rush period.

Difficulties are increased also by lack of transportation facilities, as no acute shortage of space for mail exists on the railways as well as on ships. Everybody wants to get their gifts and greetings in time for Christmas and by mailing early you can help your Postal officials give you better mail service.

Last year in many places the mailing public failed to respond to postal appeals to mail in time and the result was that on the last day or two before Xmas, Post Offices were almost swamped in a last minute deluge of gifts and greetings. It was physically impossible, even with the added temporary help, to segregate, sort and deliver all mail by Christmas Day — many homes received their Christmas Good Wishes on the 27th and 28th of December. Citizens are asked to cooperate in preventing a recurrence by mailing early—not later than Dec. 20 for local delivery.

Winter Pig Feeding

(Experimental Farms News)

In the winter feeding of market hogs more care and attention are needed than in summer production. The pigs are generally housed under best natural conditions and there is not the same variety of feeds as in summer. Thus, management and feeding of the pigs are important items. Management includes the provision of dry, clean, reasonably warm quarters with room for exercise. Feeding must take into consideration the fact that the pigs only get what they are fed and thus for proper development a complete, properly balanced feed mixture is necessary states Edward H. Fraser, Animal Husbandry Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa

Housing of the winter pigs need not be elaborate However, it is essential that the pigs have a dry, warm, draught-free bed. In a warm barn the bed may be a corner of the pen which is boarded off so that it can be properly bedded with straw. In a cold barn, allowing both for desirable in order that the pigs have a warm place to sleep. The wise feeder also makes sure that sufficient pen space is available for the pigs to exercise freely

Proper feeding seems to be the most important item in successful winter pig production. First of all, a suitable well balanced feed mixture is necessary and care must be taken in feeding it. Under most conditions the common grains, oats, barley and wheat will be the basis of the feed mixture Wheat is being more commonly fed now in feed mixtures for market hogs, in order to make rapid and economical gains, feed a protein supplement with the grain. Skimmilk and buttermilk are ideal for this purpose and up to three pounds are fed with each pound of grain. Lacking milk tankage, fish meal or a mixed protein concentrate can be used.

Minerals and vitamins are also important in winter pig feeding. A simple mineral mixture comprised mainly, of limestone, bone meal and salt can be mixed with the grain mixture. Because green feed is not available for winter feeding, alfalfa or clover hay or meal, in small amounts will prove useful. As a precaution for rickets, cod liver or pilchard oil is recommended. These oils will also prove effective as a cure for stiffness and crippling. Improper, in this and in fact all matters concerning hog feeding, it will pay better to feed a balanced ration and keep the pigs in good health rather than to use corrective after trouble has developed.

Live Stock Population Grows

Ever since the war began the importance of live stock production has been growing. Each year since 1939 live stock producers have expanded their holdings, and marketings of live stock have soared in some cases, to record numbers.

According to data compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in co-operation with the Extension Branch, Department of Agriculture, the total number of cattle, sheep, and swine on Alberta farms on June 1st, 1942, was 610,000 in excess of the number a year ago. The following table gives the population of the various classes of live stock as of June 1st, 1941 and 1942:

Cattle	1,344,850	1,462,000
Sheep	702,451	828,000
Swine	1,662,000	2,092,000
Total	3,709,301	4,390,000

Further increases are expected. The new bacon contract calls for deliveries amounting to 675,000,000 lbs. or an increase of 15½% over the last contract. Alberta sheep men have been asked to increase their sheep by 200,000 head as their part of the Canadian quota of 1,000,000 more sheep in 1943. Domestic requirements, and a greater demand from the United States has provided a larger market for beef cattle, while the demand for more dairy products has expanded the number of cows being milked

SINGLE CAR PLATE SYSTEM NEXT YEAR

Single license plates will be issued to motor car owners in Alberta for the 1943-44 license year which opens April 1, next, according to information received from the provincial authorities by the Alberta Motor Association.

The single plate will be perforated so as to provide for the attachment of a 1944 tab. All tabs will be done in the interests of conservation made necessary by wartime conditions.

Several other provinces have adopted the single plate system to cope with the curtailments made necessary by the war and to carry out the policy of conservation of materials.

The new plates will have black numerals on an orange background, contrasting with those of the present year which have a color combination of white on dark blue

In the United States, only five states will change the plates from the 1942 color scheme. Some have decided to use windshield stickers, date tabs and wooden license plates.

Where a change is not part of the state will use a permanent license plate, to which a small strip or tab will be attached showing the year date.

RECONSTRUCTION CONFERENCE CALLED BY HON. W. ASHTHAST

Victory Slogan Is Keynote

"Prepare for Victory — not later — but now." This is to be the keynote of a dynamic two-day conference on problems of Post-War Reconstruction, Hon. William Aberhart, Premier of Alberta, announced today. Following preliminary meetings to be held in Calgary on December 14 and 15, the main conference opens at the McDougall Methodist Church, Edmonton, Dec. 16th, and continues daily until Friday, December 18.

In announcing the conference, Premier Aberhart stated that its purpose is "to discuss problems of post-war reconstruction." "It is the first step," he added, "in answering the greatest challenge in Canada's History."

The complete statement of Alberta's Premier is as follows:

"In obedience to a growing demand from individuals and groups across Canada it is our intention to hold a Post-War Reconstruction Conference in Edmonton, December 15, 16, 17, 18. As the name implies, the purpose of the Conference will be to discuss problems of post-War Reconstruction and to give the people of Canada an opportunity to declare their ideas as to the course Canada should take after the war.

"It is the conviction of many Canadian citizens, I am sure, that we should prepare for Victory not later —but now! Aside from winning the military conflict, the problems of Post War Reconstruction are the greatest challenge in Canada's History. In fact the solution of these problems forms a vital part of our Victory; for without their solution peace is impossible.

"It is because of the nature of the matters that the Post-War Reconstruction Conference is being called Preliminary meetings will be held in the auditorium of the Bible Institute, Calgary, on Monday, Dec. 14, and on Tuesday, Dec. 15. These discussions will pave the way for the main conference which opens in the McDougall church, Edmonton, on Dec. 16. Meetings will be held every afternoon and evening through Friday, with eminent speakers present to lead the discussions.

"Remember the slogan! Prepare for Victory—not later—but now! We need immediate and effective action Let's get busy."

DOUBLE LIFE OF TIRES AND CAR EQUIPMENT

Tires will give twice their mileage when cars are operated at a reasonable rate of speed, and in addition, high speed driving can double gasoline consumption and increase the use of oil seven fold, according to officials of the Alberta Motor Association

The A.M.A. has renewed its appeal to motorists to exercise all possible methods of tire and fuel conservation, under wartime emergency conditions. Fast driving and its attendant evils, fast starting and stopping, are the greatest causes of excessive tire wear.

Motorists are urged to eliminate all unnecessary driving and budget the remaining mileage in their tires so that they can obtain the maximum amount of service out of present tire equipment

The life of cars and tires can be doubled and even tripled with proper attention and care

EFFECTIVE NOW

Prices of TEA, COFFEE AND ORANGES are reduced by law!

This action is taken in line with the Government's declared determination to stabilize living costs on a basis that is fair to all. It is a developing attack on the menace of inflation which arises out of wartime conditions. The prices of tea, coffee and oranges are now lowered by official order. Plans for reduction in the price of milk to the consumer are also under way and will be announced in the near future. The items chosen have been selected because of their important place in the weekly budget of every home in Canada.

TEA and COFFEE Effective now—the retail price of tea is reduced by 10c per pound and the retail price of coffee by 4c per pound below the recent lawful ceiling prices.

The table below indicates how the reduction of 10c per pound applies to less-than-pound packages; and is for purposes of illustration only.

Tea formerly selling by the pound at	$1.00	90c	85c
Must now sell at
per pound	90c	80c	75c
per 1-2 pound	45c	40c	38c
per 1-4 pound	24c	22c	21c
per 1-8 pound	13c	12c	11c

BULK TEA

The reduction in the maximum retail prices of bulk tea sold in quantities less than a pound should correspond to the reduction in retail prices for the small sizes of packaged tea.

TEA BAGS

Reductions in retail prices of tea packaged in tea bags must correspond to those made on packaged tea

ORANGES Oranges must be reduced to give consumers the benefit of the reduction in cost to retailers brought about by lower prices for the new crop, by seasonal removal of import duty (effective December 1st, this year) and by the removal of the War Exchange Tax. Oranges should sell at or below the September-October 1941 retail price levels

BE SURE THAT YOU GET THE FULL BENEFIT OF THESE REDUCTIONS

SPECIAL NOTICE TO RETAILERS:

Retailers will be compensated for any loss on present stocks—in order that these reductions may be enjoyed by the public immediately. Retailers should take inventory of their flour stocks of tea and coffee as of the close of business, Saturday, December 5th. They will shortly receive forms upon which to make their claims for compensation for losses on inventory due to these price reductions

Tales from the Training Centre

By Sgt. Sec Ward

How many times have we heard it said "The rmy life may be all right —but what about our women after the war is over?" Will they be their own sweet, fluffy selves, primping and posing at the thought of meeting a distinguished gentleman—or will they be tailored, matter-of-fact, discipline minded females?

This question was answered in no uncertain manner last week end right in your own C. W. A. C. Training Centre.

Dick Harris, Superintendent of the Can-Tex Drilling Co., with headquarters at Brooks, spent several days in the Vermilion oil field during the past week, sizing up the drilling conditions here.

FINE WORK REPORTED BY GANTON-WATSON RED CROSS

Re:- $410.50 — Complete 469 Garments

A meeting of the Ganton-Watson Red Cross sewing unit took place at the home of Mrs. H. G. Green of Woodvale on Dec. 9th. A pleasant and profitable afternoon was spent completing another quilt. A welcome donation of a pretty quilt was also received from the Tofield U.F.W.A. with many thanks. On Nov. 23rd a number of the men gathered together, and exercised their muscles by breaking up a tractor to be sold for salvage. Unfortunately, owing to the state of the roads, it has not been possible to haul it away. Thanks all the same, gentlemen, your efforts are appreciated. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. T. Preston of Tofield. This will be the annual meeting for election of new officers and the ladies also intend to work on a quilt. All members are asked to attend, if possible, and any others interested in this useful work will be very welcome. Since the Auxiliary was formed in January 1940 a total of 469 garments have been completed including women's and children's clothing of all sizes, garments for the armed forces and quilts. Distribution of various kinds have been organized to raise funds, and these, together with donations from neighbors and friends have enabled the sum of $110.50 to be forwarded to the Vermilion Branch.

The department officials were the guests of Vermilion board of trade at 6.30 p.m. at a dinner in the Elks hall. The delegation from the M.Ds. were also invited but owing to a heavy snowstorm and failing temperatures all had to leave for home immediately after the meeting.

In the spring an opportunity was presented to acquire an interest in some oil leases in the Battleview district of northern Alberta, which seemed well worth while in view of our commitment at present being limited to 625-acres in return for which we obtain petroleum and natural gas leases covering 1280 acres.

In consideration of a further $5000 we are to obtain a substantial interest in the first wells drilled.

Urges Farmers Review Machine Needs 1943

Implement Production Limited: — Repair Parts Rationed

In reviewing the needs of the farmers in line of new machinery for 1943, says W. A. Matsey, Farm Labor supervisor, Vermilion, it is imperative to realize the coming effect of rationing. The industrial implement production in Western Canada has been limited to the following quotas of the number of new machines produced in 1940. Here are the figures: Grain drill 15%; tractor plows 16%; one-way disc 32 and one-third per cent; Grain grinders 50%, Standard tractors 24%. Milking machines 100%; Field cultivators 30%

This means that 76 out of a 100 farmers who want new tractors will have to go without. You may be one of these farmers. Also, each farmer, who intends to buy a new machine, must prove his case on an essentially application form.

This brings up the urgency to recondition used machinery. Don't forget that repair parts are rationed also — so buy or order your repairs early. Too late will simply be too late.

To help the nation's war effort, five widows aged 56 old age pensioners in Scotland have given up their pensions.

War Manpower Chief Paul V. McNutt forecast that women will fill 80 per cent. of all war industry jobs in the United States by the end of 1943.

Netherlanders who take lessons in the German language are exempted from having their bicycles requisitioned by the German authorities, according to word reaching Stockholm.

The first Canadian-built Catalina amphibian plane, christened "Princess Alice" in honor of the wife of Canada's governor-general, was "launched" recently at Montreal.

Hitler has approved the deportation of an estimated 1,000 Jews from Norway after an appeal from Vidkun Quisling, Nazi-backed Norwegian premier, reports from Norway said.

Because the average piano contains more than 300 pounds of valuable metal, the supply ministry salvage section suggests unwanted instruments should be sold for scrap.

Production of eggs in Alberta in 1943 is expected to be approximately 7,500,000 dozen greater than 1941 production, W. Traves, poultry commissioner, said.

The Rockefeller Foundation has granted the University of Manitoba $6,000 for estimation of its program in drama for rural communities in the province.

Steel iron foundries have lost more than half their skilled workers to Britain since the war began because there is not sufficient scrap metal to keep the Dublin works in full production.

Shortage Of Fats

A Dominion-Wide Campaign Is Launched For Collection Of Fats And Bones

A Dominion-wide campaign for the collection of fats and bones has been launched by the National Salvage Division of the Department of National War Services, in co-operation with the Oils and Fats Administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. It is announced by Charles LaFerte, Director of National Salvage.

In connection with this new war drive, Mrs. Phyllis Turner, Oils and Fats Administrator, declared that today Canada faces a serious shortage of fats and oils for war industries, and needs a minimum through salvaged fats and bones, 25,000,000 pounds of fat a year, or, reduced to per capita figures, about one ounce of fat per person per week.

This is not just another brief campaign, with a spurt to be put on for a few days or weeks and then dropped, the Salvage Director emphasizes. The campaign must be sustained, right across Canada, in every home, school, hotel and restaurant from day to day for the duration of the war

Housewives are the key people in this collection. They are asked to take waste fats and bones to their meat dealer. In any community where a fats and bones collection system is already in operation, either through municipal collection or sponsored by a local voluntary salvage committee, housewives can continue to dispose of fats and bones through such a system.

The Canadian meat dealers, as their contribution, have undertaken to accept salvaged fats and bones at their stores, and to see that they are forwarded to the renderers and meat packers for the recovery of vital glycerine for explosives and other materials essential for war industries. Renderers and packers likewise have promised their co-operation in making the campaign a success.

Every ounce of dripping, every morsel of scrap fat, every bone, green or dry, must be saved.

Meat dealers will pay from 4 to 4½ cents per pound for dripping fat

PROPER FOOD IS IMPORTANT FACTOR IN CANADA'S GENERAL WELL-BEING

From early infancy through the seven ages of man, food makes a difference. Were Shakespeare alive today, he might rewrite that famous speech.

The picture he draws of "an infant mauling and puking in his nurse's arms" is very different from the happy and healthy infants of today, and food is one of the factors responsible for the difference. The schoolboy no longer "creeps like a snail unwillingly to school." Today's lover isn't the languid lad of Shakespeare's lines. He's much more likely to be a brawny, puppy soldier or a husky young worker in some war industry; and instead of spending his spare time "sighing like furnace" and "writing a sonne" to his Mistress' eyebrow" he's much more likely to spend it dancing to the strains of a jake box. The older generation, active and still able to play a useful part in the modern life are a far cry from the picture Shakespeare drew of them "in second childishness and mere oblivion, sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything."

Food, of course is not wholly responsible for the changed picture of man throughout his seven ages, but proper food is a tremendously important factor in the general well-being.

Nutrition Services points out that the types and quantities of food required by different people in general on age, sex, weight and occupation

Everyone must have a certain amount of food, even when completely inactive, in order that the body may carry on it's functions. This amount varies with individuals and is known as the basal requirement. Work can be done and activities maintained, only when sufficient extra food is supplied over the basic requirement.

Babies and children must have plenty of building foods, or proteins for growth; minerals and vitamins found in the protective foods, to build strong bones and teeth, rich blood, and to set up resistance to disease.

The child's requirements of energy foods increase as he becomes more active.

The woman doing office work may her more active sister who does her own housework or a "man's job" in a factory require approximately the same amount of proteins and the protective foods but the office worker does not need as much of the energy producing foods as her more active sister.

Men doing active work require more of the energy foods, and more protein.

As old age approaches less food is required with imporatant exception of water. Throughout the "seven ages" it is important to be sure that every one gets plenty of well-improved protective foods which include milk, fresh fruits and vegetables.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

DECEMBER 20

THE BIRTH OF JESUS

Golden text: Thou shall call his name Jesus: for it is he that shall save his people from their sins. Matthew 1:21.

Lesson: Luke 2:1-20.

Devotional reading: Isaiah 11:1-9.

Explanations and Comments

Good Tidings of Great Joy. Luke 2:8-14. On the night that Jesus was born, shepherds were watching their flocks in the fields near Bethlehem, and when "an angel of the Lord stood by them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them, they were sore afraid." What have watching shepherds to do with angels' visits? God's revelations come to those who are ready for them, and the humble toiler is quite as likely to have a heart prepared to receive them as the wise scholar or the rich man of leisure.

"Be not afraid" was the message that came to them; "for behold I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to all the people." for there is born to you this day in the city of David (Bethlehem was the birthplace of David) a Savior, who is Christ the Lord." Recall Martin Luther's comment: "He does not simply say, Christ is born, but to you is born; neither does he say I bring glad tidings, but to you I bring glad tidings of great joy. Furthermore, this joy was not to remain in them, but it was to be spread abroad to the people." It is wonderful that the wise men saw a strange star in the east, that shepherds heard songs in the air, that Luke, a Gentile physician, and Matthew, a Roman tax collector, recorded extraordinary conditions surrounding the birth of this Child! These things are wonderful indeed, but none of them so wonderful as the solid fact that a Child born in poverty and obscurity, in the out-of-the-way village of insignificant Palestine, should have thus impressed his mind upon the leading nations of the earth" (William F. Merrill).

This is the sign unto you: Ye shall find a babe wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger. This "sign" was in the unexpected circumstance of the Babe's being cradled in a manger. The swaddling clothes were the bands of cloth which the Oriental mother wraps tightly around the body of her baby.

Then suddenly the shepherds heard a multitude of the heavenly host (triumphantly) praising God and proclaiming peace to men. Fo'd never had the shepherds been so happy; they were dumb with amazement till the vision disappeared, and then they said to one another, "Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing that is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us."

The new jobs, some 23 of them, will be open at Edmonton, Regina, Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal and Moncton, N.B., and will carry salaries of $1,200 per year, plus cost-of-living bonus.

Successful candidates will be trained as traffic control assistants, as a part of the program of expansion being undertaken by the civil aviation branch of the department of transport in its airport and airway traffic control system.

Women of 18 to 30, with some training or experience in aviation; flying experience, with or without a pilot's license, or work dealing with aircraft movements, are regarded as particularly suitable.

CHAPTER X.

Anne kept busy, believing activity in large doses would help to heal a broken heart. She spent the morning seeing the new village to her guests, bringing her bookkeeping up to date, getting in a little shopping and conversation at lunch. That afternoon she drove to town for a supply of food, going to place after place where errand it really was to have been. She talked to Burke before going into the station wagon.

"Did you see Blake off, Burke?" She tried to be casual about it. "His leaving was somewhat sudden. I was called away on business."

"I didn't take Mr. Blake into the station," he said. "He wanted to get out about five miles from town. Said he liked to walk. Very obviously he didn't want to be seen. Let us now go even unto Bethlehem, and see this thing that is come to pass, which the Lord hath made known unto us."

Steve Hayes had been haunting the timber burn ever since evidence had been turned up pointing to incendiarism. Having seen the stands of forest destroyed, having seen men die fighting such fires, he hated those who began with an inordinate viciance. He wanted to find the man who had set that fire; he wanted to send that man to prison. He rode back to Squaw Creek in midafternoon, after finding the coat and necktie among some rocks up in the edge of the lake and not far from the scorched place in the watershed. The coat and necktie were evidence.

He saw the strange horse standing with bowed head before the administration building when he rode by in the corral to put up his own mount. And then, returning afoot, he saw Rhea in the doorway.

The girl stepped down the threshold, a smile wavering on lips that she bit between her white teeth. She stopped him by putting her hand on his arm. She was in riding clothes, mannish shirt and jodhpurs, and that was how he had first seen her two years ago, when he had put a hand over her. She looked just as desirable now as then, and no better.

"Don't look at me like that, Steve," Rhea whispered. "Please. I'm not darling." Tears stirred her eyes, and she looked more than ever like a child. "I've learned my lesson, Steve. I've been a fool. I'm in your with, and you've got to be decent to me only asking for another chance. Can't you give me that, Steve?"

He looked at her stonily. His hands were closed visibly on the rolled-up coat he held. He wondered how it is some people can be so blind to what her so much and now wanted her so little. He neither loved nor hated Rhea now. She was no longer in her.

He said flatly, "What do you expect of me, Rhea? I told you last night that I'm in love with some one else. I can give you nothing—none of the things you want or are accustomed to, not even love."

"I want you to accept me as your wife, Steve, still! You were pretty talkative at the party Saturday night."

Bill McRae's expression was on the surface blank. "Sorry, Rhea. I'm in right now is trouble," he growled. He stepped over into her cheeks. "Steve, she admitted, you cannot abandon me!"

"I can," he said. "I can't abandon you." He looked away from her. "We'll talk about this later. I've work to do now."

He turned away into the building, not seeing the victorious smile that came to Lu girl's face.

Bill McRae was in the radio room. He gave a sour grin, saying, "I see you had a visitor, Steve. The girl Blake guy checked out of Halfway House early this morning, came back into Sand Flats, and the station agent said no stranger took the morning train. That doesn't mean Blake couldn't have had someone to meet him in a car. Steve, I'm in the clear, Steve. I talked to Rhea."

Steve cut him short with a grunt. He unrolled the coat, took the wallet from its pocket. The coat was a gray tweed, the kind a solid blue. He then undo a chair . . .

"I found this stuff near the burn he said. "Blake was wearing the coat and tie or exact duplicates the first day I saw him at Halfway House. I'm going to have a talk with that guy no matter where he went."

"Anne says he was at the fire, helping to fight it."

"That's probably what he told her. Bill Mc— stared at him. "Steve, are you out to get this Blake because Anne is friendly with him"

"If I were, Bill, you'd be required to get him because I think he's a human menace to Anne's friend doesn't count for one way or another.

FUNERAL OF MRS. CHARLES C. SMITH

The funeral of Della Marie Smith, beloved wife of Mr. Chas. C. Smith, whose death took place in the University hospital, Edmonton, on December 8th, 1942, was held in the First United church, Vermilion, on Sunday afternoon December 13th at 2.30 o'clock. The Rev. A. Stewart of Edmonton officiated. Messrs. T. Dick, W. P. Pilkie, W. E. McCrae, Brent Macnab, A. Kibblewhite and C. Barr acted as pall bearers.

Following the service the remains were taken to Neris, Minn., where services were held on Wednesday afternoon December 16th at the Christian church and the deceased was laid to rest beside her father and mother in the Neris cemetery. Mrs. Smith was interred in her wedding dress one of her last requests.

Della Maria Fuller was born in Stephen, Minnesota, April 19, 1897 and when very young went with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Fuller to Park Rapids where she spent her girlhood days. At the age of 16 she began teaching school and continued in this much loved work for twelve years. Charley C. Smith, grain buyer of Vegreville Alberta, making a business trip to Neris Minnesota, met Miss Fuller. They were married July 22, 1915, and together returned to Vegreville where they lived for four teen years. After this they moved to Camrose for one year then to St. Michael for one year, have resided in Vermilion for the past twelve and one-half years.

Mrs Smith was an unusually active person and even in her failing health sustained interest in the different organizations of which she was a member. On the 8th of last June she survived a major operation and looked forward to enjoying good health again but such was not to be as she soon began to suffer again. It was thought that a change of climate might help so she went to the Ilaug hospital for treatment. Seeing no benefit from those treatments she was taken to the University hospital at Edmonton. Here she grew weaker until she finally slept peacefully away at 11.30 p.m. Dec. 8th. Her devoted husband and family were constantly with her during the last weeks of her illness.

Mrs Smith was a life long member of the Christian church or Nevis, Minnesota, but worked faithfully in church work wherever she resided. Since coming to Vermilion she has been active in the United Church W. A. where she was a most valued member, she also took a keen interest and major part in the Women's Institute of which organization she was elected president for 1942 but was forced to relinquish the office early in the year by her illness.

She also proved herself a kind and devoted wife, and was ever ready to help her friends. The influence of her Christian character will long be felt by those who knew her.

Left to mourn her loss are her loving husband, two sisters, Mrs. Otto Johnson and Miss Freda Fuller, both of Minneapolis, Minnesota, and three brothers, Clifford Fuller of Park Rapids, Minn., Leonard and Leland Fuller both of Los Angeles, Calif.

Beautiful floral tributes were received from:

PRICE BOARD CHANGES POLICY —

Radical change in the policy of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in reducing retail prices of tea, coffee, milk and orangee is described by Chairman Donald Gordon as "A direct attack upon the threatened rise in the cost of living, which if allowed to get out of hand will lead to national disaster." The policy is implemented through payment of subsidies or tax remission, amounting to $10,000,000.

Because retail price reductions, on commodities in everyday use, reduce the general cost of living, the new policy is considered to be of more general benefit to all Canadians than payment of cost of living bonus.

A further cost of living bonus was anticipated for January. But the bonus does not compensate farmers, soldiers' dependents, pensioners and others.

Furthermore, officials state, the cost of living bonus, realized by now out of every three wage earners, or one out of every five Canadians, must be absorbed by industry. This increases the cost of production which inevitably increases the cost of consumer goods.

Retail price reductions reduce the overall cost of living. Further reductions are said to be anticipated by the Board.

MORRISON

Our belated good wishes go to our newly married friends Mr. and Mrs. Albert Van Den Ledder, who are now happily settled in their new home. We are sorry they were unable to attend the shower held in their honor, but the bride received many lovely gifts which is very important in these days.

The purchase of war savings stamps in the school is progressing favorably. Jim Dupuis heads the list with the most stamps. To date there has been $8.88 paid in by the pupils and as this shows only a month's buying we expect better results in the New Year after Xmas shopping demands are over. There are still a few children who have made no investments. The Junior Red Cross meeting was held on Dec. 4. As it was an near Xmas there was no program and the meeting was entirely devoted to the business of the Junior Red Cross. Names of exiling paper before Christmas were abandoned. The children hope to do this in the New Year. Be sure and come to the concert on Dec. 22. Everyone is welcome.

The last whist drive was held on Dec. 4 with six tables. Prizes were won by Mrs. Lily Giles and Mr. Luten Ketchem while consolations went to Vivian Goodall and Billy Gillies. Lunch eons for the dance was supplied by Mr. Ketchem and Miss Woltere assisted by part of the pupil's rhythm band.

The cold weather did not keep away eight members of the War Service League from the meeting at Mrs. Art Monaghan's on Dec. 9. Two more donations for the raffle were handed in. Be sure to get your tickets if you have not already. The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Lily Giles on January 6.

The Brewer home has been the scene of much entertaining lately. Early in December the Hilling Family were there for supper and last Friday the Giles family enjoyed a turkey supper there also. Mr. and Mrs. Art Monaghan were guests of Miss Woltera at the teacherage on Sunday evening.

When Canadian troops returned to England after the now famous raid on Dieppe, Canadian Red Cross workers met them at the ports; helped care for the wounded, and provided comforts for the tired heroes. Many of the "boys" were loud in their praise for the welcome they received from the Society's workers.

Approximately 1,737 of the Canadians who took part in the raid were captured by the Germans, and those also shared in the benefits of the Red Cross. Immediately the organization's overseas office received the names and locations of the prison camps, "capture" parcels were despatched from London addressed individually to the men. The parcels contained warm underwear, sweaters, socks, shaving kits, hairbrush and comb, and a comfort bag containing 14 items such as soap, toothbrush and other toiletries.

Already some of our Dieppe prisoners have acknowledged receipt of Canadian Red Cross food parcels. With the 70,000 the Society is sending every week to Europe

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By H. G. L. Strange
Director, Research Department, Searle Grain Co., Ltd.

WHEAT AND PIGS

On all sides farmers are advised to use more wheat for feeding pigs. At present prices wheat is a cheap feed too. Wheat, however, will not be used as much as it should be if pigs are lost, and for the Irish a percentage of young pigs are lost at farrowing time.

Newborn pigs can be saved with proper care. The sow should have a small nest of straw or hay. The sow will make a herself if a little straw hay or chaff is provided. The nest should be preferably in the centre of a barn or cow stall, not at the sides for fear the sow will overlay her litter.

The two little pigs must be kept warm after birth. It is a good thing to place them in an old blanket in a box as quickly as they are farrowed until the whole farrowing is complete. If it is very cold take the box into the house for awhile until the little pigs are dried off. They can then be returned to the sow nice and warm when they will suckle readily. This means that the farmer should be present at farrowing time in the cold weather.

Those who are not expert in managing pigs in cold weather should write to the Animal Husbandry Department or their nearest University.

Following farmers have tended to decrease supply and increase demand: U.S.A. wheat production program for 1942 calls for between 85 and 88 per cent of the actual 1942 output—Crops in the Danube Basin have been very poor this season — rains, mud, messages to twist — Canada may be filed over the counter at any telegraph office. Fixed rate messages to the United States were discontinued some time ago.

Insofar as expeditionary correspondence messages are concerned that is, those fixed-rate addressed to members of the active service forces, these will continue to be accepted by telephone or over the counter. Sender's own composition messages will be accepted by telephone.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

A meeting of the Busy Bees was held at the home of Mrs. McIlmoil with 12 members and two visitors Mrs. Rhodes and Mrs. McClellan in attendance. A quilt was sewed while the business of the meeting was being carried on. It was decided to continue the card parties every two weeks and to have groceries as the prize. Mrs. Reyo and Mrs. Aber wood are to buy the prizes and make arrangements for the party on Friday Dec. 18th. The quilters are invited again at the home of Mrs. Morrison on Thursday.

A fine social evening was enjoyed on Wednesday when about 25 people journeyed to the pumpkin home for the wedding of Miss Marion Stanyk to Mr. Arnold Mundle. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. George Hrenekuk, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Mossey, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hudson Mr. and Mrs. Knutson Maybelle and Harold Mr. and Mrs. Martin, Miss D. Mackay, Mr. D. Harte, Mrs. Edwards, Mr. Arthur Hughes, Mr. G. Pearborough, Mr. and Mrs. T. Sherwood Following the serving of a dainty lunch the bride's father proposed a toast to the bride and groom, to which the groom responded in a manner befitting the occasion, ending up by saying that he was Scotch and didn't believe in wasting words The beautiful three-tier wedding cake was cut by the bride assisted by the groom Quite a number of pictures were taken of the happy young couple.

More than 1,500 000 cups of tea and 1,000,000 meals have been served at recently, the two T.M.C.A. canteens in Nottingham, England, since the war started. the local secretary stated last. The T.M.C.A., he added, had also provided over 20,000 men with beds.

WOODVALE

Another week and Xmas will be here again, and as it is quite possible we'll not be able to get any more news in until 1943, we wish Editor and staff and readers of this column a Merry Christmas and Prosperous New Year. For all of us 1942 can bring us no better gift, than Peace on Earth again; in the meantime we can do our little share to help that about and share the best that is in us with others in the true Christmas spirit.

Congratulations go to Mr. and Mrs. Dave Sweeney (nee Lilian Dougan), whose marriage took place on Dec. 10th, and who now live in the house just north of the school, that stood there for over a year to await its new occupants. The Sweeney home has lost most of its members, with the three boys each on their own place and three girls working and going to school in Vermilion, Margaret in the hospital, Mary Jane in George's and Martha finishing Grade XI.

Not only the boys are leaving the district for the army, but the girls seem to be leaving too. Georgetta Young after a few weeks visit home is going to work in the hospital as assistant cook. Marjorie Young will start her business course in Camrose this week; Florence Young has been visiting in the district at the C.W.A.C. training centre; Ethel Proctor is now working at Swift's in Calgary.

Mrs Turner plans a visit to Vancouver where her mother lives, whom she has not seen in a very long time. Harry Turner accepted a job on a farm near Alliance.

Mrs. Hilbrech has gone east to visit her husband who is stationed there. She plans to be away for several months.

Maurice Goutier, who is a student in St. Joseph's College Edmonton, is a patient there in the hospital. Luckily he has no pneumonia as was first reported, but a very bad bronchial trouble.

Mr H Groscop is a new subscriber on our telephone line.

A meeting was held at the school to plan a party for the children of the district. Arrangements have been made for a party on Xmas Eve; Santa will be there with his usual big bag of presents. It will be quite a reunion for the children, some of whom have been away, and it is hoped they will have a pleasant evening together.

In Watson and Glanton schools the children are practising hard for their concerts. At Watson it will take place on the evening of the 22nd and at Ganton on the 23rd.

Five ladies of the Ganton-Watson Auxiliary came to the quilting bee at the home of Mrs. Green on their reid Wednesday when 17° thermometer dropped to 30 below after sundown. The roads were at that time all badly drifted in and it was slow travelling. However the seven members worked hard and another 6 by 7 quilt was finished that afternoon. The weather this year never seems the same from one day to another. Such a surprise to find the thermometer 50 degrees higher Friday morning than the day before. And how we all do appreciate the sun on the few days it does with us.

The Week in Legislative Circles . . . In Edmonton

Although Albertans are just as honest as ever, commencing Monday night, Dec. 13, they became two-timers. At that moment residents of the Peace River district and other northwest portions of the province changed over from Mountain to Pacific time. Representations have been made on several occasions for the change-over, northerners stating that the new war time interfered with farm work, with darkness at the wrong time. An order-in-council making effective the proposal was passed by the lieutenant-governor-in-council. About one third of the area of Alberta is affected.

Alberta will not witness the customary Xmas baby adoption campaign this year, because there is no great number of government wards awaiting adoption, it is announced by Charles B. Hill, child welfare officer in former years the campaign, carried on with the co-operation of the press, has always been successful in placing babies in foster homes. This year, to date, there are more homes available than babies. During the first 10 months of 1942, 243 boys and 256 girls have been placed—a total of 518 government wards. Mr. Hill has a collection of pictures in his office showing many hundreds of happy wards in various stages of growth in their new homes. He remembers every face and virtually every name. Some are now members of the professions, married and parents of children. In all, his charges run into the thousands.

University of Alberta officials are still studying methods of utilizing the facilities of the institution for year round service, it was announced this week. Other university matters given attention included adoption of the budget for forthcoming activities, prior to its presentation to the government authority.

Miss Christie Gillies was home to [illegible] flying visit on Saturday.

Transportation is still difficult in this district. Some are still able to get out to town by car but others are now making the comparatively long drive by sleigh. Mr. Gillies pulled Miss Wolters' car to the highway and had to assist her over the bad spots. It halve as well. People unfamiliar with the change in highways are still using the old one much to their sorrow. It might be suggested here that a sign be placed in Vermilion direct.

The British Empire

DURING THE PAST few years we have periodically been told that the British Empire is degenerate, and that when the war is over, the Empire will no longer exist. Most of these statements have come from Axis propagandists, but some have come from certain groups within nations to which we are allied. In a recent broadcast address Mr. Churchill assured his wide-spread audience that he had no intention of presiding over the liquidation of the British Empire. His statement caused indignation in some quarters, but there were no protests from the members of the Empire concerned. Apart from France, Britain was the only country to declare war before being attacked. She was quickly joined in the struggle by all parts of the Empire, and for nearly a year she was the only force that stood against the threat of world domination by the Axis nations. The Dominions have co-operated closely with the mother country since the beginning of the war. Every day representatives of Canada, New Zealand, Australia and South Africa confer in London in the course of the war. The Prime Ministers of all these nations have attended meetings of the British War Cabinet. Mr. Churchill has addressed the Canadian Parliament and conferred with Gen. Smuts premier of South Africa at Cairo. The Commonwealth Air Training Plan familiar to all Canadians is further proof of the solidarity of the Empire.

* * * * *

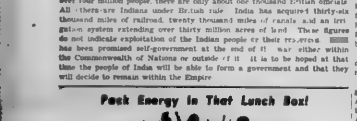
No Possessions Are Exploited

We are sometimes told that the people of the Empire have been oppressed and exploited by Britain. On the contrary there has been a clear policy during the past half century of encouraging independence among them. Today Canada, Australia and the other Dominions have become independent nations. Other parts of the Empire whose governments are linked more closely with that of the mother country are not exploited in any sense. We are told the taxpayers of Britain not only do not benefit from these associations but contribute towards the public services and defence of many distant possessions. In a recent address Field Marshal Smuts, premier of South Africa, and an honoured statesman of the Empire said of the British Commonwealth: "It is true that the greatest human experiment in political organization, this proudest political structure of time this precedent and anticipation of what may be the future for human society in the years to come, is being tested as never before in its history. But is it not standing the test? Is not this free and voluntary association, in the world-wide human crisis, proving a power holding together more successfully than ever under the most searching test"

* * * * *

Indian People Are Not United

In India, the unity of purpose characteristic of the rest of the Empire has not been evident. The Indian question has been thoroughly ventilated for the public many times, and the difficulties of granting self-government to a nation divided within itself are clear. To grant self-government at the time would be to imperil not only India but the cause of all the United Nations. In an article written recently by Sir Norman Angell, distinguished British economist some interesting figures regarding India's government and development are given. He tells us that in the government of India which Bolshevism has to a population of over four million people, there are only about one thousand British officials. All others are Indians under British rule. India has acquired thirty-six thousand miles of railroad, twenty thousand miles of canals and an irrigation system extending over thirty million acres of land. These figures do not indicate exploitation of the Indian people or their resources. India has been promised self-government at the end of the war either within the Commonwealth of Nations or outside of it. It is to be hoped at that time the people of India will be able to form a government and that they will decide to remain within the Empire.



Pack Energy In That Lunch Box!

TODAY with hundreds of thousands of Canadian men and women engaged in war industry, the planning of the daily lunch-box becomes more important than ever before. Upon the quantity of essential vitamins, minerals, carbohydrates, proteins, etc. contained in the war worker's lunch depends his or her energy and stamina, and the scale of production. "When a man or woman feels starved" after a half-day on the job, the sight of a carelessly packed lunch-box, or bedraggled look ing sandwiches is not conducive to the appetite.

SANDWICHES should be made of white wheat or brown bread. Fillings should be different in each sandwich if possible, for the sake of variety and balanced nutrition. A chopped vegetable filling might be used in one sandwich and meat, cheese or egg combination in another. Fillings should always be moist. Meat from a left-over roast may be ground and mixed with pickles or salad dressing. Fresh bread should always be used for lunch box sandwiches as they must stay packaged for some time before they are eaten

RAW FRUITS and vegetables are a "must in any worker's lunch-box. Apples and oranges are an important source of vitamins and minerals that every worker needs. Radishes, celery, raw carrots and lettuce can be wrapped in waxed paper. Vegetable salads may also be used when packed in tightly covered containers which can be carried in a pail in the lunch-box and thrown away after use

ALTHOUGH eggs may be included in sandwich spreads one or two tasty deviled or hard boiled eggs in the lunch box are always welcome. Wrap each egg well in waxed paper and place it in the box where it will not be crushed

CHOCOLATE pudding or gelatin desserts are welcome additions to any lunch-box. They are easy to pack in covered paper containers. Milk is the best way to see that the worker is getting the necessary part of his daily diet. If he does not like to make milk the lunch-box drink A variant might be cocoa in a thermos

A LUNCH-BOX containing a combination of all these items is guaranteed to stimulate the most jaded appetite — Issued by the Nutritional Services Division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, with Lynne of Canada, 111 Avenue Road Toronto, available to you a free copy of our authoritative Vitamin Chart

A Clever Writer

Statesmanship Not Only Thing That Has Made Churchill Famous

Winston Churchill always wanted to be a newspaper man. It was as a war correspondent that he got to South Africa and got captured during the Boer War. That was his first bad for fame

And it is by his writings as much as by his statesmanship that the indomitable British leader is known throughout the world. He can turn a phrase in a manner to make it remembered. Recall the great speech he made in April, 1940 when the first phase of the Battle of Britain had been won by the Royal Air Force at National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa:

"Never in the history of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

And just the other day, after the great victory of the British 8th Army in Libya, closely followed by the coup which placed British and American forces in complete control of North Africa, speaking in Parliament on the course of the war and on the turn which it had taken in the past couple of weeks he declared:

"It is not the end, nor even the beginning of the end, but the end of the beginning."

Churchill's "nose for news," as the newspapermen call it, enables him to highlight his speeches in a manner to make them remembered. It is one of the secrets of his hold upon the people of Britain and the Allied countries in these days of peril.—Lethbridge Herald.

NEWS of your Army

From Directorate of Public Relations Army

(By M. G. MacLean)

Canada's growing Army is being trained with a view to making it the best fighting unit of its size in the world. This information was given by Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, at a dinner tendered to him by officers of National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa. The minister said the Army has grown a hundredfold in the past three years.

The Army has been in few operations in this war but it is geared for the kind of action which will make the people of the Dominion proud of it when it is called upon to meet the in large-scale assaults upon the enemy. The minister spoke informally to officers as well as junior officers who are working together to put the nation's biggest investment on a fighting basis in terms of victory.

At a time when Canadian housewives were getting their plans lined up for Christmas and New Year's dinners when the sons and daughters in the Armed Services, still in Canada, will be home on Yuletide furlough, the questions of how much turkey, chicken, goose, duck, ham and sundry other topics cause worry. But how about a daily meal schedule that will provide 7,000 pounds of beef, 675 pounds of butter, 656 gallons of milk, 14,000 eggs, 66 bags of potatoes and 1150 pies? That is the necessary material for three square meals a day at Webb Hall (named after Col. R. Webb, Assistant Quartermaster-General and Camp Commandant at National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa.)

Situated at No. 2 District Depot, Webb Hall can feed 7,000 soldiers in 30 minutes, the men being served by table orderlies from mobile serving counters which move up and down the aisles. These "push-type" pantries are governed by a central control-tower which directs them to the places where they are required. The men enter and leave the mess hall by means of green and red traffic and 16 ounces of vanilla.

A ample chocolate fudge pudding prepared by the 60 top-notch cooks using steam ovens, waterless cookers and other modernized equipment, calls for 224 gallons of milk, 50 dozens of eggs, 45 pounds of butter, 14 gallons of corn syrup, 98 pounds of cocoa, 126 pounds of corn starch

Canada's Reserve Army will not be able to confine its drills to steam-heated armories and drill halls, this winter. Where possible skis will be used and commanders are being urged to improvise training methods to conform with winter conditions Hessians and snow huts will be constructed by the reservists as no military operation is regarded as impossible in winter to one who has been trained under winter conditions

Skiing, however, has been one of the more important factors in the training of Active Army personnel and this winter it will be given greater impetus in those areas where it can be practised. Special equipment is already being issued to units where snow conditions can be carried out and special instruction is being given to camouflage and self-sufficiency as well as the general application of military manoeuvres under winter conditions

DEGREES OF COURAGE

After two years of service in Malin, Major Francis Gerard, a British army officer, says: "There are degrees of courage, and the rarest and purest form is that of long-term courage which endures, which faces terror, discomfort, pain and loss day after day, week after week, year after year—courage which goes on through sleeplessness and fatigue and gnawing danger." Malta is the valiant example.

Singing Draws Crowd

Allied Soldiers in Hyde Park Greater Attraction Than Orators

Recently three American doughboys drifted from one to another of the little men on ladders in Hyde Park exhorting the crowds to travel down this or that political or religious path. Finally, completely bewildered, they trod off under the trees and started singing that old American barbershop favorite, "Sweet Adeline."

Pretty soon some British Tommies joined them. Then some men of the Irish Guards. Then three Scotsmen in kilts. And a couple of Free French soldiers. And a young Polish airman. A British merchant seaman. Some Canadians and Aussies.

One of the Americans "borrowed" a ladder from one of the speakers, mounted it and started bellowing out the words of "Old Black Joe." It didn't take long to teach the crowd the words and tune, then they went to other American favorites. A Canadian took the Yank's place when he tired and then a lad of well-paid propagandists.—Brandon Sun.

Bacon Demand Will Likely Be Met By Canada

Ottawa. — Agriculture Minister Gardiner expressed belief that Canada could meet its new bacon contract with Britain if given "reasonable weather" and the co-operation of everyone on Canadian farms and the provincial and federal agriculture departments.

Speaking before a luncheon of the bacon section of the eastern Ontario export food show here, Mr. Gardiner read a cable from Lord Woolton, British food minister, expressing appreciation of Canada's food production program and the efforts to be made next year

The cable said bacon, cheese and eggs, particularly, are vital to Britain "increasing quantities and unsurpassed quality."

Lord Woolton's cable declared the 1943 cheese contract would be exceeded and first shipments under the new bacon contract begin this month.

"We are about to arrange 1943 shipments of dried eggs which are a new product, to the success of which Canada is making a fine contribution," it said.

Mr. Gardiner expressed confidence the new bacon contract, calling for an increase from 600,000,000 pounds to 875,000,000 pounds—would be met primarily because of the "unlimited amounts" of feed grains available for hog production.

Man Shortage Hindering Plans For Farm Output

Ottawa.—Only difficulty in the way of reaching increased agricultural production goals next year is the farm labor situation, Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the Conservative provincial conference on Canada's agricultural production in 1943 at its final session.

Mr. Gardiner outlined the production goals set for the year, calling for a reduction of some 4,000,000 acres in wheat lands and a corresponding increase in acreages used to produce foods more needed by Britain and other Allied nations.

"At the moment," Mr. Gardiner declared, "we are not with any certainty that we can not meet our objectives without more farm labor being made available."

He said agriculture would need—and will get"—the co-operation of older men and women, boys and girls and those judged physically unfit for military service.

If the 300,000 men now in uniform go into battle Mr Gardiner said that many would have to be replaced because of casualties and officials must decide the most acceptable source from which to obtain these reinforcements.

The minister declared that the conference had been held to give the impression" that anyone believes Canada will not need more men from the farms. He said that young men are coming of military age every day" and that the "enlisting spirit" had remained high on the farms since the outbreak of war.

He saw the possibility in the future that Canada might even call on men for food production and depend on other Allied nations who are large food producers in order to release more fighting men The minister, regarding reported "shortages," insisted there was certainly no lack of [illegible]

He said it was necessary to attempt an increased production for next year, but "not absolutely essential" to increase agricultural output every year of the war

The main objective of next year's program was an economic increase in coarse grains production. Because of this, the minister said, this will be the first year when "we can be confident in asking for increased livestock production." Farmers were being asked to embark on a two-year program to boost meat and dairy output. This would be based directly on the amounts of coarse grains now available and to be harvested next year.

The minister said that an 18 per cent. reduction in wheat acreage would make possible increased coarse grain production and consequent higher dairy and meat output.

The program calls for increases of 20 per cent. in egg production, 15 per cent. in creamery butter, 10 per cent. in dressed chickens, and six per cent. in total milk production.

APPEAL TO MINERS

Should Not Take Long Holidays On Account Of Coal Shortage

Ottawa.—Labor Minister Mitchell issued a statement urgently appealing to coal miners of western Canada to refrain from taking long layoffs over the holiday season.

He said "miners in some of the fields intended taking a long lay-off during the holiday season." This, coupled with the difficulty in obtaining men with experience to work in the mines, would aggravate a situation already serious.

If the supply of coal dropped below the "danger point," it might even be necessary to close training camps, Mr. Mitchell said. The war effort would be seriously hampered if coal supplies were not maintained.

A defence department spokesman said that plans were under consideration to release coal miners from the Canadian army to enable them to return to mines and assist in relieving the present fuel shortage.

Sir Bernard, who made a 100-mile tour of western Canada, said in an interview: "It is remarkable at the end of more than two years here how the Canadian have sustained such good morale and have so greatly increased their fighting efficiency."

IS REAL PROBLEM

Hoarding Of New Nickels Creating A Shortage Of Coin

Toronto.—Toronto banks are faced with a shortage of coins, and they claim that hoarding has something to do with the condition.

Bankers say that the public hoarding of the new 12-sided nickel is becoming a real problem—particularly since the demand for small change of all kinds is the biggest in banking history.

The shortage is partly due to the season of the year, and partly to the new taxes and bonuses which put change into almost everyone's pay envelope, they explain

Although the Royal Canadian Mint is working 24 hours a day trying to meet the demand, the banks are still having a difficult time supplying all customers with their coinage needs

Alexander described his tire as "65 per cent. lamination, 25 per cent. wood separators, with no bolts, nuts, just pins" and claimed "the lamination turns into rubber."

Frank McDougall, deputy minister of lands and forests, said that he would be given running tests on government trucks "up north" and if it stood up well, "we'll buy it."

Central Africa Will Soon Have Modern Road

Somewhere in Africa - The United States army, collaborating with its Allies, is changing the face of central Africa with great arterial supply-ways across 10,000 miles of the dark continent. Eventually this work will result in Africa's first dependable transcontinental highway

In some places the work is being done by native laborers under contract; in others by soldier engineers from the United States. American combat units are working with British, Belgian and Fighting French troops, both white and black, in building defence garrisons for key points.

The big highway terminals are Lagos, Nigeria, at the mouth of the Guinea Coast; Port Francqui and Port Pointe Norie in French Equatorial Africa in the interior, reaching from west to east formed together to form a single link crossing the arid wastes of the Sudan to Khartoum, which is linked to Cairo by river and rail.

In the field directing the construction and use of these supply-ways are Brig-Gen. Shepler W. Fitzgerald, who also is commander of all United States army forces in Central Africa and Brig-Gen James P. C. Hyde of the United States service of supply.

Laval Setting Up Pro-German Political Party

London.—The BBC reported the final step in the conquest of France—the setting up of a single pro-German Fascist political party.

The BBC, quoting a German broadcast, said Pierre Laval is organizing the party and that as its leader, Laval will become complete dictator of France—under Hitler Marcel Deat's Fascist party in Paris is said to have given its support to the new move.

Tales from the Training Centre

By Sgt. Soo Ward

First in the tale of the "goose". Dear Mum:

Goose you're worrying about me so I thought I'd write as soon as I could. We arrived during the night but they let us sleep until 6 a.m. I was so excited I woke 18 minutes early. When I heard voices I bolted down the aisle and saw soldier gals making the others up. Their voices were awful firm and I thought they probably resented having to be out so early in the morning and I hoped they wouldn't hold it against us.

Mary and I hustled out (she's my pal. I met her on the train—she's from Winnipeg). Gosh, Mum, was I ever glad you made me wear woollies—it was 32 below!

We marched three-quarters of a mile to the Barracks. There was a big husky gal and beside her a slim one, who had a swell fur coat and she carried a pink, fluffy dog. Gal said: "Shucks, give me your grip. You're the delicate type." When we arrived they hustled us into the gym. We went in under bulbing lights, groups and received blankets, respirators and cutlery. I climbed a million stairs and flopped everything into the cutlery on a bed, and then lined up for the dentist. Not a crumb could we have till 10 a.m. passed us O. K. Then—breakfast! Porridge, bacon, toast, jam and something hot to drink. That helped us much. We were paraded (everything is done in Canadian Mum) in the M.I.R. I don't know what it meant, but the "M" must be morale because the doctor was there. He looked us over and then with our grips under one arm and our blankets under the other, we staggered up and down a million more stairs, and ended up with our allotted bunk. Mine's an "upper"—Mary is plump so I let her have the lower. We're waiting now until our Corporal parades us to G.M. stores for our uniforms. I'll be so proud when I get mine, Mum!

Give Mum — for won't be home for Christmas. I'll miss you like the dickens. Our Corporal says we'll have a swell Christmas dinner and the officers and N.C.O.'s wait table for us. Then there's to be a Christmas tree when each gal buys another girl a 25c present.

She says the folks in Vermilion are talking about inviting some of us to their homes for Christmas night. Gosh — wouldn't that be swell? It would be almost like having Xmas with you, Mum.

Oh gosh — here's that Corporal again. There's another parade. I'll write again tomorrow.

Your loving daughter,
Phyllis.

Well, Phyllis has been here almost a week. She says she's not homesick, but Christmas spirit runs high throughout the Centre. On Thursday evening, the 17th December, "D" Company is presenting its graduation Christmas Programme. The Commanding Officer and personnel would be delighted to have you join us. Good show gets underway at 8 p.m. Let's make it a date, shall we?

Love and kisses,
Soo.

Once again may this column, on behalf of the Training Centre and the management of the W.V.C., Limited, extend their sincere thanks to the ladies of Vermilion, who give so freely of their time during the very busy weather, volunteer workers felt they would have to withdraw their assistance because of lack of transportation. Mrs. W. Rule, Mrs. Hall of the Bonnie-wick hotel overheard this discussion, she promptly remarked, "Nonsense. I'll donate my car and gas for the return trip each day." Thank you, Mrs Culford. Yours is truly an unselfish war-effort.

Vermilion Sergeants are curling more than their hair these nights. On Monday last they accepted the challenge of the curling members of the fairer sex and boasted of their victory over their coffee party members. As all ranks are invited to participate we feel sure many enjoyable evenings are in the offing and great interest should be stimulated in the Bonspiel slated for January.

The weekly meeting of the Stagette club was held on Tuesday evening with Mrs. Caldwell, Nelson and Betty Caldwell as hostesses.

From the amount of bally, chicken, cards, dice, etc., scattered around and the concentrated look on each girl's face, Vermilion should be amply supplied with bally decorations this week end. We hear there is a dance festivities with a Stagette bally corsage.

There will be no further meetings until the first week in January to enable the Stagettes to heal their prickly fingers!

To all those who so generously read those notes the Stagettes wish each and all — A very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!

15-YEAR-OLDS DEFEAT WAINWRIGHT HOCKEYISTS

First Hockey Game of Season

A Vermilion Junior hockey team comprised of boys 15 years and under swamped Wainwright aggregation by the lopsided score of 16 to 2 here last Thursday night. The relatively new sheet of ice and coldness was due to lack of reserves and also to the fact they were chilled through, having had a tough trip from the former Dublin town.

For the homesters, Leonard Messner was the outstanding star with 8 goals to his credit while other scorers were Roy Spencer, 4 goals; John Kirkpatrick 2, Neil Taylor, Joe Zaja, George Washington, Keith Donellan and Lyle Webb all counted one each.

Acclamations Feature Vermilion School Division Meetings

Only One Election—H. R. Howard Retires; A. B. Rankin Elected

There will be only one election in the five sub-divisions of the Vermilion school division and that will be in sub-division No. 1 where the present trustee Mr. Edward Blenkley, who was elected for a two-year term only a year ago, had to resign owing to poor health and pressure of business. He lives at Paradise Valley. Nominated to take his place for the remaining year of his term are John P. Berg of Rivercourse and Charles F. MacKay of McLaughlin. The election will be held on January 9th.

At the meeting of sub-division No. 5 held at Clandonald, Mr. Charles E. Thompson, present chairman of the board, was elected by acclamation for a further two year term.

In subdivision No. 3 W. R. Kent was elected last year and his term does not expire until Dec. 31, 1943.

John Leighton was re-elected for a further two year term at a meeting of sub-division No. 2 held at Kitscoty. Mr. A. Rankin is a new member of the board being returned by reclamation at a meeting held in Vermilion for sub-division No. 4. He replaces Mr. Harry Howard of Wildmere, who has held office since formation of the division in 1939, but found it impossible to continue in office due to shortage of help on the farm. Mr. Howard has two sons, Albert and Lloyd in the R.C.A.F.

So now it's Pilot Officer Powell and he is receiving congratulations from all sides. CURFEW EFFECTIVE JAN. 1 —

The Curfew By-law passed by the Town council Monday night comes into effect on the 1st day of January. The By-law provided only an amendment to one passed in 1937 when Mr. L. W. Robinson was Mayor and which provided that children under the age of 12 years were prohibited from being in the street after 9.30 o'clock. This By-law has not been rigidly enforced. The By-law as it stands at present provides that no child under the age of 14 years shall be under loitering in any street, lane or public place after the hour of 9.30 o'clock unless accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Order Baby Chicks Early!

Indications point to a greatly increased demand for baby chicks in 1942 states C. W. Travee, Poultry Commissioner, who recommends that orders be placed immediately.

In 1941 and again in 1942 hatcheries had great difficulty in filling chick orders in time. Many producers were from one month to six weeks late in getting their chicks and some deliveries were not completed at all. With the demand for 1943 likely to be greater still, placing orders early is essential. Although more birds have been blood tested for hatchery approval and a considerable increase has occurred in the hatching capacity of Alberta hatcheries, difficulty in filling orders is expected

In 1941 sales of baby chicks in Alberta totalled approximately 2,000,000 while in 1942 there were over 2,500,000 chicks sold.

FLIMSY PAPER DECORATIONS ARE PROHIBITED IN TOWN

Safety Move by the Council

The Town council clamped down on flimsy decorations Monday night when it passed a By-law prohibiting the use of any paper or inflammable decorations in any public place of entertainment including school or church halls. It also prohibited smoking in any school building, hall, closet or corridor as well as in cloak or other rooms in any public place of entertainment. The School board some years ago passed a resolution to the above effect in so far as the schools were concerned but it was regarded by the Council as a regulation which did not have the force of a By-law or law in the hands of the Board would be strengthened considerably by this enactment. This By-law went into effect Monday night.

Premier's Christmas Message

Premier Aberhart has sent the following Christmas message to weekly newspaper editors and readers:

In this, the fourth Christmas of the war, there is an undertone of sorrow to the songs of joyousness which are traditional of the season. Friends and neighbors on all sides are absent from their homes, some of them never to return, and there is naturally a note of sadness in the greetings: "Peace on earth and goodwill to men."

Nevertheless, the courage of our people stands out like a beacon through the gathering darkness of the storm. In field, in factory and front line the same spirit of loyalty to ideals and sacrifice is manifest. We are imbued with faith in our cause, with faith in ourselves and in the priceless heritage of freedom which we defend.

With such a spirit, we cannot help but emerge victorious from the dangers of the moment, and we can not too frequently tell one another that we with the help of all that is good and holy, will come out of the crucible of war purified and reflecting a shining people of new faith and new purpose.

Through the columns of the weekly press, I wish to commend the people of Alberta for their unbounded loyalty and devotion through the war years. To all I say: Greetings and good wishes. May your Christmas be a Joyous and the New Year Victorious.

Greetings
TO ALL OUR FRIENDS!
May you have a Real Enjoyable CHRISTMAS.

SUDDEN DEATH OF PIONEER FARMER

Wm. Cummings Passed Away Monday Night

William Henry Cummings, one of the most widely known of Vermilion's pioneers of homesteading and ranching days, passed away very suddenly at his home north-west of town on Monday evening at 11.15 o'clock. Mr. Cummings had been in his usual good health during the day and had rested as usual that evening. Shortly after going to bed he got up, complained of feeling ill and within 15 minutes had passed away. He would have been 71 years of age on January 11th.

His death came as a distinct shock to a very wide circle of friends and acquaintances as he had ranched and then farmed north of town since the early days of the settlement.

He is survived by his sorrowing widow, one daughter Mrs. C. Gardiner, and one son Pat to mourn his loss. A brother John is also well known here.

The funeral service will be held from St. Saviour's Anglican church this Thursday afternoon Dec. 24 at 4 o'clock and interment will take place in the Vermilion cemetery.

EVERYTHING SET FOR NEW YEAR'S EVE FROLIC

The event of the year! Yes Sir—that is what it will be—What! Why, the Nan Year's Eve frolic planned by the B.P.E.E. It will start about 9 p.m. in the spacious Elks hall and continue until goodness knows when! Positively there will be a reduction in the quantities of fares distributed because you just can't get many of the noisemakers etc., any more, and factory executives are also taken to task for using to their high inflammability, but you can be sure that 1942 will be given a worthy push out and 1943 given a boisterous welcome.

MEANEST THIEF FOUND AT YULETIDE IN VERMILION

About as mean a thief as can be imagined, is at large in the town or district of Vermilion at present. This benighted individual trespassed on the grounds of Cliff Porter's truck service some time Sunday night and broke off one of the fine young spruce trees which Cliff has, with much work and care, planted there. The spruce, transplanted some five years ago, has been a most handsome addition and were showing exceptionally fine growth. They had transformed the entrance into a regal lane and a real beauty spot.

Regardless of the motive behind the theft, the action is one to rouse disgust in any person having love or others. These trees were small while in a year or two they would be just the size for Santa to call for and carry to some home as a Christmas tree for children, this could easily have been arranged had the miscreant only waited but plied to him or her Cliff's many generous offers of trees at this time of year.

It is one sign of civilization when the individual puts the interest of the community as a whole above his own selfish desires and we are sure that the person who is responsible for this dastardly act will be indignant and ashamed at this time of year.

A survey in Ontario shows that the average age of farmers in that province is 55 years. The drain of young men from farms to the armed forces and munitions factories has been substantial. The farm labor shortage in Ontario next year will be greater than ever.

Greetings
To everyone we offer our heartiest good wishes for a Joyous Christmas and may the New Year bring Peace and Goodwill.

MICKIE SAYS—

MARKET BASKETS FROM FOOD STORES INDICATE FAMILIES' NUTRITION STANDING

Standing at the cash desk in a large food store and watching the women shoppers as they pass by with their filled market baskets can be an illuminating experience. The first step to good health through good nutrition lies in the choice of those foods that meet the family's essential needs. Watching the contents of these market baskets, it is easy to pick out the families who are getting the foods they need and those who belong to the all too large group of Canadians whose diets are deficient in one or more important respects.

This winter when the government is sponsoring a nutrition campaign, watch for a moment as the women file past with their purchases.

Here comes a woman:—she looks pale, tired and listless. What does her market basket contain? There's jam, white bread, refined cereal, pickles and sweet biscuits. There's nothing wrong with any of these foods individually, but one could hazard a guess that this woman's family does not get enough of the foods like fruits, vegetables, milk, and whole grain cereals that are rich in minerals and vitamins, and so necessary to maintain and protect health.

Look at this merry little woman stepping up so briskly to the cash desk with her basket overflowing; she looks as if she found shopping fun! What has she bought lately? Here are canned tomatoes, cabbage, turnips, carrots and apples; cheese and milk, a big package of rolled oats and two loaves of Canada approved bread. That is good health in the making; and notice that the amount rung up on the cash register for her purchases is less than the slender woman paid!

Using Canada's Official Food Rules issued by Nutrition Services at Ottawa, as a yardstick in planning menus and market lists will ensure that all the necessary foods will be included.

The Prime Minister of Canada in a speech made recently in connection with the forthcoming Nutrition Campaign said: "proper attention to the selection and preparation of the family diet can be made a real contribution to our national war effort."

Butter Production

Output In 1941 Was The Largest Ever Recorded

Canadian production of creamery butter during 1941 was the largest ever recorded by the industry—205,848,196 pounds compared with 204,732,889 in 1940—the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

The total value also set a high record of $93,196,747 ; an increase of $35,290,576 from 1940. The average price per pound for the year was 32.6 cents, compared with 26.5 in 1940.

Factory cheese production in 1941 totalled 151,460,536 pounds, an increase of 6,837,000 pounds from 1940, while the value of cheese manufactured during the year was $24,737,027, an increase of $4,825,837 over 1940. The average price per pound was 16.3 against 13.7.

Learn How To Repair And Take Care Of Machines

Trained to instruct farmers in Ontario how to repair, adjust and care for farm machinery, 100 young mechanically-minded farmers completed special course at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

The course was under the direction of the Ontario Agricultural representatives branch and arranged in view of the heavy curtailment in manufacture of farm implements, ordered as a war necessity because of shortage of metals.

The young instructors will conduct short courses throughout the province and 340 applications for these courses have been received by the department.

War-Time Economy

Canada's Position Ably Reviewed By President M Rae Of Montreal

The national economy in war-time, with its remarkable industrial expansion—its results in increased taxation and price, wage and other controls and the impressive record of public co-operation, particularly in meeting financial requirements—was reviewed at the 125th annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal, by the president, Huntly R. Drummond. Mr. Drummond said the government's effort to prevent the effects of inflation, witnessed in the aftermath of the last war, merited the support of every thinking Canadian, but he reiterated his plea of a year ago that government controls and regulations be removed with all possible speed after the war, so private enterprise may have the opportunity to convert war factories to the production of peacetime goods.

Referring to Canada's expansion in the production of weapons of war which our manufacturers had never contemplated undertaking but which they are now producing, staggeringly large in quantity and of quality equal to any," Mr. Drummond declared that, in a word, Canada had risen from a single bound to the rank of a major industrial nation. But he made it plain that the first purpose of industry was service rather than profit.

"While this unparalleled expansion in manufacturing had taken place, with progress in production and new profits taxes no company today can retain large profits. Industry is working, not for profit but for the furtherance of our war effort and merits our unstinted praise.

"Nevertheless, it is vital to the future welfare of the country that industry should be allowed to retain sufficient reserves to enable it to meet the strain of re-converting plants to the production of peacetime goods at the end of the war."

The record of business in Canada in these days practically amounted to the history of the government's efforts in the war, declared the president. Controls had increased until they had invaded every section of business and society. He continued:

"Even with a great increase in our national revenue we are spending each day more than half of the total on war; of this expenditure, approximately one-third must come from taxes, which are probably as high here as in any country, if not higher. The balance must come from loans, and it will! Canadians, realizing the issues at stake, are rising to the occasion and their willing response to appeals is a tribute to our national spirit."

Devotional Reading: Philippians 3:7-14.

Explanations and Comments

A Call to Consecration for Service, Romans 12:1, 2. We naturally divide the Book of Romans into two main parts, and say that the first part is doctrinal and the second part practical; but the very first sentence of the twelfth chapter, where we make the division, shows that the latter bears a close relation to the former. "I beseech you therefore," writes Paul. The force of the therefore I give in Dr. Jowett's words: "When the Apostle Paul, in the twelfth chapter of Romans, begins to be hortatory, perceptive, practical, it is because he has already prepared the rich bed in which these strong and winsome graces may be grown. Every precept in the twelfth chapter sends its roots right down through all the previous chapters, through the rich, full soil of sanctification and justification and the mysterious energies of redeeming grace." By the mercies of God (because of God's mercies to them, in contrast to the perverse consecration which Paul urges) I beseech you to give yourselves, all that you are, to God as a sacrifice, set apart, well pleasing to him.

The purposes given by the Cox Volume Commentary makes the meaning of these two verses clear: "God's redeeming love should be answered by the true sacrifice and the spiritual, ritual service of a life of purity and self-denial and service for God. Don't follow the fashion and customs of the worldly society around you, but let your ways of thinking be so changed by the Holy Spirit that you look for and recognize God's will, and love to do it." In short, "in view of all that God has done for us, we should henceforth live for him.

FRESH AIR MEANS BETTER HEALTH

"Air can be a natural tonic—or a headache. But we don't have to be fresh-air fiends. It isn't necessary to expose ourselves to wintry blasts at the mere sight of a window," says a pamphlet titled "There's Health in the Air", issued this month by the Industrial Division, Health League of Canada, for distribution to workers in factories and wartime plants. An effective poster which can be used on plant notice boards goes with it.

"The air you breathe," says the pamphlet, "may be a carrier of infection. (Cold germs can travel ten feet through the air from an infected nose and throat.) Irritating gases from improperly burned fuel may be carried in the air. It also acts as a carrier of dusts and pollens which cause hay fever, asthma and other conditions.

"Most important," it goes on to say, "is good ventilation in the home. Poor ventilation harms health and comfort by:

(1) Lack of motion in the air.
(2) Inadequate or excess humidity.
(3) Improper temperature.
(4) Irritating gases.

The pamphlet declares that good ventilation depends on proper control of heat, moisture and window ventilation. A daytime temperature of 68 to 70 degrees is recommended. This can be lower at night. A humidifier in the home is an aid to health and comfort. These blow moisture into the air—help clean and circulate it.

The furnace should be checked by a qualified expert in order that all cracks and leaks may be sealed, as well as the furnace base and smoke pipe. Then, no smoke or fumes can contaminate the air in the house. Contaminated air, it is pointed out, lower resistance to colds, which is the single factor contributing most to absenteeism. Lost time from work, it is emphasized, is lost wages. It costs less to prevent than to cure.

HALFWAY HOUSE

CHAPTER XI.

A high wind whistled around Halfway House that night. There was no moon; black clouds piled up against the sky. Anne didn't have dinner with the guests; she felt unbearably unhappy, and she was afraid others would notice it. Her meeting in town had added to her fright, and it was hard to hide pain. Especially hard to hide it from Rhea Marshall.

Anne dressed for the evening, and by then dinner was over. She had a bite to eat and a cup of coffee in the kitchen, then went to the lounge where the guests were gathered. Everyone was inside because of the roaring wind. John Blake was being discussed; they were wondering about his sudden departure, and Rhea was saying it was unfortunate that John Blake struck her as rather mysterious.

Anne heard the girl say, "Did any of you notice that he talked with an accent when excited?" Anne felt a chill descending on the back of her. She went into the office, sat at the desk, and wept over her accounts. A little later Rhea appeared in the doorway, asking if she might come in. Her manner was studiously friendly, but there was a narrower bright hardness in her eyes. "Am I cause and stood looking down at Anne.

"I want to discuss my—my husband with you, Miss Lowry," she said bluntly. "Have you noticed that he has

Tales from the Training Centre

By Sgt. Sue Ward

"Peace on earth, goodwill to men." Remember the days gone by when these words would ring out from shed hearts in thanksgiving? In Vermilion, at your C. W. A. C. Training Centre they again resound, but this year they are uttered as a prayer as many of Canada's women prepare to spend their first Christmas in the Army.

"Only four more days to Xmas!" We need no calendar to prove the point. Frantic females rush through the corridors waving "passes" as they scurry into closets and under beds retrieving grips and kitbags which have lain forgotten since furlough.

Then there's the Post Office. On Sunday last, 123 parcels covered the floor while volunteer helpers called names and numbers to the postal staff in an effort to find out more quickly how many parcels would adorn their rooms. At the Training Centre it's easy to recognize one's staff, but at the town Post Office this could be somewhat of a problem. We are not fully acquainted with the setup but we do appreciate the wonderful service which the barracks has been rendered. May this column, on behalf of all officers and personnel, extend to all concerned a sincere "Thank You" with every good wish for Christmas and the New Year.

To receive parcels is merely the beginning if they contain goodies then —it's a party! Invitations are posted on dressers, decorations are hung, furniture, cutlery and crockery are pooled, and carols swell to crescendo in the candle-light as guests take their places on upper's and lowers.

There's nothing more contagious than carol singing. It's the mother of Christmas Spirit. "Let's move the piano up to the canteen!" The thought became a suggestion; the suggestion brings forth ten men, who have laid aside their paint brushes and step ladders, and, presto, the deed is done. "Hark the Herald Angels Sing", "O Come All Ye Faithful". Many and hearts become shed hearts and the assigning of Xmas decorations transforms dreams of a Merry Christmas into realities.

From what this column hears carol singing will not be confined to barracks, N.C.O.s plan to band together in the town on Christmas Eve.

While on the subject of entertainment, we wish to extend our thanks and season's best wishes to Mr. W. P. Pilkie of the Columbia theatre. In no other city has the Armed Forces received price reduction in theatres. This in itself gave proof of your citizens' desire to serve, but in addition, new check room facilities were constructed to accommodate the girls while an extra half hour was granted training personnel by the Commandant, to allow them to attend a complete performance.

There are so many others to whom bouquets are due — the keepers, cafe owners, shoe-repairers, hairdressers, and bonemakers — in the words of Charles Dickens' immortal Tiny Tim "GOD BLESS US EVERYONE".

WEDDING BELLS

MAGEE—SAMPLE

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the United Church manse Vermilion, at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, Dec. 9, when Marion, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Sample, became the bride of Arnold Magee only son of Mrs Mary Magee

Rev. A. T. Bell of Islay officiated.

The bride wore a dress of rose crepe, with accessories in navy blue, and a gardenia corsage. Miss Dolly Mazes was bridesmaid and was dressed in wine with wine accessories. Arthur Hughes attended the groom. A number of friends were all so present at the event.

After the wedding a buffet luncheon was served to twenty guests at the home of the bride's parents. The table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake.

The bride's father proposed a toast to the bride and groom, to which the groom responded. Later the young couple left to make their home on the groom's farm north of Vermilion. Their many friends wish them much happiness for the years to

BRIDE-ELECT FETED AT ONION LAKE

A number of friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Invar Reiheim, Onion Lake, Sask., on the night of Dec 15th, when a shower was held in honor of bride-elect Miss Vina Cooke, Lea Park, Alberta. Many games were played followed by a "Work Wedding" which made the crowd roar with laughter. The bride-elect received a basket filled to overflowing with numerous lovely gifts all of which were wrapped with the Xmas spirit. The house was also decorated for the occasion.

At 1 a.m. a dainty lunch was served by the hostess. After wishing Vina much happiness, the guests left for home quite satisfied with a very enjoyable evening.

ISLAY

Here's a Merry Christmas, as merry as can be had in these trouble-some times, to all you old time Islay folk now spread over the Dominion, from B. C. to New York state, from the Arctic to the peaceful lowlands of the south, and maybe on into the States of America.

Mrs. W. Potvin returned Monday morning from Edmonton having attended the wedding of her sister Lila. The train was very late that morning and it took some ringing on the telephone to get Wilfred, but we think he must have been out doing the chores.

Christmas was observed in the United church Sunday night "The Story of the Christ in Song and Verse" a very impressive service.

Mr. and Mrs Harry Elliott spent Monday here visiting Mr. John Purser in the hospital. Mr. Purser seems quite better to what he was a month ago.

Elmer Anderson left Saturday morning on the first lap of his journey to the coast for the winter.

Curling has begun here some of the lads are trying to get some ice for skating but the mild weather has just been covering it up.

The Xmas concert is expected to be Wednesday night. We hope the German measles don't get to before that Carol Mitchell has them now.

Miss Jean McLennan of Edmonton normal school arrived home Sunday.

Mrs. Rinalson and Miss Faye McLennan spent Monday at Lloydminster.

We notice Charlie Hanna in town wearing a new shiny fur coat Hurrah Charlie!

We saw Pte. Haskell Monday on his way home for Xmas from camp at Dundurn; also Pte. Victor Terrance home from Camp Borden Vivian Beck at the Air Force from Moose Jaw Military hospital, and looking splendid in uniform. Needless to say Albert had the big smile too and so you may, Albert

ISLAND HILL

A number of children have enjoyed a bath with the compliments of Santa Claus expected to postpone the Island Xmas concert at the school for a rather disappointing but Miss Rennie intends to hold a party early in the New Year.

We regret to learn that Eddie Wold is very ill at Lamont hospital. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

And Christmas has arrived once more at Lake Belle Once again [illegible] Ever and ever [illegible] you good tidings, a great one that shall be to all the people. [illegible] day is born to you a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. In the city of David glory to God in the highest and on earth peace to men of good will.

Yes, even in this troubled world men of good will can have peace and from this material point of view Christmas look much better this Xmas.

We will win the war alright but what about winning the peace. Well the looks pretty good too. Everyone should read the Beveridge report and observe home the promises of the newly elected leader of the Commonwealth parties are well worth studying.

And as an example of what men of good will can do New Zealand is a shining light where poverty is abolished.

To our gallant boys overseas, to our fellow citizens and to the Editor and staff of the Standard our wish is

A Very Merry Christmas.

The Post-War Reconstruction committee held in Edmonton has received the fact that people are dissatisfied with the present social economic and financial system, and are going to make a change. This was declared by Premier Aberhart when he spoke at one of the early meetings in McDougall church. "When the people of God's earth catch the gleam of progress, nothing can stand in their way if they go forward," he said. Other speakers included Chas. Beham of Joliet, Ill., Mrs. L. Lende of Chicago and Mrs. A. Alison Kerr of Vancouver. All praised the Alberta people for their forward thinking along social lines.

The War In 1942

AT THE CLOSE of the year 1942 we may look back with pride on the part that Canada has played in the momentous events of the past twelve months. During that period Canadian troops fought the Germans for the first time, and their heroic conduct at Dieppe won admiration and confidence throughout the United Nations. Canadian sailors and airmen have fought in many parts of the world in the past year and they have taken an important part in the growing allied offensive. At home, production of war materials has reached heights which were undreamed of at the beginning of the war. The output of war materials is today three times what it was a year ago, and Canada is now the third largest armed among the United Nations. At the outbreak of the war Canada had the capacity for making only a small amount of military supplies, but now what we produce maintains not only the hundreds of thousands of men in our own armed forces, but is sufficient to allow large quantities to be sent to our Allies. Over half the machinery in Canada today is being used to produce war materials and we may be justly proud of this ever-increasing flow of supplies coming from our war industries

Inflation Has Been Avoided

The average Canadian citizen doubtless feels that considering that we are in the midst of the greatest struggle in history, we in Canada have had much for which to be thankful during the past year. Inflation is one of the greatest evils of war, and this has been successfully avoided here, through the control of prices and salaries. This system of control has brought about some hardships and inconvenience but these have been trivial, indeed, compared to the ravages of inflation. Taxes are heavy but the taxes this year have covered one half of the country's expenditure on the war. The other half has been covered by war savings. If we can continue in this manner, Dominion will be no staggering war debt to encumber us in the post-war period. At the beginning of hostilities, Canada's financial position was sound, and it has continued so in spite of the strain placed upon it by the financing of the war. Of the eight billion dollars which it now Canada's national income, much was made available to the government in war savings in 1942. In this as in every other phase of the war effort we must maintain and if possible increase our contribution.

Turning Point May Have Come

It is possible that when the history of this war is written it will be said that the year 1942 marked the turning of the tide of battle in favor of the United Nations. During the year the full strength of Allied production has been reached, and for the first time it has been possible for them to send fully equipped forces into the field, and to keep them supplied. The Allied air forces have carried out devastating attacks on enemy countries, and we have seen our air forces grow day by day in numbers and strength. At sea, our losses have decreased somewhat, and our rate of replacement of ships has increased enormously. Thus the United Nations have been able to maintain supply routes with increasing success. And the end of this year has seen the armies of the United Nations on the offensive in every theatre of war. The Allied armies have marched in Libya; the Allied successes in West Africa and in the Pacific. Russia and China have held firm and they remain powerful and determined Allies. We have had reverses, and Mr. Churchill has told us that there will be others. But there are definite signs that the past year has marked a change for the better in the situation of the United Nations and we can look with hope and confidence to the beginning of a new year.

So there really is a butter shortage! The figures recently released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics clear up all those rumours about its being a phoney shortage, due to panic buying and wicked wholesalers hoarding supplies. The cold facts are that Canadians are eating more butter than they did last year, so that although production has been maintained at the previous level, we have one much less to spread than we had this time last year.

That means that all of us have got to eat less butter, if we are to avoid the extremely cumbersome and expensive alternative of rationing.

This is not the nutritional disaster you may suppose. The fact is that there are other and cheaper ways of getting the two chief food essentials supplied by butter. These essentials are fat and Vitamin A. A great many people would be a lot better off if they ate less fat, so that's no loss. Those who need this high energy food can get it by eating the fat part of meatis, and of course all meat contains a certain amount of fat throughout. Use butter our only source of Vitamin A, a reduction in butter consumption we did by other articles, for too little of this important vitamin in our diet leads to sight blindness lessened resistance to infection, hence more coughs and colds and in extreme cases to a sore-to-eye disease, xerophthalmia. But butter is only a fair source of A. Cheaper and better sources are the green leaf and yellow vegetables, spinach, broccoli, beet greens, carrots, sweet potatoes, squash. And you will be glad to know Vitamin A is not a temperamental vitamin and survives even inexpert cooking very nicely.

Other excellent food sources are liver and kidney oil. These must be considered cheap substitutes for butter but if you eat liver occasionally and take cod-liver oil regularly, you're getting more Vitamin A than even excessive use of butter could supply.

One thing to remember: if poor chief source of A is to be the green leaf and yellow vegetables, don't use mineral oil either medicinally or as a salad dressing base. Carotene, the form in which Vitamin A occurs in vegetables, is fat soluble. Mineral oil will dissolve carotene out of vegetables eaten and since mineral oil itself is not assimilated the carotene also will be lost. One last word children need more fat than adults. If butter is scarce let the children have most of it. A post card request sent to the Western Division, Health League of Canada, 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, will bring you a free copy of an up-to-date and authoritative Vitamin Chart.

NEWS of your Army

From Directorate of Public Relations Army

(By Lieut. Seth Hatton)

Officers and men from every fighting branch of the Canadian Army are living and training together as members of the First Canadian Parachute Battalion, headquartered at Fort Benning, Ga., according to Lieut.-Col. F. R. Griffin, formerly of Regina and Saskatoon, who commands the unit. The Canadians, formed around a small nucleus who went to Benning to train at the Parachute School last July, have among them Commandos, rugged French Canadians and even kilties from Scottish regiments. They are volunteers who have already had basic training and some of them battle experience, as Captain D. J. Wilkins of Toronto, a Dieppe veteran who has Canadians will qualify as jumpers according to American methods some have already qualified by first standards, so that incorporations from both systems will be used. On their left breasts Canadian jumpers wear the wings already mounted on a background of dark green. The insignia was designed by the late Major H. B. Proctor of Ottawa, Commanding Officer of the earlier Canadian contingent, and Major R. F. South.

Mine Canadian soldiers, battle-tested veterans of Dieppe, were among 60 servicemen who came smartly to attention before His Excellency the Governor-General of Canada in a recent investiture at Government House in Ottawa. To one, Company Sergeant Major Thomas Condi, of Winnipeg, the recognition of his heroism was nothing new. He won the Military Medal in the first Great War, the Distinguished Conduct Medal this time for his work in protecting his company's withdrawal from the famous raid. Cpl. Jack Gregory, who came from Swift Current, Sask., for the first investiture to be held in Canada during the war, won his Military Medal for sniping, as art he first mastered in France 23 years ago. Bank Executives Support Wartime Taxes, Prices and Trade Controls

Huntly R. Drummond, Bank of Montreal President, Suggests That High Taxation and Controls Are Justified for Duration Only — Sees Need for Freedom of Enterprise With Return of Peace

G. W. Spinney, General Manager, Reviews Bank's 125th Year — Discusses War Finance — Says Government Financing Through Chartered Banks Being Kept Within Reasonable and Manageable Proportions

Efforts by the Government to prevent the effects of inflation as experienced in the aftermath of the last war — including price and wage controls and pay-as-we-go taxation — were commended by Huntly R. Drummond, President of the Bank of Montreal, at that institution's 125th annual meeting. Such efforts, he said, "merited the support of every thinking Canadian." At the same time he urged, as he did at the annual meeting a year ago, that controls and regulations be removed with all possible speed after the war so that private enterprise might have the opportunity to convert war factories to the production of peacetime goods.

Wide expansion in industrial production having been financed by taxation and borrowing, under government direction largely central, with the government guaranteeing the overhead and providing the market for the output, he emphasized that "the conditions will not, and must not, obtain after the war."

Describing the income tax, company and individual combined, as "probably the highest in the British Empire," and covering practically every individual, the president said that "everyone has had a measure of hardship by all Canadians have responded in the most encouraging sign for the future. In this connection, Mr. Drummond drew out that "we have gone a long way toward sacrificing everything for victory."

Nor let us forget that on the shoulders of Free enterprise stand those other freedoms that go to make up democracy — freedom of conscience, freedom of speech, freedom of labour and equality before the law.

Bank Earnings Restricted

During the year the bank's assets and deposits reached new high levels; the average assets were $1,021 million in 1942 against $1,032 million in the preceding year, while deposits— the figure which "is our first consideration"—amounted to $1,064,645,- 000. Earnings showed a small increase, but taxes at $2,540,000 were considerably higher, because of the government's policy of restricting net earnings to 7% of paid-up capital profits. The incidence of this increase was felt only in the last four months of the fiscal year, he explained, and warned that taxes for the coming year would be sharply higher.

Touching further with the bank's position, he said that this year even a larger proportion of assets was represented by short-term and immediately realizable investments, which puts the bank in a stronger position than ever before. However, the earning power of all banks had been reduced by such investments, higher taxes and the government's policy of keeping interest rates low — "which we commend."

At the same time he gave credit to the banks in supporting to the come. In their last month they got the rudiments of armoured corps training centre for an intensive course in tank warfare—three months of this, then it's Hitler, have we coast!

Officials at National Defence headquarters name the following poem as one of the soldiers' greatest laments. It was written by a Canadian overseas:

I dropped around this morning to see you,
If there was any mail for me.
There were letters and parcels all around
But not a bit for me I found.
Dear Mother and Dad—and you, my pet—
I didn't think that you'd forget.

The poor old Queen of Battle, the infantry, has been raised to a new official status with announcement by the Hon. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, that a Corps of Infantry is being formed for the Canadian Army. In practice, it was explained by Major-General Letson, the Adjutant-General, regimental titles and integrity will be maintained, but officers will be accepted into the Corps and sent to the unit of their choice if circumstances permit. Officers and men will now receive more uniform training and Corps spirit will grow . . . Lieut.-General Kenneth Stuart, Chief of the General Staff, explained after the announcement that the days of the foot-slogging infantry are gone. The infantry is motorized and has a punch far beyond anything ever conceived before, he remarked.

Insurance For War Risk Shown By Distribution

Ottawa.—War risk insurance purchased up to the end of October totalled $1,200,000,000, it was brought mainly in British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec, Finance Minister Ilsley stated.

The returns indicated that homeowners have not been as interested in war risk insurance as industrial and commercial enterprises, the [illegible] said.

This is possibly because of the free compensation provisions of the War Risk Insurance Act, providing for free compensation up to $3,000 to the owner of a home damaged by war damage, if the owner occupies the home," he added.

"What is apparently not realized by many home-owners is that this $3,000 is the maximum amount payable under the free compensation provisions, and that it may be considerably reduced by reason of the owner's ownership of other War Risk insurance.

The owner-occupier of a dwelling house cannot receive compensation greater than his equity."

The distribution of insurance sales was approximately as follows: British Columbia, 9 per cent, prairie provinces six, Ontario 36, Quebec 32, Maritimes 16.

Prices on a survey of Canadian cities. It was found that approximately 40 per cent, of homes are occupied by the owners and 60 per cent. are occupied by tenants. The survey applied to homes valued by owners to be 60 per cent. occupied by tenants, the landlords are not covered by the free compensation provisions of the act. With regard to the 40 per cent. owner-occupied, approximately 40 per cent. have insurance sufficient to reduce the owner's equity to less than $3,000. The survey showed that the average value of a dwelling house in a Canadian city is $3,500, and that the average mortgage on such dwelling house is $1,700.

Peace Proposals Announced By Herbert Hoover

Chicago — Herbert Hoover, former president of the United States, proposed that peace negotiations may be divided into two stages—a preliminary peace, followed by a period devoted to actual peacemaking.

"The essence of my proposal is that we have no armistice, no general peace conference, such as Versailles, but that we set the peace-making in two stages," he explained.

"The first is an instant 'conditional peace' that will turn the world toward political, economic and spiritual recovery without the delays of last time. And then that the world should take time to cool off and work out step by one and separately the solutions for lasting peace."

He suggested separate problems be negotiated by representatives of the dominant nations as a prelude to action by their governments.

He also stated, in an address prepared for delivery before the Executives club, that the United States must co-operate with its allies in creating a lasting peace and making it secure

To accomplish the purposes he outlined. Hoover said, the United Nations should agree in advance to the terms of a conditional peace and a subsequent program, and should impose and enforce the conditional peace.

He added that the declaration of conditional peace should embrace:

1. Total disarmament of the enemy.

2 Designation of provisional boundaries of nations.

3. Machinery for repatriation of prisoners and civilians driven from their homes.

4. Removal of economic blockade the instant the enemy has handed over his arms.

5. Immediate organization to relieve famine, combat pestilence and aid in reconstruction

"As a practical fact all of these second questions will need at the start to be dealt with by separate commissions as part of the conditional peace. After each of the problems has been separately examined, reported or negotiated, then the principal governments should act."

He stated the conclusions of the commissions should be "open to expression of public opinion," and declared "thus must be a people's peace."

RESCUE AT SEA

Survivor Tells Of Good Work Of Canadian Corvette

New York—The crew of a Canadian corvette which rescued seven men of a tanker in mid-Atlantic were men "of stout heart and real guts," Third Officer Robert D. May of Palma, Calif., said as he told of a perilous rescue in high seas. Fifty-two men were lost in the torpedoing.

"The Canadian corvette went plowing through seas which ran from 30 to 40 feet high—seas which threatened to engulf the tanker—in search of the submerged U-boats," May said.

"By the light of the flares, the Canadian corvettes, and in particular the one which rescued us, weaved their way in and out among the debris strewing the sea, throwing life belts, life jackets and heaving lines to men they saw swimming in the water.

"Whoever was steering the rescue craft, the captain or helmsman was on deck perched precariously on rails while they threw life-saving gear to seamen struggling in the tremendous seas.

"Four times the corvette got lines fast to the lifeboat in which we and five other men were trying to row to safety. Each time the lines carried away, snapping like twine. When a mountainous sea buried us aft under the counter of the corvette, prompt action in baking the vessel on deck perched precariously on rails while they threw life-saving gear to seamen struggling in the tremendous seas.

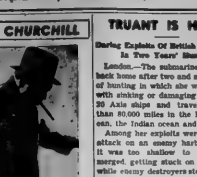
SANG CAROLS

London.—The King and Queen sang carols with the servants at a Christmas party at Buckingham palace. All present brought gifts for distribution among the armed forces.

WORKERS FOR GERMANY

London.—Reuters News agency reports that Germany has imported 200,000 French workers have been sent to Germany.

AGILE CHURCHILL



On his visit to a British infantry training camp recently, Prime Minister Winston Churchill was impressed by the way the men negotiated hazards of a complicated "commando course." After the drill the prime minister—an old soldier himself—demonstrated his agility by going over one of the supposedly isolated logs; as he is shown doing here.

NEW NAZI ORDER

London. — German authorities in Holland, Belgium, France and Norway have ordered police to take fingerprints of the entire population of those countries, the Moscow radio said.

TRUANT IS HOME

During Explains Of British Submarine In Two Years' Shooting

London.—The submarine Truant is back home after two and a half years of hunting in which she was credited with sinking or damaging more than 20 Axis ships and travelling more than 80,000 miles in the Mediterranean, the Indian ocean and Java sea.

Among her exploits were a surface attack on an enemy tanker bound. It was too shallow to enter submerged, getting stuck on the bottom while enemy destroyers steamed overhead, sinking two out of three ships in a Japanese convoy and running a gauntlet of Japanese destroyers in her successful break from the East [illegible]

Her commanding officer is Lt.-Cmdr. H. A. V. Haggard, D.S.O., D.S.C., son of Admiral Sir Vernon Haggard and nephew of the late Rider Haggard, novelist.

YUGOSLAVIA FIGHTS

Are Planing Offensive Seven German Divisions

London.—The Yugoslav government said General Mihailovitch still is the leader of resistance to the Axis in Yugoslavia and that two additional German divisions recently had to be rushed into a 240-mile area of the Sava river valley from Zagreb to Belgrade to cope with this resistance

A government statement said Mihailovic troops now are pinning down seven German divisions "which during November carried out systematic persecution of his supporters"

"In the village Jajinci near Belgrade, 1,000 Serbs were killed," it said.

The statement was issued as a denial of reports that Mihailovic has been supplanted and that guerillas, in fighting the Axis, are ignoring him.

TUNNEL UNDER ENGLISH CHANNEL

London.—Capt. Oliver Lyttelton, production minister, told the House of Commons the combined British and U.S. shipbuilding program for 1943 will substantially exceed 14,- 000,000 gross registered tons.

He said he is in full accord with U.S. authorities with whom he conferred on his recent trip to Washington but he was unable to give the details of the over-all program.

The aid expected from U.S., he added "will enable us to achieve an effective increase of as much as "one third" in the war effort. It would have been otherwise unobtainable, he said.

Lyttelton said he had received assurances U.S. will fill all Britain's requests for shipping raw materials, munitions, aircraft and imports in 1943.

U.S., he said, will assign to Britain sufficient shipping from its own production to maintain a minimum import program.

SECRET ARSENAL

Produces Thousands Of Tons Of War Material Every Week

London.—Britain has a second "Woolwich Arsenal," built "somewhere in the north" on land where grain was harvested a few months ago

Operating over eight miles of roads and 12 miles of rail track, thousands of tons of war material are handled weekly.

The brigadier in command has handled the depot grown from a small wooden hut in the middle of a wilderness to a self-contained township manned by 10,000 tradesmen of war supplies as a monthly routine, with rows of houses, churches, a hospital, theatre and shops.

PLAN INCREASE

Britain And United States Have Big Shipbuilding Program

London.—Capt. Oliver Lyttelton, production minister, told the House of Commons the combined British and U.S. shipbuilding program for 1943 will substantially exceed 14,- 000,000 gross registered tons.

He said he is in full accord with U.S. authorities with whom he conferred on his recent trip to Washington but he was unable to give the details of the over-all program.

U.S., he said, will assign to Britain sufficient shipping from its own production to maintain a minimum import program.

Air Routes Of Empire Are To Be Safeguarded

London.—Britain and the United States have agreed that after the war "all is well be left" on Empire air routes which American planes now are permitted to fly for military purposes, Capt. Harold H. Balfour, undersecretary of state for air, told the House of Commons.

Balfour made the statement in reply to commons assurance that the British government is considering "bold measures" to assure Britain's post war place in the air transport systems of the world and prevent the wrecking of the nation's aircraft industry which employs more than 1,000,000 people.

Balfour said "we are determined to keep our place in the air transport system of the world for the British commonwealth of nations to link up our interests with those of other nations."

"Unless we safeguard the position now either we shall have to contemplate closing down a large part of the aircraft industry employing more than 1,000,000 workers and hope the industrial labor market will be able to absorb them" he said "or alternatively we shall have to continue building bombers and fighters in excess of our post-war requirements."

Members cheered when Balfour said the government will inform parliament as soon as possible on recommended steps "to found a policy of international civil aviation which will be worthy of our people."

He said the air ministry is working on adaptation radio to peacetime use and in conjunction with the ministry of aircraft production has begun designs of requirements.

His declaration was prompted by a proposal by Robert Perkins, Conservative member of parliament, who said he is alarmed by the fact that Prime Minister Churchill had been flown to Russia, Ambassador Halifax to America and Premier Jan Christian Bruzis to South Africa by an "inexperienced" pilot.

Presumably he referred to Pilot William Van Der Kloot, captain of the four-motored Liberator bomber which took Churchill to Russia.

British Paper Has Praise For Canadian Army

London. Hannen Swaffer, dean of Fleet Street journalists, on the third anniversary of the arrival of the first Canadian contingent in Britain, devoted his entire column in the Daily Mail to the present Canadian Army which he called "probably the finest fighting force in the world."

Recalling occasions earlier in the war when orders for action were countermanded at the last moment, Swaffer described the Canadian Army's record as a "story of disappointment and frustrated hope" since the Dieppe raid. "And Dieppe," he said "because of its losses, was no occasion for rejoicing."

Swaffer said Britain would be grateful to the Canadians for their guardianship of Britain's coast after Dunkirk, adding: "It was on the Canadians unkn wn then to the British people—that we relied They did a long and monotonous job of keeping constant watch."

The columnist praised Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian overseas army, as a "superb leader . . . a really magnificent artillery officer."

"The intensity of McNaughton's training is indeed terrible," he wrote, and it will live even the civilians among the Canadians of an ordeal-as great and excelled by any battalion that has been in actual warfare

But meanwhile," he said, "Canada is not. What is holding our army in Britain? Is it to abide by the original plan that they be used on the continent? Is it government policy not to break up the formation of a complete Canadian army? Is it McNaughton's own policy to be in the fortune of war?

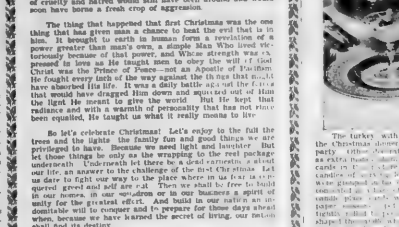
"Whatever the answer is, we can rest assured that Canadian troops with us are at least worthy of those who landed in France 27 years ago. Their sons are equally tough and indubitably better equipped."

Christmas 1942

CHRISTMAS 1942 is not very different from the first Christmas nota except that now our world is larger—has more scientific facilities, greater power to use ruthlessness and cunning. Today we have mass butchery of thousands of innocents, reprisal killings, duplicity and lying unheard of before. One year two thousand years ago all the baby boys were killed by order of the king. That time it was the Jews who were the victims. Two thousand youth zealots who were crucified because they rose up against Roman aggression. God's power was supposed to have been used. One stroke would have freed His people from the Roman yoke. One earthquake, perhaps, to swallow up the cruel conquerors or a pestilence to strike them dead—or an army of hosts to vanquish them. Did God make a mistake? The need was urgent and He sent a New Born Babe! Looking at it from a distance of two thousand years we can see that God was right. He might have vented his wrath on thousands of Romans and relieved the pressure for a while But the seeds of cruelty and hatred would still have been around and would soon have borne a fresh crop of aggression.

The thing that happened that first Christmas was the one thing that has given man a chance to beat the evil that is in him. It brought to earth a revelation of a power greater than man's own, a simple Man Who lived victoriously because of that power, and Whose strength was expressed in love as He taught men to obey the will of God. Christ was the Prince of Peace—not an Apostle of Pacifism. He fought every inch of the way against the things that mould and debase humanity. He fought against the evil that He found in it. But He fought against it not with the dragon's teeth and claws that would have dragged Him down and injured out of Him the light He meant to give the world But He kept that radiance and with a warmth of personality that has not since been equalled, He taught us what it really means to live

So let's celebrate Christmas! Let's enjoy to the full the trees and the lights the family fun and good things we are privileged to have. Because we need light and laughter But let those things be only as the wrapping of the real package underneath Underneath let there be a child-like acceptance of Christ our life, an answer to the challenge of the first Christmas Let us dare to fight our way to the place where in a fear-free, acquired greed and self are cast Then we shall be free to build in our homes, in our education and in our business a spirit of unity for the greatest effort. And build in our nation an indomitable will to conquer and to prepare for those days ahead when, because we have learned the secret of living, our nation shall end its destiny



The turkey with its trimmings is perhaps the centre of interest at the Christmas dinner table, at least for the younger members of the family. But the memories that linger on are those of the happy moments as extra [illegible] shared [illegible] the [illegible] exchanges The contemporaries and place cards [illegible] a [illegible] outlet [illegible] home for a trifling outlay [illegible] were planned on the [illegible] of them left over from last year's [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

"MERRY Christmas!" is the greeting when friend meets friend at Yuletide. "Merry Christmas" re-echoes on every side. It's very repetition is an encouragement to mirth and cheer. It is the greatest inspiration in the world today for the spread of good-will and happiness.

At Christmas time discussion of mistakes, friendship blooms and, for a holy hour, people breathe the spirit of brotherhood. Nothing can unite the people of the world like the spirit of Christmas.

"MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL."

We must demonstrate the spirit of selfless devotion to the universal good — the good of the nation and the good of the world. There must be a re-birth of this spirit in order to win both the war and the peace.

EFFECTIVE NOW

BUTTER

IS RATIONED BY COUPON

The ration is one-half pound of butter per person, per week.

On and after December 31st it is unlawful to sell or buy butter at retail without the surrender of the proper coupons.

Brown coupons, Nos. 1 to 11, "Spare 'C'" from Ration Book Number 1 now in the hands of the public, are to be used for this purpose.

Each Brown coupon, Nos. 1 to 11, "Spare 'C'" entitles the holder to buy one week's supply. Only Brown coupons, Nos. 1 to 11 "Spare 'C'" can be used for the purchase of butter.

Each coupon becomes good on a definite date and expires on a definite date . . . and can be used only within its prescribed period, as given below.

The system for butter is different from that applying to Sugar, Coffee and Tea, where coupons have no specified expiry date.

Dates When Butter Coupons Become Useable—and Expire

Coupon Number	Good for Purchase beginning on	Not Good for Purchase After
1	December 31	January 3
2	December 28	January 3
3 and 4	January 4	January 17
5 and 6	January 18	January 31

Coupons for butter, like those for Sugar, Coffee and Tea (the red and green coupons) must be detached by, or in the presence of any seller of butter or his employee. If desired, consumers may lodge their butter coupon sheets with their retailers, on that the latter may detach the required coupons when delivering.

BEST WISHES FOR 1943

Red Shield Will Continue Collection Usable Articles

New Plan Outlined

There has been an appeal made to the Red Shield, by both the householders at well established homes and the small wage earners who must spend carefully, to continue the work of collecting usable articles and selling them. In other words making our "White Elephant" sale of Dec. 12 a regular occurrence.

After due consideration we have decided to give it a fair trial, but of course the success of this venture depends entirely on the co-operation we receive from the home and business places of the town.

To those who are willing to give may we say, "Give anything you have to use for and let us be judges as to whether we can make use of it or not".

Please do not destroy anything — we will destroy if necessary. For example take clothing—all in salvable condition will be sold; good material's out of style or worn in spots will be made into smaller garments and sent to bombed-out victims; badly worn cottons will be washed, sterilized and sold to quarters while old woollens will be sent away to be woven into blankets for overseas. Other items will be carefully checked as to how to make the best use of them and anything that can be of no further use will be turned over to the salvage depot.

Information has come to us that many articles in first class condition have been sacrificed by sending direct to the salvage where it is valued only at so many cents per pound. It is a pity to see so much waste when our factories are needed so badly for war production. In every home there are many idle things stored away or taking up space and crowding our rooms. Could it not that these things be sent to the Red Shield from time to time and by so doing cover a three fold purpose: 1. Clear our home; 2. Help the small salaried families to more home comforts; 3. Bring more happiness to our British friends and beloved lads overseas by providing comforts with the money received at these sales.

Donations will be received at the Salvation Army hall every Saturday afternoon from 1.15 to 5.30 p.m. or phone Mrs. Reg Spencer No. 123 and make special arrangements.

A hearty invitation is extended to everyone interested in buying or in just a friendly visit to call during the above mentioned time.

The executive of the Red Shield would like to take this opportunity to thank their many friends who by their generosity helped to make our "White Elephant" sale such a splendid success.

Mrs. Spencer, President
Mrs. G. Williams, Secretary
Mrs. A. Holte, Treasurer.

A. M. A. URGES LOWER MOTOR LICENSES

Reduction in the cost of motor licenses in this province was urged in a resolution adopted at the annual meeting of the Alberta Motor Association, held in Calgary recently.

In view of the restrictions on fuel supply brought about by federal rationing regulations and also the fact that the province is not in a position to keep highways up to past standards, due to wartime priorities, it was felt that lower license fees should be imposed on motorists for the duration of the war.

The province has a free hand to make such a license reduction, it was stated.

At the same time, the province under the tax transfer agreement with the dominion, is guaranteed some $2,250,000 annual revenue from the gasoline tax, on the basis of 1940 collections.

A delegation from the motor association will interview the government to urge a reduction in motor license fees next year.

Edwin was well known and respected throughout the district and news of his passing came as a shock to the whole community. Local Rationing Board Is Now Functioning

Duties Explained by Official from Edmonton

R. F. Johnson, liaison officer of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, Edmonton, was in Vermilion last week and formally organized the local rationing board. The Board comprises the following: Mayor J. W. H. Morrison, K.C., Chairman; C. W. Robertson, Secretary; Mrs. Mabel Moore; Mrs. Rosalie Cufford, J. S. Cross, J.C. Tucker, E. H. Buckingham, Gerald Stephens, J. R. Robson, C. L. Whitty.

The first emergency ration card was issued to Pte. Beatty of the Army Service stationed at Red Deer. Pte. Beatty was on the way to his home south-east of Islay on furlough.

Mr. Johnson explained that the general policy will be to assign to the local boards all problems which can best be dealt with by representative citizens of the community in which they are located. He said that under any rationing system cases inevitably occur in which applications for necessities must be made on the ground and that it was desirable that such applications be submitted to re-

Words As Weapons

Churchill Uses Speeches As General Uses Tanks And Planes

Hitler was perhaps the first man in the history of modern warfare to realize the use of words as weapons. Hitler remains the No. 1 rabble rouser of the world, writes Quentin Reynolds. No one can touch him. When you hear him speak before a large crowd you are frightened. Mr. Reynolds remembers, back in 1933, hearing him talk to 500 000 men in a valley near Hamelin. His terrific sincerity, his shouted denunciations of the Versailles treaty makers; his absolute fanatical devotion to the new Germany, all got across beautifully. Half that audience was in tears before he had finished. It was very frightening because you knew that Hitler owned the 500,000. He could make them follow anywhere

To a great extent Winston Churchill has the same knack. Like Hitler, he is a great showman. Unlike those of Hitler, his speeches read well because Churchill is a master of rhetoric while Hitler is not. But Churchill from the beginning has had his speeches as a general uses tanks and planes. He does not speak very often (for a prime minister). He does not waste the ammunition of his words on small targets. He waits until his people need the stimulating effect of his words and then he lets go.

The nightly bombing of London had all of us who were at the receiving end a little punch-drunk. The cumulative effect of many nights of horror and loss of sleep had us all down. In the morning people would be leaden-eyed, dull, lethargic. More than once just when you thought the breaking point had been reached Winston would speak. No one talked of much else for days. People unconsciously identified themselves with Churchill and his courage became their courage and his supreme faith theirs. His words gave London a protective weapon against which the bombs were futile

VARIETY, VALUE AND VITAMINS

Canadian vegetables provide variety, minerals and vitamins in winter meals. Canada's Official Food Rules say that the potatoes are necessary every day for health, with special emphasis on the green leafy and yellow vegetables that are so rich a source of Vitamin A. Raw cabbage, carrot or turnip should be served several times a week in the form of salads. Imports of vegetables have been very small because of the situation between enemies and nutrition may be used to further both physical and emotional health. A balanced diet alone, it says, will not make a balanced personality.

Unpleasant emotional experiences can interfere with the digestion of food and so eaten beenuse of the close connection between emotional feelings and the secretion and activity of the digestive juices. Extreme fear or anger brings acute stomach upsets, while the chronic worrier often has chronic "stomach trouble". The relation between anxiety and stomach ulcers is well known. It is a matter of common observation that food which is enjoyed is more easily digested than food which is not enjoyed.

The publication states that a cheerful and relaxed atmosphere is essential to the proper enjoyment of mealtimes. The table should not, it says, become a place for constant correction and criticism of children. Ideally, for adults as well as children, eating should always be a pleasure-giving experience, good in itself as well as good for our health. Indeed it must appeal to us if it is to do the maximum good.

Louis XIV is said to have originated the minuet of 1653.

Health LEAGUE of CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

WORRY KILLS APPETITE

"Emotional attitudes have a definite effect on nutrition," declares a pamphlet recently distributed by the New York City Committee on Mental Hygiene. "Emotions," it says, "affect eating and digestion at every stage of the process. The angry person is not apt to be hungry; a quarrel at the table will kill an appetite with startling speed. Strong fear has a similar effect. Constant fearfulness, or anxiety, does not force itself on the attention in the same way that a sudden fear does, but its interference with nutrition is more serious because it continues over long periods of time."

The pamphlet goes on to say that love or hates or worries may counteract the effects of the most carefully devised and regulated diet; pleasurable emotions may also increase the healthful benefits of whatever food is eaten. It emphasizes the fact that a proper understanding of the relation between emotion and nutrition may be used to further both physical and emotional health. A balanced diet alone, it says, will not make a balanced personality.

Great Help To Soldiers

Many Have Been Saved By Use Of Sulfa Drugs

Doctors working field hospitals somewhere in New Guinea and soldiers no longer hope that if they must stop a bullet they can be killed outright.

This report was brought back by Capt. Philip North, infantry officer attached to this advanced press relations unit.

North explained the doctors find a majority of the wounded are saved easily by the use of sulfa drugs.

Surgeons told North that casualties receiving their first treatment as long as 24 hours after they had been hit still had uninfected, fresh-looking wounds as a result of using sulfanilamide. Soldiers swallow the drug in tablets and carry a supply which they can sprinkle on their wounds.

Royal Dresses Exhibited

Three Worn By Queen Alexandra Now In Ontario Museum

Now you know what it means to be "dressed like a queen." Recently three dresses worn by Queen Alexandra were given to the Royal Ontario Museum by Lt.-Col. James W. Flanagan. They are on exhibition in the costume gallery. The first of these dresses was worn at a ball given at Balmoral, when Alexandra first came to England, on the 18th of May, 1863. It is a gay, young dress of crinoline style with cream satin skirt trimmed with red-edged ruffles, and bright overskirt of the Dress Stewart plaid. The other two dresses are much more dignified and elegant and were worn shortly after Alexandra became queen in 1902. Both have the small waist and long lines fashionable at that period, and are of exquisitely embroidered satin. These dresses make it easy to understand Queen Alexandra's reputation for beauty and queenly grace. An adjacent case contains the magnificent robe of purple velvet trimmed with ermine, which was worn by H.R.H. the Princess Victoria at the Coronation of Edward VII. This robe, which is also the gift of Lt.-Col. Flanagan, will give Canadians a very clear picture of the pomp and magnificence of a Coronation ceremony.

Valuable Documents

Clear Up Mystery Of Early Life Of William Caxton

Lord Kemsley, the publisher, has presented Britain with documents 500 years old, clearing up the mystery surrounding the first years of William Caxton, "father of English printing." The documents are 15 Latin parchments in exquisite Gothic script. They are expected to fill in previously vague records of Caxton's early life and clear up the mystery of his birth, variously reported between 1412 and 1423. The manuscripts had been in possession of the present Duffield family, of which the Caxtons were neighbors.

Still Waiting For Throne

Swedish Crown Prince Beats Record Of King Edward VII.

No record appears to be permanent. When Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, succeeded to Victoria's throne on Jan. 22, 1901, he was past over 59. No other prince in modern history had waited longer for his crown. Now Edward's record has crumpled. On Nov. 11, Sweden's sturdy, professor-like Gustav Adolf reached the age of 60 still a Crown Prince. His 84-year-old father, King Gustav V., still holds the throne he has occupied for the past 33 years. Edward's whole life, however, had been spent as heir apparent, for his mother had been queen since he was born. Sault Daily Star.

HALFWAY HOUSE

BY MICHAEL TRENT

CHAPTER XII.

Anne pulled on her clothes and ran from her room. Into the hall people rushed in near panic. They surged downstairs, gathered in the lobby, and someone opened the wide door to the fire-filled night. Hot, smoke-laced air puffed in. One look showed that a wall of flames cut off escape by the lower road. Another look showed the fire making an encircling pincer movement about Halfway House. To the west, in the forest barrier toward Beaux Creek, a dozen small fires, kindled by the rain of sparks, mushroomed up. Soon it would be one gigantic inferno.

The noise of the fire was a steady roar. The blazing glow was blinding. The smoke choking. Sparks showered down on Halfway House, "igniting the roof, and a bucket brigade was formed in an attempt to save the hotel. . . .

* * *

It wasn't until he received a report from the Ranger air-patrol that Steve Hayes knew the danger to Halfway House. He had not known that the fire swept that far east. Receiving the radioed report, he blamed himself for not having taken precautions to assure the safety of the people at the hotel. But he knew the blame was not entirely his. The direction of the wind, high wind that it was, should not have driven the fire east. That the flames were beyond Steve's power to control was he already knew: The fire was incendiary, and it had been touched off by some person or persons set in the dozen widely separated places.

He had known that from working, fighting the fire over a wide front, and it was a diabolical machine. But the making wouldn't win until countless acres of timber had been destroyed; the battle would go on for days. All that could be done was being done. The only exception: It was Halfway House.

Her rode up to the hotel through smoke and fiery wind-carried embers, and he found the people there carrying buckets of water in a futile attempt to save the building's roof which was already afire. He sensed the panic and hysteria of the people. He saw Rhea Marshall carrying water. He saw Rhea standing helpless on the front porch with her children. They asked their frightened question: "Is there any way we can get out?" He pushed, shoved, fought her way through the people, and Rhea looked beautiful now, with the fear she felt making a strained white mask of her face. She gripped his arms, her hands closing on him like the hands of a drowning person

"Steve—" She screamed hysterically. "Steve, you've got to save me! You've got to get me away from here!"

A gust of wind showered them all with sparks. Rhea cried out; she beat frantically with her hands at the sparks that fell upon the shawl down she was wearing. He could see that she more than any of the others was near the breaking point. Some feeling, perhaps pity for all her weaknesses made him put his arm about her.

Anne dropped the bucket she had carried from pump to hotel so many times. Steve had come, and his presence steadied the panicky feeling in her. She didn't know how he could help, but she knew that his presence made things better. She watched the others gather about him, heard their frightened questions. She saw Rhea go to him, and she saw Steve put his arm about the girl in his wife. She looked away. The roof of Halfway House, she saw, was a mass of flames. Halfway House was doomed.

Steve said: This is no good, staying here. The hotel can't be saved." His voice was calm but authoritative "Your situation here is serious, and everyone may as well know it. We're hemmed in. The fire is on three sides of us—and coming closer We're lucky to be backed against the lake. Water is necessary for safety by the water. We'll go there at once."

It was a silent group of men and women that walked the half mile to the water There was a sort of clearing by the lake; Steve had the men bring axes and shovels from the burning hotel and widen the space They felled trees, uprooted brush, began digging a trench around the clearing They formed another barrier. Gingerly and moistened the undergrowth to make it resistant. They worked against the blazing background of the forest, against the choking smoke They were soaked and tired and filthy. But they worked. Steve had organized the shadow fight. Some of the men and women were given the task of keeping the water buckets filled. Others were put to work fighting the fire. Steve himself was everywhere, directing, helping, encouraging.

Rhea Hayes flung down the shovel, he worked with There's an abandoned canoe along the shore about a mile," he said. "I don't know if it will float, but I'm going to see. Maybe one of us can cross the lake. There's a motor boat at Billings' Landing. We've got to try to get it. Some come with me." He shook his head as Drew Lowry stepped forward. "Not you, sir. I don't think you're up to it."

Anne could see the troubled look in her father's eyes. He said almost stubbornly, "It's my job. I'm to blame for this, in a way. I permitted Erich Kruger to get away." He looked unhappily at Anne. "Yes, Anne," he told her. "Steve says the fire was incendiary, that Erich set it to cover his escape. Therefore I'm to blame."

Anne couldn't stand to see his grieving eyes. She looked at Steve and saw the rage that mention of the name Erich Kruger etched upon his face. It was a black and savage full rage. Steve looked at her father with those angry eyes, looked him up and down.

"All right," he said, and turned away. The two men moved away, disappeared into the trees alongshore. The pines there were beginning to kindle. They looked like Christmas trees lighted by candles.

It was an hour, it seemed an eternity. The two came through a cloud of smoke carrying the canoe They took it to the water's edge, and launched it. It was old and leaky; water seeped into it at once.

Steve looked at the circle of smoke-begrimed faces. "I'll need someone along to bail," he said. "Someone to bring an empty tin can and a bucket." He paused, then added: "Someone who can really swim."

Anne felt her heart pounding. She was in danger. It was one chance in a million that the canoe would last the mile-and-a-half miles across the lake. Steve wasn't talking of that But Steve rested on her expectantly. He knew she could swim well. She nodded, but then Rhea Marshall stepped out and Erich at the hotel. It was a bucket. He paused, then added: "Someone who can really swim."

"Steve, take me! I'm scared here. Don't leave me here like this!"

"You wouldn't be able to swim, Rhea. You're in a panic." He pushed her away, turning to Anne. His Anne! "Are you ready, Anne?"

Anne held back, wondering if she had the right. She thought, "Steve, she's your wife." She almost said that aloud. Then she stood in indecision. Rhea turned to her, threw her arms, just as a moment before she had seized Steve's.

"Anne, let me go!" She was abject in her pleading. "Make him let me go. He'll listen to you. Tell him I'm afraid!" Her voice rose. "Yes, I'll bet you have him, Anne. I'm not his wife. There was an annulment four years ago. I lied about that. But I'm telling the truth now! I'll let you have him if you make him take me away from this horror!" Anne couldn't analyze her own feelings. Disgust mixed with relief. Pity with hope. Her reactions were horribly confused. She couldn't stand to look at Rhea Marshall longer. She turned and walked away.

"He didn't face about until she knew the canoe had pushed off. It was about a hundred yards off then, Steve carefully paddling and Rhea furiously bailing. The frail craft lay low in the rough water. A million to one chance." They'd never make it. . .

Almost nerves jumped. She stared across the lake, disbelieving her eyes. She had thought there had been light. Yes, there was a small white light moving across Indian Lake. Certainly then, she ran to the water's edge. "Steve!" She called. "Steve—a light!"

He looked over his shoulder. She pointed across the water, trying to make him understand. The light came nearer; it was on a motorboat that suddenly shot clear of a cloud of black smoke lying over the water.

It reached shore almost before the canoe. And the man at the helm was Erich Kruger. That was incredible. Anne felt weak with shock

Steve Hayes met Erich as he leaped ashore after running the motorboat close in. Erich held the boat's painter. He was almost in rags. His clothes were burned His skin was black and scorched his eyebrows and hair singed He shook his head when Steve Hayes lay a hand on his shattered gun

"No need for that, Hayes," he said "I mean to give myself up and be returned to prison He waved a hand "I'm here. I did some thinking Maybe Anne and her father are right. It would be the decent thing for me to return to Canada

"Kruger, this fire was incendiary I think you set it."

"No" Erich tiredly shook his head. "The man who set it is lying in the bottom of this boat. I caught him at his unholy work." He grinned a little. "I am afraid I almost killed him. He put up a fight. He admits he set that other fire, Why, I do not know. Perhaps you know him. His name is Jud—a degenerate sort, I think."

He looked at Anne, softly said, "It came when I guessed Halfway House was in the path of the fire. I hope I came soon enough."

"Soon enough, Erich," she told him. "I'm glad you came—Glad—"

Steve Hayes was sure that Jud was actually in the boat. Then he indicated that the boat should be boarded. He put Rhea Marshall in first. He spoke no word to her, nor she to him. There wasn't room enough for all. Three had to stay behind. Anne and Steve and Drew Lowry remained on the shore.

Erich Kruger said, "You trust me not to escape again, Hayes?"

Steve looked at the circle of smoke-begrimed faces. "I'll need someone along to bail," he said. "Someone who can really swim."

Anne felt her heart pounding. She was in danger. It was one chance in a million that the canoe would last the mile-and-a-half miles across the lake. Steve wasn't talking of that But Steve rested on her expectantly. He knew she could swim well. She nodded, but then Rhea Marshall stepped out and Erich at the hotel. It was a bucket. He paused, then added:

WILDMERE WINKS

Happy New Year to everyone!

We wish to extend our deepest sympathy to Mr. C. C. Smith on the loss of his loving wife. We knew Mrs. Smith very well and she was a kind and very considerate woman. Her cheery face will be sadly missed both in town and in our homes in the country which she and her husband often visited.

We also extend heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Wm. Cummings and family in their sudden bereavement. Mr. Cummings is another of our old timers called to rest. The recently closed Cummings Post Office was named after the late Mr. Cummings and his brother when they ran a store in that district. In the earlier days they also ran a horse ranch southeast of our district on the Battle River. The writer's husband worked for them so was deeply shocked at hearing of Mr. Cummings' sudden passing.

Those who attended Xmas at their homes heresbouts were Albert Howard from his training school in Saskatchewan; Evelyn from her school at Prince George B.C., she reports it much warmer there than here, and Lloyd from the city where he is working until his call in March; Alec Smith also of the city spent Xmas at his home; Pte. Earl Graham of a southern city came to spend the holiday with his children at Wallingford, Mrs. Graham is somewhat improved so she is now able to sit up to eat her meals; Mrs. John Wilson also spent Xmas with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Finlay of Mannville; AC Russell Crathorn had his leave but did not attempt to come out over these roads in the parents so spent it with Mrs. Crather's mother Mrs. Nash in town; Cpl. Laurence Graham now stationed in Manitoba is expected home for a few days this week.

Albert Howard who is now training for a navigator, Pte. Earl and Gnr. Laurence Graham take this opportunity to thank the ladies of the B.W.D. club for the Xmas boxes sent them. It's very cheering to be thought of like this they say.

Xmas trees and concerts are now all past. Our concert held last Wednesday evening was a decided success. It was a wonder how eight children could do so well and be in so many parts. Our teacher Mrs. Wilson deserves great praise for her work in instructing and directing her four pupils. Santa also called and found a well loaded tree, even if it was only a poplar tree decked up in gay colors. The teacher thought it best this year to put the money spent on a tree into extra treats for the kiddies.

Funniest thing this time is on the writer who mistook Bill Garnett for Noel at our concert. We were not alone though Bill as others thought the same so there must be some resemblance eh!

J. Wilson has the curling rink going again this winter folks and the boys have real curling rocks too, 4 pair of them, so now when the town curlers pay our rink a visit they will have rocks like their own to use.

We hope all our sick friends are on the way to recovery, Mrs. Smith is doing very well we are glad to say.

Throughout Central and Northern Alberta, 471,677 people in some way or other will be affected by the end of 1942 and the beginning of 1943. It's the others wish at all 29 of us here at CJCA that YOU will spend a most satisfying - and a victorious - New Year.

CAMPBELL LAKE

We would like to take this opportunity of wishing the Editor and staff the compliments of the season.

It is with pleasure that we report on our Xmas concert, held in the school Tuesday evening. The children performed with efficiency, showing the results of the past weeks of practise; and great credit is due to their teacher, Miss Mahaffey, for the smooth way in which the whole program moved along. Sincere thanks are also in order to Mrs. Geo. Mood, who gave so unselfishly of her time to make the musical part of the concert such a success. The songs rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Swanson, Mary McCambridge, Jean Maggs and Miss I. MahaFey were thoroughly enjoyed. Of course the outstanding feature of the evening, as far as the children were concerned, was the advent of jolly old Santa, who dispensed presents and good cheer to one and all. The evening closed with a few hours of dancing to music supplied by Mr. and Mrs. George Mood. Everyone voted the evening a great success.

Mr. Jim Williams of Vancouver, and formerly of Island Hill, came up to take in our Xmas concert, and to renew old acquaintances.

Pte. Dan Kennedy of Vancouver is home on leave for the holidays.

Bert Mead, who has received his call to the R.C.N. made a flying trip home, spent Xmas day with his parents and returned to Edmonton on the 26th.

Miss Jessie Maggs, who is teaching north of Edmonton, spent the Xmas holidays with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Mead and family spent the Christmas holidays in Edmonton at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mead

We hear the mumps are bad in the district to the south of us. We sincerely hope they did not spoil the children's Christmas fun.

Mr. John McDonnell has gone to the coast for the winter.

Mrs. E. Farley was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Mood over the Xmas week end.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Arnold of

The Air Training Plan

THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH Air Training Plan has entered upon its third year of operation. In December 1939 representatives of Britain, Australia, New Zealand and Canada met in Ottawa and final details of the Plan were arranged. In April of that same year, the first class commenced initial training at Toronto. Preliminary plans for such a training scheme had been discussed before the outbreak of the war, and much thought had been given to the matter by all the nations involved. However we are told that even the most optimistic hopes of those who made the early arrangements have been surpassed by the success with which the Plan has progressed. Its magnitude is understood by most Canadians, for training is carried on in every province of the Dominion. The Prairies, with their excellent facilities for lasting and fine atmospheric conditions have proved ideal for training purposes and in a great many Western communities there is now a thing unfamiliar in the constant hum of planes in the sky and in the presence of airmen from all parts of Canada and from abroad.

Rapid Growth Of R.C.A.F.

While the Air Training Plan is a joint enterprise, it is administered by the R.C.A.F. More than eighty per cent of the men trained under the Plan are Canadians. Since the outbreak of the war it is essentially Canadian and

TEACHERS STRIKE SETTLED

Schools in Vegreville Division Re-Open Monday, Jan. 4 After Two Months' Shutdown

Vegreville school division teachers' strike which closed 62 schools in the division, Nov. 10 was settled Tuesday and schools will be re-opened Monday, Jan. 4, Dr. G. Fred McNally, deputy minister of education for Alberta, announced late Tuesday in the absence of Premier William Aberhart, minister of education.

The settlement was reached when the divisional school board agreed to the teachers' proposal that they be paid a cost-of-living bonus of 7½ per cent.

The agreement on which teachers return to their classrooms provides a total salary payment of $89,830 for the 62 teachers for the 10-month period ending June 1943, plus a cost-of-living bonus of 7½ per cent. From this total is deducted the loss in salary resulting from the closing of the schools during the six-week strike.

"Jim" Otterson Now Sergeant

Cpl H.M.H. Otterson of Vermilion, stationed with A16. Canadian Infantry Training Centre, Currie Barracks, Calgary, has been promoted to the rank of sergeant. It was announced today at Headquarters Military District No. 13.

PRODUCTION IN OIL FIELD IS CUT DOWN

Production in the Vermilion oil field during the month of November showed a big decline from previous months as storage space is now becoming a problem. Discontinuing pumping of wells completely is a costly business and operators are endeavoring to keep the wells producing as near as small an amount as possible.

The following production figures are taken from the November report of the Alberta Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board. 15 wells were actually pumping but production at Princeville No. 2 and Bevans were intentionally omitted as a reserve against storage loss.

Average production of the field is slightly above 7000 barrels as against November's 4378 barrels.

MRS. MARY H. KERSLAKE FOUND DEAD

Mrs. Mary M. Kerslake, well known resident of the town and district since 1906, was found dead in bed at her small house where she lived alone, on Wednesday afternoon. She was 78 years of age.

Ed Lippet, delivering milk to the house, noticed that the previous day's supply had not been taken in. He notified authorities and on entering the house they found the aged lady dead in bed. Time of death was set as early Wednesday morning and was due to a heart attack.

The deceased was probably better known as old timers as Mrs. Tolford coming here a widow in the early days of the settlement. She subsequently married Mr. Bob Beamer who farmed northwest of town in what is now the Chatsworth district. Widowed again she married the late George Kerslake in 1921.

Definite arrangements have not been completed for the funeral but they will be held from the Christian Alliance chapel on Saturday afternoon. Interment will be made in the Vermilion cemetery.

SALUTE TO VERMILION

Every Saturday night at 7.30 the Station CKRD (Red Deer Broadcasting KC) presents that popular children's show "Town Talent".

This program, entirely non-commercial, is dedicated to the promotion of young talent, with all participants under the age of fifteen years.

During the program, the listening audience is given the opportunity of showing its participation to the individual talents of these youngsters by voting for them through the medium of the telephone or by letter.

In each of these programs, they salute one of the communities, cities or towns, in other words, dedicate the program to that selected city or town. Next Saturday, January 9th, the Company will salute the town of Vermilion. In this salute, they will tell of some of the history of the town as to how it got its name, the type of country, sources of revenue for its inhabitants and any other interesting items.

It is hoped the people of Vermilion will respond to this salute by exhibiting their talents for the consumers of their choice. It may be that some day a youngster from Vermilion will be heard over this program.

FARMERS TO KEEP RECORDS

As set forth in the Butter Rationing Order which became effective Dec. 21, records are to be kept by farmers of their butter production and consumption. Farmers who produce butter for sale are required to register prior to January 31

The producer is required to collect the brown "Form C" coupons from customers or storekeepers to whom he sells butter two coupons for every pound. Where the butter producer uses his own butter, he is asked to adhere to the ration limit and turn in the coupons from his family's books at the end of each month to the Local Ration Board.

A GLIMPSE into TOWN HISTORY

This is an old time picture of Vermilion's original town and fire hall which did duty until destroyed in the big conflagration which swept the business section in the spring of 1918.

The big bell noticed in the picture now serves as a gigantic dinner gong out in front of our present administration building.

The tall tower to the rear of the hall was used for drying and drying the fire hose. This tower was struck by lightning and completely destroyed being replaced by a shorter one.

Does anyone recognize the two figures in the foreground?

Tales from the Training Centre

Christmas, 1942, will be remembered forever by those who spent it here in the C.W.A.C. Training Centre, at Vermilion, Alberta.

There were only a handful of us (thirteen trainees and about forty staff) and the afternoon and early evening of the 24th of December were spent in decorating. Several of the trainees trimmed the huge tree which stood in the front hall while others decorated the doorways with real holly (a Sergeant on furlough had sent it from the Pacific coast).

The Sergeants had Mess Dinner that afternoon and after it was over we gathered in the privacy of their mess to dance and play games.

During the evening about a dozen personnel of all ranks marched through the town of Vermilion singing carols. They enjoyed themselves immensely and received a warm welcome wherever they went.

On Christmas morning we all gathered in the Y.W.C.A. canteen and realized more keenly than ever before the meaning of the Christmas Message which was brought to us by our Padgbish (H/Captain V. Wilson).

We received quite a surprise to find that Santa Claus had joined up with us. Santa was making the rounds this year—(Dent' tell a soul, but she distinctly resembled L. Cpl. MacDonald, D.R.). Both Santa Claus greatly increased the fun and general Christmas spirit.

And then the Christmas dinner! Turkey with all the trimmings! The privates and junior N.C.O.'s sat in state while officers and senior N.C. O.'s waited on table bedecked sitting down for theirs. The meal was delicious and everyone ate to capacity. Cheers upon cheers paid tribute to our cooks in appreciation of the excellent banquet. The corporals sang merrily while they washed the dishes and in this way finished their share of the Christmas work.

Making a perfect ending to our day, we give our hearty thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Vermilion who opened their doors to us. There were invitations enough to spare and only those whose Regimental Duties kept behind were left in barracks. The welcome extended by the people of Vermilion to personnel of the Training Centre, especially during the Christmas season, is indeed deeply appreciated.

During the last week in December nine of our C.W.A.C.'s added to their stripes four white tapes on their shoulder straps, that is, they were promoted to the rank of assistant Officer's Training course. They were: Sgt. Ward, K.; A. Sgt. Beaucon, L.J.; A. Sgt. Hinsley, T.A.; A. Sgt. Grieve, D.A.; A. Sgt. Hamilton, A.J.; A. Cpl. Hanley, L.V.; A. Cpl. Mitchell, A.E.; A. Cpl. Stark, M.M.; A. Cpl. Weaver, E.

Personnel of No. 2 C. W. A. C. (Basic) Training Centre take this opportunity of wishing the people of Vermilion a very Happy New Year.

Volunteers in Army and Airforce

Officials of the rationing division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board emphasize these rulings in answer to both protests and enquiries.

Quick Work in Iraq

Railway Line Built in Record Time Across Desert Land

A new railway line connecting Iraq with India, which will greatly help to speed up the sending of supplies to Russia, has been opened up. The line, more than 160 miles long, was laid at the incredible rate of a mile a day across scorched desert land with the added impediment of occasional sand storms and tropical downpours. The work was done entirely by Indians—surveyors, sappers and railwaymen—and rolling stock and rails all came from India. Another engineering triumph, which will also permanently benefit Iraq, was the laying of a 66-mile pipe line by British engineers in a fortnight recently.

Canadian Event

Has A Truly Western Scene Painted On Its Side

Warships of every class from minesweepers to battleships come and go gaily in a grim and business-like port in Britain, but not one has an insignia as distinctive as the Canadian corvet commanded by Lt.-Cmdr. Robert A. S. McNeil of Montreal and Hamilton.

Painted on the side of his ship's superstructure is a mounted policeman riding a submarine through the sea cowboy style, left hand holding the reins curbing the sub and the right hand waving a service revolver.

The insignia is as Canadian as the Mounties, and the significance—apart from the corvet's 18 months of heavy work on Atlantic convoy—is that Cmdr. McNeil and two members of his crew are former R.C.M.P. men. One is Sub-Lt. C. J. (Chuck) Rathgeb of Toronto and the other Gnr. Elmer Armstrong of Ottawa.

The Mounties riding the sub is a fairly accurate portrayal of Cmdr. McNeil's police and naval career. He served in Regina at various years ago, then was posted to the Atlantic coast's "rum patrol"—anti-contraband division.

The insignia was painted by Signalman F. D. Richard of Niagara Falls, a display painter there before he enlisted. A.B. Al Taylor of Toronto, who since has left the crew, helped design it.

Royal Bank Figures Reach New High

Total Assets At Record Level Of $1,391,616,947—Public Deposits Over Billion Dollar Mark

The steadily mounting tempo of Canadian business is strikingly reflected in the Annual Balance Sheet just issued by The Royal Bank of Canada for the year ending November 30th.

Total assets are well over the billion dollar mark and now stand at $1,391,616,947, the highest point ever reached in the history of the bank.

Deposits by the public, topping the billion dollar mark, have likewise reached an all-time high. The liquid position has been still further strengthened with quickly realizable assets representing 75.44% of the bank's liabilities to the public, a high point of view of aggregate assets and liquidity this year's statement is the most impressive ever issued by the bank.

Profits for the year show moderate contraction due to increased taxation Government taxes, higher operating costs and the fact that comparatively low yields are being obtained on the substantial sums invested in Government bonds.

Total assets have increased by more than $216,000,000 over the figure established the previous year. Liquid assets show material expansion and aggregate $906,440,238 as compared with $681,914,308 a year ago. Liquid assets include Dominion and Provincial Government securities, $519,801,-565 as compared with $371,231,306 the previous year; [illegible] and British Government securities, $66,-029,791 as compared with the previous total of $6,812,000, while cash on hand and deposits with the Bank of Canada, other cash items and bank balances are $261,854,474 and $37,-805,766.

Current loans in Canada stand at $253,148,401, an increase of $13,360,-360. It is understood no loans made by the bank to assist purchasers of the recent Victory Bond issue account for this increase and that ordinary commercial borrowings are somewhat lower. The explanation is that activities of many businesses have been diverted to war production, resulting in rapid turn-over and prompt settlement of accounts; furthermore, inventories are, generally speaking, lower. As a consequence many concerns find it unnecessary to borrow from the banks.

Current loans outside Canada are down by slightly over $16,000,000. Total deposits are higher by $235,-000,000 and now stand at $1,161,217,-182. Dominion Government deposits at $144,192,823 are substantially higher and this is attributed to the Government depositing with the banks the proceeds of the recent Victory Loan. It is interesting to note that despite substantial withdrawals by the public for the payment of Victory Bonds, public deposits (excluding Government deposits) have increased from $902,152,676 to $1,-002,347,405.

After providing for Dominion Government taxes amounting to $3,014,-186 and making appropriations for bad and doubtful debts, profits for the year amounted to $3,000,132 which represents a slight reduction as compared with the preceding year's figures. From these profits dividends amounting to $2,625,000 were paid, $815,000 was provided for the Pension Fund and $400,000 for Bank Premises Account, leaving a balance carried forward to the balance of Profit and Loss Account which now [illegible]

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LESSON II

JESUS INSTRUCTS A GREAT TEACHER

Golden text: For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life. John 3:16.

Lesson: John 3:1-18.

Time—Second week of April: 1 John 3:1-10.

Explanations and Comments

Jesus Visited by a Ruler of the Jews. John 3: 1, 2. Nicodemus the Pharisee was a ruler of the Jews, that he was a member of the Sanhedrin, the highest council of the Hebrew nation, a man high in the ecclesiastical, intellectual and political life of the nation.

Nicodemus is known today as "the man who came to Jesus by night," and many sermons about spiritual timidity and cowardice have been based upon the fact that he did not make his visit in the daytime. Yet there were doubtless good reasons for his choosing the nighttime. He may have been activated by justifiable caution. Had he gone to Jesus in the daytime the people would have proclaimed him a disciple of the Nazarene, and he was not yet ready to throw his influence that way, not being himself sure that he believed in Jesus. John 12:42 tells us that some even of the Sanhedrin believed in Jesus, but dared not let it be known lest they be put out of the synagogue. Then, too, Nicodemus may have wished to have uninterrupted talk with the Great Teacher, and for this Jesus' days were far too crowded. Let us think of this visit as a prearranged interview which Jesus was glad to grant a genuine seeker after truth.

"Jesus did not show any unusual eagerness in receiving his unusual guest. To him a man was of consequence exactly in proportion to his manhood. No other consideration entered in. He cared just as much for a poor man as he did for a rich one and just as much for a rich man as he did for a poor man."

The Conversation about the New Life, John 3:3-15. The report of the conversation here is abbreviated, and between question and answer no doubt other remarks intervened. The unspoken, or the unrecorded, question of Nicodemus—"How can one enter the Kingdom of God of which thou speakest so often?"—Jesus answered by saying: "Verily, verily, I say unto you (and whenever he uses these words we know that something especially solemn and important is to follow). Except one be born anew, he cannot see the Kingdom of God."

VERY GOOD REASON

"Don't they teach you to salute in your cosspany?" roared the major to Patrick Malone, who had passed him without raising his hand.

"Yes, sir," replied Pat.

"Then why didn't you salute?"

"Well, sir," said Pat, "I didn't want to attract more attention than necessary because I'm not supposed to be out without a pass."

MAINTAIN HEALTH IN BRITAIN

"The health of the people of the United Kingdom has not only remained good in spite of the war, but in some ways has even shown improvement." This statement was made recently at a press conference by the chief medical officer to the British Ministry of Health, which is reported by the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Provisional figures supplied by the British registrar general and quoted by the medical official showed that the death rate in the United Kingdom for the June quarter was the lowest for any June quarter except in 1927, 1930 and 1933. The infant mortality rate, also, was the lowest for any June quarter except that of 1940. "

The number of cases of typhoid in the year ending January 31, 1939 was 701. In 1940 it rose to 1,463 and in 1941 to 2,539. But in 1943 it fell to 521. Cases of cerebrospinal fever, which numbered 10,025 in 1940 and 8,845 in 1941, were reduced during the present year to 4,766. The campaign against diphtheria has also been an outstanding success, the diphtheria rate having declined from [illegible] children under the age of fourteen, out of a total of 8% millions had been immunized.

The vigilance of the medical authorities in all parts of the country, the medical officer, declared, was accomplished by the prompt measures taken recently in Glasgow to stamp out an outbreak of smallpox. A virulent form of typhus had been brought to the city in a ship. There were 41 cases and eight deaths. All the cases except four occurred in Glasgow. The cases were traced, he said, and the infection was combated with vaccination. The risks were tremendous but it looked as if the epidemic had petered out. The amazing thing was, the Medical Officer pointed out, that this result had been achieved in a comparatively short space of time after the first case had been reported.

CHAPTER I.

THE little man entered the cafe behind the tall Bedouins and at first Jack Storey did not recognize him. Being a stranger in the town of Ain Saffa, Storey was not on the lookout for acquaintances. But the fellow, half-hidden by the burnoosed Arabs, was staring at Storey's table in such a manner as to draw the latter's attention.

There was a look of astonishment on the man's dark face and his lips were moving as though he were muttering to himself. Jack Storey felt surprise in his grey eyes pencilled over the other's features. The man in the doorway was Andre Ribott, the little Frenchman who had made it possible for Storey to cut the last tie that bound him to Algeria.

For a moment Storey imagined that Ribott was on the point of leaving the coffee shop to avoid an encounter with the fellow he had betrayed and an extended hand.

"Monsieur Storey," beamed Ribott. "You will pardon my astonishment. I hardly expected to see you again, least of all in Ain Saffa."

"Nor I you, Ribott," said Storey. "What sold you my sheep I understood that they were taken them north to Djelta where they were to be shipped to Algiers."

"That is what I would have done," explained Ribott, "but I learned that my mission was to be accomplished as close to Ghadaia. But, you see, I had expected to go through all the sheep country before obtaining the number of sheep required by the French government, and the men who were to drive the flocks to Djelta were waiting at Ain Saffa. I had to bring the sheep here even after your generosity and example had enabled me to more than fill my orders for meat for starving France many miles and day ahead of schedule."

"You brought them here?" Storey lifted an eyebrow. "Ain Saffa lay many miles and days ahead of schedule, Ghadaia.

"It is all right, monsieur," smiled Ribott. "From Ain Saffa I can march the sheep to Touggurt where there is also a railroad to the coast."

Andre Ribott added a streamer of smoke to the bluish haze about the lamp-lit room, and to the thick-faced waiter Hiss appeared at his elbow said, "Bring me a bottle of your best Algerian wine."

WHEN the two men were alone once more, Ribott smiled ingratiatingly. "I have explained my presence in Ain Saffa, Monsieur Storey. Will you satisfy my curiosity concerning why you yourself are so far south and east?"

"I'm on my way back to the United States," answered Storey. "My country is in the war now, you know. From Ain Saffa I shall cross into Libya and head for Egypt, and so to Cairo. I ought to find some way of reaching America."

"You are making this desert journey alone?"

Mohammed ibn Mulai is with me." Storey's white teeth lighted his sunbrowned face. "You remember Mohammed? He was my head shepherd, the man who argued that I was giving you my flocks for half their value."

The waiter came back placing a cup and a bottle of wine in front of Ribott. As the Frenchman poured himself a drink, the waiter cast a look at Storey and scurried. Wonder monsieur care to examine our wine list? You have a few French dishes that are not as strong as our native drinks."

"No," said Storey. "I——"

The wine dark as his eyes fell on the piece of cardboard the waiter was holding before his face. Oh the white was written on the [illegible] list of vintages, but: "Be careful. Monsieur Storey! You leave this cafe before or with Andre Ribott if you expect to leave Ain Saffa alive."

Composing himself, Storey took the card from the hand of the waiter. The message was written in French and by a feminine hand. He eyed the waiter. Where had this fellow got the card? Only the presence of Ribott stilled the tongue of the American.

"Would monsieur care for wine?" The waiter's bland expression did not change. "Such the Burgundy and the Bordeaux are excellent."

"Thank you, no." Storey tossed the card aside and picked up his half-empty cup. "This native drink will be sufficient."

The waiter bowed and, with equal carelessness, tucked the card into the sash about his waist. Storey made a pretense of sipping the thick, sweet coffee and watched the departing man. But the waiter spoke to no one, vanishing through an arched door at a side of the room.

ANDRE RIBOTT ran his finger over his wire-dampened mustache. He lighted a second cigarette and held the case invitingly toward Storey. This time the American accepted a smoke, chiefly to busy himself while he got his symbol at the situation that was developing.

The mysterious message hinted "el Monsieur" Andre Ribott intended to kill him, or have him killed. The only two men there north in Djelta where they were to be shipped to Algiers."

"That is what I would have done," explained Ribott, "but I learned that my mission was to be accomplished as close to Ghadaia. "It is all right, monsieur," smiled Ribott. "From Ain Saffa I can march the sheep to Touggurt where there is also a railroad to the coast."

Andre Ribott added a streamer of smoke to the bluish haze about the lamp-lit room, and to the thick-faced waiter Hiss appeared at his elbow said, "Bring me a bottle of your best Algerian wine."

WHEN the two men were alone once more, Ribott smiled ingratiatingly. "I have explained my presence in Ain Saffa, Monsieur Storey. Will you satisfy my curiosity concerning why you yourself are so far south and east?"

"I'm on my way back to the United States," answered Storey. "My country is in the war now, you know. From Ain Saffa I shall cross into Libya and head for Egypt, and so to Cairo. I ought to find some way of reaching America."

"You are making this desert journey alone?"

"Mohammed ibn Mulai is with me." Storey's white teeth lighted his sunbrowned face. "You remember Mohammed? He was my head shepherd, the man who argued that I was giving you my flocks for half their value."

The waiter came back placing a cup and a bottle of wine in front of Ribott. As the Frenchman poured himself a drink, the waiter cast a look at Storey and scurried. Wonder monsieur care to examine our wine list? You have a few French dishes that are not as strong as our native drinks."

"No," said Storey. "I——"

The wine dark as his eyes fell on the piece of cardboard the waiter was holding before his face. Oh the white was written on the [illegible] list of vintages, but: "Be careful,

BOWTELL BULLETIN

In spite of cold weather and heavy roads a fairly large crowd attended the Bowtell dance. Denise Noonan is to be thanked for acting as M. C. and Mrs George Monaghan for bringing sandwiches and all others who co-operated to make the dance a success.

The writer would like to thank Don Harrison, Mr. Hepp and Mr. Gow for kindly using their cars.

The Person family had the misfortune to have the roof of their house catch fire Luckily the section men were nearby and the fire put out, thus preventing what could easily have been a disastrous conflagration.

Mr Gow has built a really snug closet in cutter for his kiddies to travel to school in.

Mr. Scrachan is home from the hospital daily receiving treatment for a bad leg

Mr. and Mrs. Walker spent New Year's day at the home of Mrs. Hicks in town William visited at the Stewart home west of Vermilion.

Quite a number of the young folks enjoyed a tobogan ride recently at the Mestinnis farm

The trustees are to be congratulated on the thorough job they made of cleaning the school after the Xmas concert.

Skating will start soon on the new rink.

The writer enjoyed a chat with Jim Williams during his short stay here.

Mrs. Perkins and baby Evelyn and Mr and Mrs. Dodsley were New Year's visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jones

ISLAND HILL

It was indeed a shock to the community here when they learned of the death of Edwin Arnold. He was a lovely disposition, a fine lad in every way, just on the threshold of manhood. He leaves to his parents, his sister, and to his brother, who is serving overseas, our deepest sympathy.

We had the pleasure of visits from Geo. Field, John Williamson and the Misses Williamson during the holidays.

Had a talk with Pilot Officer Powell and congratulated him on his promotion.

Private Peter Birmingham was a guest at the Acheson home while on leave here.

Bowtell heading for Vermilion Sunday were Geo Douglas, R.C.A.F., returning to his station, Miss Maggie returning to her school and Miss M. to her position in town.

Stan Hall spent his Xmas leave in his old home.

Met in town Sunday afternoon Hy Doty and Billy Roman and they informed us they had a scoop for our column. Seems their hostelry boarder friend sent them a kangaroo and they had it caged in Billy's tailor shop. While proceeding to have a look at the animal, who did we see bending to the same direction but the Editor of the Standard, we thought at first the Editor was also in the secret but he went elsewhere The kangaroo is the property of Billy and Roy and will be shown to the public shortly at a small fee, the proceeds of which will be given to war services. It is the most extraordinary animal we have ever seen.

Gen. Field was the guest of the Williamson family on New Year's Day

CALL IT ALASKA HIGHWAY — SAYS FALLOW

Call it the Alaska highway and let people know what you mean. Do not call it the "Alcan" highway, which to millions of people means nothing. This is the gist of a request made by Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, to all newsmen, publicists and radio speakers, supervisory head of the general public. The term "Alcan highway, he said, was merely a bit of telegraphese coined to save toll charges in telegrams and radiograms. "The word 'Alcan' is strongly objected to by public organizations in Western Canada, particularly motor associations boards of trade, chambers of commerce and government officials because, not only does it have an unpleasant sound; it is meaningless to the great mass of the public residing elsewhere than in the Canadian Northwest. On the other hand the name 'Alaska highway' is not only pleasant in sound, but it carries the fine traditions and romance of the Northland, and is clearly understood by everyone," said Mr. Fallow.

For thousands of lads who have been training in Canada as members of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan, this festive season has been the first away from their native lands. Indeed, many have never before spent the Yuletide away from their homes and childhood friends.

Boys from the British Isles, Australia and New Zealand have learned during the holiday season, if not previously, that the people of Western Canada are certainly hospitable. Citizens have extended thousands of invitations for Xmas and New Years to youths from other lands.

To airmen from Poland, Czechoslovakia, Norway and France who have been training in Canada the wealth of Christmas happiness which has been ours on the fourth Xmas at war has been an inspiration for them to return with an added incentive to assist in the release of their lands from Nazi chains.

Western Canadian boys, in service uniform, are serving this holiday-time on countless battle fronts. Never before have so many representatives acted as goodwill ambassadors to other lands. This Christmas-time will be a tie between the peoples of the Dominions and Free Men of the world, which will prove of unlimited value when Peace has been restored.

On a certain pier at an "Eastern Canadian Port" stands a warehouse of the Canadian Red Cross Society and the Overseas Postal Service. Inside that building are busy men and women sorting and packing supplies for Canadian forces overseas.

It is from this warehouse that the men of the Navy, the merchant marine and the army receive their supplies of warm woollen comforts. It is from this warehouse that the scarves, sweaters, socks, caps and mitts are issued to the men, so that no one need suffer from cold or neglect.

It is from here too that the shipwrecked survivors, regardless of religion or nationality receive their new supply of clothing. It is these bundles of clothing that change the tattered and battered seaman back again into the fully equipped and well-dressed clothed sailor ready to go to sea again.

It is a matter of record that from this pier at an "Eastern Canadian Port" were issued in one month It is also a matter of record that hundreds of men of the Navy, merchant marine and the Royal Canadian Air Force are enthusiastically and articulately grateful to the Canadian Red Cross and its workers at this pier.

These are but routine incidents—this happens every day at the Red Cross pier at an "Eastern Canadian Port."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

(This paper does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.)

Alberta Farmers Union,
306-7 Agency Building,
Edmonton, Alberta.

Editor, Vermilion Standard.

Dear Sir:

Unless the Dominion Government takes immediate steps to guarantee the producer getting an equitable price for hogs in comparison with that received by the packer, many farmers are going to make drastic reduction in their hog feeding operations.

At present the price is jockeyed up and up and down to an inexplicable degree and farmers are convinced that the packing interests are getting more and more than their fair share.

Previous to the raise in the hog market price the packers were paying as high as $14.15 per 100. An equivalent price under the new contract would be $16.40. A few days before the new contract price was announced the price to the farmer was dropped to as low as $12.75 to $13.50. This was the packers own minimum and was obviously satisfactory to them.

The new contract called for a raise of $2 per 100 which should make the packers minimum $13.25. They are only paying $12.15 at Calgary.

The chiselling is obvious, the packers are trying to get (and are getting) at least half the increase for themselves. At the new contract price the farmer should get at least $14.10 to $14.25 Edmonton and Calgary and the Alberta Farmers Union wants both the packers and the Dominion Government that unless something equitable is immediately done as regards the price paid and the labor supply there is grave danger that the 1943 bacon contract will not be filled.

In order to ensure an adequate supply of hogs for the next two years in parity will have to be paid to the Producer and this should be in the neighborhood of $22 per 100. With present price discounts prevailing on hogs below the B grade, retail prices for domestic pork are plenty high and this is where the Government should exercise price control and not at the producer, at present. The same is true in regards to wheat. Present bread prices justify $2 wheat to the farmer and all he is getting for the small amount he is allowed to sell is about 60c per bushel. Practically the whole brunt of price relief is being borne by the farmer and the poorer class of consumer.

Yours truly,
H. E. Nichols, Secretary,
Alberta Farmers' Union.

Winter Time is Reading Time

The Iona ... provide the farmer with an opportunity to catch up on his reading Reading is a pastime that many people enjoy during the winter months and is recognized as one of the best methods to increase our fund of knowledge During the winter months the farmer has an opportunity of reading bulletins and press articles dealing with problems he meets in the industry in which he is engaged. He has an opportunity to learn about new methods that might be adopted on his farm to improve his farming practices and in reading he has access to the ideas and ideas of others that might be useful to him.

THE SHORTAGE OF FARM LABOR

On all sides we hear there is a shortage of farm labor. Tens of thousands of our farm boys have enlisted in the Armed Forces and thousands of others have gone to work in munition plants because of the wages paid. Demand for men by these war industries. We hear, too, that the call since as well as the farms are short of workers and that there will be a shortage of coal needed to keep farm families warm this winter. But the production of food is perhaps the most important war industry of all. Also Canada must go "all out" to do her full share with other countries of the United Nations in providing the munitions for the Armed Forces.

What is the remedy for this situation? In the first place Canada must recruit the production of millions and draw on the United States more for these things, and from the latter we should copy Britain's example and mobilize women to the same extent as men putting many more women at work in munitions factories and at jobs which they can do as well as men, and so release men to the farms If Britain can do all this we can we If is of little use having large well-armed and well-equipped forces if they are to be short of food

Following factors have tended to decrease supply or increase demand Canada plans to reduce wheat acreage from 21,184,000 acres in 1942 to 16,- 686,000 acres next year—Due to unfavorable weather It is expected that wheat acreage in the Lakehead will be reduced again this year

Following factors have tended to increase supply or decrease demand: Farmers in the U.K. have produced 6½ per cent of the food required for next year and have been requested to make a further increase of 15 per cent —The Argentine wheat crop has been officially estimated at 242,040,000 bushels compared with 224,111,000 bushels last year.

A PATRIOTIC TASK

An abundant supply of foodstuffs is the most important weapon of war. In making available large quantities of farm products our prairie farmers are performing a patriotic task of the highest value to their country.

"And now," says Florence, "we drop a little stone into the Well and wish ever so hard." And so it all begins. CBC's "Wishing Well" series heard on Sundays at 9.30 p.m. MST is a flight into Fairyland with fresh young voices speaking and singing, and the gossamer notes of an elfin wish. Here we see Jeanette and Florence and Rose at the Wishing Well, about to drop the magic stone. Douglas Rain, youthful Winnipeg actor, heard on many CBC dramatic programs. Florence Fordesz chirping young soprano, lately of Port Arthur, now of Winnipeg, and Rose Zarek, Winnipeg violinist, are the principals of this light-hearted program, written and directed by Producer Bernard Braatlie of CBC Winnipeg. The combined ages of the three children total 12 — 11 years each. Florence's lovely voice was heard previously on CJE ceremonies in the Stockfish program "Canadiana Lil" series. Invited CBC producers subsequently predicted that Jenny Lind's true successor had been found at last.

A LOCAL NEWS LETTER FOR THE BOYS OVERSEAS

The following summary of the local news highlights for 1942 is compiled with the idea that it might be clipped out of the paper and sent in Vermilion and district boys who are overseas or in other parts of Canada and who are anxious for home town news.

* * *

The district is in the grip of winter and has been since early in October. It is going to make a long and a touch one. Thousands of acres of stooks are covered over with somewhere feet of snow. Sometimes as far as the eye can see are mounds to mark the stooks now frozen in and which have to be cut out to be retrieved for use. Fully 50 per cent of the threshing will not be done until spring. With the good prices had for bags and cattle the farmers manage to keep up with their needs and the ration boards.

The ration system is now being extended to cover many events in one's life. First it was gas then it was such necessities as tea, coffee, sugar and butter. There are inconsistencies but no one is suffering any hardship. The people are really being taught how profligate they have been in the past. The latest squeeze is that put on the manufacture of china and crockeryware with handles. When the boys get back home they probably will be served their coffee in handleless cups. However it is to the good. Everyone is prepared and what goes with it that counts after all.

The Christmas holidays are over. Boys serving in the different forces all the way from Ontario to British Columbia spent the Yule tide visiting their homes and friends. The annual New Years' Eve dance under the auspices of the local Elks Lodge proved a night of jollification which helped to make up for the sergeant's staccato "Attention" work.

1942 was a sort of a funny year. A fairly open winter and a propitious spring were followed by an hopeful summer, but came an early fall of drenching rain and then a killing frost, when the landscape became covered with snow. The old timers one recall a year in which there was less sunshine taking the seasons by and large. But this is a most year's country anyway.

Another of the old timers of the district, William "Bill" Cummings passed away on December 21 at the age of 70. The deceased and his brother John first located in the Cummings district this being the name given the post office which they opened there in connection with their store. They came into the Vermilion district in 1892, John subsequently moving to Edmonton. The widow, one son Pat and one daughter Mrs. Ruby Gardiner survive. The funeral service took place from the Anglican church.

New Year's night the curfew sounded in Vermilion at 9.30 o'clock marking it rather eventful for boys and girls under the age of 14 prone to loiter about the streets until all hours of the night. Newsboys are required to procure a license before they can sell or deliver newspapers in town. The town has also prohibited the use of paper or inflammable decorations in all places of entertainment.

George Wright and family have moved to Vancouver where they will reside in future. Mr. Wright was with the International Harvester Co. for over thirty years.

Very little hockey has been played in town this winter but teams are lining up and much activity in this line of sport is anticipated before the season is over. Art Webb has gone west to Chicago where he appears on the defence line-up of the Black Hawks. He coached the local teams before he went, shooting them many new tricks of the game.

The people of the municipalities west of Vermilion are awaiting the decision of the department of municipal affairs as to the boundaries of the proposed municipal districts. It was first suggested that the dividing line run east and west making Marwayne and Kitscoty about the centre. Considerable adverse agitation followed and both ends appeared satisfied with a north and south line making three districts to the west and three east with offices at Vermilion and Lloydminster.

The Teachers' strike in the Vegreville school division has been settled, the settlement being on the basis of the teachers getting a 13½ per cent raise of living bonus. Upwards of 1800 pupils have been out of school for nearly two months. The payment of the bonus will mean an additional levy upon the division of $70,000. The teachers will lose their pay while out of school. The strike has been commented upon by newspapers from the Atlantic to the Pacific ranking among the major strikes in Canada for the year 1942. The basic salary now will be $925 as against $840 previously.

A local union has been constituted for the Vermilion district. It comprises eight members besides the Chairman Mayor A. W. G. Morrison, and the secretary, Chas. W. Robinson. Its functions for the present will be largely confined to issuing emergency rations covering tea, coffee, sugar and butter. Their duties will be enlarged from time to time.

Vermilion now has only one medical man, Dr. A. C. Bradford, and one dentist, Dr. H. J. Clarke, his partner Dr. W. H. Scott having enlisted in the Army Dental Corps. Owing to enlistments there is great scarcity of doctors and dentists all over the province.

The degree of Bachelor of Education has been conferred upon L. H. Dimmick, Principal of the Vermilion High school, by the University of Alberta.

Prime Minister MacKenzie King spoke over the radio a New Year's message in which he said that the coming year would see all the forces of the United Nations on the offensive. Victory will be achieved, he said, but "must be prepared for heavy losses". Tremendous expenditure or human life is the almost inevitable price of victory, he added, and said that fighting in all the areas of conflict would increase in intensity and ferocity.

Effective January 1st the Alberta Liquor Control Board announced the curtailment of hard liquor sales to bottles per week per person and no more. Wine is rationed to two gallons per week. You can still buy one dozen small bottles of beer or half a dozen large ones per day. Supplies of liquor are reported to be dwindling.

In the course of a transfer of German prisoners in Alberta from one camp to another a few weeks ago some four were found to be missing. An intensive search followed. The other day the four were found comfortably located in a dug out on the estate of camp site, never having moved out at all. They looked healthy, were clean shaven, had lots of food, even the delicacy of a side of bacon untouched, a dozen blankets, mattresses and had made snow shoes and were provided with warm clothing evidently preparing for a break when they would have all the luxuries of winter travelling. How they got all these provisions will be a matter of inquiry.

A meeting of the Rural Deanery of Vermilion was held on January 6th, which was graced with the presence of Bishop Barfoot who in the evening preached a missionary sermon in the church. The conference, which was well attended was held in the Legion hall at which the Venerable S. F. Thackeray delivered an address. Matters of vital interest to the Church were discussed.

Graduate in medicine of the University of Alberta and former student at the Vermilion high school, Lieut. Gordon R. Blott has been promoted to the rank of Captain. Captain Blott is now stationed at the military hospital at Grande Prairie. He was appointed to the R.C.A.M.C. in September, 1942.

S. A. Dent, M.L.A. for the Alexander provincial district and Mrs. Dent celebrated the 25th anniversary of their wedding Christmas week at their home at Marwayne. Forty guests were present.

WOOD VALE

A fair 1942 news items yet before we start on the happenings of the New Year.

The children had a party at the school on Xmas Eve. Apparently the separation of the last months made him feel a little strange, but other Santa had paid them a visit they found themselves once more on common ground and enjoyed the evening together to their utmost.

A wedding dance was held at the school on New Year's Eve and Mr. and Mrs. Dave Sweeney received several nice and very useful gifts that night for which they both thanked their friends in a very appropriate manner. The Logan family and Jack Schaumloffel furnished popular and peppy music. An overyone was supplying themselves so much they hadn't a playout an extra hour. We bet that many dancers found themselves very comfortably sleepy after a good New Year's dinner.

Allan Potter, of the R.C.A.F. spent his Christmas leave at home in Woodvale.

Vivian Thompson underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Vermilion hospital where she is working. Margaret Sweeney and Georgette Young are sharing the responsibility of chief cook in the hospital while Vivian is convalescing.

Tim Turner who had his shoulder dislocated or the third or fourth time in December is expected to go to the hospital soon for an operation on his arm.

"In His Steps", heard over CJCA Sundays at 6.30 p.m. is an inspiring program adaption of the world's best seller. Produced in the Bible Version by Charles M. Sheldon himself a clergyman, it has a minister as its hero, and his problem is that of an individual and delightful musical background, by the St. Regis Orchestra under the direction of Percy Faith. The stirring drama of those who follow "In His Steps" with practical applications for everyday living.

RED CROSS NEWS

An interesting three months' issue, dated June, 1942, 427 survivors from six ships who have been landed in St. John's, Newfoundland, are in touch with the Women's Patriotic Associations and others. The ships were sunk by enemy action. Many of the survivors after a few days rest in St. John's, Newfoundland, have been given transportation to their homes. Others who have been obliged to remain in St. John's, Newfoundland, are receiving attention at the hospitals and convalescent homes. Many organizations are supplying them with clothing and other necessities. Many of them were given transportation to their homes. Parcels of clothing and comforts on boarding ships. Many of them were to be billeted.

The spirit and cheerfulness of these men who have been through such frightful experiences is really inspiring. Some of them have been torpedoed as many as seven times. Yet not a whine appears anywhere in the publication. One old beckhand and a near-sighted squint asked if a Red Cross parcel supply him with a pair of glasses or even a magnifying glass so he might read the news, as his own were resting at the bottom of the Atlantic. It is amazing how many of the lads can laugh at their misfortunes. One survivor says he'd like to have some fingers amputated as being discharged from the hospital came to the Red Cross to have the fingers of his glove stuffed to keep stumps warm and also for the sake of appearances.

The Rumi Plan

IN RECENT MONTHS the subject of taxation has become of vital concern to all Canadians. Everyone realizes the tremendous cost of keeping the country at war, and there is general recognition too, of the advantages of the "pay as you go" system now used to finance our war effort. However, the rapid increase in direct taxation since the beginning of the war has affected everyone with an income, and the present income tax has brought it to the highest level in the history of our country. Canada's income tax now compares very closely to that paid by the people of Britain, and it is higher than any that has yet been paid by the people of the United States. On the whole, Canadians have not grumbled at this means of contributing to the winning of the war, although it has meant a general adjustment of the standard of living, entailing varying degrees of sacrifice. However, we could stand many times this sacrifice without suffering hardships comparable in any degree to those of the people now living under Axis domination, and we may still consider ourselves a fortunate country in the world as it is today

* * * * *

New System Discussed

For some time there has been discussion over a proposal known as "The Rumi Plan." This plan is, briefly, that taxpayers should pay on incomes currently being earned, not on incomes earned eight months previously, as is the present custom. This would put the taxpayer on a "pay as you go" basis and he would not be in the position of being always in arrears with the government, as he is under the system now in use. During wartime great emphasis is rightly placed on the importance of morale, and it is believed in some quarters that it is not in the best interests of the people to have them constantly in debt to the government for income tax. To most people debt is a cause of worry, and there are many instances in which these arrears in taxes may cause serious anxiety. There is the case of a person who has a suddenly reduced income perhaps on account of retirement from active enterprise due to age Out of the reduced income, taxes must be paid on the larger income earned in past months. There is also the case of death, where a wage earner's family may have difficulty in securing sufficient ready funds to pay the tax on the deceased person's income.

* * * * *

Arrears Would Be Cancelled

The Rumi Plan originated in the United States, but it has recently been widely discussed in Canada and is receiving considerable support. A prominent banker in his annual report delivered recently, expressed approval of the principles involved in the plan. To inaugurate it, it is proposed that the government cancel income tax arrears, and put the taxpayer in the position of currently paying the tax on the income he receives. It is obvious that to change to this system would cause the government considerable inconvenience and loss of revenue and there is no basis for belief that any action will be taken in the matter. It is said in financial circles however, that the loss to the government in cancelling eight months' arrears in income tax would not be a large percentage of the total collections, and that it might be made up over a period of time, from other sources of revenue Whether or not the plan is ever put into use here, it is of interest to most Canadians at this time.

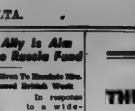
Help For Ally is Aim Of Aid To Russia Fund

Opportunity Is Given To Emulate Mrs. Churchill's Famous British Work



In response to a widespread demand from all parts of Canada, a Canadian Aid to Russia Fund has been organized, under the chairmanship of Mr. J. Stanley Mc-Lean, head of Canada Packers, Ltd., with headquarters in Toronto.

The Fund in Canada will provide an opportunity to Canadians to express in a tangible form and in combination measure, the admiration, gratitude and sympathy they feel in their hearts for the heroic Russian people, the people who, as Mrs. Churchill recently stated, "have set an unparalleled example to all of us." Russia's needs are so great that everybody's help is needed. The fighters behind the lines, the refugees in the far eastern areas and in the reoccupied territories need warm clothing, boots, bedding, foodstuffs, medicines, tools. They need huge quantities of these things and help to them must go continuously.

The Canadian Aid To Russia Fund, Inc., has been organized to provide, on a continuing basis, an opportunity to Canadians to send to the Russian people the help—warm clothing, the healing medicines, the heartwarming sympathy and friendship that they need in their hour of crisis and suffering.

There are many things needed in Russia which can be supplied by Canada. By using ingenuity and goodwill, Canadians will be able to make and collect a variety of necessities for the gallant people in the Soviet Union.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

FAILURE OR SUCCESS

I find the great thing in this world is not so much where we stand as in what direction we are moving.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

How much easier our work would be if we put forth as much effort over temptation as we do trying to find excuses for not properly attending to it.—George W. Dullinger.

Failure indicates that energy has been poured into the wrong channel. —D. Brandt.

When unconscious of a mistake, one thinks he is not mistaken; but this false consciousness does not change the fact, or its results; suffering and mistakes recur until one is awake to their cause and character.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Every failure is a step to success; every detection of what is false directs us toward what is true; every temptation has some tempting form of error. —William Whewell.

There is only one real failure in life that is possible, and that is, not to be true to the best one knows.—Farrar.

Fast Work

Lifeboat Is Built In Britain In Record Time

Sir Breton refugees, by working without stop for 36 hours in a London shipyard, were able to launch a lifeboat in record time for a ship which was waiting to sail.

"One of our ships is leaving tomorrow morning and we are in a lifeboat short. Have you one for us?" That was the message a boat builder received from a shipping company official. The builder said he had one on the stocks which had just been started and that although he didn't think it could be completed in such short order he would have a try.

He called the Bretons and two English workers together, explained the situation to them and the ship sailed on time with its completed lifeboat.

Psychology And Child Nutrition

Practically every child experiences some period during his life when feeding and food problems are a problem—in some this is early in infancy and in others later in life; in many it passes unnoticed. Parents must approach this problem sensibly and with the proper attitude if the difficulty is to be eliminated, for children discover early in life that their refusal to eat can be a potent weapon in their hands. If parents can accept the problem calmly and unemotionally, the child will quickly find that his bid to hold the centre of the stage has failed and no more trouble will be experienced.

For the young child the dining table is become a battleground or an amusement park. Soddings or the bringing up of unpleasant incidents which have occurred during the day should be avoided for they play havoc with both appetite and digestion. The mother, too, who makes the other members of the family indulge in circus antics in order to get little Jimmy to eat his dinner is making a bad mistake.

Nutrition authorities tell us that it does no harm to treat the child as one would treat an adult; allow him to have some food preferences and allow him to exercise them. Forcing him to eat foods which he dislikes will not only strengthen the dislike for these particular foods, but will make all eating unpleasant. Try to substitute foods and menus which the child does like. Adults frequently have the good fortune of choosing from a variety of menus in restaurants—why should not the child have similar satisfaction in exercising some degree of choice in his meals? After all, though Pop Eye may happen to like spinach, that does not mean that spinach is the only way that Jimmy can get his quota of nutritive elements.

New foods should be introduced slowly and in small amounts, since the eventual attitude of the child toward food will depend much on the way in which the food is first presented. Too much regularity makes eating uninteresting and monotonous, as do too large servings.

Every child should be permitted to enjoy the feeling of mild hunger that stimulates appetite—yet many parents insist upon feeding their children so often and so much that they never experience the pleasurable sensation of being hungry and the even more enjoyable sensation of satisfying this hunger On the other hand a healthy child should on occasion have the fun of eating between meals and of raiding the ice-box. Skipping a meal or two has never hurt any healthy child and is often desirable.

Discovery Of Chromite In Southeastern Manitoba

The discovery of chromite in Southeastern Manitoba promises to be of great value to the war effort. It also carries with it the prospect of adding to the wealth of Manitoba when peace again prevails.

Here in Manitoba, the chromite discoveries are a stone's throw from hydro-electric plants which are already sufficiently developed to supply the required energy at low cost. The savings effected from this on-the-spot processing should be a favorable factor in competition for world markets.

Preliminary investigations have disclosed the deposits are comparable in size with the most important fields now in production, with the possibility that they may be far larger.—Winnipeg Tribune.

Baling Wire

Not Available

In connection with the shortage of baling wire the Dominion Department of Agriculture is advised by the Steel Controller, Department of Munitions and Supply, that arrangements have been made with the manufacturers of baling wire to insure a limited supply of such wire to farmers However, purchasers of baling wire must be kept down to a minimum so that the limited supply will go as far as possible. Some baling wire is now available at the wire mills and jobbers whose orders were recently cancelled are invited to lose no time in re-ordering on the mills.

In early times hemp served as the standard of exchange in Kentucky.

Allied Air Forces Are Superior On All Fronts

London.—The R.A.F. and Allied air forces have gained superiority over the German air forces on all fronts in 1942, the air ministry said, and an R.A.F. commentator added that as Allied air strength has grown the enemy's has diminished.

The air ministry said the Allies' achievements in the air include effective counter-action against the U-boat menace.

A commentator said the R.A.F. now is stronger than the German and Italian air forces combined, and that it has increased 33½ per cent in size during the last 12 months.

An analysis of Germany's need for "raiding" one department of her air force to bolster others, the commentator mentioned that Germany had to convert U-S bombers into service as air transports and shipping escorts and "work out" the Germans' rear echelons, reserve pools and training schools to supply the Russian front.

The front will be the last place where weakness will become evident, he said, but the ultimate test is power, especially in relation to the growing Allied air forces, in a good position to meet the general challenge through the Axis' whole military structure.

As two outstanding examples of Germany's inability to muster enough air strength to attain her goals, he cited the failure at Stalingrad and the inability of her air force to bomb the 8th Army out of existance and thus prevent its resurgence after its retreat to El Alamein, 1,000 miles away.

In its review of the year's operations, the air ministry reported that planes of the coastal command scored one of the most important victories of the year, however unspectacular, in the "battle of the convoys" in the war,—over the Bay of Biscay while the Allied armada of 850 ships was en route to North Africa.

As a result of this victory, the air ministry said, no Allied ship was attacked until after the armada passed Gibraltar.

Major developments of the year listed in the review included "air operation" night raids over Axis territory, precision day bombing by United States flying fortresses, and co-operation of the fighter arm into an offensive weapon.

In general, the air ministry reported, the year showed a "formidable addition of power to the R.A.F. and Allied air forces" so that now "heavier bombers carry the offensive to the Axis in daylight. Superiority over the luftwaffe in numbers and types over all the battle fronts, together with new tactics in fruitless co-operation with land and sea forces, indicate the development of the R.A.F. in 1942."

Four-ton "block-buster" bombs were used for the first time in 1942, and the accuracy of bombing improved with the weight, the review "set forth.

The review concluded cheerfully with the statement that "the R.A.F. is no few of the greatest of highly-trained and enthusiastic crews." It asserted that behind 1942 successes lies a feat of flying training "surpassing anything dreamed of during the early stages of the war."

The Empire training scheme is still on the increase, it said, with an unceasing flow of trained men coming out of Canada where 150 training establishments are in operation.

SUGAR SHORTAGE

Bakers' Association Told They Must Pay Attention To Restrictions

Toronto.—Deputy Sugar Administrator H. J. Hobbs of the prime board told a meeting of the Canadian Retail Store Bakers' Association here that during the early part of sugar rationing the baking industry paid little or no attention to restrictions."

"In fact, many were using more sugar than ever before," said Mr

Warning that the sugar situation next year probably would be "even tighter," he suggested that bread and simple cakes be substituted for more elaborate and luxurious items.

He said the prairie provinces had a record sugar beet crops but Ontario's production stumped because of the labor shortage.

Indication that the Allies plan to bomb targets in former occupied France was seen in a BBC warning to the French to keep away from German headquarters, as well as factories and railway centres being used by the Nazis.

Proud Greece Shall Not Die

The Greeks are still fighting—fighting to avenge the horror to which their homeland has been subjected and fighting for freedom throughout the world. In the air and on the ground they are hitting hard at the Axis in the western desert, under the leadership of General H. L. Montgomery. Many others are part of the Allies' defence of the Middle East and the intelligence organization built up by the R.A.F. in the Middle East to keep the Allied aircraft flying. Pilots of the Royal Hellenic Air Force are seen here celebrating a recent shooting up of Italian headquarters, somewhere in Libya.

See No Chance Of Nazi Collapse In Near Future

London.—The Financial News, in an examination of Germany's economic situation in the fourth winter of war, concludes none of the "weak points" in the Nazi economy can justifies hope that Germany will crack in the near future.

Neither are such weak spots likely to hamper Germany's military operations "very seriously" in the next four months, says the paper.

The paper lists the following as the flaws appearing in the German economic armor:

Shortages of various raw materials, some obtained hitherto in North Africa; the apparent inadequacy of the aircraft industry; and the deteriorating transport system in Germany as well as in the occupied countries.

The article suggests the most surprising feature of the situation is the aircraft industry, with growing evidence that "aircraft factories are unable to cope with increased requirements."

It points out that while the Nazis did not succeed in capturing any of the Caucasian oilfields, except those at Maikop which had been made unserviceable, the output from Rumania and Poland had been increased.

The article describes the transport situation in Nazi-controlled Europe as the weakest link in German war economy. "For years before the war the German state railways were neglected," it says. "The R.A.F. attacks on railways in occupied countries have further increased these difficulties. In occupied Russia and eastern Europe, transport conditions are little short of catastrophic."

The News warns against any "magical hopes" over Germany's food situation recalling Goering's statement that if starvation comes to Europe the Germans will be the last to suffer.

"As far as bread is concerned, there is actually a surfeit," says the review.

The article says there is no doubt the development of a "second front" in North Africa and the threat of invasion of the continent from the Mediterranean has made Germany's manpower and production position considerably worse.

It explains that until the Allied North African successes, Hitler had been able to release millions of soldiers for munitions work during the winter months when there were no major military undertakings.

Calgary.—Believed to be the first venture of its kind ever held in Canada, a sale of p...ure beef calves, the proceeds from which will be entirely devoted to the war effort, will be held at Victoria pavilion, Calgary exhibition grounds Jan. 22. The sale is sponsored by the Alberta Simmental Breeders' Association and the agricultural committee of the Calgary Kiwanis club is taking an active part.

Vancouver.—Prices board officials here said supplies of canned milk held by wholesalers throughout Canada had been frozen temporarily while a survey of available supplies is made and withdrawn early in December.

War Initiative Now Taken By Allied Armies

London.—The Allied invasion of North Africa and Russia's great second winter offensive have blasted Germany's hopes that enjoying a "creative pause" during the cold months, the war office said in its annual review of the war.

Linking the British 8th Army's success in Libya with the Tunisian campaign, the Russian offensive and the Japanese failure to oust the Americans from the Solomons, the highly-optimistic review declared:

"Not merely was the Oriental partner of the Axis fully occupied and on the defensive in his own sphere at the year's end, but the European members of the Axis were themselves on the defensive."

The year 1942 was declared to have marked a "significant turning point" in the war on land—the passing of the general strategic initiative from the Axis to the United Nations

First signs that the Axis flood "might be turning to ebb" came Aug. 31, the review said, when Field Marshal Erwin Rommel tried an unsuccessful offensive in Egypt, but it was not until the night of Oct. 23, when Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's 8th Army struck the Germans and Italians at El Alamein that "the United Nations may be said to have begun demonstrably to capture the initiative"

Discussing the campaign in Tunisia, the review affirmed that there had been "just a chance" that the vanguards of the British 1st Army, if it swept in fast enough from Algeria, might have been able to seize Tunis and Bizerte before the enemy became too strongly ensconced.

Indeed, it pointed out, advance columns in the opening phase reached a point almost midway between Tunis and Bizerte and, aided by some American armor units, captured an enemy airfield at Djedeida, only 12 miles from Tunis, and destroyed 40 Axis planes on the ground

However, the report added, it soon became apparent that the task was too great for the vanguard and that means more methods, which had been envisaged," would have to be employed. The advance units were withdrawn early in December.

LIGHT NAVAL FORCES

Britain's Little Warships Have Proven Their Worth

London.—Organized two years ago, Britain's light naval forces—better known as the "little warships"—have grown into a weapon whose potency is revealed by its official record of 16 enemy ships sunk and 31 damaged in the past four months.

The speedy ships of the light forces, established in 1940, perform the risky job of escorting Hitler's convoys under the very shadow of the enemy-occupied coast.

They patrol enemy waters through which convoys attempt to sneak after dark, bugging the coastline for protection. Most of their engagements are fought at night. A typical outcome of their clashes was given in an air ministry communique Dec. 12 telling of the sinking of two Axis supply ships and one of their four escorts a short distance from Dieppe

The little warships race in on the closest possible range to confuse enemy crews. Occasionally enemy vessels and sailors have been captured despite the proximity of enemy coastal guns.

Problems Facing Farmers At The Start Of 1943

Winnipeg.—Greater diversification in farming, a labor shortage problem, and the task of meeting increased produce demands for the Allied forces, face farmers at the start of the New Year.

Need for further diversified farming, outgrowth of wartime conditions, and the largest wheat crop in Canadian history that piled up a mounting surplus and created additional storage problems, was stressed in the 1943 agriculture program.

Farmers have been asked to reduce wheat acreage 4,000,000 acres, about 18 per cent. lower than 1942 and grow coarse grains to bring wide increases in livestock and dairy products.

Although wheat acreage declined last year the Dominion harvested 407,000,000 bushels highest in Canadian history. Most of the wheat remains on farms as the Canadian wheat board agreed to purchase only 288,000,000 bushels, the estimated quantity needed for export and domestic consumption

The Dominion in broadening control schemes affecting agriculture agreed to increase the initial price for No. 1 Northern wheat, basis Fort William or Vancouver, from 70 cents to 90 cents a bushel Minimum and maximum prices for barley and oats which conveys attempt to sneak after dark, bugging the coastline for protection. Most of their engagements are fought at night. A typical outcome of their clashes was given in an air ministry communique Dec. 12 telling of the sinking of two Axis supply ships and one of their four escorts a short distance from Dieppe

GENEROUS BRITISH TARS

London.—The Tottenham old folk home had its 81st annual Christmas party, thanks to the generosity of two British tars who heard in New York the party might not be held. They cabled the equivalent of $75 to the British War Relief Society.

Dealings on the Winnipeg grain exchange reached a brisk tempo in the closing weeks with demand for oats and barley coming from U.S. interests, despite the harvest there of the second largest grain crop on record.

Approximately 15,500,000 bushels of oats and 7,000,000 bushels of barley had been shipped to the United States from Aug. 1 until mid-December. On Dec. 17 and 18 grain traders reported oats orders from U.S. buyers exceeded 6,000 000 bushels.

Price fluctuations were generally narrow on the exchange during the year. The ceilings for barley, oats and rye were made effective March 8 at 64¾ cents a bushel, 51¼ and 68¾ cents, respectively. Minimum prices were 45 cents for oats and 60 cents for barley.

BRITISH AIR MAIL

Only Two Per Cent. Is Handled by South Seven Months

Ottawa.—Postmaster-general Mulock said that commercial aircraft operating between the United Kingdom and North America could handle only about 10 per cent. of air mail posted in the United Kingdom for delivery in Canada and U.S.

As a result, many letters posted in Britain for air mail delivery have been, and will continue to be, despatched by such surface facilities as may be available, the statement said.

No effort was being spared to expedite delivery. The postmaster-general asked the public to keep in mind that delays were due solely to the need of transports for vital war necessities

The postmaster-general of the United Kingdom was exploring "every possible avenue" of obtaining increased aircraft accommodation. Mr.

TREE PLANTING IN ALBERTA

Forestry Dept. Preparing for Next Year's Shipments

The value of shelter belts to Alberta farms has often been stressed.

Since the spring of 1902, trees in many hundreds of thousands have been shipped all over the province for this purpose from the Dominion nurseries just east of Edmonton.

This section of the Alberta Government's forestry work is now well known. Many agricultural areas have benefitted from it, and many more will do so.

The protection from adverse winds created by shelter belts works wonders in home life and gardens. Growth is quickly advanced as a result of such shelters, to say nothing of the beauty of protecting foliage created by the trees.

As formerly at this season, the Forest Service is preparing for next year's shipments. In this connection, the following announcement covering rules and procedure is issued by the Director of Forestry, Department of Lands and Mines Edmonton

Trees Distributed by Forest Service

Trees, free of all charge excepting the express charge covering shipment, are to be given by the Forest Service to farmers in the Province for the following purposes:

1. For planting within natural poplar or willow bluffs.

2. For replacement in established windbreaks or shelterbelts.

3. For additions to established windbreaks or shelterbelts, where the trees to be planted are not close enough to the old plantation that they receive protection against wind and in the case of conifers, against the sun, by the established trees.

Applications for rural school and cemeteries will be given consideration.

Trees are not available for beautification only, nor for the establishment of new windbreaks or shelterbelts. Persons requiring trees for the former purpose should secure them from commercial nurseries, and the latter apply to the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Tree Planting Division Indian Head, Sask.

Trees available for distribution in the spring of 1943 include the following:

White Spruce Lodgepole Pine, Buckthorn Ash Red Pine, Douglas Fir, Siberian Larch

In addition to the above, cuttings of laurel leaf willow, golden willow and northwest poplar will be available.

In connection with each application, it must be noted that a Bluff has been placed on the shipment of Red Pine, Douglas Fir and Siberian Larch, of 10 trees to each applicant.

The quantities of these species are very limited and it might be necessary to allot applicants smaller numbers, or entirely delete from some applications when a number of the first four are requested. In addition to the limitations of stock available, the number of applications sometimes renders it impossible to send out all the trees for which applications are received.

All applications must be filed in and received in the office of the Director of Forestry, Administration Building, Edmonton, before January 31st, 1943, otherwise they will not be given consideration.

CANADIANS BUY 106 MILLION WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

OTTAWA.—Canadians have bought 106,000,000 War Savings stamps worth $27,000,000 since May 1940. If strung out end to end they would reach 1,700 miles between Ottawa and Saskatoon, National War Finance Committee statistician figured out today. When used to buy War Savings Certificates, the stamps have a return value of 21 cents in seven and one-half years for each 25 cents invested now.

War Savings stamps first went on sale on May 27, 1940. At present, they are being sold through 48,000 outlets, including post offices, banks, trust and loan companies, retail stores, theatres, restaurants and at the offices of public utility companies.

Since there are about 2,500,000 homes in Canada and about 11,500,000 citizens, the total of 106,000,000 stamps is equal to approximately 10 stamps for each home, or about nine stamps for each man, woman and child in the Dominion.

Up to the end of November 1942, about $225,000,000 worth of War Savings stamps had been used by Canadians to buy War Savings Certificates. Reporting this figure from total sales of $27,000,000 reveals that there are about 18,000,000 War Savings stamps, worth $4,500,000, outstanding in the hands of Canadians.

Most of the outstanding stamps represent accumulations towards the purchase of War Savings certificates, although some part of the outstanding total reflects stamps which are held for sale by banks, retail stores, and other stamp selling agencies.

"WDYTYCIWSS"

This word appeared on a slate above the cash register in Wasbin and Hardware. Mystified customers asked the cashier what it meant and were in turn asked—"Why don't you take your change in War Savings stamps?" Quite a number of customers did!—Wainwright star.

The New Year's Eve dance, sponsored by the local Elks proved to be the most largely attended in history. Dancing space was at a premium until midnight but being New Year's Eve, the jostling was all taken in good part. 1942 with its doleful story was sent skidding into history while 1943 was given the terrific welcome given to all its predecessors from time immemorial.

The little dwelling occupied by Oscar Johnson, pumpman at the Acme oil wells, burned to the ground with all contents on Tuesday this week. Oscar was absent at another well at the time and lost all personal belongings. Cause of the fire is unknown.

Miss Ida Reusbeck of Edmonton spent New Year's with her parents Mr. and Mrs. George Reusbeck at the family home west of town.

Two days of really mild weather with a promise to continue, have made a nice break this week.

BOARD OF TRADE ASKS EARLY SURVEY OF FARM LABOR NEEDS FOR SPRING

Critical Situation Exists Here

Considerable discussion took place at the Board of Trade conducted meeting on Monday regarding the critical situation existing throughout this area due to unthreshed crops. The discussion resulted in a motion being passed asking that the Alberta Department of Agriculture make a survey of the situation and formulate plans to alleviate it as much as possible. Such plans should be made now.

Insufficient time will be available in the spring for doing the 40 to 50% threshing that is left to do. It is also feared that very few threshing outfits will be out on runs in the spring as owners of outfits will very naturally be more interested in seeding crops than starting in on a threshing run at seeding time. The result of the conditions in this district will probably be a greatly reduced seeding acreage for the 1943 season.

A two-day agricultural short course will be held in Vermilion on March 11 and 12. Full details will be published as soon as the program is completed. It is likely that hog feeding and raising will be featured.

A larger attendance of members is asked for the next meeting which will be held on Monday Jan. 18th at 12.10 noon.

TRAINING PLANE LANDS IN SNOW AT VERMILION FIELD

Forced Down When Engine Conks Out

An Anson training plane from Edmonton made a successful forced landing on the snow covered Vermilion airfield on Tuesday afternoon. The plane was manned by two civilian instructors and three R.C.A.F. students. One engine conked out over Vermilion and as the snow was a strong head wind blowing the crew considered it useless to attempt to fly back to Edmonton.

The R.C.A.F. students returned to the city by train while the instructors remained to repair the motor.

Pte. Ted Mathers, brother of the groom, acted as best man.

Former Vermilion Man Appointed To New Position

The transfer of N.N. Bentley, district agriculturist for the Edmonton-Edson territory, to the field crops branch has announced Friday by the Hon. D. B. MacMillan, minister of agriculture. Succeeding Mr. Bentley as district agriculturist for the Edmonton-Edson territory, the minister announced the appointment of Fred N. Miller, of Edmonton.

Mr. Bentley has acted as district agriculturist for the Edmonton-Edson district since the spring of 1941. Prior to that time he was instructor in soils and science at the school of agriculture at Vermilion. He is a graduate of the University of Alberta, having degrees in arts and agriculture.

Fire broke out in the kitchen of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Isley on Wednesday evening doing some damage to window curtains, and to cloth ing which was hanging over the range drying. It is thought that an article of the clothing must have fallen from the line onto the gas range and ignited from the open flame. Both Mr. and Mrs. Isley suffered burns to their arms and faces in putting the fire out.

Friends will regret to hear that Mrs Herb Stone of Edmonton and formerly of Islay, slipped on the icy streets on Tuesday evening and is now in the University hospital suffering from a hip injury and a broken wrist.

APPOINTMENT OF CHIEF MUNICIPAL INSPECTOR

Appointment of T.A. Potts, to the post of chief municipal inspector for the province was announced this week by Hon. Lucien Maynard, minister of municipal affairs. Mr. Potts, a veteran of the last war, has been with the department since 1918. He now fills the vacancy caused by the death of Joseph Renshaw, after serving as inspector in charge of the Calgary area. He still retain the administrative direction of the five municipal titles in addition to his new duties, and will be assisted by J. M. Heaton, a municipal inspector with the department

Vermilion Soldier Commended For Bravery At Gibraltar

Spr. "Andy" Cavil is Heroic Act

Spr. Colin Andrew Cavil of Vermilion was commended Friday in Canadian army overseas routine orders for gallantry in fighting fire in an army repair shop on Gibraltar where he served with a tunneling company of the Royal Canadian Engineers which recently returned to the United Kingdom.

The order said that "grease and oil on the floor of a diamond-drill repair shop caught fire and exploded first Dec. 17 and Cavil who was on engraved duty at the time on account of both hands being infected with septic poisoning, raised a general alarm and immediately fought the fire despite bandages on his hands."

It added that his efforts stopped the fire from spreading to a petrol store and dump, thereby saving company headquarters from destruction.

Cavil's clothing and bandages caught fire and he received second degree burns, the order said, adding: "His very commendable action in this emergency showed great courage in that he performed his duty without regard for his previous injuries or thought of greater personal injury."

FORMER VERMILION BOY NOW CAPTAIN

Lieut. W. de N. Watson, son of Col. and Mrs. H. de N. Watson, of Edmonton, has been promoted to the rank of captain and now is serving as adjutant of Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry overseas.

Capt. Watson was born in Edmonton and graduated from the Royal Military College in 1940. He was commissioned shortly after graduation and immediately went overseas. His father has been commandant of the Canadian prisoner-of-war camp since shortly after the outbreak of war.

A quiet wedding was performed at 2.30 p.m. on December 28 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Headrick, Macdowall, Sask., when their second eldest daughter, Irene Ethel, exchanged vows with Charles Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stewart of Vermilion, Alta. Rev. Ward performed the ceremony.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Supply Minister Sir Andrew Duncan has promised the British Eighth Army in Libya still more and better arms in 1942.

The BBC reported that Maj.-Gen. Schaese commander of the German garrison at Vitebk Latvia escaped by plane while his troops were being wiped out by the Russian army.

U.S. Postmaster General Frank Walker announced the issuance of a one-cent "Four Freedoms" postage stamp to replace the present penny defence stamp.

Mrs. Robert Shipley, Ravenna, Ohio, used up about 20 miles of yarn last year knitting sweaters for 90 men in the armed services of United States and Britain.

British shipyards continue increasing their women employees and in one large plant all are women except a few over service age men in supervising positions.

Seventy-five carloads of dressed poultry, totalling 1,500,000 pounds, were shipped out of Alberta for the Christmas markets, a survey showed. Ninety per cent. of loading consisted of turkeys.

Looking forward to expulsion of Germans from Norway soon, the Norwegian government in London has established a new department to work actively on plans for the country's reconstruction.

Four of sixteen women who have swapped house dresses for slacks and overalls to clean cars and locomotives in the C.P.R.'s Vancouver shops are shown in action above. Mrs. Miriam Vollette, at left, and Mrs. Patricia Plant (left), are cleaning the drive rods and wheels of a huge locomotive, and Miss Margaret Pailes and Mrs. Audry Alabaster, right, are doing a thoroughly housewifely job cleaning the interior of a coach. Releasing men for the armed services, these women, like thousands of others who are doing "men's jobs" throughout Canada, are doing their part to help win the war.

Chilly Days

German Prisoner in Russia Suffers From The Cold

In the Stalingrad area, Red Army men picked up Private Wolfgang Vollette, of the Third Company, 670th Regiment, 371st German Infantry Division. His legs and right arm were frost-bitten. On interrogation Reisling stated:

"The company has not yet received winter clothing. Sergeant-majors and non-coms daily instruct the spirited men how to prevent and relieve frost-bite. We were instructed to put rags over our boots, to lay straw around the boot tops, to protect our ears with towels. The soldiers are in very low spirits. They say, 'Last year's story is being repeated.' We, shall sit there in the open air view the on the Eastern Front'. Only those who spent last winter on the front line are now being decorated with that ribbon.

"The soldiers have nicknamed the undy 'The Order of the Frozen Flesh'."—U.S.S.R. Bulletin.

JESUS WINNING SOULS

Golden text: He that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal.—John 4:36.

Lesson: John 4:1-42.

Devotional reading: II Corinthians 5:14-20.

John 4:27-42. And upon this came his disciples; and they marvelled that he was speaking with a woman; yet no man said, What seekest thou? or, Why speakest thou with her? So the woman left her waterpot, and went away into the city, and saith to the people, Come, see a man, who told me all things that ever I did: can this be the Christ? They went out of the city, and were coming to him. In the mean while the disciples prayed him, saying, Rabbi, eat. But he said unto them, I have meat to eat that ye know not. The disciples therefore said one to another, Hath any man brought his aught to eat? Jesus saith unto them, My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to accomplish his work. Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh the harvest? behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields, that they are white already unto harvest. He that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal; that he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together. For herein is the saying true, One soweth, and another reapeth. I sent you to reap that wherein ye have not laboured: others have laboured, and ye are entered into their labor.

And from that city many of the Samaritans believed on him because of the word of the woman, who testified. He told me all things that ever I did. So when the Samaritans came unto him, they besought him to abide with them: and he abode there two days. And many more believed because of his word; and they said to the woman, Now we believe, not because of thy speaking: for we have heard for ourselves, and know that this is indeed the Saviour of the world.

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS OF VITAL INTEREST

MEDICAL STUDENTS

An interesting article on the instruction of medical students in industrial medicine is summarized in a recent issue of the Canadian Public Health Journal. The author discusses the secondary place occupied today by many industrial physicians and suggests measures to rectify this condition.

He points out that there has been a gradual evolution in the history of the physician in industry but that the progress has been slow. He feels that the minor place of industrial medicine in the school curriculum is to blame for the existing condition.

Quoting Dr. S. Z. Levine. Cornell University, he says: "If the physician is to have the leadership in the health program he must study not only the technique of healing but also such social factors as family income, housing, clothing, nutrition, education and employment."

"It should be possible," he says, "to offer to industry physicians with sufficient knowledge so that they may assume their proper responsibility and status. With this end in view the author makes the following suggestions:

1. Industrial medicine should be offered to undergraduates as a separate course. By merely referring to occurrences of industrial diseases in various courses throughout the curriculum as sufficient instruction in this field, the importance of the subject is lost.

2. The lecture hours should include well-chosen topics in a general vein. The scope of industrial medicine, its history and importance should be presented. Following this broad groupings are suggested:

(a) Orientation —a general consideration.
(b) Treatment of the worker from a physical standpoint.
(c) Routine role of the physician in the plant.
(d) Hazardous occupations, preventative measures, and care of employees under these conditions.
(e) General health program for industry.
(f) Research.

3. Field trips should be made to a well organized industrial medical department with demonstration of the above topics in action.

AID TO RUSSIA FUND

Read Contributions To Canadian Aid To Russia Fund 48 King St. West, Toronto

The Canadian Aid to Russia Fund is registered under the War Chrities Act and is launching a two months' appeal for funds via the newspapers, radio, community enterprises and organization activities. No house-to-house canvassing is to be done.

We hope you will support this Canadian effort to help our Russian ally. In addition to sending the medical and other supplies that are so desperately needed by the Russian people, a valuable contribution can be made by our effort in the creation of a sympathetic understanding between the Russian and Canadian people. We are fighting this war with the magnificent help of the Russians and they deserve all the aid we can give. We shall have to live together in the same world with them after the war and whatever can be done to increase understanding and co-operation between the two nations is all to the good.

Seventy Miles Of String

Collected By English School Children for Royal Air Force

School children gave the Royal Air Force a ball of string more than six feet high. The ball weighed more than half a ton and contained 70 miles of string that they collected. A bomber pilot, acknowledging the gift, told the children that it would be made into maps and charts used for flights, as there are manufactured from special paper for which the string can form the raw material.

CHAPTER II.

THE four men turned and followed Andre Birlett out of the cafe. Were they not that, Storey would have agreed that the quartet was the bodyguard of El Hadj Feyrchalla, but that Kahiri were not native to Algeria. They were found only in Tripolitania, on the other side of the Libyan border. Berbers who acknowledged the rule of neither Italian nor Senussi. Why should those men, armed as they had been outside the Touaregs, be in Ain Saffa obeying the orders of the equally despised French?

"The Kahiri intend to attack us when we leave the cafe. Tell him, Mohammed. "The whisper went through the coffee house that Inmeddin the Lawless had come to take from Bidi Storey the money obtained from the sale of many sheep."

"Tell him your gun, Mohammed!" stirred through his beard.

The shepherd nodded, and a grin stirred through his beard. "I have a knife also," he grunted. "The said Inlocks to fight! There are other Kahiri in Ain Saffa, and if we should kill any of them we shall have to leave town on the fastest of camels."

"What is written is written," remarked Storey. "As soon as that knife-thrower Inmeddin has the medals the Lawless had come to take from Bidi Storey the money obtained from the sale of many sheep."

"You have your gun, Mohammed?" Storey asked.

The shepherd nodded, and a grin stirred through his beard. "I have a knife also," he grunted. "The said Inlocks to fight! There are other Kahiri in Ain Saffa, and if we should kill any of them we shall have to leave town on the fastest of camels."

"What is written is written," remarked Storey. "As soon as that knife-thrower Inmeddin

Plans For Peace

IT HAS BEEN frequently predicted in recent weeks that victory will come to the Allied Nations in 1943. Whether this opinion is too optimistic or not, there is no doubt that the tide of war has now turned in favor of the United Nations and that if our present effort is sustained as there is no doubt that it will be, victory is only a matter of time. As the prospect of victory becomes brighter, there is increased interest throughout the world in plans for post-war reconstruction. The problem of restoring normal conditions in the countries now living under Hitler's "New Order" will obviously be tremendous. In countries like our own, there will be the economic and social problems arising from the transition from war to peace. It is gratifying to know that the leaders of all the United Nations are giving serious thought to post-war plans, and that in Canada every effort is being made to prepare for that time.

* * * * * *

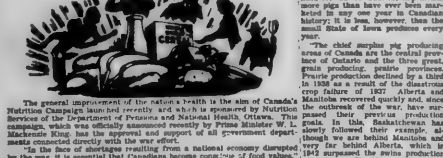
The fall of Italy can be one, in the early part of the war, has taught an unforgettable lesson as to the value of unity. There is evidence now that this lesson will be considered in the planning of the world of the future, and that after the war we shall have a new society, built on co-operation and mutual trust. The problems arising from the war are many and complex, but the problems will be no less serious, and will require equal wisdom and thought if they are to be solved. In his address to the people of the Empire on Christmas day, His Majesty the King said: "Victory will bring us even greater responsibilities, and those we must not be found unequal to a task in the discharge of which we shall draw on the storehouse of our experience and tradition. So, let us welcome the future in a spirit of brotherhood and thus make a world in which, please God, all may dwell together in unity and in peace."

* * * * * *

In Canada all of our leaders in public life are devoting much of their time to plans for the post-war period, and it is to be hoped that in this way many of the difficulties which followed the last war will be avoided. In this connection a Veterans' Land Settlement Scheme was approved in Parliament during the last session and it is already functioning on a small scale. At the time there was no great demands on the scheme, due to the fact that there is now plentiful employment for men discharged from the services, who are able to work. Already, however, many thousands of men in the forces have expressed their interest in the settlement scheme, according to Hon. T. A. Crerar, Resources Minister, who is in charge of the undertaking. It doubtless gives a feeling of security to those men and their families, who plan to take advantage of the Act, and it is one concrete way in which Canada is preparing to meet the problem of unemployment in the years following the war.

New World Is To Be United

Land Scheme Is Planned Here



The general improvement of the nation's health is the aim of Canada's Nutrition Campaign launched recently, and which is sponsored by Nutrition Services of the Department of Pensions and National Health, Ottawa. This campaign, which was officially announced recently by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, has the approval and support of all government departments connected directly with the war effort.

"In the face of shortages resulting from a national economy disrupted by the war, it is essential that Canadians become conscious of food values," declares Dr L. B. Pett, director of Nutrition Services. "A knowledge of nutrition will enable people not only to get the most value for the money they spend on food, but better value out of the food they buy."

A table of official Food Rules for Canada has been drawn up by Nutrition Services giving the minimum daily requirements of the foods necessary to protect health.

MILK—Adults—Minimum ½ pint; children—pint or more daily.
FRUIT—Tomatoes or citrus and other fruits daily.
VEGETABLES—One serving potatoes daily. Two servings other vegetables, preferably green or yellow, frequently raw.
CEREALS - BREAD—Use 3 or 4 slices whole wheat bread—whole grain cereal daily. Butter on bread.
MEAT - FISH—One serving daily.
EGGS—At least three weekly.
FISH LIVER OILS—As recommended by your physician.

It must be remembered that these are Canada's Wartime Food Rules and where found necessary these amounts may be increased. This is particularly true where milk is concerned.

Observance of these rules by Canadians across the Dominion will mean a higher standard of physical health for the entire population and the results will be felt in the years to come.

CRACKED FLAX SEED

A contributory cause of the generally unsatisfactory condition of the flax crop in Canada during 1942 is in the seed itself, states the Dominion Plant Pathology Laboratory at Winnipeg. An examination of several hundred seed samples of flax revealed in many of them a high percentage of cracked seed, apparently largely due to threshing during very dry weather. When planted in field soil, seed containing many cracked kernels is usually low in germination. This defect can be largely or completely overcome by treating such seed with an organic fungicide.

DEMAND FOR BACON

More Sows Stops Necessary To Meet Britain's Requirements

It will take a lot of planning and persistent effort, according to Hon. R. J. M. Parker, provincial minister of agriculture, for Saskatchewan farmers to contribute their full share in meeting the terms of the Canadian bacon contract with Great Britain. In a public address recently Mr. Parker said:—

"I want to speak very directly and very earnestly to Saskatchewan farmers regarding the production outlook for 1943. A few days ago I attended a meeting in Ottawa, with other Provincial Ministers, to study more closely the food situation in Canada and production goals for next year.

"The first important fact which the conference stressed is that the Prairie Provinces are exceedingly well supplied with feed grain, and none is as well supplied as Saskatchewan. This year's bin has about 50% more feed grains than the 5-year average. Alberta's increase is not quite so great as that of Manitoba over the 5-year average, or as much per grain-consuming animal unit. Saskatchewan's feed grain supply is almost 75% above the 5-year average and more than 100% above the 10-year average consuming animal unit as a Ontario—Provincial Statistician Reports Prairie Provinces are exceedingly well supplied with feed grain, and none is as well supplied as Saskatchewan. Canada's Mineral Wealth

CANADA IS PORTENTOUS in being able, through the wealth of her natural resources, to contribute a great deal to the supplies and equipment of the fighting forces of the United Nations. The importance of our agricultural products in this regard is known to be enormous, and in a like manner, Canada's mineral resources are contributing vitally needed materials for the armed forces of our own country and those of our Allies. Great areas of our country, particularly in the northern sections, contain rich mineral deposits, and mining has always been one of our largest industries. The great importance of metals in making materials of war, however, has placed this industry in an increasingly important position, and every effort has been made here to increase and speed up the supply of minerals needed for arms and equipment. In many cases this expansion will have a lasting effect on Canada's industrial development.

* * * * *

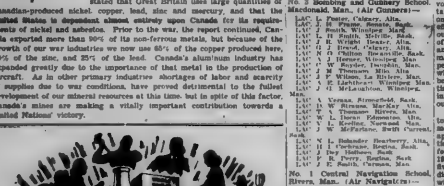
Nickel Used in War Materials

One of the most important metals used in the production of war materials of war is nickel, and Canada has rich deposits of this metal in Northern Ontario. It is said that Canada produces 90% of the nickel used by the United States, and the supply of this metal has increased greatly since the outbreak of the war but even with this rapid expansion, there has been difficulty in keeping up with the growing demand for it. At present an intensive effort is being made to salvage nickel from scrap metals, to supplement the supply of the primary metal. The uses of nickel in war equipment are many, the most important being in defense forms of armament, such as armour plate and gun shields. It is widely used, too, in the manufacture of an armour plate of nickel steel, of the type employed to protect battleships. It is also used in many ways in the manufacture of naval and army equipment.

* * * * *

Many Minerals Are Exported

In a re cent report on Canada's mineral production, Dr. Charles Camsell, Deputy Minister of Mines and Natural Resources for the Dominion Government, stated that Great Britain uses large quantities of Canadian-produced nickel, copper, zinc and mercury, and that the United States is dependent almost entirely upon Canada for its requirements of nickel and asbestos. Prior to the war, the report continued, Canada exported more than 90% of its non-ferrous metals, but because of the growth of our war industries we now use 65% of the copper produced here, 40% of the zinc, and 25% of the lead. Canada's aluminium industry has expanded greatly due to the importance of that metal in the production of aircraft. As in other primary industries shortages of labor and scarcity of supplies due to war conditions, have proved detrimental to the fullest development of our mineral resources at this time, but in spite of this factor, Canada's mines are making a vitally important contribution towards a United Nations' victory.



The consumption of liver in Canada is still not what it should be if Canada's official food rules are closely observed. These rules advise the use of liver, heart or kidney at least once a week. All these are excellent sources of protein, iron and the B vitamins. Of the three, however, liver is the most valuable because of its high vitamin A content. Beef and pork liver both have a higher nutritive value than carnivorous' liver, though the latter is perhaps the most expensive.

A moderate to small portion—less than 3½ ounces—of beef liver provides, in addition to its readily assimilated protein, protects the following amounts of minerals and vitamins:

Vitamin A—more than a day's needs.

Thiamin or Vitamin B—about ⅓ of a day's needs.

Riboflavin or Vitamin B—approximately a day's needs.

Iron—at least ⅓ of a day's needs.

Vitamin A gives protection against night blindness and increases resistance to infection. Thiamin is necessary for carbohydrate metabolism and adequate morale; too little riboflavin leads to sores at the corners of the mouth and inflamation of the eyes; and too little iron leads to anaemia, the very prevalent anaemia from which a large proportion of Canadian women suffer.

Liver may be on the expensive side but looked at from the money's worth point of view it is a great investment if you can take your liver straight. Here are three tempting recipes:

Liver in Casserole

Pour boiling water over liver, let it stand for five minutes. Remove skin and any membrane. Dip liver in seasoned flour, and brown in hot greased frying pan. Add a little water and simmer for 10 minutes. Put alternate layers of liver and sliced onion in a greased casserole, add liquid from the meat and cover and bake for 40 minutes in a moderate oven.

Browned Liver

Have liver sliced ¼ inch thick. Melt fat in frying pan, when hot put in liver and brown on both sides. Add a small quantity of water, cover, cook below boiling point for 30 minutes. Season with salt and pepper if onions are desired, slice thinly and cook with liver thicken any remaining liquid to make gravy.

If your family has to have it disguised, try this method

Liver Loaf

One pound beef or pork liver, two cups bread crumbs, one medium onion, ¼ cup tomato juice or vegetable juice, one teaspoon salt.

Put liver through the meat grinder. Add bread crumbs, onion, tomato and salt. Put in greased baking dish and place in pan containing warm water. Bake slowly 30 to 40 minutes

EIGHT MILLION HOGS

Terms Of Canadian Contract With Great Britain Demands

In order to meet the terms of the Canadian Bacon contract with Great Britain, Canada is in need of more hogs. Canadian farmers are being urged by the federal government to market 8,000,000 hogs in 1943—with Saskatchewan producers to provide a proportionate share of this huge number. To do so, of course, will require much extra effort on the part of Saskatchewan producers. Prof. J. W. G. McEwan, of the University of Saskatchewan, deals with the problem concisely as follows:—

"The people of Britain need more bacon and the farmers of Canada have undertaken to supply this need. Shortly after the outbreak of war, Britain was cut off from Denmark, her maye source of supply and now the Mother country is depending most of all upon Canada to supply the needed bacon. Let it not be forgotten that when the call went out to the farming people of this country for greater supplies of bacon, response was magnificent. Indeed food production in general and bacon production in particular, have been geared to a high level never before known. Last year the port volume of bacon in the past year has been roughly seventeen times as great as it was in 1923, the year of the Ottawa Trade agreements.

"But what is needed all 1942 is not good enough in 1943 if Britain's people need and want more of our bacon products, and they do. The call is now for more pigs from which to produce more of that important food product, and for more pigs that will yield that meat product that is best adapted to shipping

Canadian Bacon First Class

"When Prof. Scott Watson of Oxford University was speaking in Saskatoon sometime ago, he indicated that in the course of Britain's wartime adjustments, bacon rolls was being produced that in pre-war years, was big and large, sliced and packed and been reduced greatly. Breeding sows born in British herds today number less than half of those kept in 1938. Then he went on to say that British consumers are very well satisfied with Canadian bacon and prefer it to that produced in their own land, owing to unavoidable wartime delays, and to the difficulties which over there has appeared to be a bit fatty. Such, of course, is not the Canadian processors great credit. Professor Watson gives the impression that the Englishmen will be very glad to continue buying Canadian bacon after the war. It's worth keeping in mind.

"If we can supply the increased volume of pork products which Britain now wants from us, it will not only be consistent with the best way either had it with us in the war, but our hope to find an outlet for more of the grain now piled up in Canada, and for which there is no ready home market outlet. It offers the farming people an opportunity to sell more wheat and other grains that may not be sold otherwise for considerable time. It will represent another step in the direction of diversification in our agricultural industry.

"But the immediate problem is how to extend our production as to meet 1943 obligations. Today the aspect is made under changed conditions; there is an abundance of grain feed; the Saskatchewan supply from 1943 is approximately 75% above the five-year average. But there is a distinct shortage of farm help that will make further expansion difficult on many farms. It will not be the first time, however, that Canadian farmers have been obliged to overcome difficulties and I'm sure our people will see this job through. In connection with the matter of labour supply, it must be emphasized that self-feeders are coming into wider use.

4,350,000 Pigs in 1943

"In 1941 the Canadian objective was 600 million pounds of bacon for export. Although Canadian consumers denied themselves their customary rations of pork and bacon, we didn't quite attain the goal. Nevertheless, we did in that year produce the still greater objective, 676 million pounds. It required an increase of 25% more in the number of sows bred and pigs reared in Canada. In 1942 Canada marketed 3,301,000 pigs and in 1943 Canada must increase this to 4,000,000. That is the job!

A Golden Opportunity

College Professor Found It Too Good To Pass Up

A certain very happily married college professor, delivering a graduation address, said this to say to the listening students:

"Gentlemen, many of you will marry. Let me entreat you to be kind to your wives. Be patient with them. When one of you ask your wife where something is, don't worry if she is not ready at the appointed time. Have a good book handy. Read it while you wait. And, Gentlemen—" his kindly smile showed a trace of irony—"I assure you that you have a golden opportunity to acquire it our big neighbor—India—had not extended her helping hand to us."

GRATITUDE FOR AID

Copious gratitude to India for coming to her aid in solving her food problem was expressed by Sir Baron Jayatilaka. "It is difficult to imagine what would have been the consequence if our big neighbor—India—had not extended her helping hand to us."

Alaska was purchased from Russia by U.S. at a cost of about two cents an acre.

Methods Used By The Nazis To Trick Prisoners

London.— Persuasion, playing on human weaknesses, and direct terrorism were among the methods employed by the Germans to trick British prisoners of war into giving away vital military information.

How the Axis attempts to confuse and trap prisoners into making statements is described in a pamphlet just issued to British troops. To all tricks there is only one answer—silence.

If captured German and Italian orders are a criterion, the Tommies are doing a pretty good job of keeping their lips buttoned, even in the face of third degree methods. "The Italians, for instance hold up British silence as an example to their own troops.

A captured German document referring to Middle East prisoners as the "silent service," said:

"As a prisoner of war Englishman is arrogant, proud, cautious and absolutely secure. When himself a prisoner he counts upon German justice and correctness and usually behaves towards his own prisoners in a correct and fair manner. Experience to the contrary should, perhaps, be considered exceptions . . ."

The pamphlet cites the following as examples of Axis interrogation:

Provocation method: the prisoner is treated contemptuously as a person of the second class, and told that the British are in such a bad way that they are glad to get anything to eat. They are today, $15.10 per 100 lbs. for oats, whereas at Saskatoon, there is no special reason why farmers feeding wheat should not get a return of between $1.00 and $1.30 per bushel, depending on whether or not the charge is made for labour and overhead.

"Indeed we should seize every opportunity to convert, wheat into pork, wheat to dairy products, wheat to beef, wheat to horse power and wheat to fuel. Wheat is low in fibre and palatable; it is thus a particularly suitable feed for pigs. That does not mean that wheat is food-proof as a feed; it is not, but when it is fed judiciously, it can be used quite extensively and to good advantage. It should not be ground finely for pigs because fine grinding presupposes a pasty mass in the stomach which digestive juice will not penetrate so readily. Furthermore, wheat is a concentrated feed and there is an increased danger from overfeeding especially in the case of young pigs or dry sows; some talk in feeding rations rich in wheat to brood sows last winter obtained good results by mixing about 12 or 15% of barley screened alfalfa hay with the ground grain. In any case, wheat should be fed to pigs on a weight basis rather than by measure.

"When wheat is being used in a substantial way for pigs, it is of supreme importance that the need for protein supplements and an appropriate supply of mineral material be recognized. Wheat, like other cereal grains, is low in protein and bone building minerals and will not furnish all of these needed by brood sows and growing pigs. There is no better supplement for use along with wheat or other grains than skim milk or buttermilk. The pig grower who has these dairy by-products has a tremendous advantage. But many farmers do not have these milk products and cannot get them; in such cases, the feeder should turn to a high-protein concentrate mixture, or better still, a mixed protein concentrate. Commercial pig concentrates are being sold quite widely and for the most part, they are dependable. A farmer, if he chooses, can prepare his own concentrate by mixing tankage, fish meal, meat meal and meat alfalfa meal in proper proportions. The essential point about such mixtures is that they contain some protein of animal origin, fish, tankage, meat meal or fish meal. The feeder of pigs has been inclined to ask himself if he can afford to feed tankage or a mixed concentrate, when the price of these has considerably above the market value of farm grains. The answer is plain; if current prices for grains, pigs and concentrates will not permit the feeder to afford not to use a good supplement which will overcome the low value of grains and the health and vigour of the pigs. Let it be remembered that a British bacon hog is superior nutritionally, to tankage alone.

Care Of Breeding Herd

"The farmer's responsibility in the present effort does not end with the breeding of sows, we must do all possible to see that the sows sent to the breeding herd through the winter keep in good condition and that the litters will be produced; and after farrowing, that they receive attention to detail during the period before farrowing will pay dividends. Sows will overfeed on the best grain in a medium state of fatness, i.e., neither too fat nor too poor. We have observed loo, that a lime supplement, about ½ to 1%, of ground limestone in the grain, to brood sows during winter months will result in more certain milk supply at farrowing and more milk later. Furthermore, there will be no excuse for the loss of entire litters due to hairlessness in the newborn pigs. This condition reflects an iodine deficiency that can be easily prevented by supplying to brood sows some potassium iodide to the sows. The favourite method consists of dissolving an ounce of potassium iodide in a gallon of water, keeping the liquid in a stone jar or crock, if an supply one can be found, and giving each sow a tablespoonful each, two or three times a week for the two months before farrowing.

"All pigs should be getting some mineral and a little later, when the winter litters or early spring litters are coming, it will be necessary to attend to the particular needs of the suckling that are being reared on cement or board floors. These young pigs need earth mole or an iron supplement like iron sulphate, or both, if this is not attended to anaemia will develop resulting in the loss of very much needed pigs to fill our quota and do all we should to keep Britain's people properly nourished.

The Help Problem

"While a percentage of pigs that 'die before attaining market weight is all too high, it is obviously an important to halt pig production. If to extend our breeding programme. This will depend largely on other considerations as well as that of nutrition; it will depend largely on farm help; it suggests a guard rail in the farming pen; it suggests good sanitation and clean ground that will reduce the . . . parasites and disease . . . and . . . seals the best use of pasture crops in the summer.

"Now, the first thing is to secure some additional breeding stock wherever the help situation will permit and enlarge and interprise the second, to make the entire herd function as efficiently as possible. The Department of Agriculture, the Experimental farms and the Agricultural Colleges are ready to help if more information is desired. From these institutions bulletins and leaflets on pork production, are available merely for the asking; these contain more valuable detail about breeding, feeding, the use of the self-feeder and so on. Now I am able to give in a short or . . .

"Saskatchewan is asked to enlarge and extend pig production by 50% this year. Another sow on every farm will about do it. Some do it, we can't achieve this; others say we can. I'm ready to say that if we can, we will; and our agricultural leaders may at least count on the live stock people of this province doing all possible to achieve worthy goals in 1943

FOR BEST RESULTS

Good Rationing Is Very Necessary For Farm Animals

Saskatoon. — Profitable production from farm animals was dependent upon various factors, not the least of which was the use of adequate yet economical rations, Prof. J. W. G. MacBrun, department of animal husbandry at the university, said in his address at the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Agricultural College Graduates' Association.

Good rationing, he stated, meant giving an animal what it needed to accomplish the task set for it. Quantity was one requirement, quality another. It was undoubtedly the case in some quarters that animals with full stomachs were literally starving.

The "correct knowledge" of nutrition seemed to revolve around minerals and vitamins, Prof. MacBrun said. Carbohydrates and fats would furnish fuel and energy while food protein would furnish muscle-building material, but it was increasingly clear that there were many other food factors involved in the adequate ration.

They were Acting Sqdn. Ldr. Robert Clare Bissett, D.F.C. and bar, of Edmonton, who has died, and Wing Cmdr. Mark Henry Brown of Glenmore, Man., D.F.C. and bar, who was killed in action in the Middle East in 1941. Brown was one of the R.A.F.'s outstanding fighter aces with at least 18 planes to his credit.

FARM LABOR 84% YES

Winnipeg—Hon. Douglas Campbell, Manitoba minister of agriculture, announced a survey of farm labor needs in province with the questions taken in co-operation with municipalities with the object of increasing farm production this year. Details of the survey will be announced in about 10 days, he said.

British Navy Is Stronger Than In Pre-War Days

London.—A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, declared that the British navy, in spite of losses in aircraft carriers, we have more now than we had at the beginning of the war after replacing our losses."

"We have achieved this with at least 100,000 fewer workers in shipbuilding than in the last war," he added.

Replying to criticism that British naval losses were too great Alexander said: "We are building quite a considerable proportion of a faster type of battleship but if you want to put four knots increased speed onto an 11-knact ship you require treble the size of engine power and 60 per cent. more skilled labor in producing engines.

"If we were to replace slow ships by the faster ships required we would have about 18 or 19 per cent. reduced importa."

Alexander announced the loss of five aircraft carriers, the Ark Royal, Courageous, Glorious, Hermes and Eagle.

"Since the start of the war she has completed the Indomitable, Formidable, Victorious and Illustrious and, as the admiralty announced, recently also has added the new indefatigable and Implacable to the fleet. Japan's Fighting Ships Listed them as scheduled for completin in 1942

"This would indicate a total of seven, not only keeping pace but maining unsunk being the Furious)

In connection with his statement, it was recalled that Alexander told a Sheffield audience last Sept. 20 that the Royal navy's capital ship, carrier and cruiser losses of the last three years had been replaced.

"We have had to the last three or four months very heavy attacks by the U-boats," Alexander said, "and we have taken a very heavy toll of the enemy.

"Our naval losses in this war, would constitute a great fleet, yet in spite of the fact that we have had to replace those ships today we have a far larger naval strength than in 1939."

COAL RATIONING

Toronto Dealers Requested To Mete Out Requirements To Customers

Toronto.—Emergency coal dealers started "rationing" coal to customers in accordance with a telegraphic request by Coal Administrator J. McG. Stewart, at Ottawa. Mr. Stewart asked dealers to distribute their present socks "only where there is a real and immediate necessity."

Dealers, estimating there is a month's normal supply of anthracite in the city, said there is no need for alarm.

Lt.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, urged Premier Gordon D. Conant to take immediate action under the powers given by the organization of resources act to meet a fuel shortage in Ontario.

POST-WAR SECURITY

OTTAWA. — A noted economist, John Gowans Parker, believes, that this country's economy can finance a post-war federal debt of 10 billion dollars. Parker says he has no fear for Canada. The Dominion's national debt, he says, is one of the best securities which will exist in the post-war era.

All Must Help In Keeping Down Cost Of Living

Ottawa. — Donald Gordon, chairman of the prices board, said in a message to Canadian brands representatives in all parts of Canada that every housewife and consumer must realize the parts they had to play in fighting and winning "the battle on the home front."

"From every woman serving on the economic front," he said, "the task calls for courage, ingenuity, steadfness and patience, and for each in 1943 there is a four-fold program :keep the cost of living stabilized, but only what you need, eliminate waste and conserve what you have

"The year before us, if we are all to make our contribution to victory, will see increased diversion of materials to war production, increased exports of goods to our allies as well as to our own boys overseas and increased diversion of shipping to war purposes. This will necessarily mean a less varied and a less ample supply of many civilian goods at home."

"But we must beware of any assumption that the battle against inflation has been won. Under) conditions of war the threat is a constant one, and only by constant vigilance and determination can we hold our ground."

Mr. Gordon's message went out to more than 7,000 active officers of the consumer branch, including members of the women's voluntary advisory committees, sub-committees, corresponding members and liaison officers.

BUY CERTIFICATES

London.—The two young princesses have started the ball rolling in the sale of Britain's new war savings certificates. Together with Princess Margaret Rose bought the first and second of the certificates at a village post office near where they're staying. Each princess handed over a pound's worth for the securities.

BIG SALVAGE JOB

Freighter Lifted From Halifax Harbor Bring Made Seaworthy Again

Halifax.—Described as one of the biggest salvage jobs of its kind ever undertaken in Canada, a freighter has been lifted from the floor of the harbor here and is now being made seaworthy again in a Halifax shipyard.

In a case that was similar to the re,sizing of the Normandie at her New York pier in everything but the size of the ships, the freighter, jammed with foodstuffs for Britain, burned and sank at her pier here Feb 7, 1942.

The Foundation Maritime, Limited, raised the scarred freighter.

It took five months of work before the rusty and blackened prow of the ship jutted out of the water, and it was another two months before the freighter had been repaired sufficiently to be towed to the shipyard.

One life was lost in the raising of the freighter. A workman, cutting into the hold, was overcome by gas fumes escaping from the burned and water-logged vegetable cargo.

LOWER DRAFT AGE

Women In Britain Liable For Call At Nineteen

London.—The King signed a proclamation lowering from 20 to 19 the age at which women are liable to be drafted for national service.

Single women born between July 1, 1922, and Dec. 31, 1923, will have the privilege of choosing between work in war industry and the uniformed services, or they may volunteer for nursing before being called up.

The per immation also extended the operation. of the service act to men who have reached 18 and are not 46.

MAY RATION BREAD

London.—Britain is prepared to introduce bread rationing on short notice, it was learned. Lord Woolton, the food minister, said: "If we can reduce unnecessary consumption of wheat and still retain our health and vigor, there will be less need for use of shipping in bringing in food."

FARMERS PRAISED

For Their Contribution Of Food For War Needs Last Year

Washington — President Roosevelt and other United Nations leaders patted Canadian and America- farmers on the back for the food contributed to war in 1942 and reminded them that 1943 production is being counted on heavily for further steps toward victory

In a special farm mobilization day address broadcast by President's message, read by James F. Byrnes, director of economic stabilization, told how the United Nations "are pooling their food resources and using them where they will do the most good."

"Canada is sending huge shipments of cheese, meats and other foods on the short north Atlantic run to Britain," the president said.

"Australia and New Zealand are providing a great deal of food to American soldiers stationed in that part of the world. Food from Latin America is going to Great Britain."

Food is a weapon in total war—fully as important in its way as guns or planes or tanks."

Maxim Litvinoff Russian ambassador, told the American soil tillers that their food "played no small part in making it possible for the Soviet troops . . . to deal mighty blows at the Fascist troops . . . to destroy Nazis by hundred thousands and drive them back."

MINISTER TO RUSSIA

Moscow.—Diplomatic relations between the Soviet Union and Australia were formally established when the Australian minister, William Slater, presented his credentials to Michael Kalinin, chairman of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet.

MORRISON
(Crowded out last week)

Christmas and New Year's have come and gone and we hope you all had a merry and joyous one. The Morrison school concert was held on Wednesday 23rd at 8.30 with Mr. A. Gillies as M.C. The school was tastefully decorated and in one corner stood the heavily laden tree beautifully decorated. The program which was prepared with hard work by both Miss Wolters and the pupils, was enjoyed by everyone as the applause at the end of each item was immense. Carols, very cute, recitations and dialogues acted. When Santa came everyones was excited, especially the children for Santa was very jolly this year. Perhaps because he was thinner due to the sugar rationing and he could therefore get around easier. Anyhow he surely lost his clothes once and had to go behind the curtain for repairs. The made him as lively as ever and many a pretty girl got kissed when she received her present. Even so his thinness didn't make it unnecessary for him to be helped back on the stage every time he set off. A vote of thanks was given to the teacher and pupils for the program and entertainment. A very delicious lunch (for wartime anyway) was served by the ladies of the district. After supper draws were made on various articles donated by the ladies of the district. The winners were Miss Jean Gould, Mr. H. Anderson, Mr. James Monaghan, Mrs. J. Miller, Mrs. G. Monaghan, Mrs. Fred Pearse, Mrs. R. Wells and Mr. Schenk. After a good chat everyone went home when be pleased.

As predicted the purchase of War Savings stamps in the New year has reached a new high. To date $1 stamps or $12.75 worth have been purchased. Asst. Deputi was the first to finish his certificate, closely followed by Jimmie Miller. Jimmie leads the list with amount saved by having 4 cents on a new certificate. However this will likely be changed when the race begins anew next week.

The Junior Red Cross meeting was held in the school on Friday afternoon of last week. Following the business meeting which was devoted briefly to plans for the Valentine party, a very interesting program was given. The chief item being a moving picture reel from Dby. 2 Enterprise on Harvesting of Wheat which was ably presented by Roy Monaghan ably assisted by David Giles. Miss Jean Gould has replaced Lavern Schorb as the party committee. Plans will soon be made to raise money for Red Cross purposes.

The League held its first meeting of the new year at the home of Mrs. L. Giles. Plans for a whist drive on Jan. 15 were made. There will be a dance on a gingham dance in the near future so watch for particulars. A letter from Alf Parker, in reply to the community letter, sent to the boys in the armed forces, was read. (Crowded out last week)

Christmas and New Year's have come and gone and we hope you all had a merry and joyous one. The Morrison school concert was held on Wednesday 23rd at 8.30 with Mr. A. Gillies as M.C. The school was tastefully decorated and in one corner stood the heavily laden tree beautifully decorated. The program which was prepared with hard work by both Miss Wolters and the pupils, was enjoyed by everyone as the applause at the end of each item was immense. Carols, very cute, recitations and dialogues acted. When Santa came everyones was excited, especially the children for Santa was very jolly this year. On Saturday evening Jan. 2, many of the young people were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gould for a hilarious party. Everyone reported that they never laughed so much or had so much fun in a long, long time. It seems there are to be more of these parties soon.

Those young people who were at home for the holidays are now back to their various occupations. Miss Christie Gillies to her school at Watson. Mrs. John Reinbach to her studies at Normal. Miss Vivian Gould to her studies at Islay. Miss Evelyn Monaghan, Miss Jean Gould, Rose Anderson and Jimmie Monaghan to continue their studies in Gr. X at the Vermilion high school. Gould was able to get home from Edmonton where he is in training, but was only home for a few days. Alf Monaghan has returned to teaching duties at Rye school.

Miss Beatie Giles of Edmonton was a visitor in the Bert Gould home during the holidays.

Mrs. Harvey Anderson is taking a short visit to her former home at Kirriemuir to see her brother who is home on leave from the armed forces. Mr. Otto Krampe has been suddenly called to Saskatchewan by the death of his father.

Mrs. Herman Wolters has been a visitor of the district frequently of late and was a guest at the Gillies and Monaghan homes.

The Monaghan Bros. have plowed out the highway to the oil wells. Those whose cars are near the highway have lost no time in taking advantage of this service. Hopes are high that they will be opened to islay soon.

We are very sorry to report that Baby Keanie Ogma is confined to the hospital. Latest reports are that an improvement is taking place.

LEGISLATURE OPENS FEB 10

Third session of the ninth legislature will open Thursday, Feb. 18, it was announced this week by Premier Aberhart, following a full cabinet meeting. An order-in-council formally calling the session has been signed. Although he did not forecast the trend of legislative enactments to be brought down, the Premier said that it was possible the session would be shorter than usual. Revision of the statutes is pressing, said he, that reason the number of bills introduced will be kept as low as possible. One extra-legislative difficulty that most of town members will have to face is the housing shortage. Already they are seeking accommodation, and Edmonton has practically no accommodation three days.

BAND LADIES WANTED BY THE C.W.A.C.

Will Be Taught to Play Instrument of Choice

Like to blow a horn? Like to bang a drum. Well, the C.W.A.C. is forming a band of its own—no experience necessary, but you must like music, be able to read it, and be willing to practice. Girls who enlist and wish to be in the band will be trained on the instrument for which they show the greatest aptitude. Of course, if you are already accomplished on a band instrument, it's just too easy! Establishment is provided for twenty-nine members, and twelve are now in practise at Currie Barracks, Calgary, under the direction of Bandmaster Kirk, and anyone now capable or who can be trained to take his place can have it.

Girls planning to enlist as bandswomen must be 18 years of age or over, have at least a Grade VIII education, and be musically inclined. So much the better if they can play an instrument. Anyone with exceptional qualifications may be trained to take over the direction of the band. The girls will receive trades pay, and can look forward to the days when, the group completed and properly trained will tour western Canada in concert work.

Mobile recruiting parties of the Canadian Women's Army Corps are touring the province at the present time, and girls wishing to enlist may make contact with one of these units, or may apply in writing or in person to the recruiting office in Calgary, in front of the Eaton store there or to the office in Calgary, in the Union Building.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

(This paper does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.)

Alberta Farmers' Union,
Edmonton, Alberta.

The Editor, Standard,
Vermilion, Alberta.
Dear Sir:

I am glad to notice that several newspapers are giving a prominent place to the representations made to the Dominion Government by the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce relative to the farm labor situation.

While we are glad even at this late date to see this body interested I should like to point out that at the August conference in Edmonton, to discuss the labor situation in the West, the Alberta Farmers' Union presented a brief which not only pointed out the serious condition existing then and the probability of its growing worse; but also suggested several helpful methods of alleviating the situation, among which were the following:

1. That the best use be made of Jap labor

2. Free railroad transportation of all farm labor

3. Free transportation by railroads for soldiers released for harvest

4. Those boys from the farm by a board that has not used good judgment be sent back home

5. That no more farm boys be taken into the armed services until this crop is harvested

6. Those farm boys who are capable of running farm machinery be treated as Key men and released from the army

7. Suggested that $15 per month be added to the wages of farm labor by a Dominion Government bonus so as to equalize the wages received in war industries.

8. That the Dominion Government make advance on grain stored on farms

9. That storage be paid on grain [illegible]

10 Suggested gold mining be discontinued and the miners go to war [illegible] industries to which they are adapted.

This was sent to the Minister of Labor along with others and had it been acted upon, there would not now be 20 per cent of the crop of central and Southern Alberta lying under the snow.

That is just one more instance of the too little and too late policy of the Dominion Government caused by the fact that they are not yet willing to co-operate with the representatives of farmers and labor groups, who understand the real conditions, until TOO LATE.

Yours truly,
H. R. Nichols,
Secretary, Alberta Farmers' Union.

The Week in Legislative Circles . . . In Edmonton

J. A. King, chairman of the Alberta Liquor control board, is in Toronto this week to confer in liquor trade matters with other provincial commissioners.

"All rural wars bring with them some sort of spiritual revival, for when we are at war material things must be sacrificed. Money, goods, life itself are poured into the fiery furnace. Men then grope for spiritual things." —John Foster Dulles

Incorporation of two new co-operative concerns during November brought to 192 the total of such self-help organizations in the province. The new co-operatives are at Sedalia and Ellscott, and both will operate retail store businesses.

OIL PRODUCTION UP FOR ALTA.

Although production o' Alberta oil was reported declining at the year's end, official figures, published for the first months of 1942 indicate that all previous production records have been broken with output at 18,478,254 barrels up to Oct. 31. According to the Conservation Board, 27 wells were drilling at the close of the year and there were 225 active wells in the province. For the past seven years production records have been broken yearly and 1942 brought the highest output in 20 years. During the last week of 1942 the daily average was 56,526 barrels, compared with 17,160 barrels in the last week of 1941.

EGG DRYING PLANT WORKING TO CAPACITY

Egg drying plant of the Alberta Poultry Producers' Marketing Board in Edmonton will operate at full speed to supply powdered eggs for the British market, which will need the product of 62,000,000 shell eggs in 1943. Following intensive organization work, the Board, which is a producer-controlled organization, now has in operation the most modern machinery for turning eggs into dry powder.

1943 OBJECTIVES AND FARM LABOUR

No doubt prairie farmers resolved, on January 1st, to meet the farm production objectives made public by the government a few weeks ago. Some of the increases for 1943 over 1942 are: oats, 12%; barley 11%; flax, 6.8% alfalfa, 17% cattle, 9%; hogs, 25%; sheep, 12%; eggs, 20%; creamery butter, 19%; powdered milk, 41% (decrease in condensed milk, 27%).

In 1942, farmers responded nobly to demands for food products. Can they meet the 1943 requirements? If not they will, we can safely say.

Certainly the increases in food products outlined above are not impossible, but let us not be overoptimistic. Last year, pastures and field crops were plentiful and never better. Last year, besides supplying enormous quantities of food, the prairie farmers released thousands of their members, including many of their able men, to the armed forces, and to war industries in every town. Next year may be dry, and next year farm labour will be far more scarce.

If it works simply to hate our leaders in the sand or to look for miracles. Failure to meet the 1943 production objectives might be serious, perhaps, but is the possible failure of a definite plan to meet farm labour problems is not undertaken very soon. Either the supply of farm workers must be increased or the workers must be redistributed in some way so that farmers are not obliged to reduce cattle, dairy cows, hogs and poultry.

At present it looks as though the problem is just dumped in the farmer's lap. Farmers are entitled to expect government guidance and to expect it soon.

ISLAND HILL

In most homes there are clothing and other things which are really in the way. These things are very acceptable to the Red Shield. Vermilion which will put them to good use. For instance, to bring happiness to our British friends and beloved lads overseas by providing comforts with the money received at sales which take place from time to time. Send your donations to any of the following Mrs. Red Spencer, Mrs. J. Mrs. G. Williams, Sec.; Mrs. A. Holte Treas.

The Misses Jenkins have gone to British Columbia.

After a nice spell had weather returned Friday. Only three pupils turned up at school on that day.

Chas. Min and John Williamson are busy drawing wood to the school.

That famous cutter was mentioned on the radio program which comes from Winnipeg every Sunday morning at 8.15 M.T.

One farmer we know is running no risks, he has built for himself an air raid shelter. Some thirty feet below the ground built in with solid concrete. There are two rooms, one of which contains a bed. Wonderful world!

It does not require any words of ours to prove that Mr. W. Elford of Vermilion is a man of outstanding ability. This is proved out by the educational authorities of the Eli mentary schools. We congratulate Mr Elford and congratulate Vermilion which has a citizen or whom any town or city would be proud.

Editor Solved Problem Of What To Call Copy Girl

A few weeks ago the first copy girl joined the staff of the Minneapolis Star Journal. Editor, who were used to bawling "Bo-o-o-oy!" when they wanted a story or a headline hustled to the composing room, didn't know at first just what to call Copy Girl Barbara Rexford. Then one of 'em hit on a happy solution, and enticing himself suddenly, he shouted "Miss Bo-o-o-oy!" and "Miss Boy!" she's been ever since.

Proper Nutrition Is Health Ammunition Canadians Are Told As Campaign Begins

The Canadian Nutrition Program is underway, and all through the country people are giving more thought to the food they eat because they know that "Proper Nutrition is Health Ammunition."

People have become vitamin and mineral conscious in the last few years, realizing the importance of these substances to general health and fitness. They sometimes forget, however, that calories too, are important.

Just as cloth is measured in yards and water in gallons, food is measured in calories, or the amount of heat and energy it produces in the body. Foods vary greatly in calorie value. Fats ranks highest, followed by sugar and starches, while most fruits and vegetables, which contain large amounts of water have a low calorie value. People do not all need the same number of calories for individual needs vary with activity, age and other factors. The more physical work done the faster energy is burned up and the need for more calories increases. Every one needs more calories in winter than in summer, for the body has to produce more heat to maintain normal temperature with the thermometer at zero.

The wise meal planner, says Nutrition Service, is chosing her calories for the company they keep. In other words she plans to get a larger proportion of calories from foods which also contain the protective minerals and vitamins. Cheese, whole grain cereals, Canada Approved Bread and potatoes, cooked in their skins are examples of foods in which calories keep company with protective elements.

Pictures of Guide Life Wanted to Show All Parts of The Dominion

The Provincial Office has received a request from the Head of Publications, Canadian Girl Guides, Toronto, asking for pictures of Guide life from all parts of the Dominion. Snapshots showing camp life, training or teaching of the tests, have been specially asked for, and the snaps should have a clear, glossy finish. Any pictures showing Brownies, Guides or Rangers in action, either indoors or outdoors, will be most acceptable and Guides are asked to sent their contributions to the Saskatchewan Headquarters, 1933 Hamilton Street, Regina.

In view of the increased difficulty in obtaining supplies the Stores Department in Toronto have issued an appeal to all Guides throughout Canada for their co-operation and understanding in any slight delays which may arise in the filling of orders. The manufacture of insignia from metal has now become impossible and it has been suggested that each Company and Pack salvage any unwanted Tenderfoot or Recruit Pins belonging to members of their own company for future use. Economy and thoughtfulness in this connection will be of great help to the Stores Department and all Companies and Packs should make that one of their Guide Aims for the New Year.

The Saskatchewan office wishes to acknowledge the receipt of two quilts, one from the 1st Rose Valley Company, for shipment overseas. Miss Beatrice Millard, of the 1st Rose Lone Company, Ridgedale, has sent in two parcels of infant's clothing, and the 1st Yorkton Company has sent a splendid box of children's garments, which they collected at their Christmas party instead of giving presents to each other. All these contributions are gratefully acknowledged by the Packing committee.

JESUS THE GREAT PHYSICIAN

Golden text: Wouldest thou be made whole. John 5:6.

Devotional reading: Psalm 116:1-8.

Explanations and Comments

The Cure at the Pool of Bethesda, John 5:1-9. In Jerusalem by the sheepgate there was a pool where the sheep destined for sacrifice were washed. Around the pool there were porches consisting of small compartments, covered overhead but open toward the pool. The pool was called in Hebrew Bethesda, which means House of Mercy. There the sick, the blind, the halt, the withered collected, hoping to be cured, and among them was a man who had been afflicted for 38 years. His trouble seemingly was paralysis. One of the Jewish feasts had brought Jesus to Jerusalem, and when he saw the man lying there he asked, "Wouldest thou be made whole?" Hast thou the desire to be made well? The man may have been there helpless for so long that he had lost all hope, and Jesus would first be cured, and among the multitude of sufferers Jesus selected

Red Cross Appeal for $10,000,000 To Carry On Great World-wide Work

A national appeal for $10,000,000 voluntary contributions to the work of the Canadian Red Cross Society will be launched throughout the Dominion on March 1st, and through the succeeding three weeks. This was announced at Toronto in a joint statement by Jackson Dodds, Chairman of the Central Council, and Mr Justice P. H. Gordon, Chairman of the National Executive of the Society.

"The Canadian Red Cross urgently needs a minimum of $10,000,000 to carry on its work in the mitigation of human suffering," the statement declared. "When the Society made its appeal to the people last May there was a generous response and we feel confident that the citizens of Canada who are noted for their open-handedness will once more rally to the support of our cause.

"The Red Cross is an international organization and under the Convention of Geneva, is required to obtain its support by voluntary subscriptions to preserve its rights, privileges and immunities guaranteed under International Law," the statement said. "No belligerent government may finance a Red Cross Society, for to do would destroy the International status of the Society and even strip our of its immunity under fire

"The decision to hold the national appeal in March was made with the fullest co-operation of the Dominion Government to avoid clashing with plans of the National War Finance Committee," the statement declared. "Also during March the American Red Cross will hold its national war appeal, making it a continuous-year Red Cross month.

"One of the biggest works for the Society during the current year is supplying food parcels for Canadians, British and Empire prisoners of war in Europe and the Far East. The Society now has five parcels daily in Canada, which shortly will reach a weekly objective of 100,000 parcels. Of this amount the Canadian Red Cross donated 20,000 weekly, for the prisoners in Europe the remainder being paid for by the British and the relatives of these Canadians. Provision also has to be made for food drugs and other supplies for Canadian prisoners in the Far East. These two objectives alone will require $5,500,000 during 1943.

"During the past year hundreds of thousands of women in all parts of Canada have worked faithfully and unremittingly to supply the Red Cross with the materials that it needs to take care of the requirements of Canadian soldiers here and overseas and look after the needs of the sick and the suffering among the bombed out population of Britain, and to prepare for whatever eventuality this behalf Canada itself," the statement continued.

"A new phase of the society's work has been the provision of aid and relief for the stricken peoples of the United Nations," the statement added. "Food, clothing and drugs have been sent to Russia, China, Poland, and countries, ambulances and other supplies given to the armed forces of the Allies.

"The work of the society has never been greater," the statement concluded, "and an appeal earnestly to Canadians everywhere to prepare themselves now to answer the call and to fill the most urgent need.

DOMINION - WIDE CAMPAIGN FOR FATS

Housewives Key People — 4c per Pound for Dripping Fat

OTTAWA.—A Dominion-wide campaign for the collection of fats and bones has been launched by the National Salvage Division of the Department of National War Services, in cooperation with the Oils and Fats Administration of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, it is announced by Charles La Ferte, Director of National Salvage.

In connection with this new war drive, Mrs. Phyllis Turner, Oils and Fats Administrator, declared that today Canada faces a serious shortage of fats and oil for war industries, and needs a minimum through salvaged fats and bones, 25,000,000 pounds of fat a year, reduced to per capita figures, about one ounce os fat per person per week.

This is just another brief campaign, with a spurt to be put on for a few days or weeks and then dropped, the Salvage Director emphasizes. The campaign must be sustained, right across Canada, in every household, hotel and restaurant from day to day for the duration of the war.

Housewives are the key people in this collection. They are asked to save waste fats and bones in their meat dealer. In any community where a fats and bones collection system is already in operation, either through municipal, provincial or private, or by a local voluntary salvage committee, housewives can continue to dispose of fats and bones through such system.

The Canadian meat dealers, as their contribution, have undertaken to accept salvaged fats and bones from housewives, and to see that they are forwarded to the rendereres and meat packers for the recovery of vital glycerine during 1943. Another material essential for war industries Rendereres and packers likewise have promised their co-operation in making the campaign a success.

Every ounce of dripping, every morsel of scrap fat, every bone, green or dry, must be saved.

Meat dealers will pay 4 cents per pound for dripping fat.

Highlights of Financial Statement

Tax Receipts Lower Than Levy for First Time in Several Years

Ratepayers will have received their copy of the 1943 financial statement and had an opportunity of digesting the information provided therein through this document. Every ratepayer should study the statement and be prepared to discuss features in which he is particularly interested at the annual meeting of ratepayers which is to be held in the Memorial hall on Friday evening of this week and which every ratepayer should attend.

For the first time in several years tax collections are shown to have fallen below the levy for the current year which is amounted to $46,632; this levy is based on an aggregate mill rate of 12 mills, 10 of which are intended for general municipal expenditure while 2 mills are required for the maintenance of our educational system.

In 1942 current taxes in the amount of $30,764.69 were collected while in 1941 these brought $30,314.32 arrears of taxes brought $8,771.55 in 1942 and $8,236.36 while in 1941 these amounted to $1,052.28; sale of land, including properties taken over by the town under Tax Recovery proceedings amounted to $2311.66 in 1942 as against $2700 in the previous year.

The arrear risk showed some improvement in finances during the year just passed with net expenditure of less than $400 as compared with a necessary outlay of something over $700 in the preceding year.

Collection of educational taxes showed a drop of more than $200 in 1942 as against 1941 whereas higher collections might have been expected when it is estimated that the certificates of Vermilion has increased to a considerable extent.

Expenditures made under authority of the Council were kept within the budgeted estimates, relief items of outlay being those for public works in the amount of $1586.16 as compared with approximately $5000 for general municipal expenditure while $1000

JESUS THE BREAD OF LIFE

Golden text: Jesus said unto them, am the bread of life. John 6:35.

Lesson: John 6.

Devotional reading: Psalm 63:1-8.

Explanations and Comments

The Feeding of the Five Thousand. John 6:1-14. Jesus is the Source of life—this is the thought at the close of the fifth chapter of John. He is also the Sustainer of life is the thought of the sixth chapter.

One day Jesus crossed over to the eastern side of the Sea of Galilee, hoping to have a quiet time with his disciples on the hillside there. But a crowd of people, bound on their way to the Passover at Jerusalem, drawn by the report of Jesus' power over disease, followed on foot around the northern end of the lake to meet him. Seeing the on-coming crowd, Jesus turned to Philip and asked him where bread could be bought for them all. Jesus was only testing Philip, for he had already planned what to do. John informs us. Philip was a practical man of affairs and he made a hasty calculation: It would take at least a hundred shillings worth of bread, he declared, to give everyone even a little. The margin of our Revised Version explains that the Greek word denarius, later denarius, translated by shillings, denotes a coin worth about 17 cents in our money. It was a common wage for a day's labor.

Andrew, the brother of Peter, remarked that there was a lad among them who had five barley loaves and two fishes—"but what are these among so many?" he exclaimed. He emphasized the smallness of the little word but. He saw the poverty of the visible supply; he failed to see the richness of the invisible Power.

At Jesus' direction, the people sat down on the grass, to the number of 5000 men besides women and children according to Mt. 14:21. They sat in companies of fifties, that the distribution might be quickly made. Taking the barley loaves in his hands, Jesus offered thanks, and then distributed the customary words, "Blessed art thou, Jehovah our God, King of the earth, who causeth bread to come forth from the earth."

Jesus distributed the loaves and the fishes till all were supplied. Then he said to his disciples, "Gather up the broken pieces which remain over, that nothing be lost." He would not approve of such waste as was formerly to be seen in our households. And they filled twelve baskets therewith.

The people who witnessed the sign" said, "This is in truth the prophet that cometh into the world."

AFTER DARK DIRTY

Alexander Dumas could never understand why his after dark actions should be called upon to perform gratuitously at parties they attended.

One night at a dinner at Madam Auberson's, the great French author was sitting next to a famous general, when his hostess whispered to him, "Why do you not tell the general some of your witty stories?"

"Mon, cherie, mon cherie," replied Dumas in suave tones, "every man to his own trade. I was just waiting for the general to fire on a cannon."

SEA HEROES GRANTED AWARDS

The official publication of the British Government, The London Gazette, contains citations of awards approved by His Majesty the King, for gallantry at sea made to Captain P. A. Kelly, at the time Chief Officer of the S.S. "Lady Hawkins," Canadian National Steamships, and three crewmen, Robert Clayton, Hantsport, N.S., third wireless officer; Charles Bolivar, able seaman, Upper La Have, N.S., and William Burton, carpenter, Hamilton, Ont., (shown left to right, above). They were commended for their courage and resourcefulness during the voyage of the lifeboat so skillfully navigated by Captain Kelly after the sinking of the Lady Hawkins by an enemy submarine last year.

QUIET MINDS

Robert Louis Stevenson said quiet minds cannot be perplexed or frightened, but go on in fortune or misfortune at their own private pace, like a clock during a thunderstorm.

fax, N.S., is he a "member of the civil division of the Most Excellent Order of the British Empire." The London Gazette records that "the ship sailing alone was attacked by a U-boat in the Atlantic. The Chief Officer after getting his own boat away stayed on board trying to get other boats away. Just before the ship sank he swam to his own boat and took charge. It was overcrowded with 76 survivors. After four days they were picked up. Part of the time the boat met with heavy weather and to steer an overladen boat with an oar replacing the lost rudder called for good seamanship.

"The Chief Officer showed sterling qualities of leadership throughout and by his example sustained the spirits of all in the boat."

The British Air Ministry and the War Office say they can fit airmen or women into almost no matter what size, but the Admiralty was stuck by a recruit who wore size 13 and he was sent out to buy his own.

HOW WE RECOMMEND ALL-BRAN TO ALL OUR FRIENDS

Says Mrs. Joseph Fare, Montreal, Quebec: "I find KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN much more satisfactory than pills or powders. Nearly all our family suffered from constipation. Our friends suggested pills and powders, but relief was only temporary. Now we eat ALL-BRAN regularly and recommend it to our friends."

Instead of waiting until you suffer and then dosing yourself with harsh purgatives, try ALL-BRAN'S "Better Way" to correct the causes of constipation due to the lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet. Eat it daily and drink plenty of water, but remember, ALL-BRAN doesn't work like a cathartic. It takes time. ALL-BRAN is sold at your grocer's. SANDS OF HAZARD

CHAPTER IV.

JACK STOREY returned to the desk of Captain Lebeau. "What is it now, monsieur?" he asked irritably.

"I had expected to be finished with your case by this time," smiled Lebeau, "but I did not really expect that girl to throw herself between the bullets for you. "Now, suppose you tell me about that street brawl? Who was that man?"

To deny the charge would be to shift the blame to Amelie, giving the authorities the excuse they needed to send her to the guillotine. So Jack Storey said, "Yes, I shot him."

Captain Lebeau listened to the story that followed, then meeting with Andre Ribott, and the warning given Storey by the latter, he summoned his Mulai and Storey had been waylaid by Ben-Hadin and his cutthroats.

"Why should Monsieur Ribott wish you harm?"

"I do not know," admitted Storey. "Unless it is the fact that I am on my way to Zagya. If Ribott is the German agent Miss Fournier suspects, he would be foolish to let me reach my destination. Perhaps he feared that I would encounter him on the desert, realize his designs, and report him to the French authorities in time to spoil his plans."

"It still remains to be proven that Ribott is the man you imagine," the captain remainded tartly. "I fear, Monsieur, that you have been less truthful than Mademoiselle Amelie! My men checked up on your movements last night. No one in the cafe of Amar ben Yusuf remembers seeing either Monsieur Ribott or Sheik Ismeddin there. There was, however, one fat Berber in the coffee-house with whom you quarreled and whom you followed out into the street. A score of witnesses. Monsieur, have you that like a tree?"

Jack Storey had not considered the possibility of a frame-up. Either the lieutenant of Ain Sefra had testified falsely through fear of the redoubtable Kahiri, or Andre Ribott, acting to delay the man who might expose him—now that he knew Storey and also the American had failed—had bribed everyone from Amar ben Yusuf down.

Captain Lebeau spoke to the officer behind Storey. "Bring in Sheik Ismeddin." And Storey's brown went up at this indication that the Berber chieftain was about to confront him.

IMMEDIATELY the Lawless Sheik el-Kahiri, bowed to the seated captain and turned his arrogant eyes on Storey. "This man is mine. Bid it Roumi?" he inquired harshly.

"Patience, O Sheik!" said Lebeau. "This is a French court, and French law—"

"I know only one law!" Ismeddin cut in. "The law of the Prophet! I demand redress for the death of Mustafa in the name of my tribe."

"But Storey admits the killing of Mustafa. It is my duty to punish him. The people of Ain Sefra will accept my decision, but you, Ismeddin, are a Bedouin, doubtful of the ways of the foreigner. However, I am well acquainted with Islamic law. Would you accept a religious decision on those grounds?"

The Kahiri sheik nodded, but his eyes remained filled with suspicion and hatred.

"Bidi Storey regrets the death of Mustafa," said Lebeau. "It seems that he mistook Mustafa for a robber. To you, Sheik el Kahiri, in lieu of said sourly, "will cut your throats if you do not swallow your own lies." He lifted his dagger and placed the razor-like tip against the throat of the owner of the coffee-shop. "Speak Amar, truthful answers to any questions the Commandant may ask you."

The gun in the hand of Captain Lebeau wavered. "What is this? Are these fellows admitting that the evidence they gave against Storey was false?"

The knife nestled deeper into the beard of Amar ben Yusuf, and the shopkeeper answered. "We had to testify as we did, O Sidi. The threats of Sheik Ismeddin left us no choice." Lebeau returned to the chair of his desk. "Now let us get to the bottom of this affair. Storey got into no quarrel with the Kahiri who was found slain in the street?"

"No," answered Amar

Mohammed prompted. "The lieutenant O Amar, that the Berber Ismeddin intended to waylay Sidi Storey and ourself, even before we left that city you call a coffee-shop."

"I did overhear a whisper to that effect," admitted Amar.

STOREY asked: "Was it Andre Ribott who gave Ismeddin the idea of attacking us?"

Sidi Amar shook his head. "Ismeddin needed no prompting. It is common knowledge that Mustafa el Bidi Saffa that the saddle-bags of Bidi Storey contained much gold."

"I see," nodded Lebeau. "Well, Storey, it looks like your innocence has been established."

Mohammed removed the dagger from the throat of Amar. "You will go to jail these dogs, Sidi!"

"I would need an extra prison if I locked up every liar in Ain Safra," grinned Lebeau. "No, they have made amends for the trouble they have caused."

Mohammed made a gesture of disdain at the men who had been his prisoners. "Get you gone," he said not unkindly. "And look not so woebegone, O Amar. You need come to no harm outside these walls. It rests with you and Kahiri whether or not Ismeddin learns that your love of truth has led you to clear the name of Bidi Storey."

The two Arabs scrilled through the hall and Mohammed, his duty expanded to amusing proportions, faced Jack Storey. "They will keep their mouths shut," said the Mulai, "away from Ain Sefra before Ismeddin learns who is the betrayer."

Capt. Lebeau said shortly: "Guard, take Monsieur Storey to his cell." At the surprised expressions on the faces of both the American and the shopkeeper, he explained: "Sorry, Monsieur. But the establishment of your innocence will not prevent the danger that hangs over you. I cannot release you with the Berber watching every door of this building."

"But, Captain—" expostulated Mohammed.

"Enough," said Lebeau. "I must do things in my own way. Return to your quarters, Storey. You, Mohammed, will remain for a word with me."

All day Jack Storey sat alone in his cell, sweltering as the brassy sun drenched the walls with its pitiless heat. At sunset, a guard brought him a bowl of mint tea and a dish containing a mixture of carrots, bread and eggs. The Algerian professed ignorance concerning the position Capt. Lebeau intended to make of the prisoner.

With the swift desert night, Storey's gaze became increasingly more bearable The American was not surprised when Mohammed appeared, but was unable to sleep, even when the noises of town and building died into silence.

It must have been midnight when Storey, lying motionless in the darkness, heard a faint scraping sound that could be only the cautious turning of a key in the lock of the door. He faced the sound, but in the lightless room he could see nothing. But he detected the whisper of the moving door, the tread of a soft foot, and the careful closing of the door into silence.

HAZARDS OF THE HOME

"Make Your Home Safe, an article in a recent issue of "Hygeia", provides warnings and advice for the careless home-lover, who disregarding hazards which exist in his home, may find himself a hospital patient as the result of an accident

The more obvious dangers such as loaded firearms; toys strewn around the floors and on stairways; bottles of poison not properly labelled; sharp-edged implements and matches within reach of children, are readily recognized, says the article, but other less noticeable contributing causes of accidents within the home also require attention.

Stairways should be ample in width and constructed with a proper consideration for the horizontal as well as the vertical spatial relations. A rise of 11 inches says the article, does not fit well on a 7 inch tread Wide, shallow treads are easier on both the muscles and the heart

Open drawers should never be used as a step-ladder in reaching for a dish on the top shelf, it is pointed out, and chairs and tables should not be used as substitutes for step-ladders.

Super-waxed floors are a potential danger, too, it states, and rugs should be kept in good repair to avoid the possibility of catching the feet in frayed borders, etc. The wearing of soft bedroom slippers and old, broken down shoes, no matter how comfortable may result in a wrenched or sprained ankle. Never run up and down stairs. Practice proper lifting by learning at home.

Rubber mats should be used in bathtubs, declares the article, and a handle provided for the hand to grasp firmly. Can heaters and stoves which are known to be leaky should not be used Electric cords should not be pulled from sockets with the current on; others stay "home," keeping out of trouble; then the typing finger quickly returns to its base.

In addition, the keyboard is divided into eight sections, one to each finger. Your right forefinger can type "J" and "m" but can never jump out of its section to "e" or "i".

That's how mistakes are prevented! Our 32-page instruction booklet includes chart, diagram of typewriter and daily drills Also describes good usage in typing English; how to type social official and business letters, statistics. Can serve as a beginning for a business college course.

For Merchant Seamen

New Luxury Club In Liverpool to Always Open

There is a new luxury club in Liverpool, the £30,000 Ocean Club but the only evening dress seen in it is that of the head waiters. It is a club for merchant seamen, open to any sailor 24 hours of the day, seven days a week. Everything in it is unusual. There is no canteen service. Waitresses serve dinner at their own tables in the 150-seater restaurant. Forms and trestle tables, found in most seamen's homes, are barred. The food is prepared under the direction of a well-known chef. Prices are reasonable and the menu is varied.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

Mrs. T. Sherwood and Miss Dippell had the pleasure of attending a birthday party at the Islay hospital along with the matron Miss McKee, the nurses and staff in honor of Miss Twaddell's birthday.

Due to the extremely cold weather of the past two weeks news is hard to gather as folks just naturally stay at home as much as they can.

The card party on Friday night last was called off and the next one is planned for Feb. 6th. The few who did turn up last Friday night adjourned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. Hopp where a very enjoyable social evening was spent.

A few children braved the cold last week and attended school.

Don't forget you ladies of the B.B. club. The meeting will be held on Feb. 11th at the home of Mrs. Delgrd.

We wish to extend the sympathy of the community to Mrs. O. Krampo on the recent death of her father.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall and Mr and Mrs. B. McGinnis were visitors Sunday at the Shepherd home.

BUTTER PRODUCERS MUST REGISTER

Only a few days remain in which primary producers of butter should register at their local ration board, under requirement of rationing regulations, Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

It is pointed out that the order applies to everyone who produces dairy butter, whether in small or large quantities, and that any producer making dairy butter after Jan. 31st without having registered is breaking the law.

Local ration boards in Alberta are situated to be of most service to their communities, and available to producers to whom regulations apply as well as consumers.

WOODVALE

The spring-like weather did not last long before winter returned with a vengeance. It surely must be hard on the cattle who are short on feed this year. When it is so frosty and there is no wind, it is surprising how far one can hear. The one o'clock town whistle was heard here several times and the train too; it must be twelve or fourteen miles as the crow flies. Talking about crows, Chester Rankin saw one sitting on the fence near his home early this month; apparently would no one would believe him he called his sister Ruby to have a look at it too. With the warm weather coming a few days later these must have wondered if spring was really coming.

Mrs. Potter was a recent Edmonton visitor.

The Telland farm forum group met at the Van Wageningen home on the 15th. Pitfield members turned up and as usual enjoyed the discussions.

Mrs. Pastor Sr., who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jim Panter, returned to Dump on Monday, 19th.

The Ottawa school re-opened last week as a teacher was secured.

In the Spirit of the Good Samaritan

An outstanding result of the War has been the world-wide manifestation of the spirit of the Good Samaritan. One object of this generous care has been the Orphaned Mission of the European Churches.

Who are these Orphaned Missions?

They are the Missions of the churches of Continental Europe, cut off from their sources of supply because of wartime revolutions. These missions represent non-sights of the world's non-Roman missionary work Since "Pearl Harbour" the strong Dutch and German Missions in the Dutch East Indies and missions of other Southwest Pacific islands, or planned by war in Europe, have been cut off by Japanese invasion from their new source of supply — the Orphaned Mission fund.

Why is it so important to maintain these Missions?

Because each Mission is a centre radiating the world's strongest constructive and peace-building influence.

Because the younger churches in Asia and Africa look to us to keep their light burning brightly through this dark hour.

Because of anticipated post-war missionary expansion, present centres of work must be held as bases from which to advance.

How is it being done?

The International Missionary Council have, since 1939, contributed $5,694,650.00 to genuine Missions. This money has come from the churches of Bombed Britain, Wartorn China, South America, New Zealand, Canada and the United States. Of this Canada contributed $45,767.29, and the Church of England in Canada $5,149.18.

What can we do?

Sunday, January 31st has been set aside as a day of special offerings to the pressing cause whom all Christian people are urged to come to the rescue of their unfortunate brethren. In the spirit of the Good Samaritan let us show love to our neighbors.

Publicity For Canada

FROM GREAT BRITAIN in recent months there have come newspaper reports which indicate a growing interest in the Dominion of Canada. No doubt this is due in part to the presence of large numbers of Canadian troops who are at all times eager to tell interested British listeners about Canada. The success of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan has also made the Dominion familiar to many British airmen who have received training here. The Dieppe raid by combined British and Canadian forces, also served to arouse British concern in Canada and Canadians, and accounts of the part played by Canadians in the raid were featured in the British press, as was the review of the action given by Defense Minister Ralston before the Dominion Parliament. Many of the eye-witness accounts, written by Canadian correspondents were published fully, and many pictures of the Canadians in action were shown.

* * * * *

It is noted and that in peace-time few items concerning Canada were printed in the British papers and that, as a rule only major disasters or outstanding musical events received special attention. Now, however, it is not unusual to find several stories about Canada in one day and a number of British publications, including the London Times the Manchester Guardian and Reuter's News Agency, have full-time correspondents in Canada. Many others have representatives in the United States, who keep in touch with Canadian affairs and report on them. Drastic reduction in the size of British newspapers due to the acute shortage of paper, has limited the quantity of all news published, for few papers there now consist of more than four pages. In view of this, the attention given to Canada has increased in a very large measure, and there can be no doubt of the growing interest which is taken in ours static.

* * * * *

Canada as a result has aroused sincere admiration in Britain, as have the exploits of Canadian soldiers, sailors and airmen. Great appreciation is shown for Canadian airmen for their effective work in many parts of the world. There is a keen awareness of the part which the Canadian is playing in the Battle of the Atlantic. It is known, too, that Canada is sending over large quantities of food and munitions, and there is a realization of the sincere desire of the Canadian people to play their full part in the winning of the war. This growing consciousness in Britain of Canada, her geography and her people, is one feature of this war which promises to be of far-reaching benefit both to Great Britain and to ourselves. Much has been and about encouraging immigration to Canada after the war, and if this is done, there is no doubt but that many British people, stirred by stories of the attractions of life in Canada will desire to come and settle in here We have a fine country with rich resources. Some of these have been developed, but there are still great potentialities, and it is gratifying to know that the interest and appreciation of the people of Britain in our country, is increasing

The Royal Bank of Canada 74th Annual Meeting

Morris W. Wilson, President and Managing Director, urges post war planning on basis of free enterprise —Only system likely to appeal to self-reliant young Canadians.

Sydney G. Dobson, Vice-President and General Manager, reports assets over $1,291,000,000.—Liquid position exceedingly strong — War adds heavily to routine duties of banks.

The intent and ability of the free enterprise system to meet the challenge of the post war world was the keynote of an address by Morris W. Wilson, President and Managing Director of The Royal Bank of Canada at the bank's 74th Annual Meeting.

"Assuming intelligent co-operation on the part of government," said Mr. Wilson, "free enterprise, which has already provided for the people who have known it the greatest degree of comfort and security in the world's history, can meet the challenge of the post-war world. It can, by accepting further social responsibility, save for a people from the evils that accompany state control—obliteration of private life, destruction of personal incentive, elimination of individual incentive, and, the extinction of those small gains which fairly go to those who work and save hard.

"Free enterprise, with its wealth of experience, established position, and wide resources, has the ability to lend them known to us under which the job can be done, when prepared to forfeit the that our whole system will be swept away by the tides of the economic heaven and earth as yet unformed, by the only method left dangerous. He is dangerous because his preachings interfere with the people's concentration on the war effort, and they are menacing to the practical solution of the problems ahead.

"Changes must take account of the changes in human nature. Even if this war is won, the soldier will with to get back to the old order of things. The farmer will still want to own his farm; the small house-owner will desire to retain his property; the shopkeeper, the wholesaler, and the manufacturer will be found as zealous as ever to carry on their own branches of our free enterprise; and the Canadian public thirsty bodiers of their country, will be found to be, as it has been entitled to, their interest earnings.

"The idea of profit, which is largely responsible for work and initiative, is deep-rooted in human nature, and after the war it will still motivate individuals and corporate bodies. Its progressive function, development is constant. As to sudden, revolutionary changes which would upset the economic system, upset the modes of life and disperse the savings, investments and insurance of the people of the nation, I think the proposition need only to be stated to reveal its folly. At the same time, it is dangerous to give its propaganda to go on unanswered."

RESERVE IN TAKE LETTER RISE

Mr. Wilson said he did not ridicule the views of anyone upon the sole ground that he was a socialist or demagogue.

"The unthinkers, however, of these, who theorize about post-war economy," he said, "often lies in their neck of political experience of the people and their disregard of the widespread, undeniable diffusion of the benefits of free enterprise in the form of rising standards of living. This experience and these facts are readily available. Business should assemble and analyze them, and present to the public their irresistible conclusions showing the true intent and ability of the system of free enterprise to do the things that need to be done. That is the only real way to carry the judgment of the people.

"There are plenty of hard-headed people in Canada who, for instance, have money in the bank; there are more than five million deposit accounts, totalling more than $3,900 million. Your bank alone has approximately over one million deposit accounts. There are more than three million Canadians holding their country's Victory Bonds, War Savings Certificates or other government obligations. There are more than four million individual holders of life insurance policies in Canada. These are the people who, alert to their own well-being, will tell the theorists and agitators what changes are accepted side in the mode of life which, with all the faults it may possess, has produced those savings and these life works of personal and family security. These are the people who must be considered by those who seek to influence the course of events."

Mr. Wilson readily acknowledged that the system of free enterprise must, in fact the economic system and our institutions of free Government, were the results of evolution and expressed the conviction, that some of the changes which had been brought about by the war would remain. "There must and will be development, particularly in the realm of maximum employment and freedom from want. The ordinary people of the world will look to some agency of the state to ensure for a avert mass unemployment. No pretentious plans for pensions, nor all the social security measures devised by Governments will be effective without a solution of the employment problem," he said.

COLLECTION OF TAXES

Referring to the present method of collecting personal income taxes, Mr. Wilson expressed the opinion that the present eight months' lag in payments created a most serious difficulty so far as the individual taxpayer was concerned and could not be in the best interests of the country. He pointed out that at present the taxpayer was always eight months in arrears in his payments and that this extra tax liability could, under certain circumstances, become a very serious burden. He felt that a cancellation of taxes for the eight months involved would not necessarily result in any diminution of revenue to the State. It would only become necessary to retain the higher rate of taxation for a somewhat longer period, and at all times the Government would thus be collecting its taxes from current earnings and not on earnings of the preceding year. He also stressed that the Government would respond favourably to the many representations that were being made to it on this subject.

GENERAL MANAGER'S ADDRESS

In presenting the financial statement, Mr. Sydney G. Dobson, Vice-President and General Manager noted that the present high degree of business activity due to war was clearly reflected in the bank's statement and that under a number of headings substantial gains had been effected. Despite steady expansion in the bank's investments and loans, liquidity had been due in part to relatively low yields on the bank's heavy investments in government bonds and to increased deposits.

Because of the decrease in net income, the bank had found it necessary to increase the dividend rate of 8% to 8%. In this connection Mr. Dobson stated that during the past five years bank shareholders had had their dividends reduced more drastically than those in most other lines of business and that on the basis of today's earnings the rate of 8% was not in the average cost of the shares to the public over a period of years.

"Total assets are now $1,291,115,— 000 an all-time high in the history of the bank" said he increasing for the year of $216,496,185," said Mr. Dobson. "Our liquid position is naturally very strong, total liquid assets of $605,459,338 representing 75.44% of our total liability to the public.

Mr. Dobson also noted that deposits totalling $1,181,217,102 had increased by over $220,000,000 in the total $929,039,940 were in Canada.

COMMERCIAL LOANS

"Commercial Loans in Canada expanded during the year $13,360,558, and are now $255,148,601. Included in this amount are loans guaranteed by $42,971,183 to assist purchasers of Victory Bonds. As these are for a small total of such loans current at the end of the previous year, it will be seen that ordinary commercial loans are considerably lower as compared with a year ago. Considering the tremendous expansion in business activity throughout Canada, the situation is anomalous, but the explanation is that the expansion is largely in connection with war work. This is either financed directly by the Government, or, because of prompt settlement for the war contracts, the accounts, the manufacturer is able to finance without any, or any such with very moderate assistance. There has never been a period in the history of this bank—and I may say a similar situation applies in the other banks—when the ratio of commercial loans to deposits has been so low. The outlook in this respect is not encouraging, as unfortunately the tendency seems to be for the Government to extend its policy of directly financing industry engaged in war work.

The General Manager reported that, in conformity with the government's wish to conserve manpower, the bank had closed 39 offices. This, he said, did not mean lessening of business for the bank but rather a consolidation. It did, however, represent an inconvenience to some of the bank's customers but he felt that they would appreciate that the exigencies of war necessitated such steps.

MANY OF STAFF IN UNIFORM

"During the war period our staff in Canada has increased from 5,165 to 6,049, the new members being almost all young women. Our male staff is now reduced to 38 per cent. of the total and it is not uncommon to find that at a branch with 15 to 20 employees there are only 4 or 5 men. I cannot speak too highly of the manner in which these new members of our staff, many without any previous business experience, have carried on their duties, often under difficult conditions. Routine work has increased as a result of war activity. The handling of Victory Loan applications and the negotiation of coupons alone entail a great deal of additional work and the volume of cheques in circulation has grown considerably. Many of the young women recently engaged are called upon to assume responsibilities which under normal conditions would be performed by experienced men. This means that the senior officers, in addition to looking after their own duties, must devote much time to supervision and training.

"We are proud of the contribution made by our staff to the armed services. Since the outbreak of war we have granted leave of absence for military services to 1,676 men. Of this number, 1,702 enlisted from Canadian branches, and this is equivalent to well over half of the male staff under 45 years of age at the outbreak of war. I am sure I am voicing the feeling of the shareholders when I say that we wish a safe return to those men who are serving their country so patriotically.

"Unhappily there have been casualties. Sixty-four have given their lives, whose names are recorded in the printed proceedings. The following have given their lives in the service of Canada, their names are held in honour, and we pay tribute to their memory."

A Remarkable Feat

Single British Fighter Shot Down Three Japanese Bombers

Calcutta's anti-aircraft defences rang up a remarkable score recently when three Japanese medium bombers which attempted to raid the city, were shot down by a single British fighter—one of several sent aloft to intercept the raiders.

Credit for the remarkable feat, confirmed in a British communique, went to Flt. Sgt. Maurice Prieg, 21, of Birkhamstead, England, who already has three enemy planes to his credit

Prudence is a conformity to the rules of reason, truth, and decency, at all times and in all circumstances. John Mason.

The divine ruling gives prudence and energy; it banishes forever all envy, rivalry, evil thinking evil speaking, it gives to the mortal mind, thus purged, obtains peace and power outside of itself. Mary Baker Eddy.

The greatest good is prudence, a more precious thing even than philosophy; from it spring all the other virtues. -Epicurus.

Let prudence always attend your pleasures; it is the way to enjoy the sweets of them, and not be afraid of the consequences. -Jeremy Collier.

HEAVYWEIGHT SETTING

A big, lanky lad from the Tennessee hills got into a poker game with several British Tommies. The American soldier picked up his hand and found he held four aces. He waited for his turn to bet. The Englishman next to him said "One pound."

The big fellow from Tennessee peeked at his four aces again and drawled ...ow you boys count yo' money, but, I'll raise you'all one ton!"

REVISED THE SIGN

Signs in all coaches of the Pennsylvania Railroad explain the wartime shortage of railroad cars and coaches: "Do if you don't have a seat, we know you will understand." A passenger with a pencil and a sense of humor revised one of them. He cut out the "under" in "understand."

Acquire New Skill

Workmen Are Stepping Into Jobs In Wartime Industry

Canadian workmen, who in peace time acquired their skill in different trades, are now stepping into the breach to fill many essential jobs in war time industry. One of the most important, and gaining in prominence daily, is the wood working industry, that in pre-war days manufactured furniture and household goods

One of these plants, located in Kitchener, Ontario has completed their change over to war production and is now making aircraft parts, shifted in the process of fashioning plywood into the myriad objects of peacetime, the company at the outset of the war, found itself well equipped with skilled labor and management with which it was ingenuity added permitted them to enter the aircraft manufacturing field

Today, the plant is engaged in the fabrication of such aircraft parts as wing assembly tail assemblies, and fuselages. It also makes plywood seats for the new "Cornell" primary trainer.

Great Road Builders

British Know How Necessary They Are Especially In Wartime

Like the Romans, the British are great road builders, says W. L. Clark, in the Window Star. They appreciate the necessity of trunk transportation roads and railways, especially in war. In the Middle East the British have built 1,200 miles of railway linking up Tobruk with Egypt, Palestine, Syria and Iraq. Also, the British have been maintaining 1,000 miles of roads. They have been operating 20 different ports. All that is needed now is keeping the fighting forces in fighting trim

In the Niagara Rapids is a steel barge which nearly carried several workmen to their death over the great Niagara Falls. Breaking away from the tug which had it in tow more than 20 years ago, the barge was saved by a miracle stopped by a rock in the rapids. Show Revised Estimate Of The 1942 Wheat Crop

Ottawa. — The Dominion bureau of statistics today announced figures from its first estimate of Canadian wheat production of 1942 but still left the total the highest ever recorded—862,700,000 bushels.

The first estimate of the crop issued in September placed it at 815,— 200,000 bushels. This figure was out by 15,000,000 bushels in the second estimate made in November. The third estimate of 862,700,000 bushels compares with 315,800,000 bushels in 1941.

The bureau said all the latest reduction occurred in the prairie provinces where 1942 production now is estimated at 856,000,000 bushels.

It placed the grass value at the farm of all field crops produced in 1942 at $1,145,710,000, an increase of $461,580,000 over 1941. The grain crops, principally wheat, accounted for most of this increase.

An area of 69,868,300 acres was used in 1942 for production of the principal field crops, an increase of about 4,800,000 acres over the total in 1941.

The third estimate showed little change for the coarse grains production, also a record-making total in 1942.

Although the third estimate brought wheat production for 1942 under the 900,000,000-bushel mark, the bureau said the crop remained the largest on record, challenged only by the 567,— 000,000 bushels produced in 1928 and 540,000,000 in 1940.

Fall wheat production, mainly in Ontario, was estimated at 23,400,000 bushels or about 58 per cent. greater than in 1941.

The record-making wheat crop was produced on an area smaller than that in 1941 but growth was assisted by an ideal growing season.

The production of the oats crop was 652,000,000 bushels compared with 308,080,000 produced in 1941, and barley production was placed at 250,600,000 bushels compared with 113,000,000 in 1941. The rye crop of almost 36,000,000 bushels compared with about 12,000,000 in 1941 and flaxseed production in 1942 totalled 19,100,000 bushels, a large increase over the 1941 harvest of 5,800,000 bushels.

POINT RATIONING

This Plan May Be Adopted When Meat Rationing Starts

Ottawa —"Point rationing" some thing new for Canada—is in prospect if meat rationing becomes necessary, informed sources said. Meat rationing is believed to be a probability in the near future.

It must be remembered of the same time as meat is rationed, rationing becomes effective. United States point system would have to be adopted with other countries of the United Nations.

"Meat" means a variety of products including beef, pork and fowl. Under the point-rationing system proposed in the United States, each consumer is given a value of a certain number of points. The system is based of meats and is found to be more flexible. Different points have been allotted to each kind of meat.

From the standpoint of public good under the rationing system the buyer would make his selection, with the expectation of points as well as of money kept in mind.

Canadians probably will receive their new ration books during May, replacing those expiring March 6, during the last half of February and the first week in March.

PEAK PRODUCTION

Britain Plane Increased Output Of War Material This Year

London.—Capt. Oliver Lyttleton, production minister, told the House of Commons that 1942 would be the peak year of British war production and that the total labor force employed in munitions would considerably exceed the 1942 figure

Further concentration of industry, he said, would be carried out from less essential industries and a further mobilization of women would be required, he said.

The plan for 1943 provides for increased emphasis on the manufacture of ships, aircraft, anti-submarine devices, tanks and certain specialized types of army equipment, with the result that there will be transfers of labor within the munitions industries themselves, he said.

BUTTER SHORTAGE

Ration Cut By One-Third For The Next Six Weeks

Ottawa. — Canada's butter ration for the next six-week period has been cut by one-third to maintain the butter supply during the season of low production and to ensure equitable distribution, the prices board announced.

Instead of three pounds of butter, consumers will be entitled to buy only two pounds.

The prices board indicated the cut will be restored, if possible, in March.

It was estimated unofficially the saving in butter accomplished during the next six weeks will be about 8,000,000 pounds.

The reduction is accomplished by elimination of two of the six "space C" ration coupons which were to be used up to the end of February.

BECOMES BARONET

Sad Bereftest Of Callander, Ont., Does Not Wait This

Callander, Ont.— An 83-year-old resident of Callander was notified recently that he has succeeded to a hereditary baronetcy in England. He is Henry Felix Jervis-White-Jervis, and takes the title of Sir Henry on the death of his brother, Sir John Jervis-White-Jervis, who died at his home in England.

The new baronet has lived in Callander for 48 years. He says the title doesn't mean much to him and that he prefers to remain plain Mr. Jervis. The title was created in 1798 for an ancestor who served under Lord Nelson, as a reward for gallantry in action.

FINANCE PROBLEMS

Manitoba Premier Wants Implementation Of The Rirois Report

Winnipeg — Premier John Bracken said that implementation of the Rirois report would be necessary immediately after the war "if the present state of stringthening the personal prestige of responsible commanders. There have been instances of a marked increase in the personal authority of an officer, in accordance with his rank.

The words "officer" and "soldier" are heard increasingly. I have heard officers addressing soldiers as 'soldier'—reminded by officers addressing officers frequently use rank and title. In the old days the term was always "commander."

Though such things as these may sound trifling to westerners, they reflect a spirit common in one of the most important traditions of the Soviet Republic, a change which must be reflected in other relationships.

The Red army reorganization has had immediate effect on efficiency, especially in the use of equipment in various arms engaged in offensive operations.

New Red Army Made Possible Russian Drive

With the Red Army.— A gigantic reorganization of the Red army, started by Stalin six months ago and carried out in complete secrecy, made possible the Russian offensives now driving the Germans before them on a 1,200-mile front, it is now revealed.

Stalin, as premier and supreme commander of the armed forces, started the reorganization at the height of the German drive on Stalingrad.

Details of the reorganization are still secret but one fact is approved at the front: Col. Gen. Andrei I. Yeremenko, commander in chief on the Stalingrad front, is now above is only 50, and he is one of the oldest officers serving there.

A new lieutenant general is 36; most of the generals are in their early forties; staff officers are under 40 and most of them, up to the rank of colonel, are 30 and 35.

Far-reaching organizational changes have had profound psychological changes and transformed a defensive army into a powerful striking force which has military tradition, fanatical self-confidence and devotion to the Red army has the manpower, resources, brains and will to win the war.

Neither army seniority nor position with the Communist party entered into the selection of officers under the reorganization. Generals and hundreds of other men holding high commands were ousted from the men who had "proved their worth under the desperate conditions of last fall.

Abolition of the system, under which a political commissar accompanied every military unit, has given officers of strengthening the personal prestige of responsible commanders. There have been instances of a marked increase in the personal authority of an officer, in accordance with his rank.

RATIONED GOODS

Will Be Shipped To The North Country From Edmonton

Edmonton.—Officials of the Edmonton ration office of the prices board disclosed that a shipment of 29,950 pounds of rationed commodities will be shipped soon to the north country, where for the most part ration books are unknown.

The shipment will include 5,400 pounds of butter, 20,400 pounds of sugar, 2,600 pounds of coffee and 2,550 pounds of tea. The ration office has issued a special purchase permit for the supply and it will be sent to Catholic missions, boarding schools, trading posts and to Indians and Eskimos associated with these points in an area ranging north from Macmurray to the Arctic ocean.

The shipment will go first to Macmurray via from there will be divided and sent by dog team, plane, boat or sled to remote destinations.

Ration books are a novelty in the north country but the ration is well-known. Traders and other retailers in remote areas who secure supplies in large quantity act as unofficial local ration officers, doling out the restricted commodities within ration limits to customers.

LABOR FORUM

A New Executive Committee To Be Set Up

Ottawa.—A tentative agreement that the National Labor Forum would be reorganized and carried on as a joint undertaking of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the Workers Educational Association, the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and the Canadian Congress of Labor was reached at a meeting of the executive of the National Labor Forum.

A new executive committee, on which the two labor congresses will be represented, is to be set up. The CBC also will be represented and two other members will be appointed by the representatives of the four organizations involved.

Consideration is to be given to appointment of a general secretary to supervise the broadcasts, both in conjunction with the member bodies of the forum.

National Labor Forum is broadcast every Wednesday over the national network of the CBC.

Drummond Wren, general secretary of the Workers Educational Association, said in a statement two weeks ago the association decided to withdraw from the National Labor Forum program because of changes he said had been made in script material submitted by the association.

The CBC then announced the executive committee of the forum would meet CBC officials in Ottawa to discuss the withdrawal and also to consider plans for strengthening the organization and obtaining more effective liaison with organized labor.

CHILE LINES UP

Sees American Country Has Quite A Stable Navy

Ottawa.—Dr. Eduardo Grove, Chilean minister to Canada, expressed his "profound satisfaction and pride" that his country had decided to break off diplomatic and consular relations with the Axis powers, and said Chile's action "practically means a state of war."

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, advised of Chile's decision said in a message to the minister that the Canadian government knows it "will strengthen the bonds of friendship and understanding which unite the two northernmost democracies of the Americas."

Dr. Grove said he expects his country will begin to convoy its ships carrying supplies to ports on the Gulf of Mexico. If they come across an enemy U-boat, he said, he does not think Chilean ships "ill hesitate to engage them, even if war had not been actually declared.

The Chilean navy, Dr. Grove said, is "quite an effective one," with a 22,000-ton battleship, two cruisers, 12 destroyers, and seven submarines.

Importance Of National Health Is Pointed Out

Ottawa.—Importance of maintaining the health of the civilian population as well as that of the armed forces was stressed at a meeting of some 50 medical men, from all parts of Canada, representing the Canadian medical procurement and assignment board and its advisory committee.

Sitting in with the doctors for the opening of the conference were Defence Minister Ralston Air Minister Power, Labor Minister Mitchell and Pensions Minister Mackenzie

"The armed services just can't take everything," said Col. Ralston. "We must remember and take care of the civilian population. It is important that we have a healthy nation. In your work you will survey the whole health phase of national life."

The procurement and assignment board's function is to arrange the selection of medical men for the armed forces so as to interfere as little as possible with civilian medical services and to make sure enough physicians are available where they are needed either for service personnel or for civilians.

The board appointed 12 field secretaries to work with its divisional medical committees. They included Sqdn. Ldr. I. M. Cleghorn, M.D. No. 10, Winnipeg; Maj. W. A. Clarke, M.D. No. 11, Vancouver; Flt. Lt. R. B Stewart, M.D No. 12, Regina, and Sqdn. Ldr. R. M. C. Clare, M.D. No. 13, Calgary.

A New System For Selection Of Army Officers

Ottawa The defence department announced a new system for selection and development of potential officers for the Canadian army, based on study and report study of each candidate.

To carry out the plan, officers' selection centres will be set up in eastern and western Canada. The announcement said that Brig. W. W. Foster, D.S.O., has been named M.D. 1 district No. 6 at Halifax, will be chairman of one of the eastern centres.

Chairman of the western board has not yet been appointed.

Defence headquarters said any soldier who thinks he has officer qualities can apply to his superior officer for permission to be sent to one of the centres. From there, through the normal channels, officers and commanding officers will be informed if he is found fit for officer training. Some candidates will be notified if have to report for the centres to write examinations.

The new system is being put in force immediately, Brig. Howard Kennedy, deputy adjutant general at defence headquarters, announced. Under the new plan, he said, the responsibility for selection of officers will be placed squarely on the shoulders of the commanding officers of active units or of advanced or basic training centres. The commanding officers of reserve units or the officers commanding Canadian officers' training corps in the universities.

At the officers' selection centres candidates who have been recommended or have applied for commissions can meet a selection board Both the candidate and the army will have the benefit of experience of the board members in connection with the task of selecting men to qualify later as army officers.

The selection boards will be presided over by senior officers of wide military experience. Other board members will be officers representative of all branches of the service, having a knowledge in the requirements of their particular branch or service.

WILDMERE WINKS

The weather has warmed up a bit these last couple of days. This is very welcome after our ten days of cold, cold weather.

In Morrison news last week we noticed that the people had bought $1 war savings stamps being a total of $73 worth. We think our school has done equally as well. There are 7 people out of 8 buying stamps and they have bought 67 stamps totalling $21.75. Three have certificates completed and a second one started. We think that's very good with so few people, and their teacher Mrs. Wilson is proud of them.

Mrs Walter Alexander of Battleview came home from the hospital on Tuesday with the mailman. Other pass-engers were Wm Findlay and Herman Watson.

Mrs. Chas. Morand and some of her family called at Smith's on Saturday afternoon.

Don't forget our B.W.R. club meeting at the school on Feb. 5. Everybody welcome.

OBITUARY

MRS. ELIZABETH ANN THOMSON

The funeral service of Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Thomson, whose sudden death occurred on Monday, January 19, at the age of 57 years, was held at St. Saviour's Anglican church on Friday afternoon, January 23. The Ven. Archdeacon Loverseige conducted the service and in spite of the severe weather a number of friends gathered to show their respect and high esteem for the one who had been a valued neighbor. A number were present from the Streamstown district, the former home of the deceased.

Mrs. Thomson was born at Lumby, Yorkshire, England, in 1885 and came to Canada in May of 1915. She was married to Mr. Thomson at Lloydminster and lived on the farm at Peebam, near Streamstown. Here the family resided until three years ago when they moved to Vermilion where Mrs Thomson ran a successful boarding house. She was highly respected for her genial and straight-forward manner. Her sudden death came as a great shock to the community.

Left to mourn her loss are three daughters, Dorothy (Mrs. C. Cooke) of Streamstown, Isabel (Mrs A. Dellbeck) of Camrose, and Miss Effie who is teaching south of Lloydminster. There is one grandson, Leslie Bellbeck.

The deceased was laid to rest in the Lloydminster cemetery in the family plot beside the body of her husband who predeceased her in 1936.

Pall-bearers were M. Hill, E. M. Stewart, L. Tyner, C. Bellbeck, J McCaskell and C. Laverty.

Beautiful floral tributes were received from Effie, Dorothy and Isabel, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie; Marjorie, Irene, Jean, Bill and Jack; Mr. and Mrs. J Wesner and Mr. Ostry; Lloydminster and family; John Leighton and family.

J. Waring had charge of all arrangements.

MRS. W. C. HARRIS

The funeral of the late Mrs. W.C. Harris was held on Thursday afternoon, January 21 at the Christian Alliance church, when in spite of the most severe weather a goodly number of friends gathered to show respect for their departed friend and sympathy for the family. The Rev. Mr. Anderson conducted the service and gave a most interesting address on the subject of a better life. The lesson was read by Lieut. Smith of the Salvation Army and Mrs. Anderson played appropriate music at intervals on the organ. Mrs. McLennan sang as a solo the beautiful hymn, "There Were 90 and 9". Interment took place in the Vermilion cemetery.

Mrs. Harris was born at Dorchester Ont., and came to Vermilion in 1921 Surviving members of the family are her sorrowing husband, three daughters, Mrs. W. A. Harris and Miss Grace at home, and Miss Cora of Three Hills, Alta., and two sons Norman and Wesley, both at home. There are also three grandchildren. Five brothers and two sisters.

Pall-bearers were G.H. Shields, Wilford McLennan, Melvin Hill, M. G. Dimsmeade and C.A. Thomas.

Beautiful floral tributes were received from Husband, Family and Grandchildren, the Congregation of the Alliance Chapel, Mr. and Mrs. A McLennan, John and Jessie Mein

VERMILION BOYS GET-TOGETHER AT LONDON, Ont.

January 18, 1942.

Vermilion Standard.
Dear Editor:

Just a short note to let you know that we are receiving your paper quite regularly and enjoy reading the local news of the old home town.

Quite a Vermilion reunion took place on Saturday night in the Y.M. C.A. at London, Ontario, when Dave Lowe, George Levy, B. O. Sutton, Alf Purser, and the writer met accidentally. We sure had a lot to talk about and decided that Canada was not so big after all.

Alf and I have just finished reading the news in your paper dated Jan. 7, 1942, so you can see we are not so far out of date even if we are quite a distance from Vermilion.

All of the fellows I have seen from Vermilion so far, including Bob Dacey who is only twelve miles from here, seem to be looking very well, so I guess "Westerners" can be climatized after all.

Yours truly,
Clarence S. Anderson.

VERMILION BOARD OF TRADE HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

Ashley H. Cooper Elected President for 1943

Ashley H. Cooper was elected president of the Vermilion Board of Trade at a well attended meeting of that body in the Elks hall on Wednesday. The complete slate of officers for this important organization consists of:

Hon. President — His Worship Mayor Morrison
Immediate Past President—Gerald F. Stephens
President — Ashley Cooper
Vice-President—James D. Adam
Sec.-Treas.—F. J. Richardson
Executive—Arthur K. Butler, Geo. Maxwell, J. L. Mitchell, W. P. Pilkie, A. M. West; Rural members, W. L. Robinson (west), Art Monaghan (east).

Various committees have been appointed as follows, the first named being chairman in each case:

Agriculture—E. H. Buckingham, C. L. Whitley, D. A. Mellroy
Retail—Gerald Stephens, J. Wesner, Carman Long
Ways & Means—A. M. West, Thos. Ward, A. K. Butler
Roads — George Maxwell, E. M. Stewart, Don Logan
Oil & Gas — L. L. Wilson, M. Hill, A. E. Kaiser
Entertainment—W.P. Pilkie, Ashley Cooper, J. W. G. Morrison.

The financial statement showed a larger balance than for several years, namely the sum of $41 on hand. 77 business men and farmers were members for 1942, exactly the same number as in 1941.

The retiring president, Mr. Stephens gave a resume of the year's work, showing the numerous projects which had engaged the attention of the members of the board for 1942. As this is quite an enlightening and informative article it will appear in full in the next issue, and the Standard recommends it for the perusal of everyone, especially those not in touch with Board activities.

Following his talk Mr. Stephens called on the newly elected president, Mr. Ashley Cooper, to take the chair. Mr. Cooper acknowledged his election and stated that he regarded it as somewhat of an honor to be the president of this body, as the board of trade had, in his opinion been a potent factor in the life and development of Vermilion ever since its earliest days. You could go back to 1909 and find a board of trade functioning at that early date under the leadership of Mr. A. C. Brown, a predecessor of Mr. West Brown.

The new president went on to say that those who follow the 32 year ago and 16 year ago notes in the Standard, will recall reading of practical results of the Board from time to time. For instance in 1910 we note that 10,000 eight page pamphlets were printed and sent to many parts of Canada and the United States, setting forth the business and farming opportunities of this town and district in an effort to bring in settlers; early in 1911 the Board was actively forwarded by the claims of Vermilion as the site of one of the agricultural colleges of the province. "The fact that the school since has been one of the communities great assets indicates that Vermilion had an energetic and convincing board at that time" said Mr. Cooper, "thus we could trace the activities of this organization from those early days in the town's history, to the very creditable resume for 1942 just given by our immediate past president."

"For the past ten years we have held the weekly luncheon meetings, and I am firmly of the opinion that this is the best plan to secure the most timely and continuous efforts."

The new president went on to state, "it is my opinion that active boards of trade will play an important part in the rehabilitation period following the war and I think that wide-awake communities will derive great benefits from that period. Immediately before us we have the prospect of the development of our oil field on a gigantic scale. Development that by one company alone, entails the spending of nearly a million dollars in our community. It does not need a statesman to foresee that any addi-l growth or greater prosperity Vermilion might enjoy, will be engendered by the development of our oil field.

In the matter of attendance at the weekly luncheon meetings, as you know we are shortly to move to a new meeting place at George's. We have committed ourselves to paying for 70 meals which is an increase of five over our present guarantee and this demands a larger and a steadier attendance than we have been getting. No business man should begrudge spending an hour or so each week considering the problems, welfare and prosperity of the town from which he derives a very comfortable living for himself and his family."

He closed his address with an appeal to every business man to actively support the board of trade in the measures they have planned.

New limitations have been set on the sale of hard liquor to 40 ounces per calendar week, 1 gallon of wine per month or one 26 ounce bottle per week and two dozen small bottles of beer per week

MERGER OF MUNICIPAL DIST. POSTPONED FOR YEAR

Announcement Made Friday

Reeve Norman McClellan of Vermilion Valley informed a small gathering of the Boston cafe on Friday evening that the proposed merger of municipal districts in this area would not be carried out this year. Official word to that effect had been received from the department only that day. The plan called for the formation of two enlarged units in the territory between here and Lloydminster where six municipal districts are now operating.

Peculiarly enough the dinner at which the announcement was made had been planned as a farewell gathering, following what the members thought would be their last meeting as the council of Vermilion Valley No. 15.

Present were Mayor J. W. G. Morrison, C. L. Whitby of the Bank of Montreal, Ashley Cooper of the Standard and president of the Board of Trade, as well as the personnel of the Vermilion Valley council, Reeve Norman McClellan, Secretary H. W. Brown, George Shepherd, Harry Gerson, Roy Kent, Dave McPhee and Arthur Lord.

MAYOR J. W. G. MORRISON ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION

Election for Town Council—Insufficient Nominees to Fill Vacancies on School Board.

ELECTION DAY MONDAY

J.W.G. Morrison, K.C., began his 12th year as Mayor of Vermilion when he was elected by acclamation on Monday, nomination day. Mr. Morrison served as Mayor from 1919 to 1925 and again for 1931 and 1932, the current year his 11th. In addition to this he served as chairman of the school board from 1925 to 1931, and in 1936 he was a member of the council. Altogether this makes a very impressive record, especially so when many local men seem to hesitate at giving any time at all to the administration of town affairs.

Vacancy Remains on School Board

For the first time in the town's history there were insufficient candidates nominated to fill the vacancies on the school board. There were two openings on the school board and only one candidate. John Reid, was nominated. Mr. Reid is thus elected by acclamation. Another nomination day will be set and if necessary an election held within thirty days to elect the remaining trustee.

Chairman Tom Taylor and trustee Leigh Tyner whose terms expired, did not stand for re-election.

Election For Council

Electors of Vermilion will go to the polls on Monday however as there were three candidates for the two positions open on the town council. Nomination papers were filed for R.B. Spencer who is seeking re-election James J. Furt, public school janitor, and R.A. McIvor of Long's drug store staff. Both Mr. Furt and Mr. McIvor are new to municipal politics. Election day is on Monday and everyone is urged to turn out and vote. See the notice for details elsewhere in this issue

Class Encounter Throughout

Vermilion Bombers lost out by the odd goal in three in a rousing game of hockey at the arena on Saturday night last. Although it was a mild evening and perfect for watching hockey only a small crowd of a hare hundred was on hand. This was too bad for the hockey boys and also for the many fans who missed a real entertainment.

Everyone should be on hand this Saturday night at 8.30 when the Bombers play hosts to the Kitscoty team, bout one of the classiest small town aggregations in Alberta.

Vermilion scored first against the Border town, breaking the ice in the second period when Vern Davis flipped over a pass to Spangy Spencer and that worthy potted the rubber with a neat shot. However the lead was overcome early in the third when the Prairie turned on considerable heat and Lard, the six foot mountie, scored from a mix up close to the goal mouth. Not long then accessed Beck and forth but Laird of the visitors broke the deadlock when he skated down from his defence position and slipped a shot one into the town goal giving the Lloydminster boys a 2-1 victory

The game was fast and clean but was marred when Joe Gallacher, Lloydminster defence man, fell into the boards when making a rush in Vermilion territory. He suffered ten fractures in his right shoulder and arm and had to be taken to the hospital for medical attention. This mishap will probably keep him out of hockey for the rest of the season.

Two of the local players, Bill Rosen and Chap Cooper were making their final appearance with the Bombers as Chap has reported to the R.C.A.F. while Bill is holidaying until Feb 16 when he reports to the navy for train ing.

Stan Waldenberger handled the game in a very satisfactory manner.

The Beveridge Report

IT HAS BEEN APPARENT in recent weeks that the Beveridge Report on Social Insurance and Allied Services, recently presented to the British people has captured public interest to a remarkable extent. During the past three years the war has been the principal subject of news and discussion, but since the publication of the Beveridge Report a great deal of attention has been focused upon it. Sir William Beveridge, the 63 year-old author of the report is a brilliant British economist, who has long made a study of social conditions in his country. During the last war he was in charge of food distribution and was later knighted for his services in this connection. He is Master of University College, Oxford, but is now on loan to the British Government for special war work, and it is said that he has taken a larger part in Britain's national war effort than anyone outside of the war cabinet. In 1934, Sir William visited Canada, when he attended meetings at Toronto of the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

* * * * *

Wide Interest Is Aroused

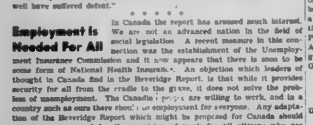
The report is an extensive one, and its contents are now familiar to most people. Many of its points are debatable and it is not expected that it would be adopted in Britain in its entirety. However, it has aroused great interest there, and in many other parts of the world, and the keenest interest is that some security from want of that nature is widely favored. "Freedom from want" is one of the points recorded in the Atlantic Charter, as a war aim of the United Nations, and it is clear that the people expect this aim to be realized. The Manchester Guardian, voicing one section of British opinion, says of the report: "If we do not get something like this plan for social security into being before the war is over, the official consequences will be serious. Instead of victory we may well have suffered defeat."

* * * * *

Employment is Needed For All

In Canada the report has aroused much interest. We are not an advanced nation in the field of social legislation. A recent measure in this connection was the establishment of the Unemployment Insurance Commission and it now appears that there is soon to be some form of National Health Insurance. An objection which leaders of thought in Canada find in the Beveridge Report, is that while it provides security for all from the cradle to the grave, it does not solve the problem of unemployment. The Canadian people are willing to work, and in a country such as ours there should be employment for everyone. Any adaptation of the Beveridge Report which may be proposed for Canada should carry some proposal for the provision of work for all citizens who are employable. However, Sir William Beveridge's statement that there should be bread for everyone before anyone has cake, is soundly humanitarian and it will continue to receive the consideration of thoughtful people everywhere.

Relished Riboflavin



Riboflavin is one of those magic words we hear so much these days, whenever the question of proper nutrition is discussed. This name is given to a part of the vitamin B complex and is present in milk, eggs meat (especially liver) and green leaf vegetables.

It is an interesting vitamin in that the more you take, the more good it does. Most vitamins are needed in certain amounts by the body and any great excess is probably not made use of. Miss Dorise Berry nutritionist at the Ontario Dental College quotes Dr. Sherman leading U.S authority as saying that the more riboflavin one takes, the higher the level of general health will be and the longer people will live. He says that the prime of life be extended and the signs of old age appear later if an optimum amount of riboflavin is taken, and there is a "feeling of well-being and buoyant good health," which is not the same as average good health.

A low level of riboflavin will cause the opposite, earlier signs of old age, a shorter prime of life, a lower level of general health and, if prolonged will cause a definite disease known by the formidable name of ariboflavinosis. This is characterized by a cracking of the eyes, cracking at the mouth corners, digestive disturbances and poor skin condition. These conditions are very common, especially among office workers who drink too little milk.

Without milk it is difficult to get the optimum amount of riboflavin. The average requirement for adults is about 2.2 mgm., though larger amounts will contribute towards better health.

Food Sources Of Riboflavin	mgm.	Lesser Sources Of Riboflavin	mgm.
1 cup milk, whole	0.531	1 serving cheese	0.121
1 cup skim milk	0.495	1 egg	0.159
1 cup evap milk dil.	0.430	4 slices bacon	0.082
1 serving liver	2.660	1 serving beef	0.101
½ cup cubed kidney	1.900	½ cup cabbage	0.043

		1 apple	0.028

Have Clever Scheme

German Military Council Hopes To Win Time, Says Moscow

The military junta in Germany feels that if Nazi economic difficulties continue and deepen, the only solution will be for officers to seize control and proclaim a program for possible co-operation with the United Nations, reliable sources quoted a German State official as saying.

These sources said the officers are quietly and carefully watching developments, and making no predictions as to when the time for such a step might come. They are pictured as being convinced the German people are well look to them for action as a last hope once a military reverse makes the hopelessness of the situation crystal clear to every one despite propaganda camouflage.

Reports of such groups of revolutionaries hoping to save the situation when chaos appears imminent—although perhaps Axis-inspired in order to observe the Allied reaction to a persistently received Berlin and Stockholm, which is a blabbing pest for both the Allies and the Axis.

All reports mention Field Marshal Gen. Wilhelm Keitel as a main factor among the higher officers in any such move.

This report said the junta has this time-limit period in mind as the only possible basis for an understanding with the United Nations:

Beyond the Czar of regime; a return to the old frontier and concentration of a defensive line against Russia; a return of occupied territory to civilian administrations formed of nationals in the respective countries; removal of all measures against Jews; proclamation that Germany has no territorial claims beyond the frontiers of the old Reich; a plebiscite for Austria; a proclamation that Germany considers a strong Poland necessary, a support of the Atlantic charter principle, and lastly, granting of two African colonies to Germany.

Decided By Chance

Defence Of Malta Was Not Included In Original Plans

One of the chance events which alter the course of war was recounted by Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur M. Longmore in an interview with The Canadian Press at Ottawa.

It was the shooting down of a few of the first Italian bombers which raided Malta and it gave the morale of the Maltese population such a lift that they have been splendid fighters ever since, despite all the punishment inflicted on them by the German and Italian air forces.

Sir Arthur was air officer commanding in chief in the Middle East at the time and Malta was in his territory. There were no fighter squadrons stationed in Malta when Italy entered the war. Because of the island's proximity to Sicily it was not then considered possible to defend it.

A small air force headquarters there was on the point of withdrawing and when the Italians came none of the pilots decided to leave a crate at them when they found a Spitfire Gladiator planes crated for shipment. The planes belonged to the navy and were to be shipped away. They were got into the air and a few bombers were shot down.

Soon after that it was decided to make a fetish for Malta and from his always sent supplies of aircraft in the Middle East for Arthur used to planes. More and more were sent as they became available.

The Air Chief Marshal, now retired, came to Canada to attend the recent meeting of the Institute of Pacific Relations and has since been making a tour of training stations in Canada.

From the German point of view it is still the "Terrible Turk". Asians simply will not play the international game according to the rules made in Berlin. The Turks follow the regulations subscribed to by the Germans and when they are applied to the deliveries of chromium promised by the Turks as far back as 1941 the Germans are chagrined. Hitler's boys are peeved because they can't pull another fast one.

It all came about because of Turkey's neutrality policy—a policy sequence by the Allies. For the first three years of the war Turkey was in a precarious position. Bordered by the Germans, popular and governmental, was unmistakably pro-Allied, but the army's weapons were a cheerful state. There was no support in the Near East and the Germans were threatening through the Balkans. Turkey was the buffer for the Near East and so the Allied governments advised the granting of concessions to maintain neutrality.

One was Papen, Hitler's personal intriguer, had worked on Ankara without result for months. Finally the notorious Dr. Karl Clodius who had negotiated trade pacts which undermined the Balkan countries, arrived at Ankara. Much cajoling and threatening produced the Turkish-German trade pact, which called for the delivery of 500 tons of chromium—vital as a steel alloy—to Germany in 1942 and an equal quantity in 1944. Germany needs the ore desperately.

The treaty has now come into effect. Turkey is ready to start delivery of the ore, but—and this is the catch—not until Berlin sets down for Turkey the machinery and armaments that were agreed on in exchange. Ordinarily a German trade pact means that the unwitting party of the second part will take payment in reichsmarks spendable only in Germany for such commodities as Germany can spare like aspirin, typewriters, and nose glasses. None of late for the Turks. They would have what they ordered in hand before a ton of chromium leaves Turkey.

The next few weeks will tell the story. Germany hasn't much armament to spare. The Turks can afford to stick to the rules now for the whole complexion of defence in the Mediterranean, the Near East and the neighboring Caucasus has changed. Moreover, also to the annoyance of the Germans, Turkey has patched up her differences with Russia, thanks to Anglo-American intervention. So, from the vantage of Berlin, it is still the "Terrible Turk."

Natives Taught To Read

International Committee On Christian Literature Helping British In Africa

The contribution the International Committee on Christian Literature for Africa is making toward the British Government's program in teaching adult natives to read English was described in Toronto by the secretary, Miss Margaret Wrong, recently arrived from the headquarters in London.

"Information potato," she said, "are set up by the British in all parts of the continent. Migoris had about 50 of these when I was last there. We were requested by an official to supply these potato with our Christian literature, even though the majority of the population is Moslem." Literature is also sent to natives in the African regiments and labor corps who are being educated by the British and need something to read, added Miss Wrong.

Gems Of Thought

MERCY

Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy.—Matthew 5:7.

As freely as the firmament embraces the world, or the sun pours forth impartially his beams, so mercy must encircle both friend and foe.—Schiller.

We cannot, indeed, give like God, but surely we may forgive like Him. —Sterne.

All people can and should be just, merciful: they should never envy, elbow, slander, hate, or try to injure, but always should try to bless their fellow-mortals.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Mercy among the virtues is like the moon among the stars,—not so sparkling and vivid as many, but dispensing a calm radiance that hallows the whole.—Chapin.

For Mercy, Courage, Kindness, Mirth, There is no measure upon earth; Nay, they wither, root and stem, If an end be set to them.

Building Cargo Subs

Germany Plans To Get Raw Materials From Far East

Reliable informants say that Germany is building a fleet of the world's largest submarines as cargo carriers in an effort to establish shipping contact with Japan and obtain raw materials from the Far East.

The first six, displacing 2,500 tons, will be completed within a few months, these sources said.

The informant said Allied patrols had long been watching Kerguelen Island, the southernmost part of the Indian Ocean, which is believed to be one meeting place of Japanese and German ships.

Plan Post-War National System Of Insurance

Ottawa.—To make freedom from fear and want "the assured possession of all," the government proposes "a comprehensive national scheme of social insurance," it was announced in the speech from the throne read at the opening of parliament.

The speech said it is proposed to work out post-war security plans "at once" and that they will "constitute a charter of social security for the whole of Canada."

For this purpose, the government will recommend the early appointment of a select committee "to examine and report on the most practical measures for the co-ordination and the steps which will be required to ensure their inclusion in a national plan."

Emphasis upon the necessity of guarding against major economic and social hazards in the future was the end of hostilities was the first mention of the speech read by the Earl of Athlone, governor-general of Canada.

The objective will be to ensure "adequate incomes for primary producers and full employment after the war." A national system of health insurance is also proposed.

Other measures promised in the speech include:

1. Provision for appointment of parliamentary assistants to those ministers whose duties are particularly onerous because of war's demands;

2. A bill for redistribution of representation in the House of Commons.

3. Further development of the method of payment of the personal income tax "in the year in which income is received."

4. A measure to provide establishment of a "Canadian war supplies allocation board" to provide for the financing and allocation of Canadian war production for the United Nations.

5. Increased responsibilities to be assumed for the maintenance of Canada's airmen and Canadian air squadrons abroad.

The speech said appointment of a joint committee representatives of the agriculture departments of Canada and U.S. has been agreed upon to coordinate food production for the United Nations.

WAR PLANTS

Committee Advises They Be Protected From Air Attack

Ottawa Immediate consideration of protection of Canadian plants from air attack was urged in the report of a sub-committee on ammunition, chemicals, explosives and tank production tabled in the House of Commons.

The report of the sub-committee, a unit of the board committee on war expenditures said "The present position is better than ever it was, but your committee feels that greater protection should be given to certain material war industries in strategic areas.

"Your committee further feels that smoke screen generators are an effective protection for war plants and recommends that they be installed where deemed necessary."

MEN FOR FARMS

U.P.A. Suggests Italian Prisoners Could Be Brought From Africa

Calgary.—Italians, held prisoners of war in Africa, will be brought to Canada to work on farms, if the federal government accepts a suggestion contained in a resolution passed by the board of directors of United farmers of Alberta at its annual meeting.

The resolution stated there were 300,000 Italians held prisoners in Africa and it suggested that the United Nations agree to arrangements whereby a number of these prisoners would be given the opportunity of volunteering for work on Canadian farms.

Another resolution on debt legislation asked reconsideration by the federal government of the "Manning mortgage legislation" which was postponed at the outbreak of the present war. In absence of such legislation, the U.F.A. recommends that the farm debt structure be placed on the basis of 60 per cent. of present valuation and interest be limited to a maximum of three per cent.

BRITISH SUBMARINES

Hull Shipments Going From Italy To Tunisia

London.—A 6,000-ton Italian merchant ship loaded with motor transport has been sunk by a British submarine en route to Tunisia from Italy, Reuters news agency reported in a despatch from Allied headquarters.

The same submarine sank a schooner near Sardinia and a 2,000-ton trawler. Since November, the despatch said, this submarine has accounted for eight enemy ships—two destroyers, two schooners, a trawler and three merchant ships of 6,000, 5,000, and 1,700 tons respectively.

Other submarines torpedoed a 7,000-ton ship and a large merchant vessel in the Gulf of Genoa.

FOOD STANDARDS

Take Measures To Guard Against Deterioration Of Quality

Ottawa.—Wartime price and trade board authorities are taking measures to guard against deterioration in the quality of the goods bought in stores.

Chairman Donald Gordon announced that a standard section of the supply division of the board has been formed, and its job will be to see that quality is maintained.

Gordon said that on the whole Canadian manufacturers have tried to maintain their standards of quality and workmanship, but he said also that wartime shortages are making variations unavoidable.

Japs Reported To Have Made Futile Attack On Chinese

Chungking An official charge that the Japanese army is using poison gas, the first since Britain and U.S. threatened to retaliate if earlier attacks were repeated, was made by the Chinese high command.

Its communique said gas was used in a British Hatch on Chinese positions northwest of Hungtung, in southern Shansi province, Jan. 6.

"They used poison gas, but several hundred of their own men lost their lives as the wind suddenly turned toward their own positions," the communique said

Butter Situation May Require To Be Adjusted

Calgary.—"There are a few concerns in Canada holding large stocks of butter, out of all proportion to the rest of the firms in the business and it will be necessary for the government to take those supplies and place them where they are most needed," F. S. Grisdale, acting foods administrator, told delegates to the convention of the Dairy Farmers of Canada.

Formerly minister of agriculture in Alberta and for some time deputy food administrator, Mr. Grisdale reviewed the work of the foods corporation of the wartime prices and trade board as related to the problem of 60 per cent. of present valuation and interest be limited to a maximum of three per cent.

BRITAIN'S FOOD

Science Has Played An Important Part In Progress

London.—Determing factor in Britain's wartime food program has been the individual's need and not his capacity to pay

Lord Woolton emphasized in an interview that his primary job during 3½ years as food minister has been to provide Britain's workers with sufficient and the right food to keep them fit.

He believes he has been successful.

"People in both classes of society have gained in health," he said "The wealthy now eat less and are better for it; the poorer classes are eating more, with the same beneficial result."

Science has played an important part in the war of food

The second American on the trip was Co-pilot Jack Ruggles of San Francisco. Ruggles and Vanderkloot now make their home in Montreal.

Expansion Of Naval And Air Force Expected

Ottawa.—In a year which promises to see all Canadian forces in action against the enemy on an increasing scale, the Canadian army may not experience further expansion.

For the first time since the war started parliament may pass through its weeks without an official announcement of a program for enlarging the land forces.

"The army program will include the maintenance and reinforcement of the overseas army of two corps and the maintenance of units and formations required for the territorial and coastal defence of Canada and other areas in the western hemisphere." said the speech from the throne

But continued expansion of the naval and air forces is forecast for 1943 in the speech, which said "The progressive expansion of the navy will be continued." and "The air force will continue its three-fold activities of air training patrolling our coasts and coastal waters and sharing in aerial combat overseas."

Continued training under the Combined (Air) Training Organization in Canada means an expanding Canadian Air Force announced since Canada furnishes 50 per cent. of the recruits for the combined training organization.

The speech also forecast Canada will assume increased responsibilities for the maintenance of Canadian airmen and Canadian squadrons serving abroad."

Steps taken to mean a continuance of the policy of "Canadianizing" R.A.F. establishments overseas by grouping Canadians together in squadrons and then in higher formations.

Owing to limited manpower, it was forecast expansion of the army would stop at the point where authorities considered the available men no longer than sufficient to maintain existing formations, provide for expansion of the navy and air force, and maintain the continuous flow of supplies from Canadian industry and agriculture.

While the army may not add more divisions, however, its manpower needs will not cease. Replacements are needed constantly and the provision of these is part of the job of maintenance and reinforcement set down in the 1943 program.

Stalin Is Handed Joint Note On Historic Meeting

Moscow W Lacy Baggallay, British chage d'affaires, and Admiral William H. Standley, United States ambassador called at the Kremlin, and handed Premier Stalin a joint note from Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt

Admiral Standley refused to discuss what was in the note but it was learned it related to military plans.

At the same time the radio was telling the Russian people of the Casablanca conference

The conference with Stalin lasted half an hour Questioned afterward as to whether the Soviet leader seemed pleased with the note, Standley said "He's a placid man. He doesn't get excited easily."

But he said Stalin seemed overjoyed at the news from Stalingrad and about the success of the Red army over the encircled Germans

Asked if Stalin seemed more pleased over the news than over the note Standley laughed guardedly and replied "Well, it is hard to say about him. He doesn't get very excited you know."

Asked if he could discuss whether the conference of the group formed a supreme Allied command which would include the Soviet Union and China Standley said he personally knew nothing about such a project and personally did not think it would work

"When you begin talking about general staff conducting wars which are taking place all over the world," he continued, it is difficult for me to conceive of a staff which could assimilate and make the decisions covering all phases."

Former chief of United States naval operations himself, Standley said "I think things as they are now come about as near as they can to maximum of assigning areas of responsibility."

Inoculation for Diphtheria

Warning to parents that diphtheria is spreading in Alberta this winter was sounded by Dr. A. Somerville, provincial inspector of communicable diseases. He urged every rural family to have every child inoculated against the disease. Initial inoculation and re-inoculation wears off after five years, said Dr. Somerville, and a single treatment will ensure immunity. He declared that more adults are being infected every year and all should take preventive measures.

KING EDWARD NOTES

A very jolly evening was spent in the King Edward school on Friday, 29th, when the A.P.U. (King Edward Branch) held their annual dance. A fine program of old and modern dances was put into effect by that genial M.C., Geo. F. Taylor. Music was supplied by the Lakeview Boys, (Andrew and Jim) assisted by Chas. Mullan on the banjo mandolin. A nifty lunch was served by the ladies of the district. Everyone was highly pleased which means there will be another dance very shortly.

Our best thanks are due to Mr. Charles Thompson of Ruzyvin for his efforts in having our main road to town cleared of snow-we wonder who he had in mind, the stork or the motorist?

The kangaroo did not remain for long in Vermilion — Ralf Edwards hired Roy and Hillie to forward the kangaroo to appear on the program, "Truth or Consequences". Any of our readers who listen in on the radio to the program may have heard it in a boxing bout. As soon as the animal returns it will be shown in the hall here and will give a boxing exhibition.

Bottlemen and many who are not known will remember Robert Burns Scotland's famous poet's anniversary this week on January 25th.

Hugh Acheson, who is serving overseas, has, we regret to state, been very ill. The latest report is that he is recovering and will soon be as well as ever. His many friends will wish him a speedy recovery.

"Nancy" writes us to ask "Why do we write for the Standard?" The best answer we can give is — The worst kind of a miser is a learned man who does not write at all.

In a letter just received from Trooper Kevin McDaniel who is serving overseas, is a request to thank the citizens of Vermilion and district for parcel received by him at Christmas. He states he was delighted to get it. We sincerely thank the citizens of Vermilion and district and also wish to thank Mr. W. H. Scott.

You have all heard the proverb — "You can't hop a good man down" Well, that is equally true for the women too—For a good plucky young lady who took charge of Rose's house cleaning down the chimney Saturday, Faye McLennan pondered if she had been unlucky and had wakened to see Santa Claus and hurried to the neighbors to ask if her eyesight was O.K. It was—for they saw the same Santa Claus!

Health League of Canada presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

TAKE UP THE TEETH

"Teeth are like wives. Neglect 'em and you're headed for trouble," declares a pamphlet entitled "Be Kind to Your Teeth," just released by the Industrial Division of the Health League of Canada for distribution among industrial workers. Accompanying the pamphlet is a striking cartoon-style poster illustrating how even a toothache can cut down vital war production, which is available for use on factory notice boards at a nominal charge.

"Be Kind To Your Teeth points out that a decayed tooth, if neglected, may lead to chronic, serious, or even fatal illness. Such foods as candy sugar cakes, pastry and refined carbohydrate foods should be used in strict moderation as their excessive use contributes to dental decay. On the other hand, the pamphlet ad vises, uncooked foods such as green vegetables, raw fruits and dairy products are good for the teeth. Meat and eggs are needed for vitamins—except vitamin D which is provided by sunlight in the summer. During the fall and winter months cod liver oil or other fish oil added to the diet furnishes vitamin D. Exercise for the teeth is necessary if they are to be healthy, it is stated. Vigorous chewing of food does the trick.

Proper care of the teeth. It emphasizes, includes brushing them after each meal, using a small toothbrush with well separated tufts; the use of dental floss or cotton thread drawn between the teeth to remove food particles; brushing the upper teeth downward and the lower teeth upward, brushing vigorously the top surface of each tooth, and washing the mouth out with clean water.

Periodic examinations by a careful dentist are essential, it is stated. At least one visit a year is necessary. A good dentist will stress prevention —Frequent cleaning of the teeth, the filling of small cavities, early recognition and treatment of infection of the gums.

Last time from work is lost wages, points out the pamphlet. It costs less to prevent than to cure. This is the third of a series of publications designed to keep industrial workers on the job.

Study in Black And White

This attractive small person takes the business of eating seriously as he tucks into his supper of cereal and milk. Canada's Nutrition Program is vitally concerned with building a strong Canada by improving the health of all its citizens through better nutrition. Milk and cereals should play an important role in the diets of both young and old.

Soldiers From Ireland

Some Of Britain's Most Brilliant Fighters Were Born There

The fact that General Sir Bernard Law Montgomery, whose army has covered itself with glory in Africa, is a North of Ireland man, reminds us despite De Valera's attitude thousands of South of Ireland men are also fighting in the British services—and no warriors can be doughtier.

It used to be pointed out that Lords Roberts, Wolseley, Kitchener and the Duke of Wellington were all born in Ireland—and so they were. The Kitcheners, who had lived for centuries in Suffolk, were not really Irish people, though the great general's father, Col. H. H. Kitchener, lived in Kerry, where the field marshal-to-be was born.

The Duke of Wellington was born near Dublin, but educated at Eton. He was in character a typical English aristocrat. As English as his ancestors who, sent there as an emissary of Henry VIII., had obtained an estate on which the family lived for centuries. Once when someone referred to Napoleon's conqueror as an Irishman, Daniel O'Connell remarked sarcastically: "Being born in a stable doesn't make a man a horse, does it?"

Farm Machinery

Greater Machinery Care By Farmers Is Needed To Make Equipment Last

In a recent speech, the administrator of farm machinery for the Wartime Prices and Trade Board emphasized very strongly that there was the need for greater care of machinery by the farmers of Canada. The entire farm machinery situation—the need for rationing of new machinery, and the need for more co-operative use of existing machinery and equipment on the farms—formed the salient feature of his speech.

During December farm machinery ration offices were being established in many centres across the dominion. The men placed in charge of the offices being fully acquainted with the farming problems of the territory in which they are located and also familiar with the needs of the farmers.

RETHINKING IS HARD

When electric power was recently raised in Haiti it decreased the tax made by home refrigerators, causing an extra demand on commercial ice producers, who in turn had to reduce production because of less electricity, and the situation became so bad that the ice producers quit.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

FEBRUARY 7

JESUS AFFIRMS HIS DEITY

Golden text: He that hath seen me hath seen the Father. John 14:9.

Lesson text: John 8:12-30.

Devotional reading: Philippians 2: 1-11.

Explanations and Comments

The Witness Borne by Jesus to Himself, John 8:12-20. Again, verse 12, refers us back to 7:37. Verses 8: 12—10:21 are evidently a continuation of the narrative about the Feast of Tabernacles which has been interrupted by 7:53—8:11. Again therefore Jesus spake unto them, saying, I am the light of the world. "Though he had spoken a great deal to them to little purpose, and what he had said was opposed, yet he speaks again," observes Matthew Henry, according to the Talmud, on every night of the feast the Court of the Women was brilliantly lighted by the two colossal golden candlesticks which received the light of the days of fire in the wilderness; and it was fitting, therefore, that Jesus should contrast himself with these and all other lights.

He that followeth me shall not walk in the darkness, but shall have the light of life, that is, the light necessary to maintain spiritual life. "It was characteristic of Jesus Christ to declare himself to be the light for practical ends. Light is glorious in itself; it is the true evidence and needs neither herald nor argument. Christ might have compared himself to light in either of these respects. But light is also practical, calling to life and action, and it is clear from our Lord's word that this was the sense in which he gave himself the name. On each of the occasions on which he used it he coupled it with a distinct call to progress or to labor 'I am the light of the world' and that followeth me shall not walk in darkness. 'The night cometh when no man can work; as long as I am in the world I am the light of the world.' Yet a little while is the Light with you; walk while ye have the Light.' . . . But he was teaching. Like the sun he shines not to be gazed at but to be used. To walk he is to be what the sun is for movement and for work" (George Adam Smith).

Reports Across Canada Claim That Hens Are Laying Like Mad

Just as if the Hen World had heard about the Canadian Nutrition Program and all the nice things the Nutritionists say about the wonderful food value of eggs, Canadian hens are laying for all they're worth; —brown eggs, white eggs, speckled eggs.

Of course the color of the shell doesn't affect the food value of the egg one bit, though there are still people who say they wouldn't give two cents a dozen for eggs that are brown, while others insist that a speckled egg is vastly superior to any other.

Canada's Official Food Rules say that everyone should have at least three or four eggs a week and recommend one a day when possible. Eggs, like meat are a building of protein food and they may take the place of meat in the main meal of the day. They are also valuable as providers of iron, Vitamin A and the B vitamins, and are one of the few foods which supply a small amount of the sunshine vitamin D.

According to Nutrition Services, there is no difference in food value between eggs graded A, B, or C, though there is a difference in price and flavor. The lower grade and less expensive eggs may be used in dishes where other flavors predominate.

It is important that eggs and egg dishes be cooked at low temperatures for high heat toughens the protein.

SANDS OF HAZARD

By J. B. RYAN

CHAPTER V.

"MONSIEUR STOREY? The thin sound of a hushed voice came out of the darkness.

Storey strained to see the owner of the voice, but could not. "I am not asleep," he answered, equally softly.

At once a flashlight shone, bright, easing the cell and revealing Storey's stealthy visitor to be Captain Lebeau.

"Do not raise your voice," Lebeau cautioned urgently. "My soldiers are all asleep. You and I are the only ones awake. I have come bidding."

Storey nodded, and the officer continued apologetically: "I could not free you at once, monsieur. I first had sent Iamedalo a message that would cause him to relax his vigilance. He has been told that my superiors have ordered me to turn you over to him at nine tomorrow."

The American grinned as he said up, "I sure appreciate the help you are giving me, Captain."

"I don't want you killed in Ain Saffa," Lebeau said, almost crossly. "Lord knows I have trouble enough without having the murder of an American on my hands. If you and I follow these simple directions we can get out of this building and see you safely to a gate where your friend Mohammed awaits you."

The captain shaded his torch and opened the door. In the hall, Storey paused to inquire: "What about Albert? Is taking those sheep to the rat" at Tougourt."

Reluctantly, Jack Storey followed Lebeau down the silent passage. He was leaving Annette Fournier in this dungeon, abandoning her—the girl who had risked and lost her liberty because of him.

Captain Lebeau unlocked a door and the two men were in an odorous alley at the rear of the building. "We must still be quiet," said Lebeau "If we are seen by a Kabiri or even one of the townsmen, Iamedalo will be upon us."

"Won't he raise cain anyhow when he discovers I am gone?"

"What can he do? In the morning I shall inform him that I released you during the night, and I shall express surprise that he wasn't around when you left."

A SERIES of alleys led them through all the sleeping town to the wall that enclosed the oasis. Lebeau unlocked a small gate and Storey was gazing on a city of starlit sand.

"Handsome, monsieur," whispered Lebeau. "Ah, there, awaiting her doom, was Annette Fournier . . .

"Adieu, Monsieur Storey," said Captain Lebeau, and turned to place his hand on the wooden gate.

He was only a step away from Storey! With a swift movement, in keeping with swift decision, the American erased that distance, his left arm whipping under the chin and around the neck of Lebeau.

"Be quiet, Monsieur le Capitaine." Storey's automatic pressed against the rim of the struggling Lebeau. "I regret to do this, after what you have done for me, but my conscience leaves me no choice."

The helpless officer subsided, and over the shoulder of the passive man Storey spoke to the open-mouthed shepherd. "Ali, rope, Mohamad—to bind his hands and feet."

"But, master!" expostulated Mohammed. "Are you mad? The Fransawi is our friend."

Don't argue!" snapped Storey "Fetch me a rope."

Mohammed darted to the nearer of the huts, ran out returned with a coil of rope. Not until the arms of Lebeau were secured did Storey speak to his captive. As for Frenchman sat on the ground to allow Mohammed to rope his ankles, he glowered at Storey.

"In this necessary, monsieur" Nom de Dieu, having brought you this far, would I do anything to prevent your escape?"

"A gag, Mohammed," said Storey, and a cloth vent between the jaws of Lebeau. Then Storey bent over the captain and felt in the man's pockets until he had located the ringed keys of the prison. Next, Storey handed the pistol to the still puzzled Mohammed.

"Now, Ali," said Storey, "you be silent until I return. I am going back to the prison for Mademoiselle Fournier."

"Master!" Mohammed was alarmed. "She is in the dungeon. Ain Saffa! It is only by the grace of Allah that the Bey has not yet discovered you. Come! The drumbeats will start. Further delay will be fatal. The sun must find Ain Saffa many camel-tracks behind us."

"The lady befriended us, Mohammed." Storey halted the closing of the gate to speak to the shepherd "But for her, neither of us would be here now."

STOREY retraced his steps through the chain of alleys between the seldom-used gate and the rear entrance of the prison. One of Lebeau's keys opened the door, and he tip-toed through the hall, past the room where Storey had been incarcerated, to the turn in the corridor round which Annette Fournier had appeared when rebels both were taken to the office of Captain Lebeau.

Most of the cells were unoccupied, and so unlocked, but at last he came to the one that did not open. The number of keys on the ring and the darkness made investigation as to which to turn a lock as silently as had Captain Lebeau. The third key in succession fitted and Storey was scraping futilely against the tumblers when a voice, muffled but unmistakably feminine, came through the thick panels of the palm-wood door. "Who is there?"

Storey touched his lips to the keyhole and spoke as loudly as he dared. "This is Storey, Mademoiselle Annette. Do not be alarmed."

The door gave way before the next key. The girl met him in the hallway, touched his arm. Then she circumstanced now to the dark, saw her eyes watch his face and the shoulder behind him "You—you are alone, monsieur?"

"We are leaving this place, mademoiselle—that is, if someone does not wake up and see us before we can get out."

She nodded with the quick comprehension of one who has long played hide-and-seek with danger. She stepped to the cot of the cell and picked up her rumpled barracan and folded red sash. The dark robe went around her shoulders and she was wrapping the hemam about her waist as she rejoined Storey

"I am ready, monsieur," she whispered.

She had taken one step over the threshold when the arm of Storey whipped out to catch her by a shoulder and jerk her back into the cell "Listen," he cautioned soundlessly.

Crouched together they heard it the sound that was with such acuteness in Storey had detected before his ears had detected anything. Out of the darkness of the hall came the measur of voices, footsteps and then the dim rays of a lamp.

SILENTLY, Storey removed the key from the lock and closed the door. The voices and the steps meant that the prison was awake, at least to the extent that a number of guards were making a round of the building. If he and Annette had not been seen; they had only to remain quiet until the Spahi had passed on and then make a second attempt to get away

Then all at once, the blood seemed to freeze in Storey's veins. The clump of hoofs and sandals on hard earth floor had ceased. The man in the hall had stopped directly in front of the cell of Annette Fournier

But the other sound. The voices had not ended. Indeed, the voices had become louder, taking on the tone of men on the verge of a combat.

"The girl is in here" came a re-bellant voice "But I cannot turn the key to you, O Sheik without the authority of Capt Lebeau

The tongue of Iamedalo the Lawless sounded through the palm-wood door. "I have waited long enough for your captain to appear. O Moslem dog who fights under the banner of the Unbeliever. This night is past and, according to his own reckoning, this is the day on which he was to surrender the killer of Mustafa to me. Unless that door"

But it is not the man, but the French girl who is in there."

Iamedalo laughed raspingly "She was the companion of the infidel Storey and was doubtless implicated in the death of my follower, so I have decided to administer the same fate to them both"

"But" protested the Spahi. "Capt. Lebeau —"

"I have come for the ex foreigners! My men wait without, and I am becoming impatient. Will you open that door, thou dog's son, or shall I shoot you with this pistol and then open it myself?"

"Very well," came the voice of the guard. "I shall do as you say, but you must explain matters to Capt. Lebeau when he arrives."

The fingers of Storey still gripped the key he had plucked out of the lock on the hall door. Cautiously, he turned the key, giving it a half-turn that would keep it from falling or being jarred out of the keyhole.

He heard the voice of the guard on the other side of the door. "What was that?"

"I heard nothing, thou nervous fool," snapped Iamedalo. "Open that door. I heard you turn the key in the lock."

"That is the sound I mean. But it could not have been I, for my hands have not yet inserted the key into the opening."

"Then our ears have played a trick on us. Suppose you open that door or let us do it for you."

Food in Germany

Diet Said To Be Only Slightly Worse Than Last Year

Germany's diet is much poorer than that of wartime North Americans, but its food position is far from critical, the Office of War Information reports on the basis of data reaching the Board of Economic Warfare and other agencies of the United States Government.

Despite the Nazis' thorough milking of the produce of the occupied countries, the German diet is coarse, monotonous and lacking in such edible foods as meat, animal fats and white bread, the O.W.I said.

Food production in Axis-held Europe in the 1942-1943 crop year will fall short of ordinary civilian requirements by a wide but it is not expected seriously to impair the German war effort

The report data indicates the German diet will be only slightly worse this year than last, with short ages of flour and livestock remaining the acute spots in the Axis food economy

The number four is considered unlucky in Japan because it is the same word as "death."

The Care Of Cutlery

Knives Should Be Sharpened Frequently And Stored Properly

Take the advice of the Prices Board's consumer section and banish dull and ineffi knives from the kitchen. Knives are needed to be kept sharp and in good condition if stored properly when not in use. Dull knives are a hazard and cause other kitchen utensils, since edger become blunted from chafing against each other. Use knives only for purposes for which they are designed. For instance, the edge of a carving knife may be ruined by cutting bread. Wash knives immediately after use and sharpen them frequently, without applying too much pressure.

A Youthful Population

Over Half Of People In Saskatchewan Are 24 Or Less

Men outnumber women by nearly 60 000 in Saskatchewan where the population in 1941 was 880,992, the dominion bureau of statistics said in issuing final national census figures for the province

During the 10 years since the last census in 1931, the population dropped 23,782 from 921,750, reflecting drought conditions during the 1930's which caused many residents to move to other provinces.

In 1941 there were 477 563 men and 418,429 women.

The census showed the province still was a predominantly youthful population. Of the total, 449,182, or more than half, were 24 years old or less.

WILDNERE WINKS

We wonder if the groundhog saw his shadow on Feb. 2. Candlemas Day. If he did our winter will last six weeks longer according to the old adage. Groundhog or not—our winter will end when it wants to.

Mrs. Riley spent a few days in town last week visiting her daughter and family Mrs. G. Seggert and her son's family, Mrs. Eric Wadlin and children.

Mr Howard Gibson Hazelwood was operated on for goitre last Monday, Jan. 25th at the local hospital. We all wish him a speedy recovery. His mother stayed in town for a few days at her daughter's Mrs. Pete Madill.

Bill and Adam Smith while in town on Saturday had a pleasant chat with Albert Hoite who was home for a few hours from his duties of guard in the air force.

Mr and Mrs Cliff Crothers and family visited at the Hoite home on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith and family were at the Geo. Crothers and A. Smith homes. Mr and Mrs. J. Wallington, Peggy Bobby and Kenny Graham also visited the Adam Smith home on Sunday. We were very pleased to see the improvement in health of Mrs Smith since we saw her a month ago.

The following news items were sent in to us by a friend from Battle Lake. Mr. Jaw Fissell raffled a quilt a short time ago for smokes for the boys overseas and made $11.50 for the pool. Four cigarettes have already been sent and 500 more are ready to send overseas. Truly a very worthy cause and something the local people very much need are sure.

A recent letter from her son Bill Fissell somewhere in England says he was treated to a fine Xmas dinner. Also that the Salvation Army came and gave all the men in Ambulance Platoon 2 pairs socks, 2 pairs gloves a bottle of brilliantine and 2 tooth brushes.

A response of Mrs Fissell's has been sent from Xmas in England since the outbreak of the war.

Lady Falls and family bert Fissell and family were all Sunday visitors at Fissell home.

We would say the lady could start a collection of her own and probably name it the "Battleview Blisters" What say friend?

In closing we would say to all rate payers of our school district to remember that the annual school meeting is to be held at the school on Smith house on Sunday. We very much need to see the improvement in health of Mrs Smith since we saw her a month ago.

Tales from the Training Centre

by 2nd Lieut. Eunice M. Robertson

Last week end another class of C. W.A.C. "Dispatchers" graduated as full-fledged privates prepared to contribute to the war effort to the best of their ability. To mark the completion of the course, there was an inspection by the Commandant on Friday afternoon. Uniforms spotless, buttons gleaming, they stood steady and straight throughout the ceremony. Then, to prove both they and their instructors had done a good job, they put on demonstrations. First, a precision squad under Sergeant Shaw drew considerable attention. Next, a group of First Aiders came swiftly forth to minister to Air raid casualties strewn on the floor. They worked calmly and efficiently in spite of a momentary interruption when a fake alarm sounded. They adjusted their own respirators and those of their patients in less than a minute, fit tribute to their work, and removed the wounded in shelter. It was a practical demonstration of First Aid which should certainly impress upon them the value of our Basic Training courses.

A third squad put on an excellent display of Physical Training. Corporal Fulton, their instructor, had put in a great deal of work on them and their timing was as nearly perfect as it possible.

The girls all felt well rewarded, however, when the Commandant took them all over the grounds.

The classes come, the classes go — and each one results in a different program of one sort or another. It's amazing how with very little preparation, each one turns out an interesting and amusing concert.

Last Friday, "B" Company did it again. Saxophone or other musical combo in between periods of drill and First Aid, and Gas, and all the numerous parades that form the life of a gunpy taking "Basic", they met up with many good numbers which, being the interest of the audience for all of two hours.

C.S.M. Wallington was our M.C., and the diminutive Sergeant Major made a very good job of it. First, a precision squad under Sergeant Shaw drew considerable attention. Thanks for coming, Vermilion friends. There is nothing like an appreciative audience to spur the girls on to greater efforts. However, due to the recent curfew imposed by the town council, in future students under twelve will not be admitted unless accompanied by their parents.

Sunday Afternoon "B" Company trainees left for numerous stations across Canada. They just wanted to say "Thanks, Vermilion". You were very kind to them and they appreciated it.

And while we are on the subject of appreciation, we want to congratulate C.S.M. Buchanan who left Sunday for an Officer's Training Course at Regina. Anne de Bellevue. Good luck, Sergeant Major!

Correction: The item last week should have read Mr. Tyndell's birthday at the lalay hospital, not Miss Tyndell's. We think this must have been a printers' error.

Billy Koroluk is ill with an attack of mumps.

Cecil Gannon was a recent visitor to Kenscott.

Mr Walker and Don Harrison were noticed loading Mr. Marman's goods and chattels into a box car at the Borradaile siding.

We must start with a few corrections of errors which appeared in the last week's items. It is Mrs. Krampo not Mr. Krampo who is away. She does not expect to return until the end of February. Mr. Ed Baldwin's and Mr. Ross Anderson's names were mentioned as prize winners of the raffle recent ly held here.

The league met at the teacherage on Jan. 30th. Miss Vivian Gould acted as hostess in the absence of her mother and did very well indeed. A large crowd turned out. Miss Betty Gillies, Miss Miriam Gould and Miss Julia Anderson shewed the ladies the finished product of the 50c. 2 meter prize on shoot. Plans were finished for the whist drive to be held on Feb. 5 and the gingham dance Feb. 19th. The Victory dance will be in attendance for the dance. Those who are uncertain as to the proper procedure for a gingham dance will please note the following: From a piece of print goods or gingham make an apron and tie. The ties will be distributed to the gentlemen and after the distribution the women will put on their aprons and the gentlemen will attempt to find their partners. Admission: gentlemen 25c, ladies without aprons and ties 25c. Be sure your aprons and ties are of the same material and wrapped in separate parcels, and don't forget the date — February the 19th.

NEW RATION BOOKS AT THE MEMORIAL HALL

Distribution in Charge of W. A. To Canadian Legion

FROM FEB. 19 TO MARCH 1

The Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion have undertaken to distribute the No. 2 ration books at the Legion hall between Feb. 19 and March 1st. J.W.G. Morrison, Chairman of the local rationing board, explained to the auxiliary on Monday last how the distributing campaign would work out. Holders of Ration book 1 will be asked to fill out the card at the back of the book, present the old book at the distributing centre where a receipt will beg out the card, transfer the information in Ration book No. 2 and then hand both back to the holder. The card must not be detached from the book, before presenting them to the local board. The old books will not be collected as some people have thought, they will only be used to check on the issue of the new books. Ration book 2 will not be issued, personal application at a distributing centre will have to be made. A holder however living in the country and living in his neighborhood providing the cards are properly filled out and so can one member of a family living in the same household. The main thing is that the cards must be filled out and then left in the book until detached by the ration officer. If a child is under twelve the local ration office will issue one for every sheet for tea and coffee. The child's 12th birthday must be before March 1st. The things to remember then as the speaker pointed out were:

1. That the card at the back is filled out by the holder and the old book presented to the local ration office. The card must not be detached by the holder.
2. In rural areas it will be in order for a holder to bring in the books of his neighbors, provided the cards are properly filled out.
3. Each applicant may present cards (attached to books) for himself and members of his/her household providing that the cards are filled out by the respective holders or for them in the case of children.
4. NO new books will be issued by the local ration where there are no old ones returned.
5. It will facilitate the work of the auxiliary which is given unanimously, if holders will have their cards prepared before presenting their books for the new ones.
6. The old book with the new is handed back to the holder when proper entries have been completed.

LOCAL BOMBERS BLAST KI'SCOTY TEAM 5 TO 1

Plenty of Action in Saturday Night Fixture

There was plenty of action in last Saturday night's hockey game between Kitscoty and the local bomb ers, won by the latter aggregation by a score of 5 goals to 1 The visitors matched the first tally just a minute and a half after the game started, but was they were travelling in the first period and carrying the play into Vermilion territory all the time the lanky looked bad for the locals. However they managed to tie it up before the end of the period and from then on the Bombers did all the scoring although the territorial play was very evenly divided. Ivan Wyatt scored Kitscoty's goal while the veteran Clarence Part tallied Vermilion's first counter on Vern Davis' pass.

In the second Davis again carried the puck from his own defence zone and slipped Lee Williams a beauty pass which was converted neatly and the local lads were in the lead Ken Wyatt scored the third for the K's Williams booked Burns for a charge in the corner for the 30 tally, giving Lees Messer slipped in the fifth counter

Others were on scoring in the third which seemed to be devoted to the art of checking, every player being checked out of existence almost and no doubt because they came off second best in most cases. Williams scored for Vermilion Martin a new goalie made a very favorable impression on the local fans in his first game. He made a couple of spectacular saves which always drew second applause from the crowd. New Domesday Book

Record Of Farms in England Will Be Completed

After nearly nine hundred years, the famous Domesday Book is being revised. It follows a complete survey of England since the time of William the Conqueror, when the first Domesday Book was published. The original book dealt with the farms of England, and the new book records such things as the condition of each major farm, its equipment, the crops it is growing, the live stock it carries. It reports on the state of the land, the efficiency of the men farming it, and the adequacy of such services as water supply and electricity.

The work has been done by official surveyors assisted by nearly 6,000 farmers. They have covered 37,000,000 acres, inspecting every field on 300,000 farms. Many of these farms in England have remained intact since the time of King William. His object was to find how much could be collected from the farmers in taxes. The present objective is to see how much food can be raised for the community. The old Domesday Book took 20 years to complete. The new one will be completed in exactly that number of months.

Help For China

Chinese Security And Independence Is Needed To Win The War

Help for China, as Gen. Smuts has said, is "one of their most important objects." Without the reinstatement of Chinese security and independence the war will not be won. The magnificent resistance of the Chinese is a momentous factor in all the strategy of the Far East.

That co-operation and good will which finds its machinery in the representation of the Chinese Government on the Pacific Council requires that China should exercise beyond doubt the full equality of a nation whom, in the Prime Minister's phrase, we are proud to reckon as "fellow architects of victory."

The United Nations are not fighting to give any privilege over another but for a free world. In the freedom after peace the co-operation of China will be needed by America, Russia, Britain and the whole of mankind.—London Daily Telegraph.

But Is Now Turning It In For Scrap Metal

Maj. J. E. Snow, U.S.A., is turning in for bullet metal scrap, a sharp-shooting cup which he won in competition with a crack Japanese team 15 years ago.

The cup that was being competed for was in reality the "Emperor's Cup" of solid silver. But when a foreigner won it, the Japanese discovered this would involve such a "loss of face" for the emperor that they begged Snow to accept a more modest cup.

Snow accepted but has now decided to send it back in a form that will do most good.

Farmers Were Clever

Russian Took Food Through Nazi Lines, Stopped Leningrad Famine

The story of Pyotr Ivanovitch, a fictious name for any of the patriotic farmers who helped feed Leningrad at one critical time in its 17 months of siege, was told by Russian war relief officials in New York.

Although the Nazis besieged the city, they did not control all the surrounding territory. There were "backs" of resistance off the main highways where Russians still tilled their farms within sound of the battlefield. Pyotr Ivanovitch and his friends were clever. When their carts were loaded they padded their horses' hooves when burlap wrapping. They secured any harness which might jingle and they moved in convoys. Along familiar wounds they crept stealthily, guided by their guerrilla friends in force. There were women among the guerrillas as many as 80 sometimes, armed with tommyguns and skilled in the neatest and most quiet ways of swiftly dispatching any Nazi who chanced to raise his head as the convoys moved through the German lines. It was a perilous job, but the Russian relief says about 400 tons of food were delivered in this way to the hungry inhabitants.

Nazi guns and bombs might damage the water supply system, but the Russians were strong even in hunger, and 2,000 young men and women were mobilized to draw water from holes in the ice of Lake Ladoga and the Neva river.

Winter was the hardest time. Not only was food lacking, but there was no fuel for domestic use, and fires were used in hospitals and factories.

Women and school children cut down trees for fuel. Through the two winters the schools were unheated although there were 90,000 children in attendance.

His Own Troubles

Lord Halifax Does Not Show His Sorrow To World

Once, in the old dead days of the isolationist debate, Britain's V.I.P. Lord Halifax stepped to chat with an American mother picketing his hotel with an anti-war banner. He listened gravely to her story of her nine sons, said quietly: "I, too, have seven," shook hands, walked on.

One of his three sons, Lieut. Francis Hugh Peter Wood, 26, was killed in Egypt last February. The U.S. would never have known, save for dispatches from London. Nor could anyone but a few British ambassadors in recent weeks, or worked with him at the embassy, or watched him listen to the latest batch of secret cables, have guessed that Lord Halifax had learned that his youngest son, Lieut. Richard Frederick Wood, 22, had lost both legs while wounded by a Nazi bomb in Libya.—Time.

JESUS HEALS A MAN BORN BLIND

Golden text: One thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I see. John 9:25.

Lesson: John 9.

Devotional reading: Psalm 27:1-6.

Explanations and Comments

Jesus Gives Sight to a Blind Man. John 9:1-9. When Jesus met a man who had been blind from birth, he saw an opportunity to make manifest the works of God, and was reminded of the shortness of time yet remaining in which he could fulfil his mission on earth. "I must work the work of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh when no man can work," he said. "As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world." It was his mission to dispense light.

Jesus spat on the ground and made clay of the spittle, then anointed the eyes of the blind man. Having done all this in order to let the man feel his ministering touch, to awaken expectancy, to arouse the man's faith through the use of means popularly supposed efficacious, and to test his obedience. Then Jesus ordered him to go and wash in the pool of Siloam. The man obeyed, and when he came back seeing, the neighbors scarcely believed that it was he.

The Pharisees Question the Man and His Parents. John 9:13-34. Because the miracle was wrought on the Sabbath and broke the ritual law, some of the Pharisees said that Jesus was a sinner, but others said, "How could a sinner do such a miracle?" When they asked the man what he thought of Jesus he answered, "He is a prophet." They next claimed to doubt that the man had been blind, and they summoned his parents. His parents feared the Pharisees, for the latter had threatened to excommunicate anyone who should acknowledge Jesus to be the Christ, so they said that they knew this was their son who had been born blind but now could see, but as to how he had received his sight, he, who was of age, could tell them. The Greek word translated "of age" refers literally in stature, he was full grown. A man was said to be of mature age at 30.

Again they called the man and put him before them and put him on oath. ("The words 'Give glory to God' were the form of an oath proposed by the chief magistrate to those who were to give evidence in a matter of fact; or to attest anything, as proposed by, or belonging to, the law." See Joshua 7:19." "Confess what we know that Jesus is a sinner," they adjured him. "Whether he sins against your creeds I know not: one thing I do know, that whereas I was blind, now I see," he stoutly maintained.

WALKING FOR EXERCISE

A recent article by Dr. Thomas Hale, Jr., in "The Military Surgeon" on the art of walking healthfully is quoted in the current issue of "Good Health," official organ of the Race Betterment Foundation.

"Since the arrival of the bicycle and the more recent arrival of the automobile," says Dr. Hale, "the use of the legs has steadily diminished. At the present time there is in use in the United States one automobile for every five or six persons. Pedestrian: have practically disappeared from public highways except in towns and cities. The feet of civilised man have long shown evidence of functional decay through the lack of use, as shown in the loss of a joint in the little toe, diminishing size of the great toe, the loss of prehensile power possessed by many primitive races, and other deteriorating changes. If the present trend continues, man will ultimately become toeless as well as toothless."

The doctor goes on to assert that walking is one of the best of all exercises. The increase of professional and sedentary occupations seriously hampers the proper development of millions in modern highly civilized countries, he says.

Dr. Hale gives the following important instruction about walking:

"The feet were meant to be used in regular levers, not as pedestals. The knees and big toes should be used in walking. Before the forward foot is placed on the ground, the knee of the rear leg should be fully straightened and the front part of this foot should give a shove to start it on the next step. In standing the knees should be fully straightened so that the weight of the body is borne on the forward part of the foot. When this is done, the person leans slightly forward and quiet tension in the abdominal muscles a little to keep his balance. One who walks on his heels holds himself perpendicular or leans backward to maintain his balance. The result even in thin persons is to develop a protruding stomach."

So abundant is water power on the island of Java that hydroelectric plants supply electric lighting to the most remote mountain villages

El Salvador, with an area of 13,000 square miles, is the smallest country on the American continent.

CHAPTER VI

STOREY and Annette Fournier listened tensely to metallic clicks and noises as the guard struggled to insert the key, and then they heard his voice, plaintive and trembling. "The key will not go into the lock of O Sheik. The girl knows we are here and has jammed the lock with some twisted wire or something."

Immediate action! That is impossible. Where, in these bare cells, would a prisoner obtain a length of sinew or any other metal? Give me that key!"

Out of the lock came sounds like the gnawing of a rat. The key on Storey's side of the door wobbled in indication that the Berber was prodding against the obstruction that prevented the door from being opened. But the key of Storey resisted all attempts to dislodge it, and the American grinned in the darkness.

Abruptly the scraping sounds were replaced by silence. A flash of intuition told Storey what was about to happen. A quick stride carried him away from the door to the side of Annette. "Get over there!" he muttered in her ear. "As far away from the door as you can!"

In the darkness he saw the girl move to the rot at the end of the room. He stepped in the opposite direction, placing his back against the wall at the side of the door. Neither Annedin nor the guard knew that he was in the cell with Annette.

Harshly had Storey gained his position when the sound of a pistol-shot echoed throughout the prison. The bullet thumped into the door, crashing through the wood and metal about the lock. The offending key flew from its shattered slot, falling to the floor with pieces of splintering wood. More shots followed and the iron lock rocked in its bed, crashing under the blows of the concentrated fire, and, with the final shot, became a jumbled ruin.

The door creaked, then moved inward under an uneven bend. One ray of light of the lamp in the hall threw a yellow square on the floor of the cell and brought into relief the figure of the guard standing in the act against the wall. The swinging door had paused almost at right angles when, like the wall, cutting off any view of Jack Storey, who was behind it.

"Effendi! Is the girl, O Sheik," said Annedin. "Drag her out."

A shadow fell on the rectangle of light on the floor. As the guard stepped into the cell, the crunch of his boots on the floor was a cover for the soft footfalls of Storey advancing step for step with him in the deep shadows on the other side of the door.

Storey halted when he had reached the end of the door. The shadow of the guard almost brushed against him. As the Algerian strode past him, Storey thrust his foot out, hooked his ankle about that of the unsuspecting man.

The guard tripped and sprawled, landing heavily on the floor before the cot of Annette Fournier. Before the fellow could make a move to rise, the girl had dived from the pallet to the floor, landing like a springing tigress on the head and neck of the Spahi.

By Allah!" came the exasperated snarl of Annedin. "Thou are as clumsy as thou art witless! Get up, you oaf, and bring out that girl!"

But for the moment, that was an order impossible for the hapless Spahi to obey. Had Annette landed on his shoulders or his back he could have shaken her off. But the weight of the girl was on the man's head and neck, pinning him to the floor, and any effort to dislodge her placed the soldier in danger of breaking his own neck.

The lighted area of the door shifted shape, indicating that Annedin was lowering the lamp hastily to the floor of the hall. Then the elongated shadow of the tall sheik swept into the cell as the Berber hurried to the assistance of the trapped Spahi, thrashing on the floor like a decapitated fowl.

Jack Storey gathered himself, and at just the right instant, stepped from the shadow of the door squarely into the path of the angry Arab. The American moved so swiftly that Ismeta, his attention engaged by the struggling pair at the foot of the cot, caught completely unaware by the flat of Storey caught the sheik in mid-stride, landing precisely on the point of the man's chin, and Ismeddin the Lawless dropped, knocked out before he started to fall.

STOREY did not see the Kahiri hit the floor, for he was hurrying to the assistance of Annette, who, with spirited prompting, had played the part assigned to her in this drama of preparation. Had the French girl required no help.

Like all intelligence agents, Antoinette Fournier was trained in Jiu-Jitsu and well able to take care of herself even in a hand-to-hand struggle with a powerful adversary. However, she relaxed her hold when Storey reached her side.

"Are you all right, Annette?" he inquired.

"Just a little bit out of breath, Monsieur Jacques," she smiled, brushing back her disheveled hair.

"Good," Storey said. He bent down quickly over Ismeddin and started removing the headdress and cloak from the body of the unconscious Arab. Standing up he draped the cloak about his own shoulders, then placed the turban, dark and aquil on his head.

"How do I look?" he asked, his usually pleasant-toned voice as harsh and cold as was that of the man whose garments he had donned.

"Think I can pass for the Sheik at Kahiri long enough to fool his companions who will be waiting for us outside?"

The girl smiled, her face brightened by a realization of his plan of action dawned on her. "You sound just like Ismeddin himself, and you and he are almost the same height. Wearing his clothes should help, but if they should see your face, Jacques—"

"I think I can manage," he grinned. "I'll be too dark in the streets for them to see my features clearly."

They would have to move slowly and deliberately now that headlong flight was denied them, and they could not leave Ismeddin and the soldier to recover and spread the alarm before they were clear of the building if not Ain Saffa itself. So Storey carried the Spahi and then the Berber chief into an adjoining cell the door of which could be locked.

"We'll have to go out the front way," Storey announced, when the girl and he were ready to leave. "It might cause some wonder if Ismeddin and I were seen sneaking out the back door, and we must act just as the Arab himself would."

She followed him down the hall The office of Captain Lebeau by the tween them and the street door, and they neared the room. Storey did not step lagged at sight of the light streaming through the door of the office.

ANNETTE, too, came to a pause beside him. It was explained, at last why the soldiers of Capt. Lebeau were not investigating the shooting to another part of the building. Lined up against the wall of the office were Sgt. Jardin and a dozen Spahis, and facing the rather cramped in capacity were the Berbers of Ismeddin, every man of whom had a weapon of some sort in his hand.

"You cannot go through there, Jacques," whispered Annette. "The light will fall on your face as soon as you step into the room and they will know you for a masquerader."

Storey rubbed his chin, then his face cleared. "If I should carry you through that room," he suggested, "if you would pretend to be unconscious and droop your head on my chest, the hood of your barracan might prevent them from obtaining a clear view of my features—"

For answer Annette turned to face him, stepping closer like a child waiting to be lifted by a parent. Storey gathered the small figure in his arms and the dark curls of the girl brushed against his face as she nestled her head on his chin.

"Let your arms hang loose and keep your eyes closed," he commanded in her ear, then strode toward the room filled with light and with men.

There was a stir of bodies and a babel of voices as Storey entered the crowded office and instantly he was surrounded by Berbers and Spahis. But Storey refused to allow the press of men to impede his progress to the door.

"Outside, O Kahiri," he commanded without breaking his stride, his rumbling voice mumbled by the folds of the hood which concealed his face. "Our work is done."

Their own clamor prevented the Berbers from detecting any foreign quality in the voice of their supposed leader. They trooped after Storey as he made his way toward the door of the office, through the remaining hall, and then out into the night-shrouded street.

ONE lone Kahiri was in the street when Storey and Annette emerged. The Kahiri, anxious for news, surged ahead and grouped themselves about the supposed leader in obsequious fashion, unwittingly informed Storey which was the mount of Sheik Ismeddin.

"The foreigner tries to run away," Storey announced in a dead-on-black voice that would have done credit to a Bedouin.

Storey caught under his breath. "Oh, I know, but tried to explain. "We go this way, as I said. But you, my men, seem to have forgotten the silver of the foreigners. Must we leave that wealth behind? Go, you, to the caravanserai, and secure the silver in the saddle bags of the dead soldiers. I shall meet you outside the wall—"

The last uncompleted sentence fell upon unhearing ears. At the first mention of the word "silver" the men to get his hands on his share of the loot. Storey, seeing that his command around and bolted back toward the inn, leaving Storey and Annette alone in the dark-filled street.

GOOD SALES TALK

An insurance agent was trying to sell a banker, but wasn't getting very far with him well. "I think I'll let this hold over for a couple of months," the banker finally told him

"I can't give you a policy that won't pay anything to your wife in the event of your death within the next two months," the agent said "How would you like that"

"I wouldn't buy a policy like that the banker said

"Well, that's the kind you get if you don't apply now."

We understand that the banker bought.

An Excellent Food

For Relaxing Food Shortages There Are Many Fish Varieties

Balancing food shortages in many lines, several varieties of fish are obtainable in most sections of Canada.

An excellent food in itself, fish lends itself to combination with many other foods, and can be served in dozens of different ways hot and cold.

A recipe book, "100 Tempting Fish Recipes," telling clever and attractive ways to serve the different kinds of fish from Canadian coastal and inland waters, will be forwarded on request by the Department of Fisheries, Ottawa.

Need Export Permit

Three Varieties Of Fresh Water Fish Now Under Control

Three varieties of fresh-water fish —pickerel, whitefish and lake trout—now require an export permit before being shipped from Canada to any destination, the trade and commerce department announced.

The order went into effect Jan. 26 and applies to the fish whether "fresh or frozen filleted or not." The order was issued by the Prices Board "because the growing export trade in fresh-water fish is beginning to threaten our domestic supply."

A statement said the aim in placing the fish under export control was not to prohibit their export but to provide a "fair and impartial means of distributing the benefits of export trade among the fishermen and companies concerned, help check the activities of speculative and irresponsible exporters and aid in stabilizing market prices for fresh-water fish, both in Canada and the United States."

BOARD OF TRADE PROJECTS FOR PAST YEAR OUTLINED BY RETIRING PRESIDENT

The retiring President, Gerald F. Stephens, summarized the more important activities of the Vermilion Board of Trade for the year 1942 as follows:

"As President of the Vermilion Board of Trade and also personally, I wish to thank the members of the executive, the members of the various committees, and all the members of the Board of Trade, who have all done their best to promote the activities of the Board during the past year.

Although our membership in the Board of Trade during 1942 was practically as in 1941 I felt that the membership should have been larger and in particular I do not think we have made sufficient effort during the past year to obtain the farmers' financial ship. I am mentioning this now in order to respectfully suggest that the executive during 1943 concentrate on increasing the interest of the farmers in the district in the Board of Trade with a view to obtaining as large a membership from them as possible. As mentioned at the beginning of last year the Board of Trade is a community effort, not only of the business men in town but of the whole town and district, to promote the interests not only of the people in town but also of the people in the surrounding district. It considered in this way the Board of Trade should be a valuable asset to both town and country.

The Board of Trade has during the past year endeavoured to keep in touch from week to week with events which concern the town and district and I believe the Board has not neglected any opportunity during the year to further the interests of the town and district. Many of the activities of the Board are not immediately productive and results are sometimes not even apparent.

It must be remembered that the Board of Trade has no power in itself to bring this or that to pass but can only exert influence or if you like pressure, towards any end it considers, by the force of its collective opinion. Therefore the bigger the membership is, the more interest each individual member takes in the affairs of the Board, and the more active the Board becomes, the more influence it has, in achieving the objects it has in view.

I wish to mention briefly some of the activities of the Board during the past year, namely:

SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE

Early in the year the Board made representations to the government that the school of agriculture be reopened and a special committee for this purpose was appointed.

Subsequently upon learning that the province did not intend to re-establish a school of agriculture here during the war the Board made various representations and expended every effort in convincing the proper authorities that the buildings should be used for some war purpose, either as an Air Force Centre or Girls Training school.

As a result of this the Dominion Government with the co-operation of the Provincial Government established the C.W.A.C. Training Centre here which now continues.

AIR PORT

The Board made every effort to have an air port established here and although this has not yet come to pass we did succeed in having the Dominion Government make a complete and detailed survey of our air field and a full report of the facilities available here in this connection.

The Board endorsed a resolution forwarded from Edmonton supporting the establishment of a direct air line from Saskatoon and Edmonton via North Battleford. Although the application for this air line was refused by the Transport Commissioner the matter should not be forgotten because it is the opinion that such a line will be established in the course of the war.

OIL FIELDS

The Board has at all times during the past year extended wherever possible its help and co-operation to the people engaged in developing the Vermilion oil field.

We forwarded a strong resolution to the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, for their endorsement, recommending that the price for Vermilion fuel oil should be commensurate with the cost of drilling producing and clearing the oil with a reasonable profit to the producer. We have some reason to believe the result now is that the price per barrel to be paid in the future will be increased over the price suggested last year of $1.15 per barrel.

The Board also passed a resolution which was forwarded to the Minister of Trade and Commerce and others, protesting against the proposed basis of taxation in connection with royalties which it was feared would dry up funds for oil development. We understand that the proposed taxation was subsequently altered to prevent this.

AGRICULTURE

The Board of Trade among its members organized harvest help for farmers in the district who were unable to get help last fall.

We have recently sponsored the Agricultural Short Course to be held here on March 11th and 12th of this year.

The Board also passed a resolution asking the government to look into the question of farm labor for spring work and endeavor to formulate some plan in this regard. We understand this is being done.

ENLARGED MUN. DISTRICT

The Board of Trade in common with the Lloydminster Board of Trade passed a resolution which was forwarded to the proper authorities to develop with a brief advocating that:

The dividing line between the proposed enlarged Municipal Units formerly composed by Elsbetyn, Vermilion Valley, Grizzly Bear, Birsmose Town, Wellington and Morton be the Range line between Ranges 3 and 4, making the Unit in the West to consist of Elsbetyn, Vermilion Valley and Grizzly Bear. This Unit would run from the Battle River in the south to the Saskatchewan River in the north. The second Unit would consist of Birsmose-town, Wellington and Morton, whose boundaries would also be between the Battle and Saskatchewan Rivers".

The Board tendered a luncheon to the visiting Municipal District officers at the meeting held in Vermilion on the 12th of December and to the Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs and his associates here to discuss the proposed enlarged municipal districts.

We understand that the government is favorably considering the division of these districts as urged by the Vermilion and Lloydminster Boards of Trade.

MISCELLANEOUS

A resolution was passed asking the Dominion Government to give a preference to the Canadian National Railways of all freight, and all military and government transportation of freight, men, supplies and equipment so as to give this business to the people's railway.

The Retail section of the Board gave its attention to closing hours of the stores and delivery services, among other things.

The Board appointed a committee to urge a "Tee Vote" on the "Man over Pleistocene" which was very active and the Board as a body passed a formal resolution endorsing a Tee Vote.

The Board advocated that the town secure the property at the swimming hole so as to preserve this as a bathing place for the people and children of the town.

The government was asked to gravel the north road a mile north from the top of the hill.

A resolution was passed recommending that the streets of the town be re-gravelled and as a result work was done on the streets which greatly improved them.

I have not dealt with many other things which the Board concerned itself with during the past year. I hope during this year the new Board will be more active then ever; that our membership will be increased and particularly that our attendance at our weekly meetings will increase.

The Board of Trade is here to perform a useful and valuable function and deserves the support of every business man in town and farmer in the surrounding country."

Our Overseas Letter

Vermilion, Alta.,
....., 1943.

Dear .....:

When I wrote a few weeks ago I remarked upon the vagaries of the weather during the year 1942. Well, it has not behaved very much better since the New Year came in. By the way, I am the old year out at a very riotous dance at the R.Ks hall. I do not mean there was a riot—simply a case of where young and old, men and women, mingled, swirled, gyrated, spade-wheeled in kaleidoscopic fashion to welcome the new year with all its enjoyments or maybe tears, sweat and blood—it was all the same. After this the weather. It broke shortly after the new year into a balmy spring edition, so much so that snow began to melt, water ran along our streets, and we got the usual shower bath at Craig's lane corner. Then all of a sudden it turned decidedly cold, the mercury shrinking to 50 and 51 below, depending upon what hour of the morning you were trying to get home. It was wonderful how many people knew it was so apt so at 2 or 3 o'clock "this" ....

The country roads are gradually getting opened out and there are now moving to town to get their ration cards squared away and provide for enough to carry on until the next period opens up. New ration books will be distributed sometime in February replacing the old ones. These books will probably be had at the Legion hall instead of being issued from Pinnacles. The applicants I am to it must call for them by 8 p.m. The books may be new but I do not suppose our rations will be thereby any more substantial than under the old ones.

The proposed enlarged municipal districts east of Vermilion about which I wrote in last letter are off for another year at least. The people kicked, different organizations protested—all so vainly and effectively that the department must have felt discretion was the better part of valor. Anyway, the old districts will function as were for a further term.

There is not a great deal of activity in the oil fields these days, the depth of snow hampering operations. With the opening up or spring much development is looked for. The C.N.R. is on the program to drill some 50 wells in the district and it looks as if Vermilion might be a very busy centre next summer.

The annual meeting of the town ratepayers did not develop any fireworks such as used to mark these gatherings in former years. The statement and reports presented by the Mayor and councillors appeared to be very satisfactory and received the commendation of the electors present. With the low-cut tax rate in many years the town edged over and out carrying over any debts into the new year.

Vermilion was for a few days on the border of a coal shortage but managed to pull through without any to great inconvenience. Some people had to husband the contents of their coal bins and woodsheds and thus encourage any possible shortage. Meanwhile I am told was not so fortunate. There the schools were closed and some people had to move to their kitchens, not having enough fires to heat the whole house. Coal is now reported to be moving freely [illegible] and that the [illegible] situation would have been considerably relieved. There certainly was not much coal to be seen and no small's being marketed the week I left.

I had lunch in the Red Cross [illegible] in 1942 or war activities and conditions generally. Nearly 100 knitted garments, 535 sewn garments, 250 quilts, 200 bed quilts and other articles all totalling over 1700 individual garments were shipped to the Red Cross headquarters at Edmonton. In addition to these the Red Shield (salvation Army) shipped an almost equal number of articles for west to its headquarters and the I.O.D.E. and W.I. contributed their share so that altogether a tremendously large quantity of comfort materials were sent from the Vermilion district in connection with the war work of these different organizations during the year and these local activities are being continued with unabated energy for the coming year.

Mrs. Smith of Hitches has been appointed [illegible] on the town council to fill the [illegible] of Dr. Ryan, the late Mayor of Edmonton. Mrs. Hutches is a local Vermilion woman and during her residence here established [illegible] W.M.S. lunch room.

The farm holdings of the late Jack Winters in the Ottawa district are comprising some three or four quarter section have been sold to Jos. Fa[illegible] starts on Feb 2nd.

The board of directors of the Vermilion curling and skating rink company consists of Dr. Ryan, Mayor Jamieson, Wm. Telford, Joe Mickens, C.E. Slater and W. J. Hammond.

W. C. Craig replaces H. A. Pilkington on the town council.

CUMMINGS FLASHES

Cpl. Hubert Regan arrived home a few days ago from Scotland after spending several months in hospital there. He is looking quite well and we hope his furlough will restore him to his usual good health again.

Telephone owners have had quite a time with lines being down due to storms. Messrs. Harris and Lazeen went out fixing them with the temperature at 50 below.

Some of the children of the Brookville school are having quite a time trying to get in their schooling. They have no teacher at Brookville and those of the pupils are attending Willowlea, one goes to Heatherdell. Efl attended school during the extremely cold weather of three weeks ago. It is a pity that teachers cannot be found to fill all the schools.

Ben Harle opened a tin of sardines recently and found therein a lovely pearl. But Alas! It had been soaked with the fish so there was no fortune in it. Better luck next time Ben.

Some people around are getting wood sawed up as that cold spell certainly caused the fuel to go up in smoke in a hurry.

Farmers around have not been getting their mail as we all expected when we signed for the rural route in preference to the sub post office which did duty for so many years. We all thought that we would get our mail regularly but alas this is not so, the extreme cold and deep snow has apparently played havoc with the mailman's car and several times recently we have gone to our mail boxes and found outgoing mail still there, and some had stayed there for two mail days. The mailman did not [illegible] except just around the corners.

Some roads have a phone they never know where their mail had been left, and probably had to travel by horseback in order to get it when they did discover where it was. We hope that the powers that be see to it next summer that the regular mail route is cleared of snow.

We all enjoy reading the Tales from the Training Centre the doings of the C.W.A.C. and they appear to have fun as well as work at the old school. W. Brooke has a sister who has joined up and expects to come to Vermilion soon for her basic. [illegible] has two brothers overseas and one sister in Vancouver doing war work in Vancouver. So the Brook family are doing their share.

Let us all hope that spring will soon be here and that it will be an early one so that everyone will get their last fall threshing done. The mice are surely getting fat in the fields with Mrs. Payne Sr.

Jack Harley and Harley White were noticed trucking grain this week [illegible]

Mrs M. Fenton is leading Mrs D. Harrison a hand at present.

Harold Knutson was noticed pulling Dr. Brost's car out of a snow drift.

BOWTELL BULLETIN

The sympathy of the district is extended to Mrs. Harry Dixon in her recent heavy sorrow.

The teacher and children are buying war savings stamps this year instead of Valentines.

Thanks are extended to Fred Brost who acted as M.C., also Mrs. Scott, Fred and Denise Dupuis for supplying the music for dancing following the cards. There will be another card party on Feb. 19th.

Mrs. Gow is expecting a visit from her mother Mrs. Gagnon.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Sherwood and family were Sunday visitors at the Perkins' home.

Chopping and wood sawing outfits are surely taking advantage of this fine weather Lets' hope we don't have any more extreme cold for a long time to come.

Mr. H. Kirkpatrick who has been in the Manneville hospital for several weeks is now home.

Our community without a church would be a dreary and degraded place in which to live. We are just now beginning to sense the fundamental value of the church in the life of our community and nation and world. Without a sympathetic and co-operative community back of it and supporting it with private, family and public sentiment your church is bully off indeed. If our community is not what it ought to be we are letting it down. Slackness is fatal for. We pay for it and our children pay more for it as we turn life over to them. Christian education must advance, but it moves forward only as hearts like yours and mine burn with love to help it move onward. Consider! In the warmth of your heart take hold the handle of some Christian task in your church and turn it. Go to church this Sunday and every Sunday

The Vermilion Red Shield auxiliary take this opportunity to thank the ladies of the Eastern Star for their donation of a quilt, also Mrs. Deford and Mrs. Kreutzer who have made so many quilts for us this past winter.

An appeal for overseas has just been sent out consisting of 79 articles for hospital comforts and necessities for soldiers.

Our Saturday Sale harmons are running a satisfactory expense. By this means a donation of $15 was made to the Canadian Aid to Russia fund. We wish to thank all who have kindly contributed articles for these sales. Would also like to remind them. Sales are handy with a quilt that good material for making must can be had very reasonably. These sales are held every Saturday afternoon at the Salvation Army hall

Our Lawrence Graham, brother of Mrs. Jas. Wallington of Wildmere, has arrived overseas, a cable having been received with that announcement.

The Submarine Menace

RECENT VICTORIES on the various fighting fronts, and our growing air offensive have given rise to feelings of increased optimism among the people of the United Nations. In recent months we have, for the first time in this war, seen German armies put to flight and German cities devastated from the air. After the years in which our reverses outnumbered our victories it is with great relief that we see the tide of battle turning surely in our favour. We are warned, however, against any feeling of over-optimism, or against any tendency to exert less than a maximum effort on the home front. We still face powerful enemies and it will take a strong and sustained effort on our part to achieve the victory which now appears to be in sight.

Sea-War is Still Serious

There is one phase of the struggle about which we do not hear many details, but which has a great effect on the outcome of the war as a whole. This is the battle between the enemy submarines and the ships of the United Nations. Supplies are vital to maintaining the fighting fronts, and they are carried by sea from Britain, the United States and Canada to Russia, North Africa and the other war zones. Submarines are seriously menacing all our sea lanes and they are still a very real threat to an early Allied victory. Germany has recently developed heavy sea-going submarines of 1,000 tons and more, capable of a surface speed of 18½ knots. The Germans claim that these submarines can stay at sea for long periods and can cover very great distances, because of their size, and because they can renew crews and supplies by contacting large "mother" submarines at sea. Dr. Goebbels boasts that Germany is now placing great hopes in her growing submarine strength

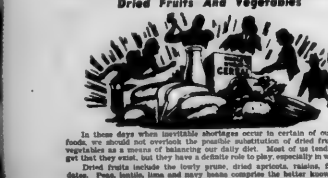
Easy Victory Is Not Close

The seriousness of the U boat menace is fully realized by the governments of the Allied Nations and great efforts are being made to deal successfully with it. It is thought that the convoy system is now best effective than it was during the last war, since modern reconnaissance facilities enable submarines to detect convoys and subject them to constant attack. It has been pointed out that while the loss of ships to these submarine attacks is most serious, the seriousness the cargo lost is even more valuable than the ship, and that as long as the Germans continue to harrass us in this way, there is uncertainty as to the measure of the support we can give the nations of the world-wide scattered fighting fronts. This view of the war is not a cheerful one, and it reminds us that we are not close to an easy victory. There is still need for a maximum effort on our part if victory is to be assured.

Dried Fruits And Vegetables



In these days when inevitable shortages occur in certain of our basic foods, we should not overlook the possible substitution of dried fruits and vegetables as a means of lessening our daily diet. Most of us tend to forget that they exist, but they have a definite role to play, especially in wartime.

Dried fruits include the towly prune, dried apricots, raisins, figs and dates. Peas, lentils, lima and navy beans complete the better known dried vegetables.

These dried foods cannot be considered in any sense good sources of the all-important vitamin C. However, they are all generally fairly rich in iron and copper, and the vegetables have a high protein value. Dried vegetables, particularly, have a high percentage of protein, which health authorities assert, is useful in adjusting the human system to the assimilation of the iron which they also contain.

Prunes and apricots can be very tastefully prepared in desserts, and figs, dates and raisins can be used in puddings or cakes just as they are.

Because of their high protein value lima beans can very well substitute for a meat dish, which in these times of meat scarcity, is mighty useful. Baked in a casserole and covered with tomato sauce, they are a very tasty dish. Dried peas, of course, can be used instead of the canned variety as one of the vegetables in a meal. They must be soaked in water in order to make them soft enough for use.

Lentils or split peas are an invaluable addition to soups and stews, lending a piquant flavor all their own, that makes one ask for more.

All or most of these dried fruits and vegetables are available in our stores. Whenever you feel stuck about that missing or evening meal, it wouldn't hurt to consider them.

Recipe Of The Week

The Queen of Hearts is in tromps on St. Valentine's Day. So is the hostess who serves Queen of Hearts Cake on February 14, especially if it is this sweet as a nut layer shaped like a heart frosted in white and decorated with bright red candy hearts.

The recipe was designed to be kind to your ration card. Not nuts but crisp shreds of All-Bran give the batter that sweet nutty flavor. Strawberry jam not sugar is employed as the sweetening agent. A seven-minute frosting is next on top if you have an extra cup of sugar handy, but if you haven't a jam flavored egg white topping will bring just as much applause for the cook. The recipe goes like this:

QUEEN OF HEARTS CAKE

¾ cup All-Bran	2 egg separated
½ cup milk	1½ cups cake flour
½ cup shortening	¾ teaspoon salt
1 cup strawberry jam	2 teaspoons baking powder
	½ teaspoon almond flavoring

Soak All-Bran in milk about five minutes. Blend shortening with ½ cup jam. Add egg yolks beat well, stir in soaked All-Bran. Sift flour, salt and baking powder, add to creamed mixture alternately with remaining jam. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into deep nine-inch layer cake pan, bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 to 35 minutes.

Remove cake from pan. Cut large heart from stiff paper. Place heart on top of cake. Cut around heart. Frost cake with meringue made of 1 egg white, 1-16 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons strawberry jam. Decorate with red candy hearts

Note Save part of cake that has been cut away. Serve in dessert dishes with smooth custard sauce.

Home Wool Needed

The Production Of Wool Is Of The Greatest Importance

To meet the needs of the armed forces of the United Nations, and at the same time supply civilian requirements, the production of wool is the various countries is of the utmost importance. In Canada the 1943 production objective for sheep and lambs calls for an over-all increase of 12 per cent. in marketings in the province, with the exception of Saskatchewan, are expected to show increases of 15 per cent. each, states the Current Review of Agricultural Conditions in Canada.

Based on 1,000 more sheep in Canada, the goal for the 1943 wool production would be about 7,000,000 more pounds than in 1941. The Canadian production of shorn wool in 1942 is now estimated at 12.9 million pounds, or 10.6 per cent. higher than in 1941. The main contributing factor to the larger clip was an increase of 118,000 in the number of sheep shorn.

The world supply of wool is now about to be enormously increased by the seasonal wool clips. The Australian clip now coming into the market will be well in excess of one billion pounds. The New Zealand clip will exceed 300 million pounds, Uruguay and the Argentine will have a combined clip of between 600 and 900 million pounds, including between 250 and 300 million pounds of pulled apparel wools. The forthcoming domestic clip in the United States is estimated at approximately 430 million pounds. It is expected therefore that approximately an additional two billion pounds of wool will be available to the United Nations during 1943.

Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?—1 Corinthians 3:16.

Only by knowledge of that which is not Thyself, shall thyself be learned. - Owen Meredith.

Once read thy own breast right,

—Matthew Arnold

We should examine ourselves and learn what is the effective and purpose of the heart, for in this way only can we learn what we honestly are.—Mary Baker Eddy.

By these things examine thyself. What faith, humility, self-denial, and love of God and to man have there been in all my actions" John Mason.

Never let us be discouraged with ourselves. It is not when we are conscious of our faults that we are the most wicked; on the contrary, we are less so. Fenelon.

SWINE DISEASES

Hemorrhagic Septicemia Is Contagious

Baby Pig Disease

This is the first of a series of six articles by J. G. Miller, provincial veterinarian, Regina, Sask., with the above prominent hog diseases as subjects. The articles will appear weekly in the Saskatchewan Farmer and (Diarrhoea: Enteritis, Erysipelas) Worms) Anemia, Lice and Coitre.

Hemorrhagic Septicemia is a contagious disease of Swine and is responsable for quite heavy losses in the swine herds of this province. It is usually characterized by an inflammation of the lungs and pneumonia, and is also known as Swine Plague. Young pigs are particularly susceptible, but animals of any age may be affected. Healthy pigs are quite resistant to the infection but animals which have had their resistance reduced by poor feeding, unsanitary quarters, or other disease conditions are very susceptible to the disease.
